AUSTRALIAN TRADE TREATY BOOM TO BRITISH COLUMBIA INDUSTRY DECLARES INDEPENDENT MEMBER

Salmon Trade Benefitted and Likely To Secure Australian Market.

POPULATION GAINS.

Col. Cantley To Lead Determined Opposition For Reduced Freight Rates.

OTTAWA, Feb. 12 (Canadian Press).—T. Cantley (Conservative, Pictou) continued his speech on the address when the House of Commons met at its afternoon session Thursday.

Hundreds of miners, said Col. Cantley, could be put to work in Sydney mines if Nova Scotia were given the same consideration as to reduced rtaes, as Alberta had been receiving. The Minister of the Interior had promised from day to day to make a statement concerning the request that a reasonable quantity of coal be brought from Nova Scotia to Monntreal at the $3 25 rate, but had not done so.

Col. Cantley recalled that Hon. Peter Mitchell, a minister of agriculture in the early days of Confederation, tried for five years to get remuneration for a widow whose cow had been killed on a government railway. He ended by keeping the House sitting all one night, and by breakfast time had got $40 for the widow. Unless the champions of Maritime rights could get consideration from the Government, Col. Cantley said "We are determined that Senator Mitchell's course will be followed up. Unless you are prepared to come down and give us fair treatment, all the resources open to members on this side will be maintained until we get satisfaction in this matter."

Voice from Pacific.

A. W. Neill (Independent, Comox, Alberta) said that the opening words of one of the Conservative amendments had apparently been designed to catch the Labor vote. It expressed regret that there was no provision for dealing with unemployment in the Speech from the Throne. Surely, however, the proposal to complete the Hudson Bay Railway immediately was a proposal which if carried out, should bring employment to a large number.

Employment in British Columbia had shown a marked improvement and in his own constituency of Comox-Alberni this was particularly true. It was due largely, he believed to the lowering of the duty on saw mill machinery which had enabled several mills to be set up, and the advantages of the Australian Treaty.

During the election his opponents had sent workers to the constituency who "swept through like a horde of hungry locusts devouring as they went." These men had talked much of the migration into the United States. In the district of Comox-Alberni there has been an enormous increase in population during the last four years.

Speaking of the Australian Treaty, Mr. Neill said that the sudden influx of butter from Australia was due to extraordinary conditions there, and was by no means the normal exportation to Canada. Under normal conditions, it would be much smaller. He read telegrams from industrial organizations in his constituency stating that the abrogation of the Australian Treaty would mean serious losses. The salmon canning trade had benefitted considerably and was likely to secure the whole Australian trade under the treaty.

Mr. Neill expressed the view that Hon. S. F. Tolmie (Conservative, Victoria) would be handicapped in

NOW, HONESTLY—

It costs so little and means so much—when a husband and father thinks, now and then, to take a box of candy home.

Trivial thing, perhaps—but a surprise is a surprise and the whole tribe appreciate getting it.

Ya walk in the house and the kids shout, "Whadja bring us, daddy?"

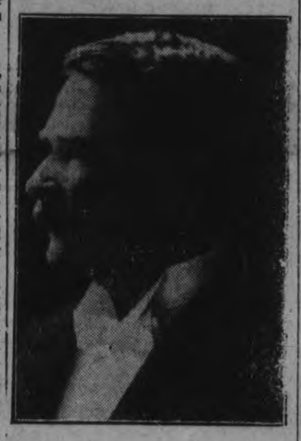
Imagine the thrill of pulling the candy out — and throwing your chest out.

You can always be sure that the good wife will get a thrill—and the kids will get the candy.

R. J. DEVEY IS KNOX ORGANIST

Suceeds Charles Peaker, Who Leaves For St. Catharines in March.

R. J. Devey has recently received and has accepted the unanimous invitation of the management of Knox United Church to the appointment of organist and choir leader, to take the place of Charles Peaker, who leaves for St. Catharines early in March.



Mr. Devey was formerly organist and choirmaster at St. John's Anglican church, which position he held for seventeen years. Many works of Oratorio, Cantata and Light Opera have been produced under his direction, two of the latter, the "Mikado" and the "Geisha," also having been staged at the Princess Theatre and Loew's Winter Garden, in Toronto. Perhaps the most outstanding examples of his work locally in this direction were the production of "The Messiah" by the Peterborough Choral Society and the production of "The Geisha" at the time of the Governor General, Earl Grey's, visit to the city, a souvenir of which still remains in the royal coat of arms on one of the boxes in the Grand Opera House.

Dance Partners Drafted, East African Women Strike Modern Ideas Are Permeating Natives Of Kenyai Colony

LONDON, Feb. 12 (United Press)—Women of the Kitui district of the Kenyai county and protectorate in British East Africa went on strike when the young men of that region were drafted for work on the railroads according to advices from the acting governor.

Queried as to the reason for their revolt the women replied that the draft took away their dance partners.

The acting governor reports that modern ideas are permeating the region and that mirrors and finery are now demanded by the women as gifts from their lovers where once a lion's claw or a leopard skin was considered a splendid token.

BELL TELEPHONE CO. CONSENTS TO JOINT AUDIT OF ITS BOOKS

589,321 Bell Telephones in Service at Close of Last Year.

RATES APPEAL

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 12.—(By Canadian Press).—"At over eight-five per cent of exchanges there will be either no charge or a decrease in residence rates," Geo. H. Rogers, general commercial engineer, of the Bell Telephone Co., testified before the Board of Railway Commissioners, yesterday afternoon, at the resumption of the hearing of the Company's application for approval of its new schedule of phone rates in Ontario and Quebec.

Rates for residence extension telephones, Mr. Rogers told F. H. Phippen, K.C., counsel for the Telephone Company were reduced in the larger exchange areas, under the tariff recently filed, from $1.03 per month to 80 cents; and at the smaller exchanges to 55 cents.

Enlargement of present exchange boundaries, he stated, would take in much development "which properly forms part of many communities." Base rate areas—that portion of a telephone exchange within which rates do not vary with distance from the central office—would be extended at Toronto and Montreal. Enlargement of base rate areas was also contemplated in respect to Ottawa, Hamilton, Quebec and Windsor.

589,321 Telephones.

An increase of 340 per cent in the number of bell telephones in operation had occurred in the past fifteen years. At the end of 1925, there were 589,321 bell telephones in service, as contrasted with 134,000 in December 1910.

Commissioner Boyce commented that in a period of thirty-eight years from 1880 to 1917, the company had increased the number of its telephones by approximately 286,910. During that time the company had paid a dividend without obtaining increased rates. It was somewhat difficult to understand why, having done this, the company now required more revenue.

Examination of Mr. Rogers by counsel for the Company occupied all afternoon.

The Bell Telephone Company has consented to a joint audit of its books by Clarkson Dilworth and Co., Toronto, acting for the City of Toronto, and Price, Waterhouse and Co., Montreal, for the City of Montreal. This audit will probably be proceeded with shortly.

SCOTS REQUIRE 150,000 HOUSES

Shortage Estimated By Sir John Gilmour—Discuss Steel Houses.

PROVIDE 2,000.

LONDON, Feb. 12.— (Canadian Press Cable.) — The crying need for working class houses in Scotland and the most acceptable method of coping with the problem came up for discussion in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon when an item in the supplementary estimates providing for the erection of 2,000 steel houses was considered. After a great deal of discussion the item was agreed to without a vote being taken.

The Labor members hitherto have been split into three sections regarding the desirability of this type of dwelling but yesterday Ramsay MacDonald, the Labor leader, although he criticized them, said the party had come to the conclusion that it must vote for their erection.

Sir John Gilmour, secretary of state for Scotland, estimated that there was a shortage of 150,000 in Scotland and declared that it was indisputably proved that the occupants of these steel houses found them satisfactory in every way.

A striking speech in favor of the erection of the houses was made by Rosslyn Mitchell, Labor member for Paisley, who evoked vigorous labor dissent while J. Maxton, Labor, Bridgeton, emphasized the difference of opinion in the labor ranks by declaring his opposition to the passage of the item.

TO ADJOURN.

OTTAWA, Feb. 12, Canadian Press. — At the opening of to-day's hearing before the Board of Railway Commissioners of the application of the Bell Telephone Company, for approval of its new schedule of increased rates in Ontario and Quebec F. H. Phippin, K.C., counsel for the company, announced that he did not intend to call any further witnesses at this sitting.

An adjournment will likely be agreed upon in the course of the day and in the meantime an audit of the company's books will be conducted.

Examination of George Rogers, a general commercial engineer for the Bell Telephone Co., as resumed by Mr. Phippin. Rogers continued his explanation of the basis of the new schedule of rates.

NO INQUIRY INTO DEATH OF CADET

Hon. W. F. Nickle Says He Sees No Reason To Order Investigation.

FATHER SATISFIED.

TORONTO, Feb. 12 (Canadian Press)—Hon. W. F. Nickle, attorney general of Ontario, said this morning he had at the present time no intention of ordering further investigation into the death of Cadet William Campbell, aged 18, of Quebec, at the Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont., on Wednesday night. The verdict of the coroner's jury in the case yesterday morning said that Campbell was killed by a "rifle bullet fired in an unaccountable manner from a rifle in his own custody and charge."

"It was a lamentable affair," said Mr. Nickle, "But I see no reason for ordering a further investigation. There is nothing at all to indicate crime."

Father Satisfied

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 12 (Canadian Press)—In a statement to the press today, Lieut. Col. H. B. D. Campbell, father of William Davis Campbell, member of the recruit class at the R.M.C. who met death Wednesday evening, declared that he was perfectly satisfied with the investigation conducted into the death of his son, and that he attached no blame to the college authorities.

No More Baggy Knees Aim Of Cloth Craftsmen

LONDON, Feb. 12 (United Press).—English woollen mill craftsmen are seeking a cloth that will not bag at the knees and wrinkle at the elbows. According to A. K. Tindall of the Bradford Technical College, a cloth suitable for non-baggy trousers has already been developed, but it is not adaptable to coats and vests. Tindall also revealed that many experiments were proceeding with artificial wool but so far the imitation had proved more expensive than real wool.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (United Press)—Secretary of Labor Davis announced a settlement of the anthracite coal strike at the White House at 11.10 a.m. today.

The terms of the settlement, Davis said were:

1—A five year wage contract.
2—No increase in pay.
3—A modified check off.

A full statement of the agreement conditions would be made public soon by the Labor department, Davis said.

Resume Work Next Week

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12—(United Press)—With settlement of the anthracite coal strike announced by Secretary of Labor Davis and Governor Pinchot, the question of how soon sorely needed coal will be again moving from the mines was answered by authorities here today as follows:

The settlement terms will be placed before a tri-district convention of miners for ratification early next week, and the men will probably resume work within a day or two after the convention. Mining should therefore be resumed within a week at least.

Velvet Toque Perched On His Flaming Red Hair. Member Raises Point Of Order In British House

LONDON, Feb. 12 (Canadian Press).—The little comedy for which the House of Commons has been waiting ever since the advent of women members was performed last night, when a male member addressed the House wearing a woman's hat. Among many of the old rules governing procedure in the House is the one that if a member wishes to raise a point of order after a division has been called, he must don his hat. The Laborite member, G. Buchanan, desired to raise a point, but he had not brought his hat with him. He solved the dilemma, however, by borrowing the toque of Miss Ellen C. Wilkinson also a Laborite member, which he clapped upon his head of red hair. Thus he addressed the speaker amid noisy merriment on the part of the commoners.

FANATICISM CAUSE.

Speaks on Mussolini's "Napoleonic Year" Address.

LONDON, Feb. 12 — (United News)—Premier Mussolini's Fascist Nationalism inevitably will lead to war, according to Professor Geatono Salvemini, formerly of Florence University, whose opinion of the Fascist government compelled him to leave Italy.

"I don't know how long the Fascist regime will remain in power, but if it does remain, the Fascist's fanaticism undoubtedly would bring war," said Salvemini in an interview with the United News. Salvemini was asked for an opinion on Mussolini's recent "Napoleonic year" speech and his speeches condemning Germany for agitation regarding Southern Tyrol.

Wells Called Him "Bore" Speaker Sues For Slander

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—Poultney Bigelow, lecturer and author, who in his recent book, "Seventy Summers," among other things likened H. G. Wells to a "prosperous stock broker" has started a suit against the British novelist for $50,000 on a charge of slander.

"Why, he called me a bore" Bigelow said today, and then asked: "How am I going to make a living as an after-dinner speaker if I am slandered by being called a bore?"

UNITED FARMERS POLITICAL RULES

Committee Issues Statement of Conditions For Candidates.

UNDER EXECUTIVE.

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—The committee appointed at the 1925 convention of the United Farmers of Ontario to draw up a pronouncement of political policy, issued its statement last night. That the U.F.O. political candidates shall be subject to the U.F.O. executive in the matter of policies and that no recognition can be given to "any candidate nominated at a joint convention of the U.F.O. with any political party whatsoever, but only to those candidates nominated at a convention called by a U.F.O. constituency organization" are two statements in the report which, of course, is subject to the ratification of the U.F.O. executive.

FIRE BOXES PULLED FOR CHIMNEY FIRES

Chief Asks That Such Blazes Be Reported By 'Phone.

The Fire Department was called out to two more chimney fires last night, making a total of seven for the day. Two boxes were pulled resulting in the entire department proceeding to the scene. Chief Gimblett stated this morning that the public in case of a chimney fire, should not pull a box but should phone 100 and tell the man on watch that it was a chimney fire. Otherwise the entire department turns out, which means that if a serious fire occurred considerable delay would be occasioned before it could get to the scene. In addition to this, he said, the men who are off duty are also called in and get to the station invariably to return home without their being needed. It would aid the efficiency of the department immensely if the citizens generally were to bear the above facts in mind.

MURDER CHARGE AGAINST YOUTH IN LETHBRIDGE

Gunman Shot Companion in Alleged Attack on Alberta Constable.

SLAYER CONFESSED

Guns Believed Stolen From Store on Wednesday Night.

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Feb. 12 (Canadian Press).—Karl Perdue, 23, was arrested late Thursday and charged with murder in connection with the killing here yesterday morning of Walter Vere.

Perdue is stated to have made a confession which will be admitted as evidence at the inquest to-day. The police refuse to reveal the contents of the alleged confession.

Vere was shot and killed at 3 a.m. Thursday in what was believed to be an attempt on the life of Constable Carr of the Alberta Provincial police. Two men called the constable to the door of his home. The constable became suspicious and grappled with the man nearest the door, whereupon his companion fired two shots from near the gate. Both shots hit Vere and he died almost instantly. The man who fired the fatal shots made his escape, and the arrest of Perdue followed an all-day search.

Several hours after the shooting, and while a posse of citizens and police hunted for the unknown man, Vere's body was identified at the local morgue.

Vere is only 18 years old, and is of Slavic nationality.

The guns used in the attack are believed to have been stolen from a local sporting goods store on Wednesday night. The store was broken into and an army rifle and a revolver taken.

FORKE'S LETTER GIVEN TO HOUSE

Asked for Premier's Attitude Toward "Fourteen Points" of Progressives.

SAME TO MEIGHEN

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—The letter in which Robert Forke outlined the "fourteen points" on which the Progressive Party desired to know the attitude of Premier King was tabled yesterday in the House of Commons along with the Prime Minister's reply.

Mr. Forke tabled the correspondence himself for the information of the House. His letter is dated January 6, and it asked for a reply on January 7. Premier King, writing on the 7th, informed Mr. Forke that "the Government's attitude with respect to many of the matters to which your letter refers will be outlined in the speech from the throne to-morrow."

At the same time, the Premier invited Mr. Forke to meet him in his office the same afternoon to discuss the whole matter. Mr. King remarked that it was obviously impossible to attempt to cover by correspondence all the matters referred to.

The fourteen points, already published, of which Mr. Forke sought a declaration of policy from the Government, were: The Tariff; the Hudson Bay railway; the Peace River outlet; the mountain differential; statutory freight rates on grain and flour; public ownership of National Railways; the income tax; rural credits; transfer of natural resources to prairie provinces; trade relations with the United States, particulaly with regard to live stock; a national coal policy; revaluation of soldiers' settlement lands; co-operative marketing, and the alternative vote.

He concludes by saying that similar request for a declaration of policy on these points had been sent to the leader of the Opposition.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin.
—Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute.
—Milton.

C. E. J.—You were born to be a leader, and have a somewhat curious personality, strong and active, but somewhat domineering and inclined to disregard the rights of others. Circumstances and environment have made you reserved and retired in your ways, with a tendency toward morbidness, so that you have to face life with a somewhat restless inner force condemned to live in a state of walled-up introspection. This is not a good thing. Interest yourself in something creative, even if it be only in embroidery, for which you have an aptitude. Do not think too much of yourself or your own thoughts—plan as well as execute, and study along the particular line that appeals to you, regardless of what others may say. You do not care over-much for housework, and should make the details of daily routine as light as possible, as you will never overcome this dislike. Profit by listening attentively to the reasoning of others who are older than you, as long as they do not try to interfere with your intuitions as to your conduct of your life. You are not too patient and should cultivate this virtue. Choose your friends carefully and then bear with their faults. You have the admirable faculty of minding your own business, are not anxious to cast a slur, nor to forgive an injury. Do not become angry over trifles. You were born on Wednesday. Your color is flame in all its variations.

F. C. P.—You should have ability along creative lines and have a good deal of physical power. You are inclined to a certain coarseness in fibre. You should be quite successful in your present occupation and will do your best work when using diplomacy and tact. A life that is not overly exacting and has association with many people will suit you best. You are inclined to be restless and somewhat skeptical. You have a strong hidden love nature and are anxious to give of your abundance to all who need. You must not allow your desire to help others to react unpleasantly on yourself or your health. Do not talk too much—learn the value of silence—and do not ask unnecessary questions. Do not associate with anyone of vulgar or coarse habits. Cultivate self-esteem, without self-consciousness, if possible, and do not give way to a tendency to fits of weeping and melancholy. You will be astonished at your own reserve powers of strength if you commence to conquer such periods of depression. Much of the trouble that comes to you is caused by your innate restlessness and anxiety. Strive to overcome it. When you invest your money, put it into such things as real estate or growing crops, cattle or horses. Avoid speculation in stocks. Wear a ring containing a moonstone or chrysolite. Begin important undertakings in May or June, and on Saturday.

You were born on Thursday. The day you ask about, a Sunday, is one on which to be patient and agreeable. Don't exercise strenuously.

Your colors are blue and green.

V. L. A.—You have a strong character, which will find its highest expression in life in personal service to others—the service inspired by love. You have musical ability and a fine feeling for art. Religious and educational matters have an appeal for you. You are restless and skeptical, but rarely look for deception or dishonesty in others. You are magnetic and wish to help others but have not sufficient self-esteem and assertiveness for your own advancement in life. You are apt to talk a little too much for your own good and to ask unnecessary questions. This is an irritating habit. Before your thirty-fifth year, you are liable to have a serious illness, after which you will progress more easily in life. Although you may not be overly attracted by the thought of marriage, you should cultivate the society of men, as you would make a good wife. Forget yesterday, do not expect blessings to come, but live in today. Be careful in your choice of friends, as associations will have a strong effect on your future life. Marry a man born in July, September or October. May and June are your lucky months and Saturday your lucky day. Dress in pale, delicate shades and wear a ring containing a chrysolite or moonstone. You were born on Tuesday. The date you enquire about is past. Your colors are red and brown.

J. S. C.—You might be a natural leader and thinker, but with your temperament, it is doubtful if you ever will be. However, as you are quite young, you might make a stab at it, anyway. You have a fickle, changeable quantity in your make-up and have a certain attraction in social life that is offset by your vacillating nature, shallow and uncertain. While you remain unmarried, you will suffer from a reserved tendency that tends to morbidity at times, and gives you a liking for the mystical and occult. You are a good worker, but will, work better for yourself than for others. You would be a success in commercial life, or as a milliner or designer. You would also be a very good teacher, and have much personal magnetism. You will be happiest when you control your temper and gain self-poise. Keep away from scolders and fault-finders and get a certain amount of change and excitement to retain your naturally good health. Be original—do not copy others in any way. Dress warmly in the winter season, and dress well at all times. Marry while young—someone born in May, July, February or November. Remember that there is something higher than the intellect.

Yes, you were born on Friday. Your color is pink.

C. M. W.—You have naturally a strong and highly developed character, full of love for others and fitted for emergencies. Circumstances, how-ever, have made you a somewhat uncertain quantity, liable to change and wavering. You must try to control this element in your make-up and stress your decided physical and mental force. As I am not a reader of the future, I cannot tell you what measure of success awaits you in the coming year, but you belong to a class that usually succeeds in what it undertakes to do. You have many excellent qualities, but are inclined to be selfish and critical of a lack of such good qualities in others. Do not pick people to pieces. It doesn't pay. Instead of growing old as most people do, you appear to grow younger with advancing years, but you must be careful in eating and drinking, cultivate your individuality, and remember that while you have been endowed with a wonderful nature, much is expected of you in return. Avoid criticism and reach out a helpful hand to others. You may spend some later years in travelling. Do things in your own individual way and you will achieve much. Be independent, and do not be an imitator of rich friends. You were born on Monday. Your colors are red and brown. Undertakings begun in February and November will be fortunate for you, and Wednesday is your lucky day.

M. M. P.—You are kind-hearted, generous and magnetic, with strong emotional leanings and high ideals. You are quite well satisfied with yourself and possess a good deal of poise, with an inclination to conservatism and a liking for the occult and the mystic elements in life. You are strongly religious. You have good commercial instincts and should amass money. You are strong in your love of your own people and will listen to nothing to their detriment. You are apt to take a dislike to a person without a real cause and find it hard to overcome this fault. You are a good planner for others but dislike detail work. You are a good cook and are fond of rich, seasoned foods. You should try to control a rather fiery temper, also a strong tendency to selfishness, which will blot out, if allowed to gain headway, your kindhearted, sympathetic nature. Do not be reckless in your choice of friends and learn how to keep them as well as how to attract them. Do not allow your impulsiveness to blind you to your own interests, and do not lose sight of the fact that you are a born leader, but can only hold that position when you have learned to govern yourself. You were born on Friday. The date you enquire for is past. Your colors are steel, purple and brick.

Her Liver Was Bad And She Felt Tired and Depressed

Mrs. M. Siefert, Grosswerder, Sask., writes:—"I was greatly disturbed with pains in my liver, and felt tired and depressed most of the time. One day I read about and the next time I went to town I bought four vials of them.

I have used them regularly, and after two months' use I feel like an entirely different woman.

Now, I always recommend them to any of my friends who are troubled as I was."

FACTS ABOUT ELECTRIC UTILITY

NUMBER FOUR

Editor of The Examiner,—

Sir,—The agreement between the City and the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario for a supply of power, which was authorized by the electors by a vote of 1457 to 161, and made by the City Council, does not give a specific rate at which electric current or power shall be furnished to the City, because the principle is to furnish it at cost. The agreement provides that the City shall pay annually interest at 4 per cent upon the City's proportionate part (based on the quantity of electrical energy or power taken) upon all monies expended by the Hydro Commission on all works necessary for the delivery of the power, to pay towards a sinking fund in the same way, and also for the cost of lost power, operation, maintenance, repairing, renewing and insuring, and of administration expenses.

Then it is provided that, "The Commission shall at least annually adjust and apportion the amount, or amounts, payable by the Municipal Corporation or Corporations for such power and such interest, sinking fund, loss of power, cost of generating, operating, maintaining, repairing, renewing and insuring said works."

Under these provisions of the agreement, which is similar to all agreements made by the Hydro Commission, with all Municipalities, the City is billed each month for the power taken by it, at a stated charge per horse power, and then, at the end of each year, when the actual costs are ascertained, the accounts are adjusted, as provided in the agreement, and if the cost is more than the City paid it is charged with the difference, or, if the cost is less than the City has paid, it is credited with the difference. Thus there is not a fixed price at which the Hydro Commission furnishes the power. The Commission does not require or look for profit; it has no dividends to pay. The power is charged for and paid for at what it costs, the adjustments being made at the end of the year to ensure that result.

At first the tentative bills were sent to the City at $18.00 a Horse Power, and then at $17.50. The cost of the power increased, owing to the increased wages and cost of material, and the tentative rate was raised to $22.50 per H.P. this year. This caused a debit charge against this City, but it was hoped that credits would accumulate and square the account. The credits were slow in doing that, and the Hydro Commission billed the Utilities Commission for the debit balance and it was paid last year. The balance was owing under the agreement entered into by the Council and on the principle of power at cost, on which the agreement was based, and the account was for an amount owing and that should be paid and had to be paid.

The Hydro Electric Power Commission accounts are regularly audited, and there is no reason to question their accounts. The Commission, or the members of the Commission, have no personal interest in the matter. They are trustees for the Province, and the Province has not received any profits from the electric system. The Municipalities which have agreements with the Commission for power, including this one, pay for it what costs.

When the cost of power to the City increased, to the extent of about $5.00 per Horse Power, the rates were not increased to the users of light and power in the City. The original rates put into effect in 1914, owing largely to the increased use of the utility, were sufficient to take care of the higher cost of the power, and the citizens were not charged any more than they had been when the cost of producing the power was less. There are very few commodities that are furnished to the people at the same price as in 1914, but electric light and power in Peterborough is one of them, if indeed there is any other.

Public Utilities Commission.

DRAMATIC CLUB WELL RECEIVED

St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. Members Put on Play at Lakefield.

STREETS ROLLED

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 12. — The Dramatic Club of the A.Y.P.A. of St. Luke's Peterboro, registered a hit with the three-act comedy, "His Uncle's Niece," in Lakefield Memorial Hall, on Monday evening, under the auspices of St. John's A.Y.P.A. A crowded house greeted the young people, and the applause testified to their appreciation of the play, which was very entertaining, having many amusing situations and plenty of rapid-fire dialogue which kept the audience convulsed with laughter. "Oh, what a tangled web we weave when first we practice to deceive" is exemplified in the plot of "His Uncle's Niece," and the various amusing predicaments in which the hero finds himself involved are solved only in the last dramatic scene where mistakes are all corrected and everybody is made happy. The following is the cast:

Richard Tate, a smart young lawyer—Ormy Heap.

Francis Felton, his uncle's niece—Cecil Hope.

Simon Felton, the uncle who never makes a mistake—H. Sedgwick.

Silas Sickamore, the police force of Happy Valley Junction—Roland Kraut.

Philander Philmore, a fickle Swain—Delbert Gardiner.

Timothy Hay, a truly rural young man—Percy Lindley.

Doris Hale, the fiancee of Francis—Miss Flossie Pammett.

Alice Malcolm, friend of Doris and sweetheart of Richard — Miss Queenie Hope.

Mrs. Sarah Anne Mullen, a grass widow and a woman of few words—Mrs. W. Hepburn.

Each part was well taken and admirably carried out, and comparisons, which are always odious, would be unfair to a well balanced cast. Cecil Hope, with his feminine impersonation cleverly done, was probably the star, but was well supported by all his fellow-players.

Between the acts the following excellent programme was rendered, Rev. Walter Cox acting as chairman:

Pianoforte solo—Miss Gwendolyn Simpson.
Solo—Mrs. William Millage.
Recitation—Miss Queenie Hope.
Solo—Mrs. W. Hepburn.
Solo—Dr. J. C. Smith.
Pianoforte duet—Misses Verna Payne and Mary Dever.

At the close of the entertainment an informal dance was held by the young people for an hour.

Rolled Snow.

The town roller was put to good service on Monday when Frank Darling, the village teamster, rolled the snow-drifts on the Main street, widening the road and greatly improving traffic.

WIDOW LOST HOME

Aged Lady Escaped in Night Clothes—No Furniture Saved.

APSLEY, Feb. 12.—Mrs. Matt Woodbeck, a widow, eighty-eight years of age, living near the Long Swamp at Owenbrook was "burnt out" on Monday last. The hired man had gone to the barn to do the chores after lighting fire; soon after Mrs. Woodbeck found the house ablaze. Throwing on an overcoat over her night clothes she rushed out to the barn to get help, but in a few minutes the roof fell in, and there was no chance of saving a single article. Charles Woodbeck, on his way to work, saw the flames, and conveyed Mrs. Woodbeck wrapped in a horse blanket to his house about a mile distant.

Girls! Your Health!

Toronto, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a godsend to women and girls who have become run-down in health. When I was a girl, I became all run-down in health, was weak and nervous, suffered from irregularity, and at times with pains. I was as miserable as could be, when, upon the advice of a friend, I took the 'Favorite Prescription' and it corrected all my trouble. I did not suffer any more, my nerves grew strong and I gained in health and strength very rapidly. After I married I took the 'Favorite Prescription' and it gave me wonderful relief."—Mrs. Elizabeth Penmen, 205 Oak St. All druggists.

Y.P.L. PROGRAMME VERY INTERESTING

Returned Missionary Gave Address on Travel—Norwood News.

NORWOOD, Feb. 12.—The Missionary Department of the Young Peoples' League of the United Church was responsible for a very interesting and instructive program given at the regular meeting on Monday evening in the Sunday school hall. After the devotional exercises a solo was rendered by Miss Lillian Hugill and this was fololwed by an address given by Mrs. (Dr.) Mortimer Clarke, who took for her subject "Travel." The speaker took her large audience on an imaginary trip from Ontario, overland by pullman and dining car to the Pacific coast, then by steamer across the ocean and up the Yangtsikian river to Lucnow, China, where she and her husband had laboured for five years under the missionary board of the former Methodist church. After the address Mrs. Clarke displayed a number of curios from China also some pictures of scenes in that field of labor.

At the Young Peoples' Guild of the Presbyterian church held on Monday evening. Mr. Ernest McCook (nee Marjory Johnston) of Campbellford and a former member of the Guild, sang a solo which was greatly enjoyed by all present.

FISH AND GAME ASSOCIATION MET

Port Hope Body Considers Matters of Protecting Wild Creatures.

COBOURG, Feb. 12.—At the annual meeting of the Port Hope branch of the Ontario Fish and Game Protective Association, held last Thursday night a lengthy discussion took place over fishing for pickerel. The Association is adverse to any action being taken to prohibit pickerel fishing, before the opening of the maskinonge season on June 16th. It was pointed out that pickerel are in their prime in May and much of the tourist trade to different resorts is influenced by the prospect of pickerel, and that still fishing for pickerel might be permitted in May, but trolling or bait casting for pickerel, until June 16 should be prohibited.

Mr. W. F. McMahon and Mr. S. C. Bennett were appointed delegates to the Ontario Fish and Game Protective Association meeting at Toronto.

It was suggested that steps be taken with the proper authorities to have provision made for the hatching of maskinonge spawn in the natural waters of Rice Lake.

The closing of seasons for the shooting of pheasants for five years was recommended by the Association.

It was reported that great success had attended the raising of pheasants in Durham. Mr. George Luxton, who resides near Canton, was reported to have over seventy birds in a bush on his farm.

Mr. Alf Outram and Mr. F. C. Patterson were appointed by the Association to look into the feasibility and advisability of importing and protecting on some preserve, a number of European hares or "jack rabbits" for breeding purposes, and for sport in future years.

BASKET SOCIAL

Held at Cork School House —Receipts Were Large.

BAILIEBORO, Feb. 12.—Miss Mary Earl, teacher at Cork schoolhouse, Cavan, with her pupils held a most successful entertainment and basket social on Friday evening.

The entertainment was quite as good a concert as was ever held in the little red school house, and was immensely enjoyed by all present.

Mr. H. Campbell acted as auctioneer, and about thirty beautifully decorated baskets found ready sale. The baskets ranged in price from three dollars and a quarter, down to one dollar, and somewhere in the neighborhood of sixty dollars was realized.

At the conclusion of the social, the seats were removed from the school house, and the young folks indulged in dancing for the remainder of the evening.

On Thursday evening last, a couple of sleighloads of the young folks of this district took in the carnival at Millbrook.

You're behind the times if you don't know that Cod Liver Extract is one of the greatest flesh producers in the world.

Because it contains more vitalizing vitamines than any food you can get.

You'll be glad to know that McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets come in sugar coated form now, so if you really want to put 10 to 20 pounds of solid healthy flesh on your bones and feel well and strong and have a complexion that people will admire ask McDermid & Jury, Jas. Lynch, Bond's Drug Store or any druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets.

Only 60 cents for 60 tablets and if you don't gain five pounds in 30 days your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money paid for them.

It isn't anything unusual for a person to gain 10 pounds in 30 days, and for old people with feebleness overtaking them they work wonders.

A CHANCE TO DO SOMETHING.

Although the absence of O.T.A. legislation from the programme outlined at the opening of the Legislature may cause pangs of regret in some quarters, it is undoubtedly in the general interest that controversial measures are massing, and that the Legislature should be able to get down to business and put through some useful legislation.

There are more important things than the liquor problem, difficult as it is to get extremists on either side of the question to see that fact.

Ontario is on the threshold of tremendous development, especially in the North Country, where fresh discoveries of mineral wealth and further progress in the older fields give hope for record expansion.

It is on the hastening of this development, the provision of greater perver facilities, especially in Eastern Ontario, and similar problems that the attention of Ontario's legislators should be concentrated, and it is a matter for rejoicing, rather than for recrimination, that the session is to be devoted to such questions instead of being devoted to a battle of the wets and drys.

The Legislature can and should do much for Ontario in the next few weeks, and the prospects of doing so are heightened by the absence of controversial legislation for the programme announced in the Speech from the throne.

GAINING MOMENTUM.

The campaign of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition for 1,500 members is gaining momentum as the lists published each day in the Examiner testify.

The people of Peterboro realize the fact that the revenue from the addition of so many new members will enable the Exhibition management to go ahead with their programme of plant improvements during the summer, and they are enthusiastic enough about the Exhibition to desire to help along this good work.

At the same time it is realized that the $2.00 membership fee, which carries with it admission to the Exhibition as often as the holder desires to use his ticket, is a good investment.

The Peterboro Exhibition, now a week's Fair, with a host of features, has moved a long way ahead of its old status when one visit was considered sufficient.

Nowadays Peterboro people want to go to the Exhibition almost daily during its run because there is so much to be seen and so many features of interest have been arranged.

The membership campaign is enlisting the interest of many citizens who have not hitherto concerned themselves with joining, and the prospects are that during the next few weeks the 1,500 objective will be reached.

THE ROTARY CARNIVAL.

The action of the Rotary Club in reviving on a large scale the old-time winter carnival should provide a most interesting evening for the many people who will doubtless visit Brock street rink on Monday.

The time was when such a carnival was a red-letter occasion in the community, and hundreds of skaters and big crowds of spectators attended.

Of recent years, although there have been smaller carnivals, especially on outdoor rinks, there has not been any skating function of this kind of the calibre of Monday night's affair, and the carnival will be a novelty to many citizens and a pleasing revival to many others.

The proceeds of the affair are to be used for Rotary activities, which include the splendid work that is being done for crippled children, as well as Rotary's efforts on behalf of under-privileged boys.

This is a cause which undoubtedly commends itself to the people of Peterboro, and they will be glad of this opportunity to assist financially an organization that has been of excellent community service since it began its activities in this city.

The novelty of the programme and the merit of the objective should combine to attract a very large crowd to Monday's carnival.

THE MAILED FIST AGAIN.

"Two eyes for the loss of one eye, and a whole set of teeth for the loss of one tooth," cries Mussolini, shaking his fist in Germany's face.

The Germans will recognize the language. They will hear the echoes of the accents of the exile at Doorn when he strutted the imperial stage. Remove Mussolini's frock coat and silk hat and clothe him in a war lord's uniform, with plumed helmet and a sword, and he would be a second edition of William of Hohenzollern before the war.

There is a great deal of talk intended to be consolatory about the spirit of Locarno, but this new mentality has not permeated the pinchbeck Napoleon and imitation William at Rome. He is trying to run his steam roller over a band of pacific peasants in the Tyrol, who merely ask the right to preserve their own language and culture. The spirit of Locarno will evaporate and the League of Nations be gravely imperiled if the larger states trample on minority rights, and if sabre-rattling once more becomes a European pastime.

Mussolini has admirers and apologists who place more value on order than on liberty. He has destroyed the freedom of the press and the right of public assembly. He has shattered the constitution, made parliament his own shadow and the courts his puppets. The most enlightened and liberal Italian public men are in exile or dumb by compulsion. These are heavy prices to pay for the material prosperity which is attributed to Mussolini's iron discipline. There is said to be little unemployment in Italy, but that was true of a slave plantation.

Fascism is an extreme reaction to the Bolshevist craze which infected a section of the Italian proletariat. If it is the cure, it is a desperate one, and if it were lasting it would resemble the kind of surgical operation which is technically successful, but kills the patient. It can only be a passing phase. The real Italy will survive it and freedom regain her throne. —London Advertiser.

THE "YOU CAN'T" SPIRIT.

The "you can't" spirit seems to be growing stronger in the United States, which so proudly sings about itself as being the "sweet land of liberty."

No country on the face of the earth is so "cabined, cubbed, confined, bound in" with all manner of freakish and foolish restrictions on personal liberty than is the neighboring Republic, and each year sees the crop of legislation increased by the activities of Federal, State and municipal governing bodies.

The amusement censorship ordinance introduced before the Little Rock, Arkansas, City Council this week is a sample of the fool laws with which our cousins to the south seem always willing to load themselves.

It is proposed to bar from the stage any jokes ridiculing prohibition, home life and faithfulness to marriage ties, and the ordinance would also give the Censor Board of twenty members control of newspapers and magazines with the power to bar the sale of any that offended.

The folly of such a step is so apparent that it is not necessary to dwell upon it here; the Little Rock ordinance is merely mentioned because it illustrates the trend of affairs in the "land of the free."

There seems to be abroad an idea that amounts almost to an absession that to banish any evil or anything that suggests itself to a contracted mentality as an evil all that is necessary is to pass a law against it and the thing is done.

POLICING A CITY.

How many of the people quite realize their obligation to those who keep guard over their lives and homes from year's beginning to year's end, both night and day, the police departments and the Provincial force? How many realize the magnitude of the work the members of these forces perform in carrying out their duty?

Policing a city is not all arresting drunks, burglars, keeping the streets clear for the movement of traffic, enforcement of the laws and chasing after delinquent dog-owners, and neglectful snow-shovellers. It is much more than that. It means a readiness at all times to undertake anything of a public nature, where the life, character or limb of man, woman or child, or their property may be endangered, to be the goat that offers itself up to armed burglar, or frenzied man, to undertake the defence of the man who has deputed under the law that authority to the police. The safety of life and property in the modern world rests on the police. No man is allowed to take vengeance on another. He must apply through proper channels—the police or the authorities. Take away the police, where would be the scales of justice? How much could the courts accomplish without the arms of the law, bringing the wrong-doer to justice, and clearing innocent men?

And back of that arm of the law must accordingly stand the people. The policeman is the citizen authorized to defend the people. That is the reason of need of support of a good police force. A police force is as strong as the citizenship.

How rarely is a good word said of the policing of the city? The lawbreakers don't like the police, but they cannot fail to admire them in their tactics to defeat wrong-doing, while the law-abiding do not always say the word of encouragement. Policemen are men of big hearts, who are often called upon to do unpleasant duty. But they appreciate appreciation.

If one but knew the countless little deeds that the average policeman does on his beat and at his desk just to perform little acts of kindness, trace lost friends, settle feuds which never come to court, neatly adjusted by the kindly advice of an officer who knows the value of peace and harmony in a community. One never heard of a policeman interfering and causing trouble. He is the oil upon troubled waters.

These little acts never come to the attention of the big public in the natural constitution of affairs. If the world but knew, it would only too eagerly appreciate the efforts of the constabulary in their struggle to run down injustice and wrong-doing, and perform acts for citizens for which the policeman is the best qualified man in the community. Give the policeman credit for the present condition of law and order, and if there are no arrests made, do not think he is neglecting his duty. Rather, try and find out if it is not true that the present peaceful state of affairs is entirely due to the careful and tactful work of police chief and force.

It would be hard to picture the savagery of a policeless world or even city.

The police are ourselves set aside for the protection of ourselves.

That city is perhaps best policed which has so controlled the irregular impulses of the community that one would scarcely know there were police in the community. Policemen are not the enemy of the people, and those who train their young in fear of the police do law and order an injustice.—Belleville Ontario.

Wing Commander E. W. Stedman Addressed Engineering Institute.

WELL ILLUSTRATED

Wing Commander E. W. Stedman, O.B.E., was the speaker at the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada meeting held in the council room of the Chamber of Commerce last night. Commander Stedman, who is a graduate of the Royal School of Science, was engaged in aviation research prior to 1914, and from then until 1919 was with the Royal Air Force in France.

His subject was "Aviation and modern engineering practice." He spoke on the part that aviation played in exploration, transportation, geological and railway surveys and gave a wonderful description of the progress and development that has been made recently in these fields. His lecture was illustrated by many beautiful slides which showed the different machines used and also the country that had been covered by the members of the Royal Canadian Air Force in their regular course of duty.

It was a most instructive talk and the hearty applause that broke forth at the conclusion of the lecture showed that those present fully appreciated the manner in which the speaker had treated his difficult topic.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THOROUGHNESS.

"Do it so it shall not have to be done afain," is the wise advice that some one gives. At this time there is being erected a great bridge which will connect two cities on opposite banks of a river. The anchorages are being set deep; steel and concrete are being joined with scientific accuracy to insure a structure that will last for geenrations. One done, it will not have to be done again. So do yur wrk, time, material, energy will be saved, and you will gain chaarcter thereby.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—Prices are lower and a weaker feeling prevails on Eastern Canadian markets. Washington, D.C., Government report gives cold storage holdings of eggs on Feb. 1, 1926, 574 000 cases as against 88,000 for the same date last year. Cold storage holdings of frozen poultry on Feb. 1, 1926, amounted to 108,406,000 pounds as compared with 138,253,000 pounds on the same date last year.

Toronto — Lower. Receipts increasing and there are still some United States fresh to dispose of, which were left over from last week. Wholesale fresh extras 41 to 42, firsts 37 to 38, seconds 32, United States fresh 34 to 35.

Montreal—A weaker feeling prevails for both fresh and storage on this market. Jobbing, fresh extras 44 firsts 40, seconds 34, storage extras 30, firsts 25, seconds 19 to 20.

Manitoba — Egg market higher. Dealers quoting country shippers, delivered, extras 38, firsts 33, seconds 22. Jobbing, storage firsts 30, seconds 20.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—Accompanied by reports of the most active demand for flour since October last, the price of wheat took a new swing upward today. Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 5-8 to 1 3-4c net higher. May (new) $1.69 to $1.69 1-8, and July $1.50 1-2 to $1.50 5-8 with corn at 3-4 to 1 1-8c advance; oats showing 1-8 to 1-4 rise, and provisions unchanged to 10 cents lower.

Some of today's buying of wheat resulted from the fact that the market had suffered a decline of 12 cents in a little more than a week and that a rally was being looked for by numerous traders. Against this was the circumstance that indications pointed to larger world shipments this week, especially from Argentina, whereas export call for North American wheat today was only fair.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—There were no further developments in the domestic market for cash grain today, prices being fairly steady with a moderate demand from local buyers.

The market for Quebec potatoes was without change, prices being maintained and only a small trade passing.

The receipts of butter today were 25 packages. The tone of the local butter market today was steady and prices showed no important change.

The receipts of cheese were 150 boxes. A steady feeling prevailed on the cheese market, but the volume of business in all directions was small owing to the continued limited demand and prices were nominally unchanged.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—Flour 10 to 15c lower at $9.40 to $9.45 a barrel shipments 33,050 barrels.

Wheat—No. 1 Northern $1.63 1-2 to $1.66 1-2 May $1.61 1-2; July $1.58 1-2.

Oats—No. 3 white, 36 1-2 to 36 3-4.

FRENCH SENATE DEMANDS SPEED

Critical Situation Imminent if Budget Measures Not Passed.

BOND DECISION

PARIS, Feb. 12. — (Canadian Press.)—The shifting of positions in the conflict over the financial restoration measures continued in the Chamber of Deputies Thursday. The Radicals accepted a modified system for the transformation of bearer bonds to nominative bonds, while the Socialists reserved their decision.

The tax on agricultural profits, on which a compromise was reached Wednesday again came up and was adopted.

Both the government and the chamber were much impressed by representation made by delegates from different Senate groups that unless the senate was very soon put in possession of measures to balance the budget the situation would become most critical. It was the action of the senators that had the greatest effect on the finance committee of the chamber when that body met yesterday morning to consider a compromise proposal with respect to bonds, presented by the finance minister, M. Doumer.

The Radicals at once decided to accept this proposal, but the communists and Socialists put through an adverse motion. M. Lamoureaux, reporter of the committee, thereupon left the committee room with the intention of resigning, but the Radical leaders induced him to return. The previous action of the committee was reversed and the Doumer compromise adopted. This plan gives preference to nominative bonds, but leaves the issue of bonds to bearer optional.

Naval Association Asks King to Dismiss Parliament — Much Discontent.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 12 (Canadian Press).—The growth of a Fascist movement of serious proportions in Belgium was indicated yesterday by several developments, following Tuesday's vigorous Nationalist demonstrations, of which Premier Poullet was the principal target. Throughout the country numerous protests have been published showing much discontent among taxpayers in regard to the Government's financial program.

Thursday two veterans' associations made open and vigorous attacks on the Premier. The Naval Association published an appeal to the King to dismiss Viscount Poullet and dissolve Parliament so

118,580 MEN AND 11,749 OFFICERS FORM U. S. ARMY

Maintenance of Present Strength Approved by House of Representatives.

MITCHELL TRIAL

$70,000 for Court-Martial Expenses Held Up—Propose Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (Canadian Press).—Consideration of the War Department appropriation bill served as a vehicle yesterday for the House to engage in a general debate on various army activities with the court-martial of General Mitchell coming in for a share of the discussion.

After approving a section of the measure providing for maintenance of the army at its present strength—11,749 officers, and 118,580 enlisted men—for another year, the House passed for debate and later adjourned, without approving, a section carrying $70,000 for court-martial expenses, of which amount one-half is for the Mitchell trial. Consideration of this section was the first order of business today.

Representative Blanton, Democrat, Texas termed the Mitchell trial as "farcical" and asserted it was a "shame" that the people had to pay $35,000 for such an "exhibition," while Rep. Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi, urged that Congress order an investigation over all court-martial trials during the World War.

"The punishments meted out," he said, "frequently were out of all proportion to the offence. Most of the sentences undoubtedly should be reduced."

SEVENTEEN DEATHS REPORTED FROM NEW ENGLAND'S BLIZZARD

Millions of Dollars Being Spent in Removal of Wednesday Snow.

SLEIGHBELLS RING

NEW YORK, Feb 12. (Canadian Press).—People of the north-eastern United States, accustomed to motor travel, last night heard the old-fashioned jingle of sleighbells as Dobbin was called forth to break trails where motors could not go. Twenty-four hours after the passing of the second severe snowstorm within a week to sweep the region, most highways were impassable to motors, and all but the principal streets in cities and towns were likewise blocked.

The progress everywhere toward a resumption of normal activities was slow. The weather was clear, but below-freezing temperatures greatly handicapped the thousands of shovel gangs which sought to clear streets and highways.

Railroads returned almost to schedules, but surface cars in many places were operating only intermittently. Many suburbs and outlying districts were entirely isolated, except for rail connections.

The weather bureau predicted clear, cold weather for to-day, with rising temperatures late in the day.

The death list as a result of the last storm stood last night at 17, and the number of accidents was many times greater. The property damage had not been estimated, but the cost of clearing streets and roads already had run into millions of dollars.

TELEPHONE RATE CASE IS STARTED

Company's Request For Increase Precedes Toronto's Plea.

TO AUDIT BOOKS.

OTTAWA, Feb. 12.—(Canadian Press).—The application of the Bell Telephone Company for approval of its new schedule of increased rates for exchange service in Ontario and Quebec has been given precedence over the request of the City of Toronto for a reduced tariff by the Board of Railway Commissioners. This ruling was made by Chairman McKeown at the opening of the special committee of the Board to consider the question of telephone rates in the two provinces.

It was also decided that the interested parties should get together for the purpose of selecting a firm of auditors to conduct an audit of the books of the Company.

that new elections could be held with a view to a financial regeneration of the country.

Following the National Association of Veterans sent an open letter to the Premier, declaring that it refused to accept his homage to the army. The letter concluded with: "The combatants address to you, to the Ministers who, directly or indirectly, have sabotaged our national defence and to all Parliamentary apaches who sustain you, a serious warning and expression of their profound contempt."

BEATEN BODIES FOUND BY ROAD

Bound Together in Abandoned Automobile Near Youngstown.

BELIEVED HANGED.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Feb. 12.—The bodies of two unidentified men, bound together with ropes and bearing marks of a brutal beating, were found in an automobile on the Hubbard road, near Cedar Corners, a suburb, on Thursday.

After a cursory examination, the authorities expressed the belief that both had been hanged, cut down, placed in the automobile and taken to the spot where the machine was found.

Both bodies bore cuts and bruises, indicating that they had been beaten with a heavy club. Marks as if each had been strangled to death with a rope, were found on the necks.

The men were between 25 and 30 years of age. Both were well dressed.

Mrs. John Anderson, who lives a short distance from wher the machine was abandoned, told the authorities she saw the car drive up and stop last night.

Two men alighted, she said. They boarded a second car which had been following the first, and drove towards Youngstown.

The machine in which the bodies were left was a sedan. A lap robe was pulled over the bodies, giving the sedan the appearance of being empty

Authorities believe the automobile was stolen. They are checking the license plates.

Found Parties.

The machine was noticed by several motorists, only one of whom, Robert Wilson, stopped to examine it. Believing the vehicle unoccupied, Wilson continued on to Youngstown.

Returning home yesterday Wilson noticed the machine had not been moved. He made a second investigation and discovered the bodies.

MONTREAL WAS MADE SEPARATE INSPECTORATE

Committee Discusses Removal of Port From Chief Inspector's Jurisdiction.

BRIBE MENTIONED.

Deputy Minister Can Remember No Offer To Special Inspector.

OTTAWA, Feb. 12.—(Canadian Press).—The removal of the port of Montreal from the jurisdiction of the chief inspector for Canada and the appointment of a special inspector in that port, was discussed at yesterday's sitting of the House of Commons committee investigating the conduct of the Department to the Civil Service Com Cross-examined by Hon. H. H. Stevens, the Deputy-Minister of Customs, R. R. Farrow, said that early in 1922 he had informed Chief Inspector Busby that the Minister of Customs had decided that he was not to inspect the port of Montreal. Later, Hon. G. H. Boivin, Minister of Customs, asked Mr. Farrow if, "when the present Minister came into office, Mr. Busby had not been instructed that he was to inspect port of Montreal."

Mr. Farrow replied, "Yes." The Chief Inspector, or at least his assistant, had been in Montreal with a special staff for three weeks or a month, making a thorough investigation. The Chief inspector himself was absent through illness, explained the Deputy-Minister.

The appointment of R. P. Clerk to the inspectorship of Montreal was then the subject of a searching examination by Mr. Stevens. He wanted to know if Mr. Farrow thought Mr. Clerk was the right man for such an important job. Mr. Farrow would not reply except to say that Mr. Clerk was the best man available at the time, and he had been recommended by the Department of the Civil Service Commission who finally made the appointment. Mr. Farrow did not admit that he had heard that J. E. Bisaillon, later made a special inspector in that district, and recently dismissed, had offered Mr. Clerk a bribe of $100 a week if he got the post. The only conversation concerning the bribe that Mr. Farrow could remember had to do with something else.

Smuggling across the international border greatly increased when prohibition went into effect in the United States, Mr. Farrow thought.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain—How To Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

BRITISH EARL'S DIVORCED WIFE REFUSED ENTRY

Deportation of Countess of Cathcart Ordered by U. S. Inspectors.

MORAL TURPITUDE

Admitted Adultery With the Earl of Craven, Board Finds.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 (Canadian Press).—The Countess of Cathcart, divorced wife of the Earl of Cathcart, whose matrimonial ventures have kept European society agog during recent months, yesterday was denied admission to the United States. She was ordered deported to England on the first Cunard liner sailing for Liverpool.

The ruling was made by a special board of inquiry, composed of three immigration inspectors, who started an investigation of the Countess' affairs after her arrival Tuesday aboard the steamer Carmania. The ground for the deportation order was moral turpitude, an outgrowth of her admission of adultery with the Earl of Craven.

On similar grounds, Senorita Blanca Lourdes, of Argentine, was deported in 1924, following her arrival here aboard the same steamer on which Louis Angel Firpo came to train for his fight with Harry Wills.

Held at Ellis Island.

The Countess announced that she would appeal her case to Secretary of Labor Davis. She characterized the ruling as "astounding." Immigration Commissioner Curran issued a brief statement, in which he said the Countess had been ordered excluded "because she admitted the commission of the crime involving moral turpitude-adultery." He said the findings of the board of inquiry had been forwarded to Secretary Davis for his review Pending her deportation, the Countess will be held at Ellis Island, Mr Curran said, and added that immigration authorities "would make her as comfortable as we do everybody."

The Countess had planned to visit in this country until March 13, when she intended to return to England to be married to Ralph Neale, English novelist. She went to Ellis Island yesterday from the Carmania where she had been detained since Tuesday, due to Wednesday's blizzard.

ITALY WARNED OF 'KAISERISM'

Opposition Paper Cautions Against Imitating German Imperialism.

DISPUTE CLOSED

ROME, Feb. 12. — (Canadian Press).—The controversy between Italy and Germany over the German-speaking minority in the South Tyrol is closed as far as Italy is concerned, in the opinion of the Roman press, including opposition journals as well as those supporting the Government.

La Tribuna, which is Fascist, says: "There is no further room for sophistry and mystifications. The question is closed. Any further discussion will be merely verbal exercises, to which we will not lend ourselves."

"It is absurd to endanger the relations of the two countries on the basis of such impalpable and untrustworthy elements," says the Giornale D'Italia. "Italy has spoken. There is not a single word to be added."

Even the Voce Repubblicana, which is anti-Fascist, joins this chorus but utters a caution against an imitation by Italy of the "Germanic spirit of Imperialism."

HOPE REVIVED OF SETTLING STRIKE

Miners' Scale Committee Called To Philadelphia.

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 12 (Canadian Press).—The full scale committee of the anthracite mine workers was summoned to Philadelphia late Thursday. Members from this section left at 1.50 a.m. today and are due in Philadelphia about 8 o'clock. James Gleason, scale committee member of District 1, confirmed the call.

Summoning of the scale committee to Philadelphia where the leaders of the miners and operators have been in separate conference throughout the day, gave rise to the hope that definite steps had been taken to end the hard coal strike. Ratification by the scale committee of any proposed settlement agreed to by the miners' negotiating committee is necessary to make it effective.

NOVA SCOTIA MEMBER DECLARES MARITIMES HAVE NOT RECEIVED JUSTICE UNDER CONFEDERATION

Col. Cantley, in Commons, Asks For Low Freight Rate on Coal.

EMPLOY MINERS.

Substitute N. S. Coke For Anthracite From the United States.

OTTAWA, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—Another sitting of the House yesterday failed to bring an end to the debate on the Conservative amendment to the address. Maritime rights were prominent in the afternoon's discussion. Col. Thomas Cantley Conservative of Pictou, described the union of Nova Scotia with the rest of Canada as a marriage of convenience, with the marriage settlement written by the family solicitor in Downing Street. The marriage had proven no more successful than most other marriages of that class. Provision of the B.N.A. Act, as expounded and interpreted to the people of the Maritimes prior to the Union, had not been implemented nor had promised conditions been in any way realized.

Col. Cantley gave detailed attention to railway freight rates. He protested against discriminations adverse to the Maritimes. Existing rates, he claimed, discriminated in favor of the foreign worker.

Fred Davis, Conservative of Calgary East, said that since the Australian Treaty came into effect 3,727,174 pounds of Australian butter had been imported by Canada. This, in three months, was an increase of 3,528,833 pounds.

There were no Liberal speakers during the sitting.

Mr. Davis accused Premier King of having imposed a duty on lead pencils at the bidding of a friend interested in that business who happened to be Liberal organizer in North York. Mr. Davis said that he entirely approved of the duty on lead pencils, but he could not see why Premier King should not be as ready to protect other Canadian industries, including the farming industry.

Mr. Davis was reading an extract from a periodical and came to the phrase "When the Premier was in his own constituency of New York." There was a general laugh and Mr. Davis corrected himself, but added in explanation of his mistake, "We see so much of the Prime Minister in the United States."

Hon. Dr. J. H. King, rose to protest. "I submit this is absolutely unfair," he said.

Agriculture Subsidized.

Mr. Davis quoted the member for Rosetown (John Evans) as having said that Protection was robbery "That you subsidize the manufacturer and the manufacturer in turn subsidizes you." He took exception to this statement, Mr. Davies said, and he thought it came very ill from one who was engaged in an industry which was subsidized to a greater extent than any other in Canada. This was the farming industry.

He had intended, said Mr. Davis to deal with the coal industry in Alberta, but, as there would probably be opportunity later on, he would not do so in his speech today. He would only quote what Premier Dunning of Saskatchewan had said in connection with the coal situation when giving evidence before the grain enquiry commission at Regina on August 6th, 1923.

"Mr. Dunning said he would have the Government put up the protective tariff on United States coal so as to make competition of Alberta coal at the present freight rates possible," stated Mr. Davis. "The Saskatchewan Premier then continued: 'This is the first opportunity to make the people of the East suffer for what they have given the West for the last 40 years, and I think we should give them a dose of their own medicine now they want our coal'." He would only say with regard to the remarks of Mr. Dunning, that he did not express the attitude of Western Canada in this regard. The people of Alberta wanted to sell their coal in the central markets instead of Canadian money going to buy Unietd States coal.

The Government of Alberta was very antagonistic to immigration into that province under present economic conditions, Mr. Davis asserted. He merely mentioned this so that the Federal Government would understand the situation.

Colonel Cantley.

T. Cantley (Conservative, Pictou) commenced his speech by saying that the 11 Bluenose Conservatives in the House were champions of the Maritime rights and also loyal to the policies of the party outlined by their leader, to whom they look for a vindication of their rights. The entrance of Nova Scotia to Confederation had been a marriage of convenience, and as such it had not been successful.

Mr. Cantley went into the question of freight rates in the Martimes at considerable length, and protested against the discrimination in classification and dates against the Maritimes in comparison with other provinces. Grain products could be taken overseas from American ports and brought back to Sydney cheaper than they could be taken direct to Sydney by rail By the all-rail route to Sydney or by the rail and water route from the West the differential still existed. The existing rates were a discrimination in favor of foreign competitors. The wine workers of France and Germany were given a preference by the export rates of Canada over the Maritime workers. Some rates were double what they were in 1916 on West-bound freight, and interprovincial trade was impossible under such conditions. Mr. Cantley gave the figures of cost of freight transportation from Ontario and Quebec West, and showed that these were much lower than rates from the Maritimes West both in classification and according to mileage.

Equitable Rates.

Col. Cantley declared that Nova Scotia demanded equitable and fair freight rates on her basic industries. Discrimination in the matter of rates existed at the present time on the products of Nova Scotia. No one could doubt that the grievances of the Maritime Provinces were genuine ones. He appealed for the support of members of the House towards removing the injustices from which the citizens of the Maritime Provinces were suffering.

Some comparisons between the freight rates for products of the Maritime provinces when carried by ocean to the West Indies and other places, with the prevailing rates from points in the Maritime Provinces to Central Canada, were made by Col. Cantley. He asked that the Martimes be given as low a rate on their coal moving to the central markets as that prevailing on the movement of Alberta coal. "Transportation is the basic economic factor in the interprovincial trade of Nova Scotia," he said. It was not a local problem, however, it was a national problem. He declared that Nova Scotia had paid her full share of the development cost of the Dominion of Canada from 1867 up to the present time. Surely she was entitled to receive justice.

Develop N.S. Industry

Col. Cantley said that if Central Canada would replace the seven million tons of anthracite coal imported annually from the United States with coke made from Nova Scotia bituminous coal, it would mean employment for thousands of Nova Scotia miners. Coke, made from Nova Scotia coal, should be laid down in Montreal at about two-thirds the cost of anthracite coal.

Col. Cantley insisted that it was a better fuel than anthracite. Why, he asked, did Ontario and Quebec go on year after year in a state of uncertainty as to whether or not the United States would put an embargo on the export of coal and shut off the supply. Some day, he predicted the United States would do this. He declared that during the war, the miners of Nova Scotia were ordered to mine the coal supplies for the Canadian National Railway but when the war was over, they were forgotten.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

CO-OPERATION IN MARKETING MEANS MUCH TO THE FARMER FINANCIALLY AND OTHERWISE

He Must Adapt Himself to the New Order of Things.

EXAMPLES FROM U. S.

Great Co-operative Bodies to the South Handle Produce Worth Millions.

Individual production has always been characteristic of agriculture, and probably will characterize that of many succeeding generations. Accustomed, from time immemorial to raising his crops, as an individual, the farmer has almost as a matter of course assumed that selling individually, was the normal state of things. So it was—two or three generations ago. Today, the economic order has changed and the farmer is called upon to adapt himself to the new conditions. Co-operation is the watch-word of today. Production, the problem for the individual must be met by the individual but marketing is a group problem, and can be successfully and adequately met only by combined effort on the part of many individual producers. Here, as in many other instances, the farmer does well in taking a leaf out of the book of the big business giant. By group distribution, the farmer is enabled to eliminate or reduce the proportion of wealth produced which is diverted to the pockets of middlemen, and retains a larger share of the price paid by the consumer for farm products.

False Co-operative Marketing.

Much of what is termed co-operative marketing is found, when examined critically to be only co-operative marketing in name. The organization of farmers in cheese and butter factories is not co-operative marketing, but is really co-operative manufacture, and the products thus co-operatively manufactured are usually placed in the market in competition with the products of similar co-operative factories. This is far from rational co-operation in merchandising. Local associations have no control over the general supply and prevailing price. It is only by combination on a large scale that farmers can secure better prices, without, be it added, bleeding the consumer.

Example of U. S. Farmers.

Nearly a million farmers in the United States are organized under commodity co-operative marketing plans and are handling over $1,600,000,000 worth of products per annum on that merchandising basis. The movement is purely economic. These men are organized as farmers, not as Republicans or Democrats. Political considerations are shelved so far as this movement is concerned. The secret of success lies in the fact, that for the first time in history, the farmer has had a say in the line of controlling the flow of the supply and distribution of the commodities produced on the farm. Hitherto he left this to others—and hence was always struggling to make ends meet.

There are other advantages that can be secured by union in marketing which are practically non-existent, so far as the lone farmer is concerned. Grading calls for mass effort. By this means the flow of supply may be controlled and advertising on a large scale is possible only to a united body.

Advantages of Grading.

The individual has to be taught to grade his products—to raise the quality to the highest pitch, standardize it, and stand behind it. Some Peterborough farmers grumble vociferously when grading is mentioned, but if there is one thing that can be accepted as an absolute fact it is that the absence of right grading has lost the Ontario farmer untold numbers of dollars in the overseas market. This explains the fact that New Zealand cheese and butter take pride of place over Ontario's products in the British market and allows Danish and Irish bacon to get a premium over Ontario bacon in London. Ontario, it has often been said, makes cheese and butter, raises bacon, grows apples, all of which at their best are unsurpassed anywhere on the globe, but because these products are sent out into the world unevenly graded, the march of the province towards agricultural prosperity has been retarded. Grading is the first intelligent step in merchandising. Ontario can produce the best, and should export nothing but the best, protected by strict grading, strict marking and strict warranties wherever sold. The intelligent farmer does not kick at grading laws. He wants to anticipate Government action along that line.

Care of The Package.

Closely associated with grading is care of the package. This can also be done most efficiently by co-operative effort. The package is no longer simply something that carries the commodity, it has to preserve the produce in good condition, and in a unit that is easily handled and one which the busy, thrifty housewife plumes herself on buying. Excellent goods in convenient packages are wonderfully potent missionaries in foreign markets.

Organized effort studies the factors of time and place. The individual farmer or local association unloads all the spring cheese on the spring market, the summer cheese on the summer market, and so on. Co-operation conducts sales from the standpoint of time of consumption, rather than that of time of production, unloading the greatest supplies at the time of greatest need. The flow of crops is regulated, the profits kept at home, and the farmer gets what otherwise would go to a speculator in Montreal or London.

Advertising.

Similarly by the same medium, consumption may be stimulated. People can be induced to use more of products of which the farmer has raised a large supply. Here the individual can do next to nothing; the big body is all powerful. It can conduct advertising campaigns, can promote lectures to women's associations, talks to children and clubs, and thus may lead to a permanent increase. These same American farmers mentioned above put over a big campaign on behalf of wheat a few years ago. "An extra slice of bread for every member of every household," was the slogan with which the campaign was conducted with the object of increasing home consumption. The effort was nation-wide; what could the individual farmer have done along this line?

This is the age of advertising. We don't simply produce things nowadays. We have to cry our wares from the housetops—all of us, farmers included. If we have good bacon, or eggs or butter in Peterborough, and Ontario, we have to make the announcement to Hans in Germany, Jacques in France, as well as to Bill, who lives in George Street. We have to let the whole world know it, so that when somebody in London sits down to breakfast and eats some A1 cheese or bacon the mental reaction should be, that it is good and tasty and must be from Ontario.

By these means—mass effort, the farmer can dispose of his goods, controlling the flow of supply and bringing about price levels that are equitable to consumer and producer. For the Canadian farmer the trail has been largely blazed by his brother south of the line. California affords a good example. Twenty years ago, the agriculturist in the sunny State, thought he was doing well if he pocketed 8 cents of the consumers' dollar. Today, as a result of co-operative effort, he gets 48 cents, without increasing that dollar. Co-operative marketing is the gate to more results for the tiller of the soil and should be applied to the disposal of all his products.

Practices To Be Followed For Good Horse-shoeing

As shoeing has certain injurious influences it should be guarded by the following practices:—

1. Removal of excessive growth.
2. Fit shoe to foot and not foot to shoe.
3. Avoid rasping surface of the wall.
4. Leave the sole thick.
5. Do not cut away the bar.
6. Don't trim the frog except to detach loose portions.
7. Shoe selected should be suitable for the horse and nature of his work.
8. Hot fitting is not injurious unless foot is burned.
9. Nail low and use as few nails as possible.
10. Don't hammer down clinches with violence.

The horse is entitled to every consideration from the farrier, in that the shoe nailed to his hoof is placed in such a way as to give comfort, and protection. Many a good horse has been made to suffer through careless shoeing. Give the faithful horse a square deal.—L. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O. A. College, Guelph.

SURE CURE FOR WORMS IN SHEEP

Bluestone and Tobacco, Boiled Separately, Provide Tea.

MIX SOLUTIONS

Some shepherds still believe in allowing sheep to lick at will a mixture of finely powdered tobacco leaves and common salt, as a preventive of worm infestation, during the grazing season. It is certain that salt is very useful as a preventive and it may be that the addition of tobacco adds to its efficiency; but tobacco is much more effective when given in solution, or in the form of a decoction or "tea."

It is combined with bluestone (sulphate of copper) in the following formula, for ridding sheep and lambs of stomach worms: Dissolve four ounces of pure bluestone in half a gallon of boiling water in an earthenware vessel. Steep four ounces of tobacco snuff or strong tobacco leaves overnight in half a gallon of boiling water. In the morning mix the two solutions together and add two gallons of cold water. Then strain and use. That amount will suffice for 100 sheep or 200 lambs. The dose is three to four ounces for an adult sheep, and one and three-quarter ounces for a lamb under one year old.

Give the medicine very slowly and carefully by means of a bottle, or dose syringe or nozzle, rubber tube and funnel, and fasting the animal for 24 hours. Also withhold drinking water for five hours after dosing. Stand the sheep on all fours when being given the medicine. The dose may be repeated in 10 days, when the animal has been badly infested, and then at intervals of a month, if the sheep or lambs continue to graze old pasture. It is best, however, to move treated animals on to new grass, and always to keep lambs off old grass, if that can be managed.

The newer treatment is to give nicotine sulpate, the active principle of tobacco. Such nicotine is commonly used in solution for dosage. The solution is prepared as follows, for the dosing of sheep and lambs: Mix two and a half teaspoons (one-half ounce) of nicotine sulphate with one quart of water. Measure out the nicotine in a glass graduate, rather than by teaspoons. The doses are: Sheep of one year old and over, two to three ounces; lambs of five months old or over, one to two ounces. A three-ounce dose is a good one to begin with for sheep over one year old. Larger doses may be given later. Figuring by weight of the animals, the dose for a sheep of 100 pounds or over, is three ounces, and for a lamb under 100 pounds is one to three ounces. Fast the animals for 24 hours before dosing, and withhold drinking water for five hours afterward. Have the sheep stand on all fours while being drenched.

In giving the nicotine sulphate treatment it is also well to take the condition of the animals into consideration. When that is done a strong sheep should be given four ounces, and a strong lamb two ounces of the solution. The dose for a medium sheep is three ounces, and a medium lamb, one and a half ounces; for a weak lamb, one ounce. Drench slowly. Do not drench pregnant ewes later than two and a half months after being bred, unless absolutely necessary to do so. Weak animals should be given the minimum or medium doses, and another dose after a 10-day period has elapsed. The cost is about one-half cent per dose, when the 40 per cent. nicotine sulphate is bought in quantity.—Prof. G. H. Lamson.

BIG PROGRESS IN CANADA'S BACON

Shortage of Danish Supply Helped Market in England.

TOO MANY FAT HOGS

Canada has made during the past year, remarkable progress in her bacon exports. The year 1924 was a record year in the history of Canada's swine industry. However, the year immediately past has established an even higher record in the matter of exports to England.

During the past few weeks we have been fortunate in having fair quantities of bacon on the southern markets of Great Britain. Owing to the shortage in Danish supplies owing to the ravages of foot and mouth disease, we have been able to secure a market for our product in Danish strongholds in the trade.

Unfortunately we stand to lose some of the ground which has been gained during the past year unless there is an immediate reduction in the number of over-finished fat hogs which are being marketed at the various stockyards and packing centres in Canada.

The comparatively high prices prevailing for live hogs and the plentiful supply of feed available this year is responsible for the tendency on the part of producers to carry their hogs to heavier weights and a higher degree of finish. The result of this tendency is increased quantities of prime bacon which cannot be sold in the south of England, but must go into competition with the American product in the markets of the north.

The immediate effect of this condition is that we shall be forced to sell this fat product at sacrifice prices, and at the same time, the reduction in quantity of leanest and lean bacon will mean the loss of markets which have been gained from the Danes.

The exact opposite of this was true a year ago when, with high-priced feed and low-priced hogs, farmers marketed too many hogs in unfinished condition, with the result that the market was over-supplied with a product which was altogether too thin. This condition was worse than the present one, as the loss on the extremely thin product is even greater.

The profitable trade in Great Britain, year in and year out, is for leanest and lean bacon. If we are to continue to develop a greater share in this trade, we must guard against the practice of under-finishing and over-finishing from one year to another.

The extra money obtained due to over-finishing and increased weight is of minor importance as compared with the effect which this product has in lowering the average price for the total export surplus.

A representative of a big packing house with whom this matter was discussed said: "The fact is that the fatter Wiltshire sides are being heavily discounted on the British market, the discount running up to 20 shillings per cwt. Packers cannot maintain the quality of their product if farmers continue to supply fat hogs in the endeavor to make up in pounds of pork, regardless of quality, for the mistake they made in reducing the number of their hogs. If this is continued it can only be expected that hogs, whether of bacon breeding or otherwise, will be heavily discounted if they are too fat.

"If the market is to be maintained in Britain for our hog products, farmers must co-operate by giving the packers hogs of a uniform quality and desirable finish. It cannot be done by supplying thin hogs one year and fat hogs the next."

Dairy stock that has been sent to the stock yards is generally of little value for dairy purposes.

A Farmer's Account Book Which Is Easily Kept

The Dominion Experimental Farms system has published an extremely simple farmer's account book, designed to last a complete year. To "keep" it needs no special knowledge of accounting; simply the ability to write and add; and a record of all transactions might be made in an hour a week. A few plain directions as to making entries, some aids to taking inventories, a table of silo capacities and a gestation table, are given on the insides of the cover.

In the book itself are pages for the entry of receipts and expenditures (both of which may be seen at a glance on the same page) relative to cattle, horses, sheep, swine, poultry, crops and labor; and there is also ample space for miscellaneous items. There is a page for amounts owed to and by the farm, and forms on which may be made inventories of land and buildings, of live stock, of feed and supplies, and of machinery. Following is a page on which may be filled out a summary of the year's business, together with the few directions necessary to filling it out intelligently at the end of the year. Further, for the farmer's information there is a table in which to enter acreage and yield of crops, and one in which to keep a livestock service record.

Send for one now and record your transactions from the beginning of 1926. It is obtainable from the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, at a nominal charge of ten cents. No postage need be placed on letters of application.

TUBERCULOSIS FOUND IN HENS

But is Not Dangerous to Health of Human Beings.

WEAKENS FLOCKS

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

We hear so much about the dangers to the human from bovine or cattle tuberculosis that we regard all types as dangerous. It is indeed refreshing to know that one type, the avian or fowl tuberculosis is not considered to be dangerous to the health of the human. In so far as it is known at present the only two mammals that avian tuberculosis affects are the rabbit and the mouse. So why worry about eating a chicken that is mildly tubercular or using the eggs from a flock that shows such symptoms? The great loss comes, however, to many poultry-keepers through the invasion of this disease due to the reduction of the vitality and general stamina of the flock. If it does not destroy the birds it gradually brings them to a state of weakness that puts them in the class of the unproductive, and they might as well be dead.

Avian tuberculosis is a chronic infectious disease of birds caused by a bacillus mycobacterium avium. Infection is generally introduced by bringing in diseased birds from other flocks. Pigeons that feed in all the hen yards and farm yards of the neighborhood may be responsible for general distribution. The most frequent cause is the purchase of supposedly healthy chickens and bringing such home to mingle with the flock. Another source of danger is the egg from a hen having tubercular ovaries. These may produce eggs containing the bacillus. If so, and such are used for incubation the resulting chick will be infected. The eggs that do not hatch may contain the germ and if used for feeding chicks may infect them. The droppings of infested birds contain the bacillus, so any careless ness in feeding, and neglecting of proper sanitation will likely aid the trouble until the disease has a grip on the entire flock.

Symptoms.

The disease is slow to develop, and symptoms are not generally noticed until the bird is over a year old. They continue to feed well, but become very thin, the muscles of the breast may become greatly reduced, and the bird becomes a handful of feathers, skin and bones. Swelling of the leg joints with lameness is common. Sometimes the swellings will burst and discharge, the bird goes down unable to stand. Intestinal trouble with diarrhoea, dullness and no life are commonly seen in this disease before death.

Post-mortem.

The visibly tubercular affected bird will generally show, on post-mortem, yellow-ish white or grayish nodules scattered over the liver and spleen. These spots or nodules vary in size and may be as large as a bean; when cut they resemble crumbly cheese or may be gritty. Enlargement of both liver and spleen is common in tuberculosis of fowls. Infections of the lungs are not so frequent, but occasionally these organs show cheesy yellow or white areas. The intestine is a common seat of infection, since all infectious material must pass by this route. T.B. nodulen frequently develop either on, or in the lumen of the bowel. These resemble the nodules on the liver.

Prevention and Control.

Kill off the flock and thoroughly clean up houses, yards and equipment. Slightly diseased birds, if in good flesh may be used for food. Those in emaciated condition and showing diseased lesions should be burned. Keep rats and mice out of the houses and yards, and always keep birds of various ages in separate flocks. Be sure of the new stock, know that it comes from uninfected premises. Weed out old birds and all suspicious cases. Keep the pigeons out. Be up to date in sanitation.—L. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O.A. College, Guelph.

STOCK INDUSTRY CAN DEVELOP IF QUALITY IS KEPT

Business Offers Great Possibilities for Future Expansion.

HANDLED EFFICIENTLY

Stock Yards in Toronto Provide Meeting Place for Buyer and Seller.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The production of live stock is one of the most important industries within the Province with an investment of between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000. Although there is a fluctuation from year to year the general trend has been a gradual increase, until the live stock population of Ontario in 1923 reached 1,263,965 milch cows, 1,572,122 other cattle; 907,673 sheep and 1,734,734 swine. From this number it is estimated that 848,302 cattle, 602,111 sheep and lambs, 1,999,464 swine have been slaughtered and processed for consumption in addition to animals exported. Of these, the inspected packing plants of the province handled 363,444 cattle and calves, 193,736 lambs and sheep and 1,349,263 swine. The balance must have been slaughtered by the local butcher and by the producer. The figures do not substantiate the impression that the one-time main outlet for our live stock, the local butcher, a present day minor agency. However, the large packing houses are making inroads into his business, and he is gradually decreasing in numbers until only the more efficient will exist.

Preference for Quality.

If the quality of our live stock is maintained and improved it has great possibilities of expansion. With a growing population there will be an increasing demand for meat and meat products. With the British embargo lifted the export outlet will consume greater proportions than formerly and relieve the congestion on our markets of the surplus. With these possibilities confronting us, it necessitates the building up of a suitable marketing system that will function efficiently and economically. Efficient functioning means that the preference for quality of consumers of meat products are correctly reflected back to the producer, in the form of enhanced prices for that quality for which the consumer pays his highest price and correspondingly lower prices for those inferior products which consumers only buy at reduced prices. This demands a central meeting place (a market) where volume of product, convenient facilities, skill in grading and sorting, experience in buying and selling, uniformity and honesty in business practice can all be economically assembled. Thus the establishment of our stock yards where the live stock is assembled and an organized company accepts, on arrival of stock, full responsibility until such times as relieved of this obligation by the owner, and supplies the necessary physical facilities where the vendors bring their live stock and buyers congregate—packers to buy animals to slaughter and process to fill the demands made upon them for dressed meats and its products—a growing number of farmers buying stocker cattle to put on their pastures or feeders to turn their grain and rough feed into meat—drovers and owners who assemble the live stock at country points and deliver it at the central markets—commission men who are expert salesmen and make returns to the consignee, speculators always ready to gamble and take a chance—officials looking after the public interest represented by the Live Stock Branch, Markets Branch, Health of Animals Branch of the Federal Government, and the Humane Society.

Over a Million a Year.

The greater part of Ontario's live stock marketed through public markets goes to the Union Stock Yards at Toronto. In 1924 there passed through these yards 376,733 cattle, 98,006 calves, 493,683 hogs, 185,413 sheep and 2,455 horses which represents a large portion of the Ontario live stock marketed through regular channels.

The Union Stock Yards of Toronto, situated at the northwest part of the city, was opened for business in 1903. Due to the establishment of abatoirs adjacent to the property and to ever-increasing use made of stock yards by shippers it has had a steady and fairly rapid growth. At present the yards cover some thirty acres, of which about two-thirds is roofed. There are sixteen alleys for cattle with a thousand pens (800 equipped for feeding and watering) having a capacity of 9,000 head. A separate house for sheep and calves with a capacity of 6,000 head, and a hog building of 7,500 head capacity complete the accommodation for live stock. There is a railroad siding on either side with 60 unloading chutes and a number of scales placed at convenient points about the yards. At Exchange Building houses the Stock Yards offices of the various commission firms, banks and Government officials operating on the yards. Alleys are allotted to the various commission firms in proportion to their volume of business.

The tendency in Toronto, as in most Canadian markets, is developing into a one day market, Monday being the prominent market day. Whether this is a benefit to the industry is open to question, as it means carrying a staff for the rest of the week capable of handling efficiently the maximum day's receipts, which undoubtedly is an added expense. If this business were spread more evenly over the week it might mean economy in the handling of the market. Two factors have contributed largely to the large Monday market. The small abattoirs and packing plants buy their supplies and kill early in the week, leaving their staffs free for their heavy meat distribution business at the end of the week. Again there are some advantages in moving stock over railways on Sunday, especially through the freight terminals, where the greatest delays naturally occur.—A. Leitch, Dept. of Economics, O. A. College, Guelph.

GOITRE IN LAMBS IS CONTROLLED

Feeding Potassium Iodide to Mothers is Fffective Method.

BIGGER LAMBS

Control of goitre in lambs at the Scott Experimental station has been effected by the use of potassium iodide. The experiments carried on previous to 1924 indicated that two per cent of potassium iodide fed in salt to pregnant ewes was one hundred per cent. efficient. The method of preparation was to place 25 pounds of salt on a canvas or a clean floor in a warm room until thoroughly dried. One-half pound of potassium iodide was dissolved in one pint of water, sprinkled over the dry salt and at once thoroughly mixed.

The salt containing potassium iodide is fed to the ewes during the greater part of the gestation period, preferably put in a small box nailed to the inside wall of the shed. Each ewe will usually eat from one-third to one-half pound of salt per month during the winter.

During the winter of 1924-25, the breeding ewes at the Scott station were divided into three lots, with the object of testing the efficiency of different quantities of potassium iodide. One lot received one pound of potassium iodide to 100 pounds of salt; a second lot received only one ounce of potassium iodide to 100 pounds of salt, and the third lot was used as a check, receiving common salt containing no potassium iodide.

The results from one year's test indicate that a smaller quantity than two per cent may be effective when goitre exists. Briefly, the results from last winter's test were: In the check lot 36 per cent. of the lambs were affected with goitre, 27 per cent. of which died. In the lot getting one ounce or one-sixteenth of one per cent. potassium iodide in the salt, 8.7 per cent. were affected with goitre, but none of the lambs in the lot died. In the lot getting one pound of potassium iodide per 100 pounds of salt, there were no lambs affected with goitre.

It is of particular interest to note that the ewes receiving potassium iodide during the gestation period gave birth to larger and stronger lambs, requiring very little attention at birth.

FARM ICE CROP SHOULD BE CUT IN CLEAN PLACE

Deep Water is Better for Purpose—Even Blocks Best.

STORAGE RULES

Protection From Sun and Good Air Circulation Are Required.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Our winters in Canada are usually very favorable for the production of ice. Ice is one of our most certain crops. In order to make use of this ice in the summer for cooling purposes it is necessary to store it properly during the winter season. Ice storage is not a difficult or costly matter; to make a success of it a few general principles must be applied carefully. The purpose of this short article is to mention these and show how they are applied for the successful storage of ice on the farm.

In the first place, the ice should be cut from a clean and sanitary body of water which is not too shallow. In harvesting the ice it will pay to take some care in marking out the strips of ice, and cutting the strips up into cakes so that they will be all of a size, and have even clean-cut faces. If cakes are cut in this manner, they will store much easier and tighter in the bin. Large size cakes keep better than small ones, but the size is limited on account of handling. A very good size is 20 or 22 inches square. The depth or thickness, of course, will vary with severity of the winter and the exposure of the ice to the weather. Cold dry days are best for harvesting and storing ice. If a number of people in any section cut and store ice regularly, it is a good practice to do the work co-operatively as it can be done more economically, more conveniently and in a more efficient manner than by the single-handed method.

The storage for the ice need not be an elaborate or costly structure by any means. Frequently some portion of the farm buildings can be conveniently converted into an ice storage, for instance the corner of a shed where a simple bin can be built large enough to store the ice required. On nearly every farm some suitable storage about the present structures may be found, or made by slight alterations or additions. On the dairy farm it is quite a common practice to have a small isolated building combining ice storage, cooling room and dairy room. Sometimes it is possible to have the well under this building, with the pump in the dairy room. Such a combination as this is very useful, and no doubt its advantages warrant the extra cost over a simple bin as enclosure for ice.

Whatever may be the form of storage it is very necessary to provide for a location with good protection from the sun's direct rays, and yet with a reasonable amount of circulation of air; a good thickness of non-conducting material like sawdust or shavings between the ice and the atmosphere, free drainage from the bottom of the storage, lively circulation over the top of the ice, and the ice should be packed as tightly as possible. During the warm weather care should be taken to keep the top of ice well covered up after any ice is removed.

Space Required.

The rule for estimating size of storage required for a given quantity of ice is that 45 cubic feet will store a ton. According to this 40 tons would require a building about 14 feet square and 14 feet high, allowing a foot of sawdust on all sides of the ice. When ice is used chiefly for cooling milk, it is necessary to store about 1½ tons per cow. If used for household purposes as well, two or three extra tons should be stored, sometimes more.

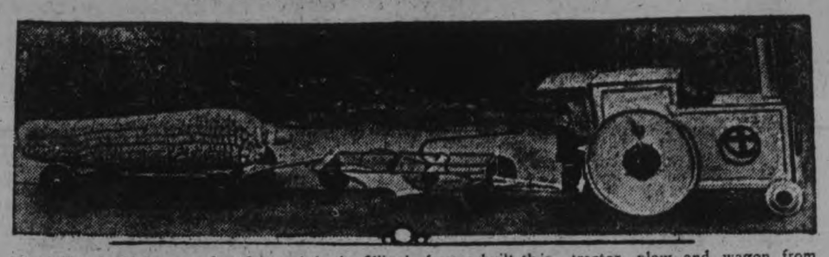
TO INTEREST FARM YOUTHS



Toot! Toot! Make way for this train! An Illinois farmer built this tractor, plow and wagon from scraps picked up around his farm. He uses the outfit at Farmers' Fairs to interest boys in modern farm machinery and production of greater crops—especially corn. His model is about three feet long.

ALBERTA HOUSE OPENS SESSION WITH OLD POMB

Speech from the Throne Expresses Thanks for Great Harvest.

REPORT ON COAL

Will Be Submitted by Commission—Forecast of Legislation.

EDMONTON, Alta., Feb. 12.—(By Canadian Press).—With all the pomp and formality of pre-war days, His Honor, Lieutenant-Governor Dr. W. G. Brett, escorted by a military guard of honor, opened the sixth session of the fifth Legislature assembly of Alberta Thursday afternoon.

In the speech from the throne the Lieutenant-Governor expressed regret at the death of Queen Mother Alexandra, thanks for the bountiful harvest of the past year, the forecast of legislation which will be introduced at the present session.

The Alberta Coal Commission, which has been inquiring into the coal industry, will report, and the Legislature will be asked to earmark the money accruing to the Province from the wheat pool of 1919.

The most important discussion will take place on the agreement for the return of Alberta's natural resources, the efforts of Alberta to secure more equitable freight rates and the negotiations for clarifying the northern railway situation.

The public accounts, so the speech continues, will show an improvement over last year, but it is still necessary to exercise the most rigid economy. An advisory board will be named to make a general survey of the entire field of revenue and taxation.

FARMING AIDED BY WHEAT POOL

Has Revitalized Agriculture in Western Canada, Says A. G. Russell.

WINNIPEG MEETING

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 12.—(Canadian Press).—"In the wheat pool we have the greatest single factor for the revitalizing of the farming industry," declared President A. G. Russell, at the opening here Thursday of third Manitoba Economic Conference. The wheat pool, he maintained was destined to play an important part in the future of the farmer in Western Canada, and urged that it be accorded full support.

In extending welcome to the delegates, Premier John Bracken pointed to the tremendous growth in diversified farming. In Manitoba, he said, agriculture and its various branches were worth just twenty times as much as all other industries in the province combined.

In suggesting what could be done to further improve conditions, Premier Bracken urged boosting the acreage under cultivation, making the returns safer by increasing diversification; increasing the number of farms occupied; reducing the losses from pests and other agencies; reducing the cost of production and finally increasing the efficiency of marketing.

Laval-Quebec
Mines, Limited

—Shows Massive Mineralization!

The untold wealth of Noranda is leading Laval engineers to concentrate the present development campaign on the 1453 acre block near Noranda's main holdings and contiguous to the latter's "Island" property.

Here Laval's preliminary work has disclosed massive sulphide bodies of copper-gold and other precious metal content.

A crew of men is already preparing for the erection of permanent camps with a view to making surveys for a diamond drilling campaign.

The shares of Noranda and Amulet have attained their present price as the direct result of successful mine developments. Mine development on Laval-Quebec is fully financed and is expected to bring results which will justify similar market action.

RECREATION CLUB MET AT HAVELOCK

HAVELOCK, Feb. 12.—The second regular meeting of the Havelock C.P.R. Recreation Club was held on Tuesday evening, February 9th, with fifteen members present. President H. W. Roche occupied the chair.

Mr. Pincombe brought up the question of the admittance of non-employees into the club. A general discussion of the matter then took place, and a letter was read from the secretary of the Smith Falls Club, advising that non-employees were admitted to that club. On motion of Messrs. J. Howe and W. Copp, it was decided to admit non-employees to membership in the club under the same conditions as employees.

Mr. R. Crawford spoke in connection with extending an invitation to representatives of the local press to attend the meetings of the club. It was pointed out that a copy of the minutes of the meeting would be handed the local press and also that in the event of any of the representatives of the press becoming members of the club, they would be at liberty to attend all meetings.

Mr. J. Evans spoke in connection with the advisability of appointing non-employee members of the club as active members of standing committees. A general discussion took place, and it was the opinion of the meeting that to have non-employee members on committees would tend towards harmony and co-operation in handling the different activities of the club.

The question of grounds then came up. On motion of Messrs. J. Evans and R. Crawford, the secretary was instructed to communicate with H. J. Main in connection with the use of the right-of-way between the station lawn and the freight shed.

The appointing of committees was then taken up, and, on motion of Messrs. P. Pincombe and J. Howe, the following committees were appointed, the first named on each committee to be chairman. Mr. Pincombe to be head of all committees, he in turn to consult with the president before any action taken by any committee.

WOMEN DISCUSS MISSION SCOPE

United Church Auxiliary at Millbrook Entertained at Parsonage.

FORTY ATTENDED

MILLBROOK, Feb. 12. — The Women's Missionary Auxiliary of the United Church was entertained for its February meeting at the Parsonage, through the kindness of the president, Mrs. (Rev.) F. H. Howard, on Wednesday afternoon, about forty being in attendance.

Mrs. A. J. Brown was in charge of the "Watch Tower," the heralds reporting including Mrs. J. Hatherly, who spoke on one phase of the Indian work, the fact that 10,000 of these are as yet unreached by the Gospel being somewhat of a surprise. Mrs. R. H. Edmunds gave a report from an African field, the language difficulty, and the need of literature, being emphasized, and also read an item from one of the Chinese missions.

Group C, Mrs. A. Weatherup, convenor, then took charge, the Scripture lesson, "Workers Together in Prayer," based on selected passages from Colossians, Romans and Matthew, being taken by Mrs. F. P. Johnston. "Toil and prayer are twin essentials, with an active faith, for the advancement of the kingdom."

"Building With India."

The chapter from the study book, "Building With India," was given under three headings, "Helping through the Mind," by Mrs. Irwin Hatherly, the agitation for no Christian teaching in the schools that receive the government grant being one outstanding fact; "India's Need of Medical and Sanitary Help," by Mrs. J. H. George, this section giving the words of one woman of India, "Your God must be very good to send us women a doctor, none of our gods have ever loved us enough to do that"; and from the native farmer the objection, "Your plough is too heavy for us to carry home at night, and too long for us to drive our oxen by twisting their tails; your machinery may grind the grain more quickly, but it will leave our women idle because the work is taken out of their hands"; Mrs. H. A. Elson presented the "Aim of Missions" which is just to help the people grow, remembering that Eastern Christianity will express itself differently to that of the West, from the standpoint of native characteristics.

Mrs. O. Williamson read a letter from Miss E. C. Hawken, missionary teacher at Wahstao, Alberta, and Bernice Smith recited "Two Little Hands for Jesus."

A duet, "I'll go all the way with my Lord," by Mrs. G. W. Sayles and Mrs. F. P. Johnston, was much enjoyed.

The Easter thank offering envelopes were distributed, a leaflet by Mrs. Rea noting the fact that twenty-eight years ago this amounted to $6,369.96, and last year to $66,944.00, for the whole of Canada. It will be taken up locally on the first Sunday in March for the Auxiliary, Circle and Band.

Prayer by Mrs. George brought the meeting to a close, and Mrs. Howard, assisted by Group C, served tea, a very pleasant social hour being enjoyed.

Weekly Euchre.

The weekly euchre which is held in the Tannery Club rooms is becoming more popular each week. On Friday evening about thirteen tables were played. Miss Edna Lloyd and Mr. Paul Parkin were the winners of the first prizes, while the consolation prizes went to Miss Helen Johnson and Mr. Wilbert Clemett.

A.Y.P.A. Meeting.

The A.Y.P.A. gathering on Monday evening was favored by an interesting lantern lecture on Egypt. A very beautiful series of views were thrown on the screen, which gave the onlooker an idea as to various characteristics of the land of the Nile. The pictures of great temples of inspiring beauty, the sphinx, pyramid and mummies brings to mind what a great Egypt it was when at its zenith of power and glory. The descriptive literature read by Mr. Allan Adams lent an aid to enabling one to travel in imagination through that historical country.

Next Monday evening is the annual banquet and a good time is anticipated.

News Briefs.

Friends of Mr. Jim Glenny of Burk's Falls will regret to hear of the sudden death of his wife, the sad news having reached his father, Mr. Isaac Glenny, on Sunday. Mr. Glenny left on Monday to attend the funeral.

Rev. Mr. Konkle of Toronto, a speaker of high renown, occupied the pulpit in the Continuing Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening and delighted a large congregation with his discourse.

DENIED HEARING OFFER OF BRIBE

Deputy Minister of Customs Recalled Only General Rumor.

CUSTOMS INQUIRY.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 12 (Canadian Press)—Interest in the proceedings of the Commons committee investigating the administration of the customs department centered yesterday on the inspection of the port of Montreal.

R. R. Farrow, deputy minister of customs, admitted that in 1922 he conveyed to Chief Inspector of Customs Busby the decision of the then Minister of Customs that Mr. Busby should not inspect the port of Montreal. No reason was given for the removal of Montreal from Mr. Busby's jurisdiction.

When the appointment of R. P. Clark, the present head of the Montreal District, came up, Hon. H. H. Stevens sharply questioned the deputy minister as to Mr. Clark's qualifications for the post. A dramatic moment came when Mr. Stevens asked Mr. Farrow's private opinion of the wisdom of Mr. Clark's appointment. After some hesitation, Mr. Farrow replied that he did not care to answer. The appointment of Mr. Clark had been made by the Civil Service Commission on recommendation of the department and Mr. Clark at that time was the best candidate available for the post, considering that bilingual attainments was one of the essential qualifications.

Mr. Farrow denied that he had been told that Mr. Clerk had been offered a bribe of $100 a week by J. E. Bisaillon, dismissed special inspector of the district of Montreal, for the job. Mr. Stevens tried to "refresh Mr. Farrow's memory on the point," but the deputy minister said that while he had heard something about offered bribes, it was not in that connection.

EXPLORER DEPARTS FOR ARCTIC REGION

Accompanied By United States' Major—Will Use Monoplanes.

SEATTLE, Wash. (Canadian Press), Feb. 12.—Capt. George Hubert Wilkins, Australian explorer-aviator, has arrived here and is preparing his monoplanes and equipment for shipment to Alaska, where he will begin his exploration to the Arctic regions.

Accompanying Capt. Wilkins was Major Thomas G. Lanphier, official observer for the United States army air service, who will claim for the United States any land discovered in "Blind Spot."

Captain Wilkins and Major Lanphier will sail on Saturday for Seward and from there will go by rail to Fairbanks, 500 miles inland. The planes will be assembled at Fairbanks and the party hopes to fly to Point Barrow, most northern tip of the United States territory.

"On our first flight we will go from Point Barrow to the pole of relative accessibility, a point 800 miles north of Point Barrow and 400 miles from the North Pole," Wilkins said. "Reaching the pole of relative accessibility, we will turn either to the east or west, depending on weather conditions and search for the land believed to lie there."

COULDN'T IDENTIFY ROBBERY SUSPECTS

Owen Sound Man Lost $15,000 in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12 (Canadian Press)—F. J. Rolston, said to be a Canadian mine owner of Owen Sound, Ont., was unable to identify in court yesterday two men who are alleged to have entered his room in the guise of prohibition agents on January 29, ransacked his trunks and escaped with $15,000 in travellers' cheques. The case was continued to February 26.

Rolston charged that Dorothy Jackman, whose address was found to be the same as that of one of the alleged robbers, Fred Haeger, had connived with the two men to rob him while he was ill. Rolston testified that one of the men held a sheet over his head while the other rifled his room. Bernard Kendler, of Boston, was the second man arrested.

Miss Jackman denied charges against her. She said that Rolston had employed her as a nurse and had sent her out to procure whiskey.

ARSENIC SEARCH IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

British Ores Exhausted—Company to Canada.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 12 (Canadian Press).—One of Cornwall's largest mining companies is transferring its activities to British Columbia in search of arsenic, lead and zinc ores, it was learned yesterday at the British Columbia Chamber of Mines.

Not only will it buy and operate properties, but it will bring experienced Cornish miners to the province to introduce a system of mining by which shafts and tunnels are bored, not blasted, announced E. J. Blair, advance agent of the Devon Consolidated Mining Company.

"We have been influenced to come to British Columbia principally because our arsenic ores in Britain have been worked out" said Mr. Blair. "While we are looking for arsenic propositions, we are equally attracted by lead and zinc mining possibilities."

They "Got Their Man" Just Like Real Police

NEW YORK, Fez. 12.—(United Press.)—John Hickey and Henry Van Gilawee might have been members of the Northwest Mounted Police instead of Williamsburg detectives—but they got their man. The detectives wanted Frank Tortora for highway robbery. They trailed him to his home, which was isolated by deep snow drifts. With shovels and picks they burrowed through six feet of snow, hacked down the door and made the arrest.

THE J. C. TURNBULL CO. LTD.

AUSTRALIAN TRADE TREATY

his reputation for consistency if he voted for the Conservative amendment. He quoted from Dr. Tolmie's speech of last session on the Treaty in which Dr. Tolmie is reported to have said that while there was some good and a lot of bad in the Treaty, he thought that as a representative from British Columbia he must be guided by the requirements of the province from which he came.

Mr. Neill continued that not only would he vote against this amendment, but, as a protest against delay, he proposed to vote against any further amendments which might be introduced. He hoped there would be no more amendments. The Opposition had been given its opportunity to overthrown the Government and had failed to do it. Now the important thing was to get down to business.

Protect Egg Market.

It was extremely unjust, Mr. Neill said, that United States eggs should be allowed to enter Canada under a three cent duty, while Canadian eggs paid eight cents a dozen to get into the United States. He favored an increase from eight per cent to sixteen per cent in the Canadian duty on foreign eggs. He also referred to the "grossly unfair" discrimination in the rates on wheat shipped from the Prairies to Vancouver for export and that shipped for domestic use. He approved the proposed revaluation of soldier settlers' lands.

Opposition members having asked why if he was so anxious that the House got down to business, he had supported the Government motion for an adjournment, Mr. Neill replied that he would not expect his hired man to get up in the morning and go out to work in his pyjamas without his boots, without a fork, or a hoe or any other tools. He had voted for the adjournment because he thought the Government should be given time to get its boots on.

Moncton's Grievance.

O. B. Price (Conservative, Westmorland) said the farmers in his constituency did not have the same advantages as other Canadian farmers in getting to their markets. Freight rates in Central Canada and in the West were designed to facilitate marketing. But this was not so in the Maritimes, where freight rates worked against the farmer. They also worked against the lumber industry to such an extent that even the local shipments could not be moved on account of high costs of transportation.

Under the King-Thornton administration of the National Railways a great injustice had been done to the City of Moncton. The administration of the railroad division with headquarters at Moncton had had 1,328 miles cut off from their section of the road and a large number of the staff formerly in Moncton had been moved to the head office of the National Railways in Montreal.

Dr. Price was interrupted several times on points of order.

W. F. Kay (Liberal, BromeMisissquoi) wanted to know what Mr. Price's speech had to do with the amendment before the House.

Speaker Lemieux asked that the members would confine themselves as nearly as possible to the subject in hand. But greater latitude should be given in the debate on the address and the budget debate.

Grievances which members from a particular section of the country desired to discuss had always been aired during the debate on the address and for that reason he desired to give the utmost possible latitude especially to new members, and he would ask the House to do the same.

Reading His Speech.

Another interruption came when J. F. Pouliot (Liberal, Temiscouata) objected to Mr. Price reading his speech from a written manuscript.

Speaker Lemieux replied that he had been under the impression so far that Mr. Price were merely referring to notes. It was against the rule for members to read the general text of their speeches, but he suggested that "members who have been sitting longer in the House must be generous towards the younger members."

Mr. Price continued to read from the manuscript of his speech, and later on Mr. Pouliot again interrupted to remark that if he was only referring to his notes "I think he is very near-sighted."

Dr. Price complained that the Maritime Provinces received but a very small share of the total amount paid by the Canadian National Railway system in Provincial and Municipal taxation. Out of total taxes paid municipalities, provinces and states throught which the syste moperated, amounting to $2,937,000 the Martime Provinces received but $8,154. He declared that the Government's proposal for a royal commission to investigate the difficulties of the Maritime Provinces was "Just a way of putting off the day of reckoning."

Condemns Treaties.

Mr. Armstrong (Conservative, East Lambton) expressed his conviction that the French, New Zealand and Australian Treaties into which the Government had entered, were not in the best interests of the Canadian agricultural industry.

As a result of the French Treaty, twelve other countries were granted tariff protection similar to that extended to France by the Government in 1923. Under such concessions farm products imported to the Dominion from Belgium, Italy and the Netherlands alone for the fiscal year ending March 1, 1925, totalled $1,000,000. From France, importations of agricultural products for that year aggregated $224,000, making a total for the four countries of $1,224,000. All these importations he reiterated entered Canada under favorable tariff concessions extended by Canada, notwithstanding that all these products were produced in the Dominion.

Mr. Armstrong argued that the trade treaties entered into by the Government had not only proved of no benefit, but had actually worked against Canadian trade. He gave the following figures to show the decline in exports and the rise in imports with Italy and France:

	Imports.	Exports.
France:
1923	$14,000,000	$17,000,000
1924	17,000,000	12,000,000
1925	18,000,000	11 000,000
Italy:
1923	$1,842,000	$18,000,000
1924	1,814,000	14,000,000
1925	2,435,000	10 000,000

Beet Growers Hit.

The policy of the Government had cost the sugar beet growers of Ontario approximately $50,000 a year for three years, Mr. Armstrong said. In Western Ontario there were two large sugar refineries, in which was invested about $5,000,000. In the first year of its coming into power the present Government put an excise tax of one-half cent a pound on sugar produced from sugar beets. The refineries had thereupon reduced the price paid to the growers, with a consequent loss to them. The sugar beet industry was a basic industry.

Why should it have been penalized in this way? During the fiscal year ending March last, 26,965,412 pounds of sugar valued at $1,472,000 had been imported from Australia. Mr. Armstrong declared that the sum of $200,000 had been invested in a sugar refinery at Petrolia, Ont., by the beet growers of East Lambton. This building stood unfinished because conditions brought about by the present Government would not permit it to function profitably.

OBITUARY.

APSLEY, Feb. 12.—Death came very suddenly to Willard Peters, who lived at the foot of Loon Lake in Chandos township, on Monday last, while helping a lad to unload logs he suddenly dropped to the ground dead. Mr. Peters was in his seventieth year and suffered from heart trouble and was also afflicted with goitre. The funeral was held on Wednesday, interment being made in the Glenalda cemetery, the Methodist minister from Coe Hill officiating.

MRS. W. H. REID.

LINDSAY, Feb. 12. — News of the death of a former Peterboro resident, in the person of Mrs. W. H. Reid of Winnipeg has been received here. The deceased passed away at her home in that city last Saturday, in her 55th year. She had been a resident of Winnipeg for 21 years.

FREREICK LANG.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 12. — The late Frederick Lang, who passed away in his 78th year, on Saturday, February 6, after a prolonged illness, was the eldest son of the late Alexander and Elizabeth Lang, pioneer settlers of Manvers township.

His parents came to this country as bride and groom from County Fermanagh, Ireland, in 1845, eighty-one years ago, and settled on the farm now occupied by Alexander Petts, of Manvers.

The long sea voyage, by sailing vessel, with its attendant perils, was fololwed by the rigors and privations fo pioneer life as they labored together in hewing their home from the virgin forest.

Ten children were born to their union, the heavy responsibility of carrying on the farm and, in effect, being both father and brother to the growing family falling early in life upon the late Mr. Lang, his father's death occuring while the children were still quite young.

Forty-one years ago deceased was united in marriage to Elizabeth Peel, daughter of the late George and Francis Peel, of Bexley, in Victoria County. Three children of their family of five, died in infancy, the immediate survivors, besides his bereaved widow, being two sons, Willis, at home, and Hilliard, of the Seventh Line, Cavan; two sisters, Mrs. John Tregenza, of Orillia, Mrs. William Rowan, of Millbrook, and two brothers, Alexander and Edward Lang, of Lifford.

In religion Mr. Lang was all his life connected with the former Methodist church, faithful in attendance at its services so loug as health permitted, and in politics he was a staunch Conservative.

The funeral, which was largely attended, took place on Monday, Febraury 8, at 2.30 p.m., from his late residence, seventh line, Cavan, his pastor, Rev. F. H. Howard, assisted by Rev. Joseph Wilks, being in charge.

The pallbearers were his two brothers, Messrs. Alex and Edward Lang, three brothers-in-law, William Rowan, Jas. I. Peel, and Joseph Johnston, and a cousin, Councillor T. J. Lang.

Interment was in the family burial plot at Gardiner's cemetery.

Among those from outside points who attended the funeral were: Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Walker, of Janetville; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rowan, of Bethany; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Melville Johnston, of Springville; Messrs. Alexander, Edward, Leslie and Lloyd Lang, of Lifford; Mr. Wilbert Pele, of Peterborough; Mr. Lloyd Peel, of Bexley.

An Afternoon Gown of Charm

Dignity and charm unite in making this afternoon gown a chic costume. It is a splendid example of the new silhouette that outlines the body from under the arms to the low hip-line, where a new variation of a flare is expressed in a gathered lace flounce, starting at the left hip and winding around the dress in spiral effect to the hem, below where it started. After the manner of all correctly fashioned costumes, the sleeves are long—the length here achieved by joining a deep frill of lace to the tight upper part. Crepe satin claims all seasons for its own, and one of the pastel shades was used for the plain foundation, with silver lace for the frill, and a touch of contrasting color introduced in the flower worn at shoulder and hip. No. 1270 is in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 36 bust requires 3⅝ yards 36-inch, or 2⅛ yards 54-inch material, with 4¾ yards lace flouncing 10 inches wide. Price 20 cents.

Our Fashion Book, illustrating the newest and most practical styles, will be of interest to every home dressmaker. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

UNDERGARMENTS

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (United Press). —"The average woman's underwear could be mailed from New York to Oregon on a two-cent stamp," sighed a salesman of the old school. Being unfamiliar with parcel post zones and rates we cannot vouch for this.

However, it is a fact that women have discarded vests, corsets and costume-slips to an astonishing degree. They are now looking for some single garment which will serve the purpose of an all-in-one garment. Thus far, the slender person accepts the brassiere and step-in drawer combination. Often these are not real combinations though they are sold in sets.

The brassiere may be only a bandeau which leaves a space between brassiere and the waistline of the step-in. When one goes vestless the body is thus left partially bare. There is one model worth mentioning which is designed along these bandeau-drawer combination lines which takes the place of vest, brassiere and drawers. The bandeau is made cup-shaped in front following the natural lines of the bust and attached to this is a wide stomach band which terminates in drawers. The entire garment fastens up the back. Older women will not find this type of garment adequate, since the long brassiere which fits snugly over the top of the girdle is preferable for holding in the abdomen.

"Nip and Tuck" could almost be called the lingerie slogan this season. Nearly every garment from vest to costume slip is nipped in at the waistline and tucks are invariably used as trimming.

Many step-ins have slender hips at rear with fullness in front added by means of pleats placed on in apron effect.

Flowered georgette trimmed in black lace is a new lingerie suggestion. Also chartreuse crepe de chene, a greenish yellow shade, is to be utilized this Spring for lingerie.

Metal lace trims some of the Parisian imports and in speaking of imports, one must not omit mentioning that white crepe de chene trimmed with appliques of flowered chiffon is most popular at present.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Your column appearing now and then in the local paper is so replete with sage advice that it is with the greatest confidence that I avail myself of your valuable assistance.

I am a girl of eighteen summers and go out occasionally with boy-friends, as well as entertain them in my own home.

Recently while holidaying in New York City I purchased a garter-watch—an article that has added much to the popularity (so they say) of those who neglect no detail in their attempt to "keep up to the minute." One evening shortly after my return a boy-friend of long acquaintance called to spend the evening with me. After my mother and father perceived that we were tiring of general conversation they very thoughtfully retired to the den, and we straight-way took up our position on the chesterfield before the grate. Now I was always taught that it was improper for a young girl to permit her friend to linger around later than eleven o'clock. I accordingly glanced at my watch. Apparently for the first time he was aware that there was such an article as a garter time-piece; and every few minutes would ask the time. It was becoming bothersome but courtesy forbade my refusing the information; but when he whispered "may I wind your watch" and at the same time approached to do so, it occurred to me that he was perhaps less interested in the time, or the time-piece than he was in the particular part of the anatomy to which it was attached and my indignation arose to fever heat, and in terms that could not be misunderstood I told him that I was not that kind of a girl. He looked at me, evincing in his countenance something of a doubt—I replied in a firmer tone than ever "but I don't mean maybe."

Your comment on this matter will be greatly appreciated.

Yours, INNOCENCE.

INNOCENCE—Thinking that your main idea in inditing the above epistle was to see yourself in print, even under a nom-de-plume, I reproduce same above. How do you like it? There is something strangely familiar about your script.

Honestly though, Innocence, the magnitude of your problem and the sincerity with which you seek advice about it, rather overwhelms me. You will have to allow me a week or so to collect my thoughts and tell you all about it. The thought of a young thing as innocent as you being allowed to travel to New York City and to sit on a chesterfield with a young man, unchaperoned, appalls me. It will take some time to figure out the proper answer to your question.

PLANTS FOR THE HOME

By Annette Bradshaw

Towards Spring one can't help thinking of growing things. Especially city folks, who are deprived of the pleasures of a garden, like to watch things grow indoors.

There are a variety of plants that thrive and blossom to serve the most decorative indoors. The popular hyacinth and narcissus bulbs, the various sorts of fern among these.

Even the containers for these plants no longer present a problem. One of the quaintest ideas is that of the Japanese dwarf plants arranged in miniature garden form in a little star-shaped baking tin from the ten-cent store. The tin may be enameled over a dull green or red. A few tiny plants and vines are arranged among the earth and pebbles of the miniature landscape with its artificial bridge and pagoda from the Far East.

An old umbrella stand is just the thing to convert into a graceful stand for a hall fern. The stand is enameled over in an attractive color and a smart decalcomania design or stencil motif adds contrast in color and line. These decorations are to be had in the art departments of the large stores handling art goods. They are inexpensive and applied in a few minutes' time.

Any glass jar which formerly contained preserves or jam will make the most practical and good looking vase or cut flower container when a decalcomania motif decoration orates its surface. These motifs come in pastel colorings which altogether transform a plain glass jar into a new and effective possession.

The old-fashioned bean pot standing on its little stool, has also been transformed into a lovelier thing than its former self. Colored floral designs have been cut out of wall-paper and firmly glued to its surface. A good liquid glue easily accomplishes this trick. Then the entire jar, design and all, is varnished over.

The wicker basket at one side is equipped with a silken cord which suspends it from above, or from a bracket by the window. The basket itself being a little shabby from long disuse becomes fresh and new with a single coat of varnish.

The Secrets Of Charm

By Lucrezia Bori

Symmetry is the keynote to all bodily beauty. The slim, lithe figure which spells symmetry in every line is the figure which is the admiration of those who behold it and a joy to the fortunate possessor.

Now, just as symmetry is largely a matter of physical fitness, so is the exuberation of spirit which contributes so largely to attractiveness, a matter of physical fitness.

This exercise will strengthen the legs and thighs, and prevent bulging muscles.

A proper appreciation of these facts should be enough to make any woman determined to make her body as strong and symmetrical and physically fit as she knows how.

Exercise is the primary necessity for the development of your body. And the owner of a strong body is indeed fortunate, for she can enjoy every day's activity without becoming tired to the point of exhaustion, and being forced to rest herself after the least exertion.

Now, strong legs are a very necessary part of one's equipment. If a person is weak, the legs seem to feel the strain first and most of all, for when she moves about, they are the support of the entire body. You may have noticed this forcibly at times when you have been ill, or when you were just convalescing from an illness. When you first began to move about, doubtless your legs became weak, and you felt that you must rest them after only a few steps.

I am going to give you here an excellent exercise by which you may strengthen and beautify your legs. This movement affects the thighs especially. This upper part of the legs often becomes weak and flabby and unduly fat, and there is nothing better than this following ballet exercise to put them in proper shape.

Begin by standing erect, chest out, chin in and your hands on your hips.

Raise your left knee as high as you can, as shown in the sketch. Support the thigh by placing your left hand under it and holding it up.

Now, stretch your leg out straight to your side, unbending your knee and carrying your foot straight out, so that your leg makes a straight even line.

Repeat this five times to each side, trying to get your knee perfectly straight. Use your hand to support your leg until you have strength enough in it to do the exercise without support

USES FOR SOUR MILK.

Old-fashioned housewives treasured their sour milk and used every drop of it in cooking or cream cheese making. If we bake at home we can do the same and thus save a valuable by-product. If we have a small bottle of sour cream we can, with a silver fork and a little elbow grease, make a nice little pat of fresh butter in less than twenty minutes. Or we can have a generous half glass of fresh buttermilk to drink. Or we can make a sour cream salad dressing, or a sauce for cutlets or potato cakes. Don't waste this valuable asset, but try it in some of the following recipes.

Polish Soup.

Make a bouillon of two pounds of shin of beef, and two quarts of water. Add a stalk of celery and a cut onion for flavor. Cover and cook very slowly. When the meat is tender, remove it and pour the liquid through a damp linen cloth. Cool, remove the grease and return it to a clean saucepan. Meantime, boil a half pound of washed rice until nearly done, drain and rinse under cold water, then add it to the bouillon and cook until done. Add pepper and salt. When the rice is done, add a cupful of the diced soup meat, five slices of peeled lemon cut thin, and a cupful of sour cream. Serve at once.

Sour Milk Gingerbread.

Add two level teaspoonfuls of bicarbonate of soda to a cupful of sour milk and turn it into a cupful of heavy dark molasses. Sift in two and a quarter cupfuls of flour, a half teaspoonful of salt, and three level teaspoonfuls of ground ginger. Add a half cupful of melted butter, melted over hot water and strained, pour in buttered shallow pan, and bake for twenty-five minutes in a medium oven. A teaspoonful of vanilla is often added and improves the flavor.

Sour Cream Salad Dressing.

Take a cupful of sour cream and add to it a tablespoonful of sugar, a half teaspoonful of salt, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar, and a half teaspoonful of powdered dried mint leaves. Mix well and add a half salt spoonful of cayenne. This recipe is excellent with a cucumber salad.

Cottage Cheese.

The simple old-fashioned way to make the cheese in a small quantity is the best for the home cheese maker. When the pint, or quart, of milk has soured to a heavy clabber, pour it into a cheese cloth bag and hang it to drain several hours over a pan to catch the whey. When well drained, turn into a bowl and break up with a fork, add a half teaspoonful of salt to a pint and a teaspoonful to a quart, a tablespoonful of soft unsalted butter, a teaspoonful of sugar and a little heavy cream to soften to the desired texture. Mix well, place in a small mould and set in cool place until needed.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY

Breakfast—Baked apples, cereal, thin cream, broiled bacon, shirred eggs, crisp graham toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Noodle souffle, graham rolls, jellied tomato salad, cabinet pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner—Chicken and rice en casserole, candied sweet potatoes, parsnip patties, head lettuce with Thousand Island dressing, vanilla ice cream with chocolate sauce, nut cookies, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.

These menus are planned particularly for the women who are entertaining a week-end house guest. There is nothing elaborate to suggest extravagant effort on the part of the hostess but thought and hospitality are evident. Noodle souffle is merely a new arrangement of everyday ingredients.

.. .. .. Noodle Souffle. .. .. ..

Two cups or one package noodles, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 tablespons flour, 1 cup milk, 1-2 cup grated cheese, 2 eggs, 1-2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

Cook noodles in boiling salted water for ten minutes. Drain. Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk stirring constantly. Season with salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce. Add cheese and cook until melted. Add noodles and yolks of eggs beaten until thick and lemon colored. Fold in whites of eggs beaten stiff and dry. Turn into a well-buttered ring mould and bake 45 minutes in a pan of hot water. The oven should be moderate. Unmold and fill with a creamed vegetable or fish. Creamed mushrooms, creamed cauliflower, creamed spinach and mushrooms are particularly good if a vegetable filling is wanted. Oysters and shrimps are suggestions for fish.

HER OWN WAY

by a Girl of Today

BREAKING THE NEWS TO MOTHER.

"Oh, this is awful," said my mother in agonized accents. "It's much worse than what happened to Aurelia Winston, and you know how her scandalous episode swept the town!"

"Now, mother, don't be silly. Rill Winston, poor girl, let all you old codgers put it over on her. 'Course, I expect she was as tight as Lyman Andrews, but she ought just to have stood up for her rights and said, 'Of course Lyman and I had a little too much to drink and that's how the accident occurred.'

"I don't uphold Rill's drinking. Neither do I uphold drinking in Lyman. I think it is disgraceful as well as foolish to get in such a condition that you can't take care of yourself. But, that's their worry. What makes me wrathy, however, is the difference in the way Rill and Lyman are treated.

"Lyman Andrews is going around as though nothing had happened. He's visiting all the girls in town and dancing almost every night at the country club, while poor little Rill has been cut by every mother with a marriageable daughter in our set and has been spending her days at home crying her eyes out."

"But, Julia, what else could she do?"

The question rather stumped me and I didn't answer for a moment. Then, thinking I might as well "break the news to mother" then as well as later, I said:

"I don't know what Rill Winston can do, but I know what I'm going to do. After last night's experience I've found out that what I've been doing lately doesn't get me anywhere and it isn't going to get me anywhere except perhaps a spill from an automobile and a scandal. What I am going to do is to get out and go to work. I'm sure I can earn my own living and I shall let everybody that has nothing better to do than talk themselves black in the face, about me, do it."

Mother looked at me in consternation and whispered in accents of despair as she left the room:

"I don't know what I shall tell your father, Julia."

"Tell him the truth," I called after her, and I added to myself, "I shall tell him the truth if he asks me anything about it."

For a few moments I got quite a kick out of anticipating just what my father would do and say when he heard the whole story, but in my wildest imagination, I never really thought he would do what he did.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

THE LATEST WORD IN LAMP SHADES.

We are told by decorators that bases and shades must harmonize not only in their color scheme but in their shape, size and depth.

If the shade is one of the new adjustable kind, the wire frame under it must be neatly wrapped with ribbon, silk, gold galoon, or be painted. One of the most popular materials for the shade is the glazed chintz. In some shades it is plain, in others figured, but in either case the shade must be pleated to be up to the minute in style. The newest shades are trimmed with bands of ribbon, satin, or tinsel, or laced at the top with cord finished with elaborate silk Chinese tassels to match the chintz decoration. Sometimes a single band of ribbon is used half way up the shade and an inch and a half wide silk fringe with a galoon edge is used at the bottom. The cord and tassel also appears on these shades and is generally in the color of the ground shade of the chintz, while fringe and ribbon match the flowers in the decorative pattern. These shades fit all the lamps of medium size, and, if tied to the wire frame at the top by the cords, will remain in position.

Then there are charming shades that can be made at home with the application of the spatter work done on cream chintz or parchment. These shades are, of course, not pleated. They are banded top and bottom with a gold or silver band, or a band of color. Wide at the bottom and narrow at the top. The spatter work patterns may be as elaborate as desired, though the simple ones are very lovely if delicate patterns are used.

Black shades with white silhouette panels are rather new. The shades are made of the painted parchment, the panels are cut out and the thin silhouettes are set under and pasted in place. It is a delicate job and takes deft fingers to make a good workmanlike job.

The lace shades with colored silk linings are another new idea and they are very dainty and attractive.

Block-printed linen shades will be a Summer feature for porch or hall lights and are quite unusual.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Length of life is determined to some extent by what we call "the law of chance." A given number of persons, born on the same day and living practically identical lives, will die on dates wide apart. There are so many accidental factors in every career that nobody can prophesy accurately as to the length of a given life.

There are some general principles, however, which have an important bearing upon longevity. The observances of certain rules of living are likely to make the members of one family live longer than the members of another family.

In this connection, I want to mention a family which to my mind has had the most remarkable record in history. If there is another parallel case I shall be glad to be told about it.

One of my colleagues in the Congress is the sons of parents still living. The father is eighty-six and the mother, seventy-nine. This couple have nine living children, all sons. There are fifty-five living grandchildren.

All this may not be remarkable, but what do you think of the following statement? There has never been a grave opened for this family! Not a single death has occurred among them for three generations.

Something more than chance determined these circumstances. I venture to say there was a good cook in the back ground of the family. Somebody taught the value of fresh air: sunlight and exercise. That valuable information was handed down from parents to sons. The latter selected wives who held similar ideas.

Of course, a family which transmits a strong, vigorous body confers an advantage over the weak and frail structure which is the common heritage of another family. No one of the weak type need be discouraged by this fact. A little more care than the stronger person needs and exercise will make it possible for the frail person to live out a life fully equal in deeds and years to the other.

Heredity and early environment are important, of course, but they are not all determining by any means. I have told you of a friend of mine who retired from business at thirty-six because of chronic ill-health. He lived to be eighty-six. The exercise of common sense in his physical life gave him a long career in spite of the bad beginning.

You may thank God if you are well born in a physical sense, but even if you have not this advantage you may live to be a hundred.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

— By Blanche Silver —

HOW TINY WHITE FLOWER FOUND A NAME.

"Oh dear me," sighed the first tiny little seed. "I'm growing so weary of being shut up in this earth. I do wish I could begin to swell up and grow. Well," as something touched her and pushed her over, "who are you?"

"Excuse me, little Brown Seed," laughed the large round thing. "I didn't mean to push you. I'd like to answer your last question, but honestly I don't know just who I am. All I know is that I dropped off of something big and tall and fell on the ground and when it rained I was pressed down into the dirt. There now, see what I've done!" as the thick shell he wore split. "I suppose I'm done for now. I've split the shell that held my seed."

"Oh, no, you're not," said a cheery voice as a great long earth worm wiggled into view. "You wouldn't be any good at all if your shell didn't crack and let your seed out. What do you think I've been wiggling and jostling you folks about for? To loosen up the dirt around you so you could grow up above ground and make something out of yourselves."

"Dear! I wish I knew what I was going to be," sighed the tiny brown seed. "I'd love to be a bright red rose."

"No telling," snapped Earth Worm. "I wiggle around so many seeds that I can't tell one from another. They all look alike to me. Only you, Mr. Hard Shell. I judge by your size you should make a nut tree of some kind. How would you like that?"

"Great!" exclaimed the round hard-

"My Dear You're a Snowdrop!"

shelled seed. "Look what has happened. I see a weel little sprout sticking out of your seed pod."

Sure enough the wee little brown seed was sending up a wee little green shoot. Earth Worm laughed and wiggled around her all the harder.

By the next morning little Brown Seed had poked her head up out of the dark ground into another gloomy world.

As far as she could see the world was white. Great patches of snow, so Mrs. Field Mouse told her, covered the ground.

"I'm almost afraid you've awakened too soon, wee flower," she said kindly. "The snows are still here. You'll freeze."

"I guess not," replied the tiny green shoot merrily. "All I hope is that I can bloom into a bright red blossom."

"Red blossoms don't bloom quite so early in this meadow," squeaked Mrs. Field Mousie.

The next few days the little green flower grew quite fast and the next time Mrs. Field Mousie saw her she had a dear little snow white blossom on her pretty green stem.

"Why, my dear, you're a snowdrop as sure as I'm alive!" she cried. Then she ran to call her children. "You can all come out, for Spring is here. No more cold weather after Snowdrop lifts her pretty head above the ground." Then to Snowdrop she said, "Your blossom is white instead of red, but you are a lovely sight."

The wee flower heard and laughed with glee. "What matter the color if you can give pleasure to others?" she thought.

Not long after that she had a visitor. The hard brown shell had sent up a tiny shoot beside Snowdrop, and Mrs. Field Mousie called him an Oak Tree.

WOUNDED NEIGHBOR.

Farmer To Serve Six Months

SASKATOON, Sask., Feb. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—Charles Salisbury, Aberdeen district farmer, was to-day sentenced to six months in jail and $400 fine for grievously wounding E. C. Schindel, a neighbor, on Hallowe'en last year, in a quarrel over damage allegedly done at Scindel's farm. Salisbury had been charged with attempted murder, but a jury acquitted him of that charge, finding him guilty of the lesser charge and recommending mercy. Schindel was shot in the shoulder and knee, and was for a long time in hospital.

The YELLOW STUB

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HENRY RAND 55 a business man is found murdered in a cheap hotel in GRAFTON. Police find a woman's handkerchief and a yellow ticket stub from a theater in Chicago.

JIMMY RAND Henry's son goes to Chicago. The ticket stub is traced to a THOMAS FOGARTY who says he gave it to OLGA MAYNARD a cabaret singer. Police search for her.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL and gets a job at her office. Later he encounters Olga Maynard and she faints when he tells her she is suspected of murder. Mary out with SAMUEL CHURCH a wealthy lawyer sees Jimmy lifting Olga into a taxi. The next day she doesn't speak to him. He is discharged later that day.

Police arrest Olga and confront her with the ticket stub and handkerchief. She admits they are hers but believes a man who took her to a cabaret two nights before the murder might have got hold of them.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIV.

Olga Maynard stared unseeingly at the handkerchief O'Day held in his hand. She was silent.

"Who was the man?" O'Day repeated.

"I don't know." She lifted her arms helplessly and let them drop. "What do you mean, you don't know who it was?" O'Day began angrily.

"You—"

"Just what I said," she said resignedly. "I don't know who it was. I never saw him before that night."

"You expect me to believe that?" The lieutenant had risen to his feet. He was bending over her menacingly. "Look here—either you're lying when you say you weren't in the Canfield Hotel or you're lying when you say you don't know who this man was. Which is it?"

"I told you it would sound like a weak alibi. I knew you'd think I was lying. If you'll listen I'll explain. You still won't believe me, I guess, but every word's true. I swear it is."

"Go ahead, Miss Maynard," encouraged Jimmy. "We're listening."

"You probably get the idea from the lieutenant, Mr. Rand," she said, "that I'm not a—a very nice woman. All right, maybe I'm not, according to your way of thinking. The man I went out with that night spoke to me in the lobby of the Paragon Theater as I was coming out. He picked me up, if you want to put it that way."

She looked appealingly at Jimmy. He nodded his head. "Go on," he said.

"Maybe you've never been broke and lonesome and out of a job," she continued, half to herself. "It isn't a very nice feeling.

"When he asked me to go some place where we could eat and dance, I went with him. He had a bottle of liquor with him, and he got drunk. He tried to make me drink and I wouldn't. That's why he got mad. I never drink unless I know who I'm with. He said a few things to me that I didn't like, so I got my pocketbook from him and went home."

"That's all there is to it," she finished.

"A fine story," scoffed Lieutenant O'Day. "I suppose you'll say next that you don't know what he looked like. D'you suppose you could tell us that, or did you forget that, too?"

"I remember what he looked like, all right. I'm not apt to forget that. He was a big man—a regular giant—with long arms and big, freckled hands. I was afraid of him when he got to drinking."

"What kind of hair did he have?" Jimmy asked.

"Red hair. Light red. It was cut short at the sides. Just long enough on top to part it."

"Lieutenant," said Jimmy. "I think she's telling the truth. That's the description the hotel clerk gave of the man who registered as H. A. Jones of New York. He said the man had his hat on—pulled down over his eyes so he couldn't see much of his face. But he described him as a big man with close-cut red hair. He said he had rather large ears. Did you notice, Miss Maynard?"

"Yes. He did."

"I'll be darned if I know what to do," said O'Day. "We can't let her go here, even if we wanted to. We're holding her for the police in Grafton. I'll telegraph Mooney."

"What do you suppose they'll do?" Jimmy asked. Olga Maynard was sitting dejectedly, holding her head in her hands.

"They'll fix it so she can't get away until they find this man she's talking about. They've got enough to go before the grand jury and get an indictment for murder. I suppose that's what Mooney will try to do."

"Do you mean they'll—they'll charge me with murder?" She raised her head and gazed at the police officer, dull hopelessness in her eyes.

O'Day looked at Jimmy when he answered. "They'll want to be able to put their hands on her whenever they want to. We're holding her on suspicion. First degree murder's unbailable. If the grand jury indicts her, they'll be able to keep her in jail."

He turned to Olga. "Your story might be all right if you could produce the man—but until you do you'll have a hard time getting a jury to believe it."

"But if she is allowed to go free she might be able to find the man," Jimmy suggested. "If she's in jail he might run around town here without anybody to identify him."

"That's true enough, Rand. But on the other hand, if we let her loose she might beat it out of town."

"No, I won't. I swear I won't, Lieutenant," she cried.

O'Day shrugged. "It's out of my hands. I'll hold you here until Mooney comes and gets you. Then we're through. It's his case—not ours."

"Then I'm going to Grafton tonight and make arrangements to have her freed," said Jimmy.

"You'll have to talk the district attorney out of trying to get an indictment."

"All right, I'll try that. It seems to me that I have as strong an interest in this case as the state has. I'm satisfied she's telling the truth. We need her to help us find the real murderer. I've maintained from the first, Lieutenant, that no woman was involved in this case. I said it when they first showed me the handkerchief and I said it again when Fogarty told us he had given his theater ticket to a woman.

"I'm going to Grafton to get hold of a lawyer."

"There's plenty of them here, Rand," observed O'Day dryly.

"I have one in mind. He's the best friend I've got.

He turned to Olga. "When I come back, Miss Maynard, they're going to let you go, and you and I are going to find that man. He doesn't know we're looking for him, so he won't be hiding. You're going to look for him every evening—do you hear?"

He thought he had never seen anything so pitiful in his life as when she turned a tearful face to him and said, "I'll try, Mr. Rand. I'll try awful hard."

He stopped in a telegraph office and sent a wire to Detective Mooney and another to Barry Colvin. At the railroad station he was able to get a lower berth on the train leaving for Grafton at ten o'clock.

It was a later train than he had planned to take, but there was no choice; there were no berths left on the other. He decided to eat dinner at a downtown restaurant and then go home and throw a few things in his traveling bag.

On the way to his room he walked slowly, trying to formulate some plan of action. He must get hold of Barry, and have Barry argue with the district attorney against indicting Olga Maynard for murder. Barry was a friend of the district attorney; once they had both worked for the same law firm.

In front of his rooming house he almost collided in the darkness with a man coming through the gate.

"I'm sorry," he murmured as the other stepped quickly to one side to avoid a collision.

The man lowered his head and walked swiftly away. "He might have had the decency to accept my apology," Jimmy muttered. "Still, I guess I'd better watch where I'm going. I almost knocked him down. Wonder if he lives here?"

Mrs. King, the landlady, was in the hall when he entered the house.

"Is that you, Mr. Rand?" she said in surprise. "I thought I heard you moving around in your room a few minutes ago."

"I was in earlier in the evening, Mrs. King, but I went out again. I've been gone about three hours."

"I could have sworn I heard you just a few minutes ago, Mr. Rand. I didn't hear you go out and I thought you were still here."

"By the way, I'm going out of town tonight. Going to Grafton. I expect to be back day after tomorrow. No phone calls for me, were there?"

"No."

On his way upstairs he was thinking of Mary Lowell. "I don't know why I think she'd call me up," he said to himself. "I guess I'm a plain darn fool to think of it even."

In his room he threw some clothing and toilet articles into his bag, lit a cigaret and sat down for a smoke before leaving for the railroad station. It was then that he saw an envelope on the telephone stand. He picked it up. It was sealed, but unaddressed. Puzzled, he tore it open and read it, and then sank back in his chair in amazement.

Written in pencil, in a scrawly, amateurish hand, were the words:

"If you want to keep out of trouble, leave town and leave quick."

"Now who in Sam Hill could have written that?" he said aloud. "If someone's trying to scare me off, they've run up the wrong tree. Still, I don't know of anyone—"

His reflections were cut short by the voice of Mrs. King. "Telephone, Mr. Rand."

His heart gave a leap. "If it's only Mary—but no, she wouldn't—" He lifted the receiver and then almost dropped it in surprise.

A voice said: "Did you get that note?"

"Did I what?"

"You heard what I said. There's a note in your room. Read it."

Jimmy went hot with rage. "I read your infernal note, and you can—"

"Never mind what I can do. All you have to do is to do what it says."

The receiver clicked.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 13.

According to the interesting configurations of the planet of change, sustained by that of enterprise and ambition, as well as the helpful attitude of the financial orb, this day should unfold some interesting events. There is prospect of change, travel or removal under the Uranian impulse, and with the enterprising and courageous Mars strong by lunar direction, the opening may be grasped. Jupiter assisting, the adventure wisely manipulated should prove profitable.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of opportunity, with the possibility of change or travel, which should prove advantageous, especially since the disposition may be resourceful and given to initiative. A child born on this day should be resourceful, ambitious and adventurous. It may be given to invention and experiment, and should succeed in its ambitions.

LEAD SOLDIERS.

They're lined up on the front floor, an' all their plans are made. You wonder what they're waitin' for. They'll soon be on parade. A tiny hand will start them off, and move them on their way. Just little leaden soldiers and a youngster at his play.

They only stand two inches high, with guns that cannot shoot. But anyone can tell you why the picture looks so cute. "Attention," says a squeaky voice, and as the shout is heard, the youngster thinks the soldiers pay attention to his word.

The chubby little fingers move the man on horseback first. And then they swing the army 'round until they're all reversed. Again a sudden wee command, as sonny says, "left face." It isn't long until there's not a soldier left in place.

They're scattered everywhere, and they're sprawled upon the floor. The youngster's tired, and doesn't care to march them any more. Of course he's glad to get them out, when on parade they led, but mother has to pick them up, when sonny's gone to bed.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 10—NICK TELLS A STORY.

"And now," said Blue Whiskers to Nick, when he had finished wiping his eyes, "if you can tell me a story as funny as your sister's, I shall not only forgive everything, but I may be able to help you to find the blue cherry."

"Oh, then you do know where the blue cherry is?" cried Nick.

"Not exactly," said Blue Whiskers, "but there are things in the by-laws and constitution that may lead to its discovery. Please commence."

Jupe looked even more anxious than he had before and kept taking his note book out of his pocket and putting it back again.

But he needn't have worried because Nick started right off to tell his story:

"Once upon a time there was a baby," he said, "that was very new.

"'I know what we'd better do if we want him to grow fast,' said the baby's mother, 'we'll feed him on elephant milk.'

"So they fed him on elephant milk and he gained and gained and gained. In one week he had gained twenty pounds, in two weeks he had gained forty pounds, in three weeks he had gained sixty pounds.

"You'd think that by that time he'd be big enough, but he wasn't, for his mother kept right on feeding him elephant milk."

"I suppose they wanted to put him in a circus," said Blue Whiskers.

"That was just it," nodded Nick. "His mother wanted to put him in a circus when he was bigger.

"So she kept right on feeding him elephant milk and every week he kept on getting fatter. It wasn't long until he was PERFECTLY ENORMOUS!"

"I should say so," said Blue Whiskers. "Whose baby was it? Anyone I ever heard of?"

"I don't know," said Nick. "It was the elephant's baby.

At this not only Blue Whiskers, but Jupe and the shaggy bear and all the pigs in the palace roared so with laughter, that the crabs and lobsters and cod-fish in the moat put their claws and their fins in their ears in alarm.

"My, my! they remarked in wonder. "Something had happened to put old Blue Whiskers into such a good humor. He is shouting at the top of his lungs.

Inside the palace Blue Whiskers was saying, "I haven't laughed so hard since the river ran uphill. So now I shall try to help you to find the blue cherry I suppose. The tree that bore the blue cherry was lost about a hundred years ago. Someone dug it up one dark night and ran off with it. In the morning there was nothing left but a hole in the ground."

"Did the tree have many blue cherries on it?" asked Nancy.

"Only one each year," said Blue Whiskers. "All the others were red. But the blue cherry was magic and much sought after. Paddy-foot, bring me the by-laws and the constitution again."

So Paddyfoot, the bear, went out to the pantry and dug down in the sugar barrel and got the by-laws and the constitution and brought them in.

LOCAL BREEDER VICE-PRESIDENT FOX ASSOCIATION

J. E. Patte Returned To Directorate For Three Year Term.

DISCUSS PROBLEMS.

Matter of Embargo on Shipping Foxes To Norway is Considered.

The fox-breeding industry has been making considerable headway in the Province, according to statements made at the annual meeting yesterday at the Prince George Hotel, of the Ontario Branch of the Canadian Silver Fox Breeders' Association. Five years ago there were only half a dozen breeders in the Province, while to-day there are over 350, representing a substantial investment. H. S. Arkell, Dominion Livestock Commissioner, himself a fox breeder, said that despite certain difficulties last year had been a most successful one.

Urging the breeding of best stock Mr. Arkell went on: "If there is to be a future for the industry in Canada it will be wholly dependent on the quality of the stock, and the sooner we eliminate poor-quality stock the better, and the more profit there will be." The way to make the live fox industry safer, he said, was to put pelt selling on a thoroughly commercial basis. They had to concentrate on this end of the business just as the wool growers had done.

The incoming executive was instructed to follow up this suggestion and get in touch with the Livestock Branch.

J. E. Patte brought the attention of the members to what was practically an embargo on all Canadian foxes going to Norway, except those from Prince Edward Island. The matter, he said, was being investigated by the intelligence Branch of the Department of Commerce, but no full explanation had been received yet. It was thought, however, that the impression was prevalent in Norway that foxes from Prince Edward Island had less disease than those in other parts of Canada.

The members decided that the investigation should be vigorously proceeded with, as it was felt that if such an impression gained ground in Norway it would also spread to other European countries. It was also decided to notify the various other Provincial Associations of the action taken, and ask them to support it.

Restrictions in Ontario.

A considerable time was taken up in discussion of the restrictions under which fox breeders in Ontario were placed with regard to the export of foxes and pelts, for which permits had to be obtained and affidavits made that they came from registered fox farms. On wild silver foxes which are trapped or shot a tax of $10 a head has to be paid, this being the reason for the restrictions, but J. E. Patte stated that this tax was not paid on more than half a dozen foxes a year, and that for the sake of this small revenue fox breeders were being put to a great deal of inconvenience. It was felt that the Government might forego this revenue in the interests of the industry. It was pointed out that in Prince Edward Island there were no such restrictions. The desire was also expressed to have the industry come under the Department of Agriculture, and not under the Department of Mines. Game and Fisheries, and it was decided that a deputation should wait on the Government and bring these points forward.

A resolution from the New Brunswick Association protesting that inspection of farms should not be passed over to the Canadian Silver Fox Breeders' Association, was endorsed, it being felt that inspection by the Government was the best safeguard the industry had, giving it a national status.

Escaped Foxes.

In Prince Edward Island, when a fox escapes from a farm it is regarded in the same light as an escaped steer and is not a legitimate target for the hunter. In Ontario, such a fox may be shot and can be claimed by the hunter unless the breeder proves his ownership. It was decided, therefore, to see if some such regulatiosn as are in force in Prince Edward Island, could not be obtained in Ontario.

Directors were elected as follows: For three years, W. H. C. Ruthven, Sim Coll and J. E. Patte, two years; L. B. Pollock, Dr. G. White and E. C. H. Tisdale; one year, J. M. Rumford, H. L. Clipsham and J. M. McGillivray. A vote of thanks to the retiring president, E. C. H. Tisdale, was passed, and the directors elected W. H. C. Ruthven as the new president and J. E. Patte as vice-president. The executive committee is comprised of: W. H. C. Ruthven, J. E. Patte, E. C. H. Tisdale and C. K. Walton.

Messrs. Patte and Walton were unanimously elected delegates to the annual meeting of the Canadian Silver Fox Breeders' Association, at Summerside, next July.

New High For Smelters In Firm Market Session

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—Recessions set in after a generally firm opening on the Toronto stock exchange this morning, but gains were in the majority at the morning close. Smelters was the outstanding for strength and activity, opening 4 1-2 higher and climbing to a new record high of 231 1-4, from which it eased only 1-4, the close at 231 being a gain of 5 1-2 from yesterday. Brompton advanced 1 1-4 at 34 3-8 and British Columbia Fishing was up 3-4 at 60 1-4. Pure Gold came into demand and held up 5-8 at 21 5-8. F. N. Burt and Abitibi each sold a point lower at 62 and 82 1-4, and Winnipeg eased 7-8 at 50 3-8. Mines were strong with Dome the leader, advancing 51 at 19.00.

TORONTO, Feb. 12. — Canadian Press.—Trading reached a new peak on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, when a turnover of close to 900,000 shares was recorded. The leaders were generally strong but a number of recessiins were shown. Tough Oakes was outstanding, closing the morning 3 higher at 61, and Columbus, Kirkland, the active leader, advanced 3½ at 12½, after touching 16. Tec' Hughes gained one at 376 and Gold Reef 1½ at 4½. Kirkland Lake eased 2 at 132. Capitol gaining 2 at 47, was strong silver leader, and Everett advanced 1¼ at 9 3-4.

Business Is Improving Says Bank Of Commerce

The monthly commercial letter of the Canadian Bank of Commerce says:

That the improvement in business conditions is becoming more marked throughout the Dominion is evidenced by the reports received during the past month. Many of the industries have sufficient orders on hand to keep their plants operating at capacity for several months, and a number of them have been working ou a daily schedule of 24 hours. Reports from wholesalers indicate that the volume and amount of orders received are in excess of the figures for the corresponding period of 1925, and that collections are much better than a year ago. Although the retail stores at a number of points are experiencing keen competition from mail order houses, generally increased retail sales are noted in all of the provinces and the outlook is regarded as decidedly brighter than for several years past. With a view to effecting appreciable savings through purchasing their goods as one unit a federation comprising some thirty department stores in Ontario has been formed. It is estimated that the combined turnover of the firms in the group amounted last year to $10,000,000, and the intention is to maintain purchasing offices in London, Paris and New York.

Illustrative of the real extent of the improvement in conditions in western Canada is the response to the overtures of a Winnipeg wholesale grocery firm which recently offered a larger line of credit to a number of its retail customers. Less than 50 per cent. of those written to availed themselves of the offer, the remainder stating that as payments from the farming community were much more satisfactory additional credit was not desired. A further indication is that good prices have been realized at farm auction sales. The demand for farm lands at improving prices continues and it is expected that the movement will assume considerable proportions in the spring.

A step of importance in the direction of economy for the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railway by the elimination of costly duplication of train service has been announced by the Minister of Railways. The outcome of the movement will be watched with considerable interest.

The sales of ordinary life insurance in Canada during the past year were greater than in any previous year. According to figures just published such sales amounted to $424,872,000, an increase of $33,709,000 over the 1924 figures. Practically every province shows a gain for the year, and gains in Newfoundland increased by 36 per cent. In Ontario and Quebec, the two most important provinces, the gains were 10 per cent. and 8 per cent. respectively.

FISH AND GAME MEETING HELD

Chris. Graham, of Peterborough, Was a Speaker at Ontario Gathering.

IS ON EXECUTIVE.

The annual meeting of the Ontario Hunters' Fish and Game Protective Association was held at the King Edward Hotel on Wednesday, the 10th, with morning nd afternoon sessions and a luncheon at 12.30 w'h the deputy minister, Mr. D. J. McDonald, as the chief speaker. The meeting was well attended by sportsmen from all parts of Ontario. The biggest problem that the sportsmen have at the present time is the conservation of all game and many points were brought out along the line of the Government restocking all waters with fish fry and the creating of more bird sanctuaries

C. G. Graham, president of the Peterboro Fish and Game Association, was the local delegate and is on the executive of the Ontario Association.

At the luncheon, Mr. Moody, who is the new president spoke on game sanctuaries; Mr. Hunsberry of Jordan Station, on Pheasants and Hungarian Partridge; Mr. Watson, of Hamilton, on the conservation of all game; Dr. Powell, of Toronto, on the crow, which he claims has not a redeeming feature, as he is considered one of the worst bird killers of all kinds; Chris. Graham spoke on the bass, 'lunge and pickerel fishing of the Trent Waterways and Kawartha Lakes District; Mr. McDowell, of Midland, on the gun license; and Deputy Minister D. J. McDonald gave a very interesting address on the work of his department in the Game and Fisheries, and promised the support of the Department to the Association.

One discussion which took place was a Toronto hooter who favored making a closed season for bears, and he explained that he had shot in British Columbia where the bear is protected and considered their greatest game. This matter is to be brought up at the meeting of the Fish and Game Committee during this session.

The local representative stressed the point that fish must have more protection during the spawning season and every effort will be made to see that extra men are on this year.

The election of officers was: Hon. President, G. G. Greene, Bradford; President, W. J. Moody, Kitchener; 1st Vice-President, W. W. Hunsberry, Jordan Station; 2nd Vice-President, Dr. Powell, Toronto; Secretary-Treasurer, J. C. Richardson; Eexecutive Committee: Messrs. F. W. Watson, Hamilton; C. G. Graham, Peterboro; Wm. Pears, Toronto; Albert Hergott Waterloo; Dr. H. Walwin, Barrie; E. Devitt, Novar; W. McMahon, Port Hope; W. Griner, Hamilton; Aubrey Davis, Newmarket; C. M. Mundy, Oshawa.

HUDDERSFIELD BADLY JOLTED

Defeated 2-1 By Blackburn —Morale of Fans Hurt.

SATURDAY GAMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12. — (Canadian Press Cable).—Huddersfield Town, the leaders of the First Division of the English League, were severely jolted Thursday afternoon when they travelled to Blackburn and emerged at the wrong end of a two-one score. This was the fifth defeat suffered by the Yorkshiremen in this season's League play, and although it did not directly affect their present standing, it nevertheless hurt the morale of their supporters considerably, and also taught Huddersfield the lesson that if they want to retain their laurels as League champions, they will have to play for them until the last game of the season. At that, however, they continue to run with two games in hand over their nearest rivals, Sunderland, and football fans here are inclined to the belief that Huddersfield's status will be restored when they entertain Everton on Saturday.

Everton played Manchester City Wednesday and drew with them. It will be recalled that Huddersfield soundly defeated Manchester City last Saturday, and basing their estimation on this, the fans think that in the battle of the roses tomorrow the home team will acquire the points. The last time Huddersfield played Everton, the former won by the odd goal in five.

It is Sunderland's turn to take a chance with Manchester City, and he game is scheduled for Sunderland. With the Lancastrians running strong in the Cup competition, he next round of which is slated for a week on Saturday, it is reasonable to think that they will be conserving considerable of their energy for their tilt. At the same time, Sunderland on their own ground are a powerful combination. They have been defeated only once there this season, and curiously enough that feat was accomplished by the lowly Leeds United. It was during the New Year's holidays, however, a season when anything might happen.

Newcastle at Arsenal.

One of the most interesting of Saturday's games is down for Highbury, when the Arsenal play host to Newcastle United. This ought to be one of the tid-bits of the day. Before Arsenal had acquired that winning streak which brought them so near to championship contention, they travelled to Newcastle and suffered the heaviest defeat they have sustained in years. The Northcumbrians stacked up seven goals against them without any response. Arsenal are stronger now though, but recently they have been under a cloud. Their last three games have ended in disaster, one of them inflicted by the lowest placed club in the League, Burnley. Apart from that there are many reasons why this metropolitan fixture should be the big drawing card, despite the fact that West Ham are also engaged at home.

Another Midlands battle is down for decision when West Bromwich side-slip a little way to play Aston Villa. In the last League game played by these teams, the contest was undecided, a one-one draw being the result. But they met again in the fourth round of the Cup competition and the Villa won.

Other scheduled engagements are Sheffield United (4) at Birmingham (1); Tottenham Hotspurs (4) at Blackburn (2); Cardiff City (3) at Bury (2); Notts County (2) at Leicester (2); Burnley (2) at Liverpool (1); Leeds United (2) at Manchester United (0); and Bolton Wanderers (1) at West Ham (0).

The figure in brackets following the name of the teams is the score recorded at the last meeting of the clubs concerned earlier in the season.

Theatre

AT THE CAPITOL

AT THE CAPITOL.

MARY PICKFORD, IN "LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY."

Back again in the tomboy roles that made her famous Mary Pickford is the attraction at the Capitol Theatre for this week end, in "Little Annie Rooney." With her curls and her childish ways and her little girl legs, she is almost as good as ever, and the pathos and smiles that have always been associated with her prankish hoydenish stories are eloquent of the real artistry of the little star. As a come back from the larger, grown up parts which Mary Pickford essayed for a time, nothing could be better than the return to the old ways, but manners go deep. It is in some of the small incidents that the grown-up lady asserts herself, and an element of gracious patronage creeps into the treatment by Mary of her small helpers. But this is not very noticeable and the picture itself is one of those that awakens tears in its pathetic scenes and mirth of the gayest type in its happy moments. Mary Pickford through long experience, knows just what effects to use to "put over" her ideas, and she gets there every minute, from first to last. Anyone going to see "Little Annie Rooney" may be assured of a real treat. They will laugh with the merry, lighthearted lassie of the slums of New York, the little "Annie' with her lovely face and her tomboy ways, romping through scene after scene with her group of tenement followers. This is an outstanding portion of the picture, the inclusion of the youngsters of the mean streets of the Bowery, the small "Abbie" who partakes of pork with Mary at the dinner table of his orthodox parents, and is hustled unceremoniously out by his outraged father and mother, the little lads who pull her braids and help her to put on real wild west movie show, and the dirty, loyal children who track down the slayer of Timothy Rooney, Annie's father, and lug him into court, before an astonished magistrate. Annie and Tim are the children of Timothy Rooney, one of New York's "finest," and Annie is preparaing a birthday party for her father, one of those events in which numerous small touches contribute to the atmosphere of homely comfort and pleasure, when the big policeman is killed in a fight in Sullivan's Dance Hall, by a couple of gangsters in a fight over a girl of the streets. Then Tim, the brother, hears that Joe Kelly has killed his dad and goes gunning for him. He shoots Joe, wounding him almost mortally and Annie goes the hospital to give a blood transfusion for her brother's victim. In this scene are funny bits. Annie makes her last will and testament and gives it to the awestruck Abie and her gang of followers comes to take part in the last sad rites for their playmate. The recovery of Annie and of Joe contribute to a happy ending.

The art of the little star makes "Little Annie Rooney" one of those pictures that are delightful and very entertaining, and the human and heart interest touches that go toward its production have the real "Pickford" attraction.—Jeanette.

AT THE REGENT

"THE COMING OF AMOS" SURPASSES ALL EXPECTATIONS

"The Coming of Amos," the Cecil B. DeMille supervised production starring at the Regent Theatre for a three days' run, gives a long looked for opportunity to give vent to a whole column of pure and unadulterated enthusiasm.

It has surpassed fondest expectations.

Rod La Rocque, in the leading role of "Amos" gives a performance worthy of his role and of the story and has proven the trust which the greatest of filmdom's producers bestowed upon him in elevating him to stardom.

It is old fashioned melodrama in a new and modern setting, adapted from the famous novel by William J. Locke, and heightened with the expert touches of showmanship from the hand of a premier producer of film spectacles and a noted director of highly entertaining film stories.

LOCAL BREEDER VICE-PRESIDENT FOX ASSOCIATION

J. E. Patte Returned To Directorate For Three Year Term.

DISCUSS PROBLEMS.

Matter of Embargo on Shipping Foxes To Norway is Considered.

The fox-breeding industry has been making considerable headway in the Province, according to statements made at the annual meeting yesterday at the Prince George Hotel, of the Ontario Branch of the Canadian Silver Fox Breeders' Association. Five years ago there were only half a dozen breeders in the Province, while to-day there are over 350, representing a substantial investment. H. S. Arkell, Dominion Livestock Commissioner, himself a fox breeder, said that despite certain difficulties last year had been a most successful one.

Urging the breeding of best stock Mr. Arkell went on: "If there is to be a future for the industry in Canada it will be wholly dependent on the quality of the stock, and the sooner we eliminate poor-quality stock the better, and the more profit there will be." The way to make the live fox industry safer, he said, was to put pelt selling on a thoroughly commercial basis. They had to concentrate on this end of the business just as the wool growers had done.

The incoming executive was instructed to follow up this suggestion and get in touch with the Livestock Branch.

J. E. Patte brought the attention of the members to what was practically an embargo on all Canadian foxes going to Norway, except those from Prince Edward Island. The matter, he said, was being investigated by the intelligence Branch of the Department of Commerce, but no full explanation had been received yet. It was thought, however, that the impression was prevalent in Norway that foxes from Prince Edward Island had less disease than those in other parts of Canada.

Restrictions in Ontario.

A considerable time was taken up in discussion of the restrictions under which fox breeders in Ontario were placed with regard to the export of foxes and pelts, for which permits had to be obtained and affidavits made that they came from registered fox farms. On wild silver foxes which are trapped or shot a tax of $10 a head has to be paid, this being the reason for the restrictions, but J. E. Patte stated that this tax was not paid on more than half a dozen foxes a year, and that for the sake of this small revenue fox breeders were being put to a great deal of inconvenience. It was felt that the Government might forego this revenue in the interests of the industry. It was pointed out that in Prince Edward Island there were no such restrictions. The desire was also expressed to have the industry come under the Department of Agriculture, and not under the Department of Mines. Game and Fisheries, and it was decided that a deputation should wait on the Government and bring these points forward.

A resolution from the New Brunswick Association protesting that inspection of farms should not be passed over to the Canadian Silver Fox Breeders' Association, was endorsed, it being felt that inspection by the Government was the best safeguard the industry had, giving it a national status.

Escaped Foxes.

In Prince Edward Island, when a fox escapes from a farm it is regarded in the same light as an escaped steer and is not a legitimate target for the hunter. In Ontario, such a fox may be shot and can be claimed by the hunter unless the breeder proves his ownership. It was decided, therefore, to see if some such regulatiosn as are in force in Prince Edward Island, could not be obtained in Ontario.

Directors were elected as follows: For three years, W. H. C. Ruthven, Sim Coll and J. E. Patte, two years; L. B. Pollock, Dr. G. White and E. C. H. Tisdale; one year, J. M. Rumford, H. L. Clipsham and J. M. McGillivray. A vote of thanks to the retiring president, E. C. H. Tisdale, was passed, and the directors elected W. H. C. Ruthven as the new president and J. E. Patte as vice-president. The executive committee is comprised of: W. H. C. Ruthven, J. E. Patte, E. C. H. Tisdale and C. K. Walton.

Messrs. Patte and Walton were unanimously elected delegates to the annual meeting of the Canadian Silver Fox Breeders' Association, at Summerside, next July.

New High For Smelters In Firm Market Session

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—Recessions set in after a generally firm opening on the Toronto stock exchange this morning, but gains were in the majority at the morning close. Smelters was the outstanding for strength and activity, opening 4 1-2 higher and climbing to a new record high of 231 1-4, from which it eased only 1-4, the close at 231 being a gain of 5 1-2 from yesterday. Brompton advanced 1 1-4 at 34 3-8 and British Columbia Fishing was up 3-4 at 60 1-4. Pure Gold came into demand and held up 5-8 at 21 5-8. F. N. Burt and Abitibi each sold a point lower at 62 and 82 1-4, and Winnipeg eased 7-8 at 50 3-8. Mines were strong with Dome the leader, advancing 51 at 19.00.

New Trading Peak Reached On Standard Mine Market

TORONTO, Feb. 12. — Canadian Press.—Trading reached a new peak on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, when a turnover of close to 900,000 shares was recorded. The leaders were generally strong but a number of recessiins were shown. Tough Oakes was outstanding, closing the morning 3 higher at 61, and Columbus, Kirkland, the active leader, advanced 3½ at 12½, after touching 16. Teck Hughes gained one at 376 and Gold Reef 1¼ at 4½. Kirkland Lake eased 2 at 132. Capitol gaining 2 at 47, was strong silver leader, and Everett advanced 1¼ at 9 3-4.

Business Is Improving Says Bank Of Commerce

The monthly commercial letter of the Canadian Bank of Commerce says:

That the improvement in business conditions is becoming more marked throughout the Dominion is evidenced by the reports received during the past month. Many of the industries have sufficient orders on hand to keep their plants operating at capacity for several months, and a number of them have been working on a daily schedule of 24 hours. Reports from wholesalers indicate that the volume and amount of orders received are in excess of the figures for the corresponding period of 1925, and that collections are much better than a year ago. Although the retail stores at a number of points are experiencing keen competition from mail order houses, generally increased retail sales are noted in all of the provinces and the outlook is regarded as decidedly brighter than for several years past. With a view to effecting appreciable savings through purchasing their goods as one unit a federation comprising some thirty department stores in Ontario has been formed. It is estimated that the combined turnover of the firms in the group amounted last year to $10,000,000, and the intention is to maintain purchasing offices in London, Paris and New York.

Illustrative of the real extent of the improvement in conditions in western Canada is the response to the overtures of a Winnipeg wholesale grocery firm which recently offered a larger line of credit to a number of its retail customers. Less than 50 per cent. of those written to availed themselves of the offer, the remainder stating that as payments from the farming community were much more satisfactory additional credit was not desired. A further indication is that good prices have been realized at farm auction sales. The demand for farm lands at improving prices continues and it is expected that the movemeat will assume considerable proportions in the spring.

A step of importance in the direction of economy for the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railway by the elimination of costly duplication of train service has been announced by the Minister of Railways. The outcome of the movement will be watched with considerable interest.

The sales of ordinary life insurance in Canada during the past year were greater than in any previous year. According to figures just published such sales amounted to $424,872,000, an increase of $33,709,000 over the 1924 figures. Practically every province shows a gain for the year, and gains in Newfoundland increased by 36 per cent. In Ontario and Quebec, the two most important provinces, the gains were 10 per cent. and 8 per cent. respectively.

FISH AND GAME MEETING HELD

Chris. Graham, of Peterborough, Was a Speaker at Ontario Gathering.

IS ON EXECUTIVE.

The annual meeting of the Ontario Hunters' Fish and Game Protective Association was held at the King Edward Hotel on Wednesday, the 10th, with morning and afternoon sessions and a luncheon at 12.30 with the deputy minister, Mr. D. J. McDonald, as the chief speaker. The meeting was well attended by sportsmen from all parts of Ontario. The biggest problem that the sportsmen have at the present time is the conservation of all game and many points were brought out along the line of the Government restocking all waters with fish fry and the creating of more bird sanctuaries

C. G. Graham, president of the Peterboro Fish and Game Association, was the local delegate and is on the executive of the Ontario Association.

At the luncheon, Mr. Moody, who is the new president spoke on game sanctuaries; Mr. Hunsberry of Jordan Station, on Pheasants and Hungarian Partridge; Mr. Watson, of Hamilton, on the conservation of all game; Dr. Powell, of Toronto, on the crow, which he claims has not a redeeming feature, as he is considered one of the worst bird killers of all kinds; Chris. Graham spoke on the bass, 'lunge and pickerel fishing of the Trent Waterways and Kawartha Lakes District; Mr. McDowell, of Midland, on the gun license; and Deputy Minister D. J. McDonald gave a very interesting address on the work of his department in the Game and Fisheries, and promised the support of the Department to the Association.

One discussion which took place was a Toronto shooter who favored making a closed season for bears, and he explained that he had shot in British Columbia where the bear is protected and considered their greatest game. This matter is to be brought up at the meeting of the Fish and Game Committee during this session.

The local representative stressed the point that fish must have more protection during the spawning season and every effort will be made to see that extra men are on this year.

The election of officers was: Hon. President, G. G. Greene, Bradford; President, W. J. Moody, Kitchener; 1st Vice-President, W. W. Hunsberry, Jordan Station; 2nd Vice-President, Dr. Powell, Toronto; Secretary-Treasurer, J. C. Richardson; Exexecutive Committee: Messrs. F. W. Watson, Hamilton; C. G. Graham, Peterboro; Wm. Pears, Toronto; Albert Hergott Waterloo; Dr. H. Walwin, Barrie; E. Devitt, Novar; W. McMahon, Port Hope; W. Griner, Hamilton; Aubrey Davis, Newmarket; C. M. Mundy, Oshawa.

OUTLAWS WIN FROM CLOTH CO.

Tommy Stewart Played Fine Game in Goal—Campbellford League.

CERKS 10, COLTS 1

Campbellford, Feb. 12.—The Town Hockey League staged two fast games at Covert's Ar na on Wednesday night. The Outlaws defeating the Cloth Co. team 1 to 0, while the Clerks trimmed the Junior Colts 10 to 1.

The Cloth Co. boys had the better of the argument all the way through. They checked McArthur and Blue, the Outlaw stars, to a standstill, showed some good combination and team pl but lacked the final punch around the nets.

Then Tommy Stewart, the Outlaw nut, was in his old time form, and robbed the Cloth Boys of what looked like sure counters, by wonderful saves.

The first two periods were scoreless and it was half way through the final period the Outlaws bagged the only goal of the game, and although the Mill Team cut out a faster pace than ever they could not beat Stewart for the equalizer.

The line-up:

Cloth Co., 1: Goal, Ted Owens; r. defence, W. Owens: l. defence, Cochrane; centre, Rouselle; r. wing, Ayrhart; l. wing, Zvisky. subs, Reid, Wilks, Nicholson and LeClair.

Outlaws, 1: Stewart, goal; McArthur, r. defence; Brown, l. defence; Blue, centre; Copperthwaite, r. wing. McKeel, l. wing; Sarginson, and Coulter, subs.

Referees: Col. Watt and Rev. Daniel.

The Clerks had more speed than the highly touted Colts, in the second game and smothered any attempts at combination; the Colts tried by fast and persistent backchecking, and while they scored a couple of soft goals they clearly outplayed the Colts all the way through. Fox played a steady game between the posts for the Clerks, and after taking the count at the start of the third period came back after being patched up, and the only goal that beat him was Ibeys sizzler between Lucham's legs, when his view of the rubber was blocked.

The defence was airtight and it was seldom the Colts had a shot unchecked, while the forwards besides backchecking all the way, broke fast when in possession of the puck, and they had finish to their attack when in close.

The win puts the Clerks at the top of the heap, with two wins and no losses.

The line-up:

Clerks, 10: Goal, Fox. r. defence, Flint; l. defence, Lucham; centre, Parsons; r. wing, Lebrash; l. wing, Wood; subs., Atkinson and Blake.

Referees: Weston and Rev. Clark.

MARMORA SURE FOR PLAY-OFFS

With Tweed Likely Opponent—Stirling Has Chance Yet.

LEAGUE GOSSIP.

MARMORA, Feb 12.—A glance at the Hasting County League standing at the present time suggests that Marmora and Tweed will engage in the play off. The former team starting off with much promise recently failed to maintain their standard and though leading did so by the nrarowest of margins over Tweed. Marmora's win at Stirling on Monday denotes a recovery of form and assures them of second place at the close of the schedule if not first. Tweed on the other hand, though starting out indifferently have so forged ahead as a team that it is not at all unlikely that their supporters will see them survive the play-offs. Houston, their centre man, has been giving of his best of late and Wagar, their goalie, has proven difficult to beat. They have, however, two fixtures to fulfil at Madoc besides receiving Marmora at home. Stirling are still capable of great things, having figured in two of the most memorable games of the season when after 30 minutes overtime, a draw was the result. They are through with their home games and must struggle hard to win on the smaller rinks at Marmora and Madoc in their two games which remain. Madoc who started out very tamely, yet losing by narrowest of margins in most of their lost games, received an impetus through their defeat of Marmora that has resulted in much improved play on their part. They will endeavour to secure another victory at the expense of Tweed, having beaten both Marmora and Stirling once on the home enclosure. Marmora is practically the only team of the four which is certain to be in the playoff.

HELPFUL HINTS BY GOLFING STARS

By Special Arrangement With Colliers' Magazine.

Abe Mitchell — Restricted Follow-Through.

JIM BARNES—DISTRUST CAUSED BY TIMING.

THE secret of getting distance lies in proper timing of the stroke; that is, to have the club-head traveling at its highest speed just as it comes into the ball. This speed is acquired by a gradual acceleration on the downswing, aided by a forward snap of the wrists in the path the hands are traveling just before the club-head meets the ball. possibly you may find a good tip in what is frequently referred to as hitting through the ball, by which is meant an attempt to attain the maximum speed with the clubhead at a spot an inch or two in front of where the ball lies. I believe the player who tries to hit the ball very hard as a rule instinctively slacks off a little too soon; by that I mean the player who is conscious of a hitting attempt rather than a swing. So it might help you to try to give the clubhead its maximum speed at a point just beyond where the ball lies. Many a poor player has been turned into a good one by this plan.

I need hardly tell you, I suppose, that an average drive of 225 yards is a good one.

FIRST RETURNS FROM POLLING IN PRINCE ALBERT ABOUT 7 TONIGHT; CAMPAIGN ENDED ON SATURDAY

Premier King's Appeal to Western Constituency Being Answered Today.

INTENSE CAMPAIGN

Vote Expected to be Larger Than in General Elections.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Feb. 15 (By Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)—The voters of the federal constituency of Prince Albert go to the polls today to choose their representative in the House of Commons.

The candidates are Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada; and David Luther Burgess, Independent.

The campaigns on behalf of both were closed Saturday night with meetings in Prince Albert and other centres in the constituency. Members of the Provincial Liberal Government, the whole support of which has been behind Premier King's campaign, concluded with a plea for his election as a Liberal and a man who has promised legislation which will benefit the west generally. Mr. Burgess and his chief supporters spoke in Prince Albert. Mr. Burgess, J. J. Maloney, Hamilton, Ont., W. H. Haney, Conservative, M.L.A. of Ontario, J. C. Slater and T. D. Agnew, repeated previous pleas for the election of the Independent candidate as a protest against an "attempt to grab the constituency," and the transfer of the constituency from one man to another "with out consulting the voters."

Expect Larger Vote

A larger vote than cast in the federal election, October 29, is expected by leaders of both campaigns at that time.

Charles MacDonald, Liberal, was elected to represent Prince Albert resigned to permit Premier King, defeated in North York, to contest the seat. The vote in the three-cornered contest of October 29 was Charles MacDonald, Liberal, 5,301; J. J. Diefenbaker, Conservative, 2,443; Andrew Knox, Progressive, 2,607.

This vote represented approximately 50 per cent of the registered vote of the city and approximately 50 per cent of the registered vote of the rural polling divisions. The farm population was extremely busy at the time. Heavy rains had held up threshing for weeks and fine weather barely preceded polling day. Today conditions were ideal for the bringing out of a large vote. The storms of the past week had passed and the country roads are in splendid condition for travel by sleigh.

Extensive Campaign

The intense campaign conducted on behalf of both candidates have created interest in every corner of the riding. With the concluding meetings Saturday night the Liberal speakers completed a tour which included every civic and rural centre. The independent campaign had not been so extensive but had taken in every civic centre and touched on widely distributed rural points. First returns from today's voting were expected to be available between seven and seven thirty p.m.

There are 138 polling stations, arrangements have been made to have the official vote compiled in four days with the expectation that the writ will be mailed to Ottawa before the end of the week.

Premier King, detained in Ottawa, wired the following to Dr. Thomas Robertson, president fo the Prince Albert Federal Constituency Liberal Association, on the eve of the election:

"Willyo u kindly convey to the electors of the Prince Albert constituency on the eve of the by-election the following message: "May I again assure the electors of the honor I deem it to be to have received nomination as a candidate in the present contest. May I express to all who have so generously endorsed and supported my candidature my grateful appreciation of their kindness in so doing, more especially as I have been prevented because of my public duties from remaining in the riding."

Collection Of Coal For Benefit Church

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Feb. 15 (United Press) — A house to house collection of coal was necessary before the Prospect Park Baptist Church could hold its Sunday evening services.

As the retail coal dealers had repudiated their promises and failed to deliver the fuel the morning service was held around a gas range in the church basement. During the afternoon five men made the rounds of the commissioners and borrowed coal to the extent of 300 pounds.

Neglect of Commission Has Prejudiced Claim by $7,000, Says R. R. Hall

The Chairman,
Peterborough Utilities Commission,
Citiy.

Dear Sir.—I read your letter to The Examiner in its Saturday issue, that your Commission is now willing to grant leave to certain ratepayers and power and light users to sue the Campbell Flour Mills Company, Limited, in the name of the Commission to recover a claim for $20,000.00 for power that was used and was not paid for.

It seems strange that after the overwhelming condemnation that your Commission received at the hands of the electors on this very issue, you do not deem it your duty that your Commission has a mandate from the ratepayers to do your duty and collect the honest debts due and owing to your Commission.

Your fellow Commissioner, Mr. Robert Hicks, was defeated on this very issue, and no other. His defeat was not due to any personal lack of qualification as a business man and citizen, because he is recognized as a successful, prudent and highly reputable merchant; and, what is more, he was during the coal shortage in Peterborough during very distressing times, an outstanding patriotic citizen whose courage and sagacity is worthy of the highest praise.

Such being the case I submit that it is the plain duty of your Commission to collect its own debts. Your own neglect of duty has prejudiced this claim to the extent of $7,000.00 to my own knowledge, and it is impossible for me to tell to what extent your have prejudiced this claim for the remaining balance. I can only tell that, when I have had the privilege of examining all the books, correspondence, papers, and facts connected with this transaction.

If your Commission has done nothing to prejudice your claim against this company, then I frankly tell you that my clients will put up the necessary security to enforce payment, notwithstanding the fact that it is the plain duty of your Commission to collect this debt due and owing to it on this city's account.

Before legal proceedings are commenced, it will be necessary for you to furnish me with a copy of the following documents, viz. All the letters and copies of letters or other correspondence that have passed between the Commission and the company and their respective agents, all agreements of every nature or kinds relating to the matters in question, copies of all accounts and statements, a memorandum of all negotiations either in writing or verbal or oherwise that have passed between your Commission and the company or respective agents in any way connected with this transaction. When you have furnished this information, I reserve the right to make further enquiries and requisitions.

You must remember that I am friendly to the city and that you are taking the ground that you want to see the city's claim defeated. I know from your letter to The Examiner that you will try to justify yourself and see that the city's claim against this company is beaten. Hence it is that I want to get your Commission committed to writing so that my clients will know where they stand.

Moreover as the litigation proceeds, my clients will reserve the right to drop the proceedings and pay the cost then incurred if they find that the bungling neglect of your Commission justify them in their judgment in doing so.

You have the means even at this late date to waive and defeat this claim and hence it is that I am taking only reasonable precautions in this important matter where a large amount of security is required to be put up.

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission has intervened in this transaction. It is understood that you must disclose all correspondence with it as well, because any judgment that may be recovered against the com-

George Went To Church —But Not To Worship

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 15.—(United Press). — George Edwards, 21, of Chicago goes to church regularly every Sunday he has confessed to the police, but not to worship. Arrested in the act of picking the pockets of A. W. Morris, a member of the Congregational Revival Service here yesterday, the police found $3,000 in Edward's pocket and in the lining of his shoes. With the arrest of Edwards, the police expressed the belief that they had the leader of a band of nimble fingered crooks, who operated among Sunday worshippers.

RURAL DISTRICT FOR SUBURBAN USERS OF POWER

Increase Ordered By H.E.P.C. Postponed Another Month To Allow Formation.

SIGN LIGHTING.

Discussed at Meeting of Utilities Commission on Saturday.

Again has fate intervened for North Monaghan citizens and the era of high electric power rates has been postponed to Apil 1. A former postpostponed to April 1. A former postponed by W. H. Badburn, M. P. P., but the further concession was granted so that the section without the bounds of the city of Peterborough might be linked up as a Rural District. This fact was disclosed on the resumption on Saturday afternoon of the meeting of the Utilities Commission. R. L. Dobbin and W. G. Henderson were delegated to ascertain tht cost of billing and keeping accounts for the proposed system and to bring a report of their findings to a subsequent meeting.

A scheme for the lighting of signs was also discussed. According to figures given by the Hydro Electric Power Commission a rate of $39.50 per k. w. per year for each 100 watt lamp was possible. That would mean 99c per month for three 100 watt lamps. It being left in the hands of the local commission to legislate as to the time of turning the lights on and off it was decided that the hours of illumination be from 5 p. m. to 7 a. m.

In consideration of the comparative economy of the street lighting system now in use on East Hunter Street, Mr. Dobbin was authorized to change the western circuit, an area bounded on the east by George street and on the south by Charlotte which comprises practically one half of all the magnetite arcs in use in the city.

Mr. Dobbin was also authorized to place a lamp on the standard at the entrance to Little Lake Cemetrey.

'SAUCE FOR THE GANDER' ACTION IN WARRANT FOR CRAVEN'S ARREST BECAUSE COUNTESS IS EXCLUDED

Involved in "Moral Turpitude" With the Countess of Cathcart.

EQUALLY GUILTY

Earl Now With His Wife in New York Since November.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 Canadian Press).—A warrant for the arrest of the Earl of Craven was requested by telegraph Sunday by Henry H. Curran, Commissioner of Immigration from the Department of Labor. The Earl admitted to immigration inspectors that prior to his entry to this country he had committed adultery with the Countess of Cathcart, who is now held at Ellis Island on a similar charge.

Mr. Curran said that he did not expect return on the warrant until some time today. Upon its arrival, he said, the nobleman will be arrested and taken to Ellis Island for a hearing before an inspector.

Woman Told Truth.

When the earl came to this country some time ago with his wife, no question was raised as to his right to enter. On the Countess' arrival several days ago, however, inspectors asked her the usual question as to whether she had ever been convicted or admitted a crime involving "moral turpitude." She answered this question: "Yes," whereas the early had answered: "No," according to immigration authorities. She explained to inspectors that she had eloped from the home of her elderly husband with the Earl of Craven and that he had been mentioned as co-respondent in her divorce. She said that after the elopement the earl had returned to his wife and later came with her to America. She said that her own journey to America was in no way connected with a desire to see the Earl of Craven, but was entirely for the purpose of disposing of her literary product.

In an interview at Ellis Island Saturday, the Countess stated that she saw no reason why she should be barred from the country when the Earl of Craven, who was equally guilty, had been admitted. It was after this that immigration inspectors located the earl at his uncle's home here, and obtained his admission of elopement with the countess.

Craven Surprised.

When the Earl of Craven was seen Saturday night at the home of Bradley Martin, his father-in-law, at 400 Park Avenue, where he has been staying with his wife, he seemed greatly surprised when asked to comment on the possibility of his own deportation.

"I know nothing of it," he exclaimed. 'The immigration authorities have been coming to me all afternoon and they have questioned me regarding Lady Cathcart. They said nothing about my being deported.

"It is perfectly disgusting the way Lady Cathcart has been treated. I emphatically say that I had nothing to do with the action against her. I did not know when she was coming to America or on what ship. The United States is quite big enough for the two of us. Lord and Lady Craven, you can say, are absolutely reconciled and only wish to be left alone and to be given the least publicity possible."

Lady Craven, who was present, nodded approval to this.

Commissioner Curran when informed of the statement of the Earl of Craven, said:

"I sent an agent out to interview the Earl of Craven with express orders to question the Earl about himself and not about anybody else."

Lady Frances Huntington, who arirved last Tuesday from England to spend five weeks in America with her friend, Countess Cathcart, sailed yesterday for Liverpool on the Carmania, to avoid publicity, she said.

After the Countess was detained by the immigration officials and sent to Ellis Island, Lady Huntington remained aot the Ritz-Carlton and did not make any attempt to go to see her.

Before sailing, Lady Huntington said that America would not be living up to its ideals and traditions if it condemned Vera, Countess of Cathcart, and condoned the Earl of Craven.

Feet Tired From Walking? Go Out and Walk Some More

CHICAGO, Ills., Feb. 15.—(United Press). — A new prescription for tired feet was given to-day by the Illinois Association of Chiropodists.

"If you get tired of walking because your feet hurt—walk some more," is the advice of the Chiropodists.

If shoes that fit are worn, walking will relieve tired feet instead of making them ache more, the foot specialists said.

SEVEN CHILDREN IN SINGLE GRAVE

Only One Child and Parents Escaped From Burning House.

SURVIVORS HURT.

LADYSMITH, Wis., Feb. 15 (United Press).—Seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bell, who perished when their little home was burned on Saturday were to be buried in a single grave today.

With the death of Raymond, 14, yesterday, there remained to the father and mother only one child Thelma May, 2, who was thrown from a window of the blazing house to safety.

Blanche, 12; Mabel, 9, and Audrey 7, perished in the blaze; Minnie, 16, and Walter, 4, died Saturday afternoon; Orville, 10, died Saturday night, and the last boy, Raymond 14, died yesterday.

The cause of the fire is as yet unknown, for both father and mother are in too critical a condition to give an account of the disaster.

SIX CHILDREN DEAD IN FARM HOUSE FIRE

Trapped in Bedrooms—Parents Severely Burned.

HOUGHTON, Mich., Feb. 15 (Canadian Press) —Trapped in two second storey bedrooms in a log farmhouse, six children, aged from three to ten, were burned to death and the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gootfried Rothenberger, and a four months old girl, severely burned early Sunday in a fire at Portage Entry, 16 miles out of here.

MORALS OF COBOURG CITIZENS ARE TO BE WELL LOOKED AFTER

Lady Councillor Starts Wave of Reform in Lakeshore Town.

NO MORE JOY RIDES.

Sheiks Must Stay Out of the Parks After Midnight—No Crapshooting.

COBOURG, Feb. 15 (Special to The Examiner). — The name of Cobourg's one lady councillor, Mrs. Edith Kerr Macdonald, has been added to the Police Committee of the town of Cobourg. This action followed a spirited discussion in the Town Council over conditions in Cobourg. It is not believed that the morality of the town of Cobourg is any worse than that of any other town in the district, but since Monday night's Council meeting, Cobourg has wakened up, and there is any amount of discussion over some of the disclosures discussed by the City Fathers at this same Council meeting. Any young sheik that comes driving along with his car now will not find it so easy to carry some young damsel off for a joy ride. Loitering in parks, minors smoking cigarettes or frequenting pool-rooms, public drunkenness by any age or sex, children running wild at night, crap shooting, and many other things are all under the ban.

One councillor has taken the matter so seriously that he suggests that the churches close for a while and the Town Council take the matter of the morality of the town in hand.

Another suggests that the parents should stay at home themselves, so that they may know where their children and young people are. "If fathers frequent questionable places what can you expect of the children?" he asks. With a curfew bell for the fathers and mothers, all might be well. There are more things than those that threaten the children, a councillor said, to be cleaned up. There are places in town that should be closed up. If the gambling in the bigger places was stopped it would be easier to stop it among the young people. As far as the smoking habit is concerned among the younger generation, it might be acquired from some of the mothers of to-day.

Women Behind the Commotion.

The chief reason for the municipal broom beginning to sweep, was the fact that several lady organizations of the town approached this lady councillor, Mrs. Edith Kerr Macdonald, and asked her to bring various matters before the Town Council. These organizations included the Mothers' Unions of the Anglican Church and Trinity United Church, the Helping Circle of St. Andrew's Presbyterian, the Catholic Women's League, the Ladies' Aid of the Baptist Church, the Ladies' Aid of King Street United Church. Some of the matters to which attention was requested were:

Four Dead Trying To Save Paintings Of Old Masters

CHESTER, Eng., Feb. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—The ancestral home of Sir Phillip Grey Egerton at Oulton Park, Tarpoley, Cheshire, was destroyed by fire Saturday. Four lives were lost in attempts to save valuable pictures by Rubens and other old masters.

The fine structure was erected from designs by Sir John Vanburgh and was long regarded as one of Cheshire's show places.

SALM SQUABBLED OVER SEEING SON

Husband of Heiress Wanted Baby Alone.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 15. — (Canadian Press).—The first meeting between Count Ludwig Salm Von Hoogstraeten and his 18-month-old son, Peter Constantin, ended in a squabble Sunday afternoon between the detectives guarding the child and the Salm forces.

After a short argument, during which Baby Peter's wails, blended with the sobs of the Count's mother, the detectives and nurse took the baby back to the residence of Countess Millicent.

The incident took place in the Count's room in the Hotel Royal Poinciana. As soon as a detective and nurse had entered with the child Count Salm objected to the presence of the detective. In turn, the detective objected to allowing the Count to see his son in his room, the detective proposing instead some part of the hotel grounds or the beach.

At this time the Count brandished the court order which he alleged allowed him to see the child in the hotel and stated that if he could not see the baby in his room he did not want to see him at all, whereupon the nurse and detective took the child away and the Count sought his lawyers to determine his rights in the case.

Capitalists At Lindsay Inspect Site For Plant

LINDSAY, Feb. 5.—Lindsay was visited Saturday by three Toronto capitalists, in the person of Sir Henry Pellatt, J. Miller and Rhys Fairbairn, who are interesting themselves in the proposed alcohol plant. The company has been incorporated and it is planned to take over the property of the old Cereal and Flour Mills, Limited. The Toronto deputation inspected the property, and it is understood a proposition will be submitted to the council as well as a request for fixed assessment. There is outstanding taxes amounting to $10,000 against the property at present.

Red Snow Worries Boozers But Scientists Explain It

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 15. (United Press).—A thin layer of red snow covered St. Paul Friday tipplers ascribed it to moonshine and scientists disagreeing on the cause of the phenomenon.

In some places the snow was copper colored and in others it was bright red.

J. N. Rycer, Goverment Meterologist, said he believed strange coloration was due to volcanic dust carried here by freak air currents.

Other scientists thought the explanation might be protococous nevalis, a low grade plant which occasionally covers large large tracts of snow in the Arctic regions. It has never been known in this country, however.

These Pirates Will Make Perfectly Legal Holdups

PALM BEACH, Florida, Feb. 15.—(United Press).—An exclusive flowing night club modelled after the pirate galleons with its orchestra and waiters dressed in pirate garb, will be an entertainmen feature for society here. The galleon, built in dry dock in New York is being towed to Palm Beach.

At 11 o'clock every night it will cast off from its mooring at Australian Avenue and Lake Drive, for a three hour cruise on the waters of Lake Worth.

It will present a colorful appearance at night, lighted by a series of red, green and yellow lights with the tail mast illuminated by a silvery glow of flood lights. Tables will be set on the deck and all activities will take place out of doors.

The galleon will be open during the summer.

Morals Of British and American Women Hotly Assailed By Countess Cathcart, Who Says All Are Equally Guilty

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 (Canadian Press)—In an interview given yesterday at Ellis Island, Countess Cathcart said:

"I realize now that there was no one at work trying to keep me out.

"I was my own worst enemy. By telling the truth I have gotten myself here. It does put rather a premium on lying.

"Moral turpitude does seem a hard word for an act committed in sincerity and at no time regretted," she asserted.

"Adultery is not a crime in England. If it were, all of the English nobility would be in jail.

"And if England had the same entrance laws as America, I don't think many American women would get in."

G. Munich at $14,800 yearly rental, when the power rights were put up for public auction at Parliament buildings on Saturday. The set up price was $6000 a year.

REDUCE CAPITAL.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Feb. 15 (Canadian Press).—At a meeting of the shareholders of the Niagara District Grape Growers here on Saturday afternoon a decision was reached to reduce the stock of the company from 500,000 shares of $10 value to 50,000 shares of the value of $1. The charter of the company will thus be retained and the organization kept in "cold storage" for any future emergency.

Jersey Jurywomen Act To Cut Silk Stocking Cost

ATLANTIC CITY, Feb. 15— The annual upkeep of silk stockings among jurywomen in the court house at Mays Landing has risen to such proportions, it is reported, that women jurors have complained to court officials for relief.

Investigation developed that the women juriors have become accustomed to draw their feet back under the chairs when changing positions during long trials. Many of the chairs had protruding bolts on the chair rungs which tore holes in the stockings.

The complaint was then filed, and so were the bolts, but the court is now planning to install more comfortable chairs for the women jurors, as well as a foot rail on which to rest their feet.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin. —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

M. H. W.—You have a good deal of charm, both material and spiritual, but you lack "stick-to-itive-ness" and permanency. You are generous and ambitious, full of hope and enthusiasm, and will not bow to defeat. You are extravagant in money matters and are easily confused, disliking crowds and busy streets. You are careless with your own belongings and those of others. You despise routine, and have a tendency to worry over things that never happen. With your fickle nature, I don't see how you are going to get along very well in life, as long as you remain unmarried, because your reading indicates that to achieve any measure of success, you will have to work very hard, a thing which you do not like, although you are not lazy, by any means. You had better marry while young, after you have learned to control yourself and to apply the Golden Rule to your daily conduct. Marry a man born in February, May, August or March. You have a fine, intuitive nature, but judge things mainly from a material standpoint. You will not be happy unless loved, and should remember the recipe for securing love is to love. You will not be content away from home and its associations. You are not exceptionally strong, and should live a simple, wholesome life. Yes, you were born on Tuesday. Your color is pink.

H. B.—You are making your way along rather placidly to a ripe old age. As the years go by, life will touch you kindly, provided you don't eat and drink too much. You may do a considerable amount of travelling in later life, and you will want to do it in the most luxurious manner possible. Do not criticize—speak of the good in others and the good will come back to you. You like to accumulate money, but you are wise enough, while providing for the rainy day, to enjoy life as you go along. You are generous and kindhearted. You should take an interest in chemistry. You have a great deal of creative power and tenacious force, which, if undeveloped, tends to make its possessor rather coarse and material-minded, and you are also inclined to be reserved and retired in your ways. The mystic and occult have an attraction for you.

You were born on Friday. Your colors are blue and cream.

F. B.—Yours is a fine character, marred at times by odd discrepancies that have perhaps confused you all your life. You have unusual understanding and sympathy and a high quality of love for those about you. You are a natural reader and thinker, and rather keen at reading the thoughts of others. You have your own individual way of doing things and do not take kindly to any suggestion of change, neither do you wish to be reminded of your faults. You wish to have harmony in your home and work and are generous and whole-souled with those you like. Jealousy will be your bugbear through life and a certain quality of fickleness. Patience is the virtue you should cultivate above everything else, also the saving of money. Never take drugs or stimulants of any sort, eat plain, nourishing food and cultivate regular habits. You should wear a ring containing an amethyst, diamond or moss agate. Red and brown are your colors. You were born on Friday.

Wee Mig.—You have an inborn faculty for thinking and reasoning that should help you in most situations in life. You like order and harmony about you, in home or business life and have your own way of doing things, becoming confused if asked to follow other people's minds or suggestions. You are not particularly easy to get along with and are inclined to be jealous and exacting in matters of the heart. You have an aptitude for music. You are not exceptionally strong, but have a wiry strength that is sufficient to meet all emergencies. Do not overestimate your strength, however, and always take good care of your health. You should cultivate above all else the quality of patience. You are quite well satisfied with yourself at most times and rather conservative in your ways. You have a liking for religious and mystical enterprises. You should be successful in any undertaking having to do with business, commerce or finance.

Yes, you were born on Monday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are steel and purple.

A. A.—Your reading indicates a strong character, well fitted to meet and cope with the exigencies of daily life. However, there is no indication of great achievement of the material type. You would be most successful when connected with big schemes, and will not have much success in a subordinate position. Although your stars are perpetually pushing you forward to greater achievements, you are somewhat lazy by instinct and you have the execrable habit of putting things off, which is apt to mar your life. You are also inclined to scold and nag. Above everything else, you should learn self-control and try not to be so sensitive. The world does not wish to hurt you particularly. January and July are your lucky months, and Tuesday the best day in the week for you. If you are not farther ahead financially in twenty years' time, it might be advisable to make a change, but you must remember that your ego will accompany you wherever you go. It may be within yourself that the trouble lies. Considering that you could accomplish almost anything you undertake, you may not be as ambitious as you should be. Suppose you stop finding fault with conditions around you, go to work and keep smiling. Rise above petty annoyances and save your strength for big things.

You were born on Saturday. Your colors are red and brown. The day you enquire about, a Tuesday, is one for original thought and expression and for taking advantage of every new opportunity.

L. J. M. H.—You are a worker, my friend, and your destiny is to keep working until the end of your days. The best thing for you to do is to see that you get adequate return for your work. You have creative power and stick-to-itive-ness and you will have a tendency to become involved in work that has much detail in it. You must try to keep free, while working, from drudgery. You are kindhearted and generous and strong in your love for your own people. You are the sort who will take a dislike to another without a real cause, and stick to that dislike. Be very careful who you marry, as your emotional tendency is liable to lead you astray. Marry someone born in September, October or December and do not marry too young, unless you have learned unselfishness and patience. Avoid worry and study perseverance, even in small things. Do not criticize others, while unwilling to accept criticism of yourself. Be careful of your stomach and do not overload it with rich food. Do not sidestep responsibility. It will broaden your nature. Read good books. And —control your temper.

Yes, you were born on Wednesday. Your colors are blue and cream.

Neglect of Commission

pany will be a great reflection on it, and hence it is a wise precaution to take, to see that underhand methods are forestalled.

You must also remember that it is fair to assume that no assistance may be expected from any member of your Commission, because you do not disclose that Mr. Gordon S. Matthews, who has profited by this controversy at Mr. Hicks' expense, dissents from the attitude your Commission is now taking. A public declaration on his part is certainly in order.

In any event the truth of what seems to be gross neglect of public duty must be exposed. It will be exposed. The chips may fall where they may.

Yours truly,
R. R. HALL.

Peterboro Industrial Exhibition,
Peterboro, Ont.

Dear Mr. Denne,—In re your canvass as to the support of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition, I am pleased to enclose my cheque for $5 which I trust will assist the Exhibition in the wonderful work they are accomplishing.

I am quite sure the Executive of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition and the members of the different committees, who put on such wonderful shows in the past years, are deserving of commendation and the support of the people in Peterboro.

Again assuring you of my best wishes for your success during 1926, I remain, sincerely yours,

John I. Allen.

COLLEGIATE CARNIVAL.

The Peterboro Collegiate Institute rink at Central Park presented a gay appearance on Saturday evening, when the first skating carnival to be held by the students of the Collegiate filled the rink with a bright-colored throng of skaters. About one hundred and fifty of the pupils were in attendance, with some forty or fifty in costumes that were varied and showed the interest taken by the young people in their own carnival, the arrangements for which were in the capable hands of Mr. V. R. Henry, Science Master at the Institute.

The judges for the occasion, Mr. J. E. R. Munro, principal of the King George School, Mr. M. H. Park, principal of Queen Alexandra School, and Miss Catheleen McCarthy of The Examiner staff, had a very difficult time in awarding the prizes, the girls' senior contest proving the most exacting of the lot. One of the judges who likes flaxen hair favored strongly a Dutch maiden with pointed cap and delft blue outfit, a second liked the Victorian lady in rose-flowered gown, crinoline and pantalettes who saved herself from pneumonia but spoiled her appearance to a certain extent by wearing a fur coat over her very flimsy, summery frock, and the third had a leaning toward His Satanic Majesty, in the form of a black and white striped costume that was complete from horned mask to flying cape. Finally, the two teachers and the representative of the press, as one of the judges remarked, fixed on the devil as their choice, and the prize went to Satan (Miss Helen Throop).

Francis Hewitt, as a Russian peasant girl, received the boys' senior award, and made a wonderful looking girl, with yellow and red costume, fair wig and ear-rings, only his deep voice giving him away.

The girls' junior prize went to Enid Roberts, in Colonial costume, and the boys' junior to Crawford Hall as George Washington.

Topsy was the choice for the girls' comic award, the lady being wonderfully gotten up in a black-face outfit and calico gown, with many small braids pointing skyward. Myrtle Melrose was the winner of this prize, which had a close run for favor in two black cats (Mary Mulholland and Margaret Borbridge) whose inky bodies, long whiskers and curving tails made them especially good as carnival characters. Bruce Cox as a clown won the boys' comic prize.

Other interesting costumes noted were those of a couple of "danger signals" cleverly contrived in black and white, an Irish "omadhaun" with huge shamrock in his green hat, a little lad in complete cowboy outfit, and a cavalier in pale pink and blue.

At the conclusion of the judging, a Grand March was formed, the various skaters encircling the rink several times.

Races followed, under direction of Trevor Miller, and proved one of the most successful portions of the evening's entertainment. They were very closely contested, the boys' events being particularly interesting, and run off in two heats.

Prize winners were Dorothy Mortimer (senior girls), Enid Roberts (junior girls), Harry Doughty (senior boys) and Gordon Cuthbertson (junior boys).

Are there going to be any regrets tomorrow about that good meal you're all set to stow away tonight. Better take Seigel's Syrup. Any drug store.

Don't Cough Your Head Off
Don't Cough All Night Long

Mrs. Thos. Gilbert, Welland, Ont., writes:—"Some time ago I took a very severe cold, and it settled on my lungs.

I coughed day and night, and had such severe pains, in my chest I could hardly bear them, but finally I sent and got a bottle of

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

After I had taken a couple of doses I found that my cough was relieved and the pains were all gone, and by the time I had finished taking the whole bottle I was completely rid of my trouble.

Now, I will never be without a bottle of 'Dr. Wood's' in my home."

MORALS OF COBOURG

That the Chief of Police be asked to visit the pool-rooms and see that no boys under 18 were admitted, and that all cases of infringement of these laws be tried before the Magistrate and given publicity.

That smoking by children under age was very prevalent. Children as young as eight years had been seen smoking cigarettes.

Children under 15 years, unaccompanied by parents or guardians, should not be allowed to frequent motion picture shows.

More light was required in the Parkr druring the summer; there should be a by-law prohibiting loitering in the Park after twelve o'clock; the Park should be patrolled from 12 o'clock to 2 a.m.

The discussion which followed the opening up of the subject by Councillor Macdonald was a spirited one, and the result is to give the town a moral awakening. How far this may go it is hard to say, and how deep it may probe into matters and conditions that people think should be investigated, is difficult to judge.

MIKE RODDEN IS FINED $20

Toronto Referee Found Guilty of Attempting to Hit Spectator.

SEIZED SATURDAY.

MONTREAL, Feb. 15 (Canadian Press).—Mike Rodden of Toronto, National Hockey League referee, was found guilty of attempting to assault a spectator by Judge Cusson in Police Court this morning and fined $20 and costs. The offence was committed on January 19 at a hockey game between Ottawa and Canadiens at the Mount Royal Arena.

Rodden was arrested here at 7 o'clock Saturday night, one hour and a half before he was due to start in charge of the Montreal-New York hockey game at the Forum. The warrant, which was signed by Judge Amedee Monet, was taken out by J. A. Globensky. The charge was for attempting to strike Hercule Merizzi at a hockey game at the Mount Royal Arena on January 19.

Rodden's arrest came as a bombshell in pro. hockey here. The Toronto official had arrived in Montreal early Saturday morning. In the afternoon he and President Frank Calder, of the N.H.L., were in communication with Notary Merizzi, the spectator who was struck by Referee Rodden. Merizzi had previously stated he might have Rodden arrested if he refereed in Montreal again, but after the conference the notary and referee agreed to sink their difference and forget the matter altogether.

Rodden was later released on parole, but could not reach the Forum in time to referee the game.

The arrest is the sequel to a hectic game played between Ottawa and Canadiens at the Mount Royal Arena on January 19. There were several decisions to which some of the crowd took violent objection, and the referees, Rodden and Laflamme, both of Toronto, had a torrid evening. At the first rest interval there were some who entered the referees' room and criticized their decisions. The referees had the room cleared. In the third period, shortlry after the start, Rodden became incensed at being shoved by a spectator. He remonstrated, and claims two of the spectators struck him and others surged around. Rodden hit back. Notary Merirzzi was one of the spectators aimed at, and claims that he was innocent, as he had done nothing to warrant the attack and that it had been a case of mistaken identity on the part of the referee.

DEADLOCK IN CURLING MEET

Rotary and Kiwanis Come Out Even in Annual Tourney.

THREE RINKS EACH.

Rotarians and Kiwanians engaged Saturday night in their annual friendly curling tournament and came out of the evening's strenuous play with even honors. Three rinks represented each club. Anderson and Marshall skipped their rinks to a deadlock with a score of 7 each. Lang's rink of Kiwanians triumphed over their Rotarian adversaries under the leadership of Kenner, and Dobbin of Rotary gained a glorious victory over Brown. Both latter games were won by a margin of one stone. Ross Dobbin jumped into the limelight when, with his rink down 3 in the last end, he made a well nigh perfect shot, scoring 4, giving his team the desired lead.

The following are the names and scores of the various rinks:

Rotary		Kiwanis

BENEFIT GAME ON WEDNESDAY

T. C. C. Team Will Play the Petes in Aid of "Shorty" Burgess.

MERITS SUPPORT.

Friends of Bert "Shorty" Burgess, one of the most popular players who ever donned a Peterborough hockey sweater, will have an opportunity of aiding him in his struggle for health. 'Shorty' has been ordered by his physician to take a complete rest for a year, and is now in his home province of New Brunswick. A benefit game has been arranged for Wednesday evening, and Toronto Canoe Club Seniors will be here to play the Senior Petes. Burgess was one of the hardest working players on the team, playing even when he should have been at home, and was deservedly popular with the fans, who will welcome an opportunity to do something for him.

As the visitors will be strengthened by the addition of some of their star junior players of this year, they will put up a great battle against the Petes, who had difficulty in subduing them in their scheduled game here. Even with the purpose of the game forgotten, the fans should turn out for the struggle.

HOCKEY GAME AT BROCK ST.

Kiwanis and Rotary To Meet in Spectacular Clash To-night.

CASUALTY LIST.

To-night in Brock Street Arena, hockey fans will be treated to a contest, the like of which may have never occurred before. The occasion will be the clash between Rotarians and Kiwanis, when the swashbuckling knights of the blades will engage in a battle to the death. Chris. Graham, who is convenor of the Rotary jousters, has assembled an imposing array of puck chasers, and has had the foresight to provide a team physician, who will administer anaesthetics or restoratives as the cases demand.

Kiwanian Kimmell, on the other hand, is confident of victory, and has made no arrangement for substitutes nor has he provided a medico. He is sure that his sextette can go the route and finish with plenty of pep to spare.

The following are the rosters of the two teams:

Kiwanis—Blade, Bredin, Huffman, McLean, Kimmel, Byers.

Rotary—Primeau, Matthews, McClelland, Dobbin, Gillespie, Thompson, Killaly, Fraser, Glover, Graham. Dr. McPherson, trainer and physician.

Y.M.C.A. and Rotary Club Combine To Entertain Boys.

A red letter day in the history of the boys of the city was made possible on Saturday afternoon by the combined efforts of the Rotary Club and the Y.M.C.A. It was a real tobogganing party that set out for McFarlane's Hill, over 150 boys taking advantage of the Rotary Club offer. Prior to leaving for the slides, the boys proceeded to Victoria Park, where Rotarian Fred Roy took several pictures of the gang. Doug. Loomis of the "Y" staff then took charge and transported the bunch with 24 toboggans to the scene of action. The boys stayed with the tobogganing until they were almost played out and then came back to the "Y," where Fred. McNeely was waiting for them. Those who wanted to swim had the privilege of doing so in the heated tank, and many of the boys availed themselves of the facilities. Each boy was given a lunch in a bag to ensure slow eaters of the same chance as those with the quick lunch habits, and an unlimited supply of milk was on hand for everybody. After the boys' inner needs had been satisfied they had a sing-song. One man mentioned this morning that he heard their "soup" song at Brock Street, which is some indication of the amount of volume that can proceed from 150 happy boys. A movie show completed the evening's fun. The boys went home tired but happy, and more than one was heard to say, "Gee, I hope they have another one soon." The "Y" Leaders' Corps went out with the boys and helped along the good work by assisting wherever they were needed. In connection with the event, a pleasing incident occurred. The members of Wolf Patrol, 3rd Peterboro Troop Boy Scouts, when they heard of the proposed party, kindly volunteered to wash the dishes after the multitude had been fed, and were on the spot Saturday accomplishing their daily good turn for the day.

That the party got hold of the right boys was evidenced by a statement by F. G. McNeely, boys' secretary of the "Y," who said that only three boys in the crowd owned their own toboggan.

PHILOSOPHY OF ROTARY TOPIC OF FINE PAPER

Rotarian H. R. H. Kenner Discusses Ideals of Organization.

SERVICE ABOVE SELF.

Drones Should Be Eliminated To Be Replaced By Workers.

"Fundamentally, Rotary is a philosophy of life that undertakes to reconcile the ever-present conflict between the desire to profit for one's self and the duty and consequent impulse to serve others This philosophy is the philosophy of Service—'Service above Self'—and is based on the practical ethical principle that 'he profits most who serves best'."

This was the text chosen by Rotarian H. R. H. Kenner, chairman of the Committee on Rotary Education, for an address on the philosophy of Rotary at today's luncheon of the Peterboro Rotary Club.

Rotarian Kenner's message was full of interest and profit to the members of the club, presenting as it did the ideals of Rotary in a manner that could not fail to act as a challenge to each member to resolve to be a better Rotarian.

Later on this week The Examiner hopes to give Rotarian Kenner's address in full, as an admirable exposition of what Rotary really is, and as a fitting introduction to the anniversary of Rotary which is to be observed next week.

In beginning, he urged the members to avail themselves of the splendid Rotary literature that was issued from time to time, pointing out that unless the principles of Rotary were thoroughly understood and lived up to, Rotary organizations would become merely luncheon clubs

The speaker touched upon the duties first of individual members, then of Rotary clubs and lastly of Rotary International. The classifications were merely loans he warned the members, and if the interest was not paid on these loans in the form of service, they shoul dbe withdrawn and given to others who would make better use of them. There were many people outside of the Rotary Club who were real Rotarians in their conduct and actions; at the same time in every Rotary Club there were drones who did not live up to the Rotary ideals of Service. Owing to the classification system, it was not possible for Rotary to include all the former in its membership, but it was possible to exclude the latter if they did not live up to their obligations as Rotarians.

Rotarian Dr. A. W. McPherson was given permission to write to the Clerks of the Townships, asking their assistance in having a survey made to locate the crippled children in the country. It was suggested that the assessors might be able to secure the necessary information.

Next Monday the anniversary meeting will be held and the speaker will be Rotarian John Gibson, former president of the Toronto Club and director of Rotary International.

Sharp Break In Prices On New York Market

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 (Canadian Press). — Stock prices crumbled sharply to-day under the weight of a heavy volume of selling, brought about largely by the attacks of professional traders and commission house advices, suggesting further lightening of long accounts. Losses ranging from four to 11 points were common among the high-priced specialties, the rapidity of decline touching off a number of stop-loss orders which swelled the volume of selling.

Lower Liverpool Prices Cause Setback At Chicago

CHICAGO, Feb. 15. (Canadian Press). — With Liverpool prices lower than had been looked for, the wheat market here underwent an early set-back to-day. World shipments were 3,476,000 bushels larger than a week ago, and British flour mills were reported to be contemplating a week's shut down because of lack of demand. On declines here, however, the buying increased and the market showed considerable power to rally. Opening prices, ½c to 1 3-8c lower, May 165 to 165½, and July 148 to 148¾, were followed by a slight further drop and then by a general upturn.

Mines Led Trading To-day On Toronto Stock Market

TORONTO, Feb. 15 (Canadian Press) — With the exception of mines, prices were generally easier on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning and trading was lighter. Smelters and Brazilian, the leaders, both declined substantially. Smelters was 1 1-2 lower at 226 1-4, and Brazilian 1 3-8 down at 92 1-2 at the noon close, and Brompton, the third most active, eased one at 33 1-4. Abitibi and C.P.R. each eased a half point. International Nickle was three quarters lower at 43 1-4. The unlisted leaders, Tough Oakes and Teck Hughes were also weak.

Tough Oakes lost 1 3-4 at 58 and Teck three at 374. McIntyre closed the morning $1.00 higher at 28.60 after touching 29.75.

The other occupants of the car, one of whom was Mrs. Naylor, Harold's wife, escaped with the exception of the driver, who was injured.

LENTEN CALL.

Regulations for then Lenten season were read at St. Peter's Cathedral at the morning Masses yesterday by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, who enjoined on his congregations extra devotion for the penitential season of Lent, with a strict observance of the laws of fasting and abstinence prescribed by the Church, a greater attention to attendance at morning Mass and church devotions of all sorts, with a following out of the spirit of Lent in a pickened charity to neighbors and efforts carried out in the spirit of service.

The Bishop asked his people to refrain from attendance at amusements, such as theatres and dances during the Lenten time, and to cultivate a more lively interest in home and family life.

BOTH MEN HOPE FOR A MAJORITY

King's Supporters Expect at Least 5,000—Burgess Confident.

VOTING TO-DAY.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Feb. 15 (Canadian Press)—Voters of the Federal constituency of Prince Albert go to the polls today to choose their representative in the House of Commons. The candidates are the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada, and David Luther Burgess, Independent.

Mr. Burgess in a statement to the press last night declared he was gratified with the opposition which had developed to the candidacy of Premier King during the last few days of the campaign.

In every polling division with a British born population which we have been able to cover, we are certain of a substantial majority, he said.

Dr. T. Robinson, president of the Prince Albert Federal constituency Liberal Association said:

"I will be very disappointed if Mr. King does not get a majority of at least 5,000."

FRENCH HOUSE MET ON SUNDAY

Little Progress in Debate on Finance Proposals.

SOME OPTIMISM.

PARIS, Feb. 15. — (Canadian Press.—The Chamber of Deputies sat Sunday, both morning and after noon, but adjourned without reaching a decisive vote on the financial measures. Premier Briand apparently was not willing to hold a night session, desiring more time before the final votes are taken.

The situation is regarded in the lobbies as little changed from Saturday, but there is an impression of optimism with regard to the Cabinet's ability to maintain itself.

The compromise text of the stamp tax on business transactions has not been drafted, but the latest reports are that the Government and Finance Committee have reached an agreement to use for balancing the budget the 3,500,000,000 so-called Loucheur taxes voted on December 4, as an anti-inflation measure, in which case the Government may not find it necessary to maintain the stamp tax.

The Government was unable yesterday to persuade the Chamber to accept several proposed increases in direct taxation.

The Government was willing to increase the tax on alcohol 100 francs per hectolitre, but M. Barthe's motion to disjoin this article from the measures was accepted, 303 to 113, the proposer saying that the country had no wish to be made dry through prices being raised too high.

An increase in the stamp tax on bourse operations, which the Government favored, was accepted, 325 to 212, and is expected to yield 100,000,000 francs.

KILLED IN RUNAWAY.

Belleville, Feb. 15 (Canadian Press).—Ted Gould, son of R. E. Gould, cartage man of Stirling, was killed on Saturday, when he was pitched out of a cutter by a runaway horse and landed on his head. The horse took fright when the boy jumped into the rear part of the cutter.

OIL SALESMAN ROBBED.

TORONTO, Feb. 15 (Canadian Press).—Daniel McNeilage, alone in an Imperial Oil station, was held up by an armed man on Saturday night on the company's premises and robbed of $100. The man got away in a motor car.

BENEFIT CONCERT.

The benefit concert given last evening under the auspices of the G.W.V.A., with the assistance of the Female Voice Choir, in the Capitol Theatre, was very well attended. The sum of $57 was realized for the relief work of the Veterans' Association.

Major Winterbottom acted as chairman, and seated on the platform were Mayor W. T. Holloway, Captain Whatley, J. Abraham and C. Wiggin.

The programme opened with a bright overture, "The Student Prince," played by the Capitol Orchestra, directed by Miss F. Gladman. A selection by the Children's Choir, with eight tiny tots in light-colored frocks, followed. The solos in the number, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," were taken by small Madeline Fletcher and Phyllis Pink, and Annie Fletcher and Phyllis Pink sang in duett, the encore, "Jesus Bids us Shine."

A number of vocal numbers which were much appreciated included the selection, "One Fleeting Hour," by Mr. Joseph Minicola, sung with violin obligato; several songs by Mr. J. Hodson, including "Mary of Argyle," "When You Come Home," sung by Mrs. M. Brearley; "Absent" and "Until," by Mr. T. Stazicker, with violin obligato; "God is our Refuge," by Mrs. H. S. Doig; "A Perfect Day," by Mrs. C. Scholey, with an encore in "Just a Wearyin' for You," and a pretty rendition of "Nearer, My God, to Thee," by the Female Voice Choir, with solo by Mrs. Brearley. This was done on a darkened stage, the ladies in white gowns clustered about a tall white cross.

Mrs. J. A. Foster's violin solos, "Hungarian Rhapsodie" and an encore in Drdla's "Souvenir," were played in her usual splendid style and were heartily encored. Mrs. F. A. Hodgson played an interesting number in a pianoforte solo, "Spring Showers," and Mr. J. Minicola had a pleasing cornet solo, "Love's Old Sweet Song," with an encore in "A Perfect Day." A recitation by Mrs. A. Nicholls, "Glad to be Forgiven," was received with much applause.

During the evening, a few remarks concerning the relief work carried on by the G.W.V.A. and encouraging interest in the citizens in its furtherance, were voiced by Mayor W. T. Holloway and Major Winterbottom.

Accompanists for the various solo numbers were Mesdames R. Bugg, C. Goodley, F. A. Hodgson, F. Gladman, A. Blanchard.

The committee in charge of the concert was composed of Mesdames R. Bugg, M. Brearley, C. Cheu, Murray.

SERIOUS DAMAGE IS DONE BY BLAZE

Wholesale Stationery Store Is Destroyed in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Feb. 15.— (Canadian Press.)—A half million dollars' damage was done late Saturday night when fire destroyed the wholesale stationery and book selling establishment of Granger Freres, Ltd., on Note Dame street.

One fireman was injured, hit by a flying hose when the fire fighters were scrambling away from an underfalling wall.

The blaze lasted for nearly 12 hours, to the disruption of street car and other traffic in the vicinity.

ONE MINER KILLED.

BELLAIRE, Ohio, Feb. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—One miner was killed, 10 others were injured, one perhaps fatally, at the Pow Hatan mine, 16 mile south of here, this morning. Six hundred other men in the mine escaped uninjured.

M.P. DIED YESTERDAY.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—(Canadian Press.) — John Robertson, Labor member of Parliament for the Bothwell division of Lanarkshire, died at Glasgow yesterday.

Richer in the Body-Building, Disease-Resisting Vitamin than 1200 Pints of Grade "A" Milk!

A single pint of Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil is richer in Vitamin A (the growth-promoting and disease-resisting vitamin) than 1,200 pints of Grade A whole milk; or 400 pints of heavy cream; or 100 pounds of the best creamery butter! And milk products, next to good cod-liver oil, are, it is admitted, the richest source of this protective, restorative, growth-promoting vitamin!

The vitamins found in good cod-liver oil help the body to resist infection and disease. They are necessary to growth and good health. An ample supply of Vitamin D, so abundant in Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil, is doubly needful during the early years of growth, because this vitamin prevents and cures rickets, thus assuring the normal development of bone and tooth structures.

In ordinary cod-liver oil the vitamin content may soon be lost through exposure to air in its preparation and handling. Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil is treated and packed by special Squibb processes which fully preserve the vitamin value and render the oil much more palatable than any other cod-liver oil you have ever tasted. When kept on ice and taken cold, Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil is practically tasteless. At drug stores.

SHOULD BE SCRAPPED.

The suggestion advanced at a recent meeting of the local Utilities Commission that that body should get out of the business of retailing electrical apparatus has met with a good deal of approval.

The sooner the commission acts upon that suggestion the better, in the opinion of most citizens, who have always felt that it was unfair that the local dealers in such articles who have to pay heavy taxes and are customers of the commission should find themselves competing with the commission in the retail field.

The Utilities Commission should confine itself to its chief and most important duty of providing Peterboro with a satisfactory and adequate light, power and water service.

The retail selling of electric irons, curling tongs, toasters and stoves might well be left to the merchants who depend upon the sale of such articles for their own daily bread and that of their employees.

The commission should scrap its retail business, even without the spur of book debts which it finds impossible to collect.

THE COST OF EDUCATION.

Peterboro's Board of Education, after a special meeting, called to reconsider the estimates for this year, which show a substantial increase over last year, has decided that not an item in the list can be curtailed, and that every cent originally included in the demand will be required.

This unanimity was in contrast to the situation in Brantford, where a sharp difference of opinion has developed as to the estimates of educational requirements.

Three membrs of the board, including the Chairman—or rather Chairwoman—made a strong stand against increasing the estimates this year, and concentrated their efforts mainly toward arguing that the $100 increase automatically granted each teacher until the maximum was reached was too large in view of the burden of taxation already carried by the taxpayers.

The estimates, however, were adopted by a vote of 7 to 3.

The opposition served to produce a long argument in which the whole situation was brought out for the benefit of the public, and although it did not succeed in its main object, the stand made by these Brantford members is an indication that the resentment of taxpayers at the mounting cost of education and other civic services is beginning to be felt by the spending bodies.

LEAVING THE FARM.

Last week we received a letter from a young farmer of our acquaintance in Eastern Ontario, says the Oshawa Reformer. He is in his twenties, married, has a boy a year old, and a $25,000 farm which his father gave him a few years ago. He asks us to help him get a position in Toronto, in a certain line of business, and he would like to know what wages he will receive. He does not ask advice, but assistance. However, we gave him that for which he did not ask. It is not at all likely that he will act on this advice, for he says that farming is not congenial to him and he is anxious to live in the big city. If he had expressed a desire to live in Oshawa, it would have been less difficult to understand his psychology.

This sort of thing happens all the time. Is it because men is a gregarious animal and likes to live in herds, or is it because far-off fields are always green and each of us thinks that the other's job is much to be preferred to his own? Imagine leaving a well-equipped farm, with no mortgage on it, to work for wages amidst the interminable grind of a huge city! The stenographer to whom we dictated the reply remarked, "Let him rent his farm and try the city for two years. That will be long enough to disillusion him." Perhaps it would.

The drift from the farm to the city goes on and there seems to be no means of preventing it. Will the solution be smaller farms, intensely cultivated, as in Europe, or will it be larger farms operated on industrial lines for mass production?

RADIO TROUBLES.

A campaign is going on among radio enthusiasts to eliminate the interference caused by regenerative receiving sets which "squeal" or "bloop" during the tuning in process, with most disagreeable results so far as listeners-in in the vicinity are concerned.

It is claimed that this "blooping" to a very considerable extent spoiled the international broadcasting tests several weeks ago, and that it is the cause of at least 25 per cent. of the static which is the bug bear of all radio fans.

Much of the interference from oscillating sets is the result of lack of knowledge on the part of the operators, and so far as the campaign is directed toward teaching such set-owners the necessity of proper operation, it deserves support.

The Radio Digest, a magazine devoted entirely to radio news, is, however, issuing a pledge card asking radio owners to pledge themselves to prevent their sets from interfering with others, and if they find that to be impossible to replace them with others that will not "radiate."

That is going a little too far.

There is no reason why radio should be a rich man's game.

The boy with the home-made one or two-tube set cannot be expected to replace it with a de luxe hook-up.

He is entitled to get what h can out of the air just as much as is the owner of a super "het," and if he does his best to operate his set properly and avoid oscillation as much as possible, he is doing about all that can be expected of him.

And, incidentally, all the offenders are not found among the small set owners.

The electors of Prince Albert are busy today preparing a Valentine for the successful candidate in the by-election.

READY FOR A COAL POLICY.

The announcement of the settlement of the anthracite coal strike has been received very calmly in Ontario.

In fact, the strike is generally looked on now as having been a blessing in disguise, inasmuch as it has taught Canadians not only to use substitutes, but to find out that these substitutes are preferable to paying high prices for anthracite.

During previous tie-ups of mining operations in the anthracite fields most householders in Central Canada threw up their hands in dismay, believing that there was no fuel that could begin to take the place of the hard coal to which they had been accustomed.

This time, however, they have learned to use coke and appreciate it, Alberta coal has won a place for itself, and the American anthracite is threatened with a keen fight to hold its market if any attempt is made to unduly inflate prices.

Already there are many people who declare that they will continue to burn coke, no matter what supplies of anthracite may be available, and others announce just as emphatically that they are satisfied with Alberta coal.

In this connection it is interesting to note that at the annual meeting of the Toronto Board of Trade the retiring President, S. B. Gundy, commenting on the fuel situation, said:

"It is quite possible to produce coke from Nova Scotia coal of the first quality and sell it in our domestic markets in competition with that from the United States. With respect to Alberta coal, experts believe that the best quality mined there can successfully compete here with anthracite for domestic purposes if the railways in co-operation with the Government of the Province of Alberta and the Government of the Province of Ontario will combine. It is difficult to overstate the tremendous economic importance of a policy which would result in the independence of Canada in the matter of coal."

The Examiner believes that most of the prejudice against domestic fuels has been removed during the present winter, and that the way is now wide open for the development of a Canadian fuel policy that will make this country practically independent so far as its fuel supply is concerned.

OUR VANISHING FORESTS.

Several Ontario counties have taken the conservative step of emulating continental activities in tree-planting. They are establishing municipal forests. Another county has just decided to follow the lead and will establish a 1,000-acre forest. This is Victoria.

Waste land, costing about $2 per acre, is being utilized. The Provincial Government will supply the seeding pine for replanting and generally co-operate with county officials in carrying out the initial work and looking after the forest when it is established.

The story of Canada's vanishing forests was told in Toronto by H. H. Wheeler, chief lecturer of the United States Forest Service. The forest reserves of the United States were disappearing rapidly, he said, but his people had always taken the view that that was not important since Canada had an endless supply of timber which would continue to meet their needs.

"But Canada has not an endless supply," Mr. Wheeler declared. "Do you realize that at the present rate of consumption in the States, Canada's total forest area, if turned over to that country, would vanish in fourteen years?"

At the meeting of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association in Montreal, Rolland D. Craig of the Forest Service of the Canadian Government, told his hearers that in thirty years our forests will be entirely depleted. He further pointed out that there is but 27 per cent. of the original forest wealth left.

Therefore, to voice the corollary, Canada's greatest industry, the pulp and paper industry, has but thirty years of life ahead of it. The Government has taken steps to restrict the loss by fire—it can take more. Little yet has been done to protect the forest from the ravages of insects or to enforce the approved practical methods of re-forestation, which are practised abroad and which, in some instances, are practised by individual companies here.

About twenty-five cents every year is being spent to protect one hundred dollars' worth of forest wealth. The time has arrived when Dominion and Provincial Governments should see to it that every cent taken from our forests through taxation and stumpage dues goes back into them, until re-growth has definitely overtaken the cut.

Our onward rushing forest poverty is due, primarily, to lack of national policy in forest management.

First fundamental consideration in a national forestry policy is to insure that the wood cut from Canada's forest shall go to build up Canadian industries and to enrich Canadian homes rather than to add to the industrial interests of another country. There is much discussion as to the ways and means that should be adopted to achieve this end, but there can be little doubt as to the end to be kept in view. No opportunity should be lost by the Provincial or Federal Governments to co-operate to the end of insuring that trees cut down in Canada shall be brought to the fullest state of manufacture in Canada. There is more than the question of a pulpwood embargo or an export tax on wood pulp involved in this question, which is one worthy of the keenest attention of the various governmental authorities. The anomalous situation of Canadian timber being turned into pulp or paper in the United States and where used as an important raw material of literary productions that enter Canada duty free requires more than any single measure to correct it. It requires a policy, first of all, and then such measures as will bring the required results without injury to established Canadian industries.

Second fundamental consideration in a national forestry policy, is the protection, conservation and regeneration of our forest areas to insure their perpetuity. Truly, as C. A. Magrath has put it, the Canadian public requires to be dynamited into action to conserve its forests.—Financial Post.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Rotary Carnival tonight should provide lots of fun, and some funds as well.

There is at least one body of citizens the members of which do not think that Peterboro is spending too much on its school system. It consists of the members of the Board of Education.

People may be divided in their opinion as to whether or not there should be a Provincial election in June, but most Ontario citizens feel that there should have been seven Ontario by-elections before the session began.

It looks as if the six weeks' recess voted by Parliament is to be devoted to the carrying on of the debate. Apparently the Opposition has decided that its chief responsibility is to oppose.

BOTH WED ON SAME DAY.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The Hon. Patrick Kinnaird and his former wife, Margaret Stella Kinnaird, from whom he obtained a divorce a few months ago, recently each married again on the same day.

Wise and Otherwise.

Perhaps the nicest thing about being a man is you don't have to worry even if you do have an Adam's apple.

Pay careful attention to the little things. Many a flivver has wrecked a five-ton truck.

Some day some wise congressman is going to be re-elected on the platform that he didn't introduce a bill.

Wouldn't it be fine if a woman about her housework could look like those in the soap advertisements?

When people go round looking for trouble about the only thing they find is fault.

Some Place Else is the spot where we all desire to be—until we get there. And then we want to be some place else.

It won't be long before men will be looking through vacation resort folders in order to find out where NOT to go.

Some radio singers are lucky they're heard and not seen.

About the time a man begins to enjoy himself he needs a shave again.

Health is out in the open. You can't get much of it into a bottle.

Some people are about as interesting as a radio dinner program.

Bet the first man to eat his lettuce was awfully hungry.

A frown is nothing but a wasted grin.

A school teacher used a rubber hose on a pupil and got soaked herself. Five and costs.

Lucky the bowler who gets all strikes 'cause he hasn't any time to spare.

The girl who stopped in the barber shop was in a hurry to get home so she took a short cut.

He slipped upon the sidewalk and although he took a spill, It didn't hurt because he only Fell against his will.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GRINS

Aren't they fun, when you see somebody feeling so good about something that a nice big grin fairly beams off his or her face? And everybody else around wants to grin, too. They are more than smile even.

They are broader for one thing and they mean that the persons wearing them are all "tickled" about something. Those grins can cover up a lot of aches and troubles, too. Try one some time when you are feeling especially blue and see if you don't feel better right away. You will and so will everyone else about you.

SKATING CARNIVAL HELD AT MARMORA

Hockey Match Between Fats and Leans Was Feature.

MARMORA, Feb. 15.—The first skating carnival of the season was held on the Marmora rink on Thursday evening. A hockey match between the Fats and the Leans was staged as the opening events. Three 10-minute periods were decided upon and the services of Alphonse Shannon secured as referee. A good crowd of spectators lined up as the motley colored teams took the ice. In the first period play was of the tamest description, neither side taking advantage of the fast ice. The second period was more interesting. Norman Mitchell made a lone rush for the Leans and scored with a back-handed shot. The Leans maintained this slight advantage till the end of the period. The Fats showed up to great advantage in the third period. C. Shannon, their centre, was in vigorous mood. After they had drawn level with a goal from M. Sanderson, C. Shannon netted a brace. A series of rushes by the Leans failed to bring them any success, so they went down to defeat by a 3 to 1 score.

The teams lined up as follows: Leans—F. Pinner, goal; J. E. Gehan and H. Crawford, defence; F. Johnston, centre; G. Potts and N. Mitchell, wings; R. Seal and J. Grant, subs.

Fats—A. T. Neal, goal; W. Archer and M. Sanderson, defence; C. Shannon centre; D. Shannon and P. Murphy, wings; L. Shannon and H. W. Sabine, subs.

Subseque..t to the game, prizes for costumes were won as follows:

Has your wife learned a trade?

"Impertinent question!" you say. Well, perhaps. But it brings to mind the fact that unskilled female labor is very poorly paid indeed.

If your wife is ever likely to become a bread-winner, you should put her in training now. Then, should the necessity arise, she will be able to produce an income sufficient to support herself—and children, if any—in some degree of comfort.

There is only one other way to make sure that your wife and kiddies will not come to want after you're gone—that is, by means of adequate life assurance.

Before you forget, ask us to send you our booklet which tells all about this method of creating an estate. It's very interesting and it's free.

ACTION AGAINST SECOND MERGER IN FOOD TRADES

Absorption of Competing Companies By Food Products Corporation.

INJUNCTION ASKED.

By United States District Attorney—15,000 Chain Stores Included.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 (Canadian Press).—A suit in equity has been filed in Federal Court by United States District Attorney Buckner against the National Food Products Corporation. The suit, brought under the Clayton Act, asks the court to enjoin the Food Products Corporation from obtaining further stock in competing corporations, and asks that the corporation be directed to dispose of all stock in competing corporations already acquired.

Officers and directors of the National Food Products Corporation were named as defendants.

The formation of the corporation was announced last January 3. It was announced that the new corporation already had acquired some stock in other food product corporations, capitalized at $160,000,000, which operated approximately 15,000 chain stores.

Last Monday the Government brought an anti-trust action against the $2,000,000,000 Ward Food Products Corporation in Baltimore.

The National Food Products Corporation, according to the Government's allegations, is reaching out for, if it has not already taken control of, some of the largest milk distributors of the country, some of the largest chain store organizations, also some of the most important ice cream manufacturers.

MINERS FORGET BITTERNESS AS PEACE RETURNS

Join Move to Rush Production—First Work Perhaps Wednesday.

EAGER TO BEGIN

Agreement Will Be Ratified at Scranton on Tuesday.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15 (Associated Press).—An era of good feeling prevailed Saturday in the hard coal fields, following the settlement of the long and costly strike. From every city and hamlet came the word that the miners were eagerly waiting for the hundreds of colliery whistles to blow, summoning them back to work. All the bitterness engendered by the industrial struggle has disappeared.

The first work will start next Wednesday or Thursday, and coal will be rolling to exhausted markets in the speediest time possible. The exact time of resuming mining will depend upon the ratification of the peace compact by the Tri-District Convention of Miners which meets at Scranton on Tuesday. Ratification is regarded as a formality.

It was generally believed that the 300 or 400 delegates would complete their work on Tuesday or Wednesday, at the latest. However, a tri-District Convention is a great open forum and every delegate will get an opportunity to express his views to the fullest. An extended flow of oratory is not expected.

Rapidly Preparing the Mines.

The work of getting the mines in readiness proceeded rapidly. Extra maintenance men were pressed into service to aid the 8,000 who have guarded the properties since the strike started.

Generally the mines were reported to be in fair condition. Snow and ice were removed from sidings, idle train crews prepared to shunt empty cars to the mouths of the mines, rotted timbers were replaced, water was pumped out of pits, falls were cleared from gangways and the mines were inspected for poisonous gases. In some places the mules were lowered into the pits, ending their long vacation in the open air.

Miners Returning.

Mine machinery was overhauled and oiled and the actual diggers polished their tools. Already hundreds of workers who left the fields to engage in other pursuits during the suspension are coming back to their homes. Railroad stations were thronged with the wives and children of miners waiting to greet their breadwinners and family reunions were many.

When the strike began 158,000 miners became idle. The full force will be unable to return to their employment at first, but it was agreed that a very high percentage of the men would be on hand.

Industrially, the region began to find itself again and anxious merchants smiled for the first time in weeks. Stores which had operated on half-time planned to bring their full force of employees back next Monday. Every industry perked up.

The total strike loss has been estimated at more than $500,000,000. It will take months for the section to recover from this economic shock but the towns are noted for their recuperative powers and optimism for the future is in the air.

The business men are especially pleased with the provision in the peace compact for a five-year contract at the old wage scale. Barring unforeseen difficulties, the region anticipates five years of prosperity without the cloud of a strike or lockout hanging over its head.

With the mines millions of tons behind in their production for the remainder of the winter and spring, coal companies are expected to operate at capacity not only until spring but throughout the summer, in preparation for next winter. Coal is consumed quicker than it is produced in winter, so coal companies must put forth extra efforts during the summer.

Mayor Daniel L. Hart of Wilkes-Barre celebrated the settlement of the strike by issuing an order remitting the fines and sentences of all city prisoners held at the Police Station or the County Jail who are mine workers and convicted of minor offences.

The Mayor stated that none of the men affected by the order was guilty of a serious offence, but all were victims of bad liquor.

Declares Public Won in Strike.

Despite suffering from lack of coal and from lack of wages among the mine workers and the losses suffered by the operators and railroads in profits and freight revenues, the public has apparently been a victor in the long strike.

That was pointed out clearly by Edgar C. Felton of Haverford, chairman of the Fair-Price Committee of Governor Sproul's 1922 Fuel Commission.

Mr. Felton said the public has learned to use oil, soft coal and wood in place of anthracite during the long suspension. He pointed out that because of this knowledge there will be no opportunity to "gouge" the public with high prices for hard coal when it is placed on the market.

WESTERN CANADA TO PLAN POLICIES

Conference of Provinces Now Definite Probability.

VICTORIA, B.C., Feb. 15. — (Canadian Press).—A conference of Western Canada provinces to lay out broad policies for their future development emerged as a definite probability Saturday when British Columbia got behind Alberta's suggestion on such a gathering. While Alberta is proposing to the Federal Government that it call a conference of Western provinces to consider better transportation of prairie products westward through Pacific ports, British Columbia will urge that the scope of the assembly be broadened to include discussion of all transportation and development problems.

"I would supnort a conference representative of all Western Canada with the authorities at Ottawa covering the whole question of transportation and development in the West," the Premier announced yesterday.

Transportations and development, he said, should include discussion of the future of the Great Peace River area and the position of railway grant lands in British Columbia as well as consideration of matters relating directly to the movement of prairie products westward.

RESPONSIBLE FOR CAYUGA INDIANS

Statement of Hon. Charles Stewart in Commons.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 15.—(Canadian Press).—The Canadian Government will assume the full responsibility for the interests of the Cayuga Indians involved in the recent litigation in which the Indians were awarded arrears of annuity under treaties made with the State of New York in 1795.

Answering a question by Mark Senn, (Conservative, Haldimand), Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of Indian Affairs, informed the house that the full text of the award of the courts had not been received, but that he understood that the Indians had been awarded some $100,000, "representing a just share in payment of an annuity from 1894 a capital sum which at 5 per cent interest would yield half of the amount of the annuity for the future."

A sum of $23,000-odd is involved in the investment necessary to secure the annuity to that section of the Indians residing in Canada, it is understood.

Mr. Stewart emphasized that the award affects only the Cayuga Indians and not the whole group included in the Six Nations.

LOVERS KILL SELVES.

SEVEN MEXICANS FACE TRIAL

tacks on Clyde Peteet. Zenaido Llanos, former chief of police of Tia Juana, and Francisco Gonzales, taxicab driver, are specifically charged with having attacked Audrey Peteet. All seven are named in the murder charge.

The informations recite that Mrs. Carrie O. Peteet and the two daughters met their death at the hands of the husband and father, Thomas M. Peteet, from poisoning by gas, that responsibility for the deaths is on the seven prisoners.

Investigators, Mexican officials said, showed that the Peteet girls were attacked in automobiles on the way to a Hot Springs resort 14 miles out of Tia Juana. As the machines were in the use of the entire party the accusations were laid against the entire seven, instead of merely against Amador and Llanos, as was done by the coroner's jury in San Diego.

Suicide Compact.

Death by a suicide compact, caused by grief and remorse over the fact that the daughters had been assaulted, was the verdict returned at San Diego Friday by a jury of ten men and two women at the inquest into the deaths of Thomas M. Peteet, his wife, Carrier Peteet, and their two daughters, Clyde, 26, and Audrey, 19. The jury found that Chief of Police Zenaido Llanos and Luis Amador, both of Tia Juanna, were guilty of the outrage.

Homesickness was given as the possible reason why the family went to Tia Juana a Mexican resort town, in quest of a "good time," by Mrs. W. S. Carse, a neighbor. She said she had called upon Mrs. Peteet and the two daughters and found them homesick and anxious to return to Mt. Washington, Mo., whence they came to San Diego for the benefit of Mrs. Peteet's health.

James M. Adamson, a detective, said that after the family had gone to Tia Juana on Saturday the father returned to San Diego Sunday to "take care of the cat," and then returned to Tia Juana. This cat was included in the family's resolve to die and was found drowned in a linen sack. In Peteet's will, D. W. Conlogue, his partner, was charged with burial of the cat as found, without opening the bag.

Detective Adamson said that when he visited the Peteets at their home on Feb. 5 to obtain their statements regarding the outrage in Tia Juana he found the father crying in the garage. In the house he found the mother and girls weeping the mother and younger daughter Audrey lying on a bed and the elder daughter, Clyde, slumped dejectedly in a chair.

Statements obtained from them, as recorded by Adamson, placed the blame for the attack upon Clyde on Luis Amador, proprietor of the Oakland bar, and that upon Audrey on Chief of Police Llanos. Other statements made by the girls and recorded by the American Immigration and Customs officers gave Llanos as the abductor of Clyde, and Luis as the one who took Audrey.

The latter account was supported at the inquest by a long deposition given by Rudolph Bachman, formerly an employe in the Oakland bar and acquainted with Luis Amador and the Chief of Police, who said he witnessed all that took place in the saloon between the chief, Luis, the daughters, and their father.

After the father had been taken out by Luis, according to this deposition Luis took Audrey to the Hotel Nacional, managed by a Chinese, Juan Sang, and Bachman assumed that the chief took the other girl. He said he saw Luis enter the hotel with Audrey.

Amador attempted to end his life Saturday morning in the Tia Juana coudtel by slashing his wrists with a razor blade.

Guards overpowered him before he could inflict further injuries upon himself. A physician succeeded in stopping the flow of blood and in sealing up the wounds.

Tia Juana officials stated that extra guards would be placed over all the prisoners held in connection with the Peteet tragedy and that precautions would be taken to prevent any of them attempting suicide.

The death penalty for abduction or kidnapping is a survival of the days of banditry in Mexico, when persons were held for ransom. This penalty can be legally exacted only if the men are found guilty on the abduction charge, according to those versed in Mexican law. The penalty for attack is a limited term in prison.

President Calles in a telegram Friday night to Mayor Palacio of Tia Juana urged that all dives of the town be closed and that a vigorous investigation be pushed into the mistreating of the Peteet girls.

The President's message came on the heels of the charges by Fred Markley, head of the United States customs office at the Tia Juana line, that he had many complaints of mistreatment of American women in the resort town.

The YELLOW STUB

by Ernest Lynn

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HENRY RAND, 55, a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in GRAFTON. Police find a woman's handkerchief and a yellow ticket stub from a theater in Chicago.

JIMMY RAND, his son, goes to Chicago. The stub is traced to a THOMAS FOGARTY, who says he gave it to OLGA MAYNARD, a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. Later he encounters Olga Maynard, and she faints when he tells her she is suspected of murder.

Mary, out with SAMUEL CHURCH, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga is arrested. She tells police the ticket stub and handkerchief might have got into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder. She doesn't know who he was and police scoff at her. Jimmy believes her and goes back to Grafton to persuade the district attorney to release her.

BARRY COLVIN, in love with Jimmy's sister, JANET, asks him if there was anything in Henry Rand's past that might give a clue to the murder.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVI.

Barry continued: "Yes, Jim, out of the past. Somewhere in your father's life is somebody who had an object in getting him out of the way. Perhaps, he didn't know himself that he had any enemies, but he had them.

"Good Lord, man, you don't think for a minute that this thing was done on impulse? It was carefully planned. Why, they almost succeeded in making it look like a suicide. Why would anyone do it, Jim? What possible motive?"

"I don't know, Barry," Jimmy shook his head.

"Could it have been money? Let's get at this thing."

"Dad didn't have any money. No."

"Blackmail? Jealousy? Fear? Jim, I think someone was afraid of your father."

"You know better than that, Barry. Dad wouldn't have scared a cat."

"You don't get me. Either he had something on someone or that person was afraid he would find it out. They're evidently afraid you'll find it out, too. Now you take a fool's advice and stay out of Chicago."

"I will not. I'm going back tonight."

"Don't do it, Jim. I'm afraid. You're just too stubborn to admit you're in danger. You're in somebody's way in Chicago. That's why you got that note, and the phone call, and the telegram here. Stay home and let the police find the man you're talking about. The Maynard girl can help them.

"If you don't—" he shrugged—"well, they didn't stop at murder before."

"Nonsense, Barry. This thing is all a bluff. You mean to say that someone is going to take the trouble to kill me if I don't leave Chicago?"

"Whoever did that thing to your father knows you're staying in Chicago and probably knows why."

"Well, let them play their game with me. If they show their hand it will make it that much easier to nab them in the end. I'm going back and I intend to stick close to Olga Maynard in the hope of running on to the fellow she described. The police wouldn't do as well, for if he's the kind of man I think he is he'll be able to spot a policeman a mile off—even in plain clothes.

"And now, Barry, shut your head. By the way, how are you getting along with Janet?"

"I haven't moved her an inch."

Jimmy laughed. He saw Barry stiffen, and hastened to grab his arm.

"Forgive me, Barry. I know it's no joke." He became very serious. "I think I know how you feel."

"You'll never know how I feel, Jim, till you're in love yourself."

"I think," said Jimmy, turning away, "I think I know, Barry."

"Janet," said Jimmy, his hand on her shoulder, "why don't you cut out all this nonsense and put Barry out of his misery?"

"You know why, Jimmy, and Barry knows why."

He faced her squarely. "Happy, Sis?"

She averted her eyes. "Of course you're not," he said abruptly and turned his back on her. "Janet," he went on, staring into the fireplace, "there isn't any too much happiness in this world at best. Don't pass any of it up. We're fools if we don't grab all we can."

He came back to her and looked earnestly at her. "Janet, don't spoil this—this beautiful thing between you and Barry."

She would have spoken but he cut her short. "I know what you're going to say—that it's just for a while. You don't want to involve Barry in this—this tragedy.

"Janet, I believe—I know—that somewhere Dad is trying to tell you not to do this."

He had gone as far as his voice would take him. A sob rose in his throat. He flung himself into a chair and buried his face in his arms.

She was beside him—on her knees—her face working with emotion, her chin quivering.

"Brother, dear, what's come over you? Where's my light-hearted Jimmy?" Her voice broke. She stopped abruptly to wipe away her tears and regain her composure. It was Jimmy who was broken—who must be comforted.

"Jimmy," she said finally, "I believe this is all going to come out right in the end. It's only a question of waiting a little while. You don't see my side of it. My pride, Jimmy. If I change my course I have no pride left, and Jimmy, dear, if a woman brings no pride to her husband she brings nothing else."

He looked up. "Is it pride, or stubbornness? No, no—now wait." He closed her mouth with his finger. "Sis, I know now how Barry feels. There's a girl . . . . Stubbornness—my stubbornness, although I called it pride at the time—seems to have lost her to me."

He rose to his feet. "Janet, we spoke a moment ago of tragedy. The greatest tragedy of all is to miss the happiness that is in your grasp."

Jimmy left the train the next morning in Chicago in a slow but steady downpour of rain that drizzled down from low, leaden clouds.

He hurried to police headquarters. O'Day was off duty, and Jimmy told the chief of the action that had been taken by the district attorney in Grafton.

"All right, when we get official confirmation, we'll prefer a minor charge against this Olga Maynard and release her on bail," said the chief.

"Bail? Where are we going to get bail? She hasn't any friends. I haven't any money."

"It'll have to be done, Rand."

"Wait a minute" said Jimmy. He picked up the telephone, and gave a number. "Mayfair Hotel?" he asked. "Will you give me Thomas Fogarty's room?"

"And so, Mr. Fogarty," Jimmy was saying, half an hour later, "they're holding her for bail. In a way you got her into this scrape, although not intentionally. They tell me you go bond for people quite frequently. Why don't you put up the bail for her."

Fogarty flung away his cigar. "All right, Rand, I'll do it. I'll go down there and take care of it right now."

He put on his coat and hat and followed Jimmy out of his room.

As if the weather were not miserable enough, the day that Jimmy spent in his search for work was even worse. He tried office after office. It seemed to him that he answered every want ad in the paper. He tramped weary miles and met nothing but disappointment.

He tried the automobile agencies, advancing his qualifications as a successful salesman back in Grafton. But they told him, they didn't need salesmen; they needed customers.

Night came and he was tired and hungry. He would eat something warm, he told himself, and then go home to a hot bath and his bed. He would feel better in the morning.

He was about to turn in at a cheap restaurant when he suddenly stopped short, a worried look on his face. He frowned.

"What's the matter with me?" he said aloud. "What's worrying me?"

He stood for a moment or two, thinking, then entered the restaurant. He ate a hurried meal, topping it off with two cups of steaming coffee. He lit a cigaret and started for home. Outside the little restaurant a group of hangers-on eyed him curiously. He darted them a hostile glance and a moment later stopped short again and cursed.

"Now why did I do that?" he muttered. "Just like a little boy with a chip on his shoulder!"

The rain, whipped along now on a rising wind, chilled him. His incessant tramping all day long had soaked him. He hurried, ducking his head to meet the wind.

He was perhaps a block or two from his rooming house when again he stopped. Some sixth sense—some watchdog in his mind—seemed to warn him of impending trouble. He looked back of him. There was nothing in sight. "I'm as nervous as an old woman," he growled angrily.

Just in front of him was a street intersection, the last corner to be turned on the way to his room. As he made the turn he paused to listen, but only the howling of the rising gale could be heard.

He swore. "What's the matter with me?" He had that strange hot and cold sensation that men often experience when a crisis is to be met.

Again he listened, straining his ears, and this time he heard a sound—a quite definite sound like a footstep—some distance down the street behind him. He stood quite still for a moment, then he pressed himself flat against the building and waited.

GOOD WORK DONE IN WARSAW CLASS

Some Very Fine Hats Made by Girls—Animal Class Well Attended.

WARSAW, Feb. 15.—The millinery class ended on Thursday and the sewing and dress-making, class will begin on Monday afternoon, February the fifteenth.

About twenty-five hats have been made, no two alike, and each hat is fitted to the face and figure of the wearer, so far as the materials employed could be made to. The making and putting together of shapes and hats has been clearly demonstrated. Also the making of diverse kinds of trimmings and flowers.

Naturally some of the class could grasp the ideas more quickly than others, but Mrs. Hawkey showed infinite patience, and let nothing pass that was not correct.

One of the very prettiest hats is made of an old piece of a rather bright navy blue, trimmed with twisted sand braid. The young maker decided she would learn how with the old goods and make others later.

There is a very pretty sports hat of pale green trimmed with brushed white wool. Mrs. Hawkey has asked that, at the end of the dress-making class, the girls bring their hats as well as their dreses for exhibition.

On Tuesday Mr. McLaren and Mr. Hilliard gave demonstrations on handling sheep and judging them. Mr. McLaren sheared one in seven minutes, afterwards it was slaughtered and dressed. On Wednesday they gave talks on the kinds of wool, care of it, care and feeding of the young lambs and older sheep. Before the day was finished there was a demonstration of cutting up the carcass for home use. This was attended by several of the millinery class. The cuts were sold.

The lamb which was slaughtered came from Fred Cilfford's flock, and those used for judging were from David Miller's.

Unfortunately the boys' classes are not so well attended as might be desired.

In Warsaw stores on Thursday eggs were bringing thirty-five cents, dairy butter brought thirty-eight cents.

Mr. Robert Payne was suddenly taken quite ill again on Monday afternoon.

That Stomach Of Yours!

Toronto, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the very best medicine any one can take for stomach trouble and to build up the blood when it becomes thin and impoverished," said Mrs. Peter Sargent of 39 Cornwall St., Toronto, Ont. (Picture above.) "I suffered all the time from stomach trouble. My food did not digest properly, would set heavy on my stomach, causing me to suffer great distress. Food did me no good. My blood was impoverished and I did not have enough. But, after taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery my digestion was good and my trouble was at an end so far as my stomach and blood were concerned. The food I ate nourished my body and soon my blood was in a good healthy state."

ECLIPSE FASHIONS

Exclusive Patterns by Hazel Bayne

Flares Temper Straight Silhouette

This frock, although of tailored genre, diverges from severe simplicity in a rather interesting way, introducing a one-sided effect. Plain fabric makes a smart flare at the left side of the skirt, and harmonizes in tone with the background of the bordered kasha, chosen to develop this chic frock. The collar is convertible, and the front closing is of the new diagonal type, long rolling revers ending in a pointed tab. The back is plain, and the tailored sleeves are finished with trim little cuffs. No. 1294 is in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust. Size 38 bust requires 5½ yards 39-inch, or 4 yards 54-inch material. Price 20 cents.

The secret of distinctive dress lies in good taste rather than a lavish expenditure of money. Every woman should want to make her own clothes, and the home dressmaker will find the designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book to be practical and simple, yet maintaining the spirit of the mode of the moment. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

WISE WORDS

A woman regards a kiss as the main course, while man believes it is his just dessert.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

A FEW LAUNDRY HINTS.

One of the most important factors in the laundry, outside the washing machine, is the ironing board. For the smooth, well ironed clothes, it is necessary to have a perfectly covered board. This is accomplished by covering the board with a soft folded blanket stretched on without a wrinkle, over this a smooth, thick felt also stretched on without a wrinkle, and, over all, a strong bit of sheeting. The top cover should be fastened on by lacing, pinning, or by spiral spring fasteners that come for the purpose.

There should be a saucepan to make the starch and a long handled spoon to stir it. When tying the bluing in a cloth to use, leave a long end of string or tape so that the bluing may be listed up and down in the water, until it is the right color.

Flannel covered hangers of different sizes are now used in the laundry. Here the articles are hung until it is time to fold them. This allows the things to air and dry thoroughly without danger of getting wrinkled. The hangers are often attached to the pully clothes horse that is drawn up to the ceiling when loaded.

A WINTER JOY RIDE

By Juanita Hamel

They're off! Down the long, glassy slide in a race that almost takes the breath out of one. And isn't it glorious? These two alone on the toboggan that seems to fly through the air, with the wind stinging their faces and bringing the roses of the southland to her cheeks and the sparkle of the snows to his eyes, as he tenderly watches over her. A joy ride, indeed, for hasn't that mischievous Dan Cupid found room to squeeze himself comfortably near these two, that he may watch over them and see that their joy is complete? For no matter where Dan Cupid is, there also is Love; and he determines that these two shall ever keep on the togoggan of Life that will fly safely over any obstructions there may be in the path, for he will guide them and help them over the pitfalls which they may meet and save them from the tumble which would be inevitable if he were not with them.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE TELLS ABOUT A GAY SPRING FROCK.

"There's one thing certain," Pam remarked to me today, "the new Spring frocks are springier than I've ever known them to be."

"That's very true," I agreed. "I've never seen early Spring frocks come out in such light and summery colors as the ones that Madame is showing at the moment."

"Makes me think I'm away for a week-end in July, instead of in town feeling the chill Winter winds still blowing," Pam continued.

"What have you just seen that gave you such a midsummer feeling?" I queried.

"It was a frock of cashmere jersey, which isn't so very summerlike in itself, but it was a ducky pink and blue-green thing," Pam informed me.

"Where?" I asked.

"Why, if you haven't seen it, do follow me," Pam insisted. "Madame is supervising a fitting on it just this minute."

Accordingly, I followed her to one of the small mirrored fitting rooms, and there was Gaby attired in the new creation, a fitter on her knees inspecting the hemline, and Madame seated nearby.

The dress was pink jersey cashmere, with embroidery in green and blue arranged in border designs that gave the whole thing the gayest possible appearance.

"The overskirt hangs beautifully," Madame announced.

The frock had a line of pink extending down the front of the waist, then there was a foundation skirt of plain pink, and over it a skirt of the embroidered pink, slit down the front. It was slightly circular, so that it hung in soft ripples.

"The cuffs and the scarf collar take my eye immediately," I added.

"They are smart," Madame agreed, well pleased. "I'm glad you like the scarf collar because I'm going to have lots of them on Spring frocks, some that throw back over the shoulders and widen out, to give the cape effect."

The Pink Cashmere Jersey Is Embroidered in Green and Blue.

Even when clad in winter garments, the weight of a smart woman's clothing may be as little as 3 pounds 7 ounces.

The Secrets Of Charm

By Lucrezia Bori

A recent fashion show was the occasion for employing about two dozen extra manikins to parade in the new gowns being exploited.

Now, the problem was to get this number of young, pretty, well developed girls of different types, who could show off the models to advantage.

The fact that nearly all of the girls that applied were pretty and attractive speaks well for the present generation. Of course there were some whose figures did not possess the necessary symmetry, but there were numbers and numbers who could enhance the gowns by wearing them.

This Exercise Will Improve YourSense of Balance and Benefit the Hips and Legs.

What part of beauty is made up of enthusiasm?

This is a hard question to answer, because enthusiasm is a sort of undefinable thing that comes in waves and recedes just as quickly as it came. It comes oftener with some than with others, and a few of us seem to have it practically all of the time.

However, when we try to find out what it is, the best we can do to pin it down is to say that the enthusiastic woman is alive. She is alive to life and all that it holds, and she has a grand time because of this enthusiasm of hers.

You seem to recognize this quality in her even before she speaks. Somehow she has a bright look in her eye and a quick turn to her head.

It is interesting to notice that the great majority of the young girls of today have very pretty legs and very slim nice hips, and I am inclined to attribute both these facts to activity of the present generation.

When girls walk a lot and move about in dancing and riding and swimming, and in all such active pursuits of the healthy young girl the natural result is a well-developed, symmetrical body. The legs are shapely and strong, and the hips slim, but not too slim. For it is as bad to have hips that are too big as hips that are too slim and straight.

Now I am going to give you a very good exercise, which improves your sense of balance, your muscles and your hips and leggs as well.

Begin by standing erect with your head up and your hands on your hips.

Now bend forward until your hands rest on the floor.

As you bend forward, raise your right foot off the floor. Raise it higher and higher until your leg is straight and there is an unbroken line from your head to your right toe.

Next, shift your weight quickly, so that your right foot is on the floor and your left foot is raised in the air.

Repeat this five times, and gradually work up the movement until you can go through it a large number of times without becoming tired.

There is nothing better than this and similar exercises, to keep your body young and active and lovely.

HER GILDED PET.

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 13.—Strollers on the terrace outside the Casino recently were startled to see a beautifully dressed woman clad in deep rose with touches of gilded leather, who led by a long chain of gold and platinum a large tortoise. The animal's shell had been completely gilded over, and shimmered brilliantly in the blazing sun. Every time the pet stopped and refused to follow her she took a leaf of lettuce from her hand-bag and the tortoise followed her again.

A WORD ON THE NEWS.

"It's time that the apples were passed again."

So comments the secretary of a national wool association, explaining that it was not until Adam and Eve ate the apple that the need for raiment particularly smote them.

It's a relief to hear a gentleman who admits that his motives are crassly commercial discuss the lack of clothes for a change. We are so tired of the moralists who, without studying the subject at all, argue that lack of clothes is the basis of all immorality.

An interesting field this! Even grave scientists are split on the subject!

Read O'Brien's "White Shadows in the South Seas" and see if you can imagine any more moral humans than the breadfruit-eating, naked islanders.

YOUR CLUB PROGRAM.

Books to review which are a little heavier than fiction, but with a popular vein:

Wiggins' "New Decalogue of Science;" Pennell's "Adventures of an Illustrator;" Dr. George Dorsey's "Why We behave Like Human Beings."

That last one is worth a whole evening of discussion. Here's a bone for controversy he throws out: "A new generation of parents must learn that it is their duty to train children so that a new race will develop wherein a thief, a liar, a murderer, are unknown. The fact that we have them now proves poor parents."

An evening of famous cathedrals, the story of lace, how to make money at home, "what I would like best to do," should vary any club program.

IN YOUR HOME.

Of course, you grow paper-narcissus. Everyone does. But have you tried the yellow narcissus and the sacred Chinese lily? Just as easy to grow, cost no more, and smell as sweet. Ever try dropping a little plant food in the bowl?

Ever try making a vase by covering a graceful-shaped pickle bottle or powder jar or salad bottle with melted colored wax?

The wax bought at any stationer's is held over a burning alcohol lamp and dabbed at random over the object being covered. The bottle is then revolved over the flame, always rotating in the same direction, until the wax has run together and covered it.

WORLD OF FASHION.

The shoemakers will not give up on this colored shoe subject! Colored shoes have been dragged in by the hair ever and anon only to be sent out by the cat again. This time they're trying it in more delicate shades. Palm Beach sands, they say, are a pastel scene with kid shoes of old ivory, bois de rose, crystal gray, cool blue, lavender, cream and apricot.

The checked short-coated tweed suit with a mannish posy in the button hole is promised as a spring sartorial bell-ringer.

ODD RECIPE.

Pineapple cheese frozen salad. One cup grated American or cottage cheese, one cup mayonnaise, two large slices canned pineapple, one cup double cream, whipped, one tablespoonful gelatine. Mix grated cheese with mayonnaise and add pineapple cut into small pieces, then gelatine softened in two tablespoonfuls of cold water and placed over steam to dissole. Mixh thoroughly and add whipped cream. Put in molds or one mold, pack in ice and salt for several hours. Serve with mayonnaise. Nuts or fruits may be added.

HER OWN WAY by a Girl of Today

REBELLION.

I turned around so quickly to face my father that I knocked over my chair.

"What do you mean by saying you're going to put an announcement in the Examiner of my engagement to Charles Becker?" I asked, looking him straight in the face. "You know that I'm not engaged to Chuck and that I'm not going to marry him."

I tried to bend down and pick up my chair but found it impossible on account of my swollen ankle. Mother came and placed it upright near me but I did not sit down. I stood, facing my father with my hand on the chair, calmly waiting for him to reply.

"Yes, you are," he said. "It was all arranged this afternoon."

"Who arranged it, Dad?"

"Why, I did, of course."

"Then you've got another little arrangement coming. I would not marry Charlie Becker if he was the last man on earth."

Father smiled contemptously.

"That's just what young Becker said about you when I told him I was going to announce your engagement."

"Dad, you didn't do that, did you? I think you've insulted me worse than Chuck Becker did last night."

"I don't understand what you mean by that, Julia, and I don't mind telling you that he finally came around to my terms so you see you might as well do so."

I felt myself turning to ice. The idea of my father disposing of me in such a manner was something that seemed unbelievable.

"Are you telling me, Dad, that you demanded of Chuck Becker that he should marry me and stuck to that demand after he had said to you that he would not make me his wife if I was the only woman on earth?"

"That's certainly what I did, Julia. I told him that after your staying out with him until three o'clock in the morning with out chaperone, there was nothing for him to do but marry you."

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

In a report made by the United States Public Health Service, Assistant Surgeon-General White stated a lot of important truths. Here is one of them:

"There is less undernourishment now than ever before. People are getting better quality food, even if they are paying more for it." He added that "if higher priced foodstuffs keep the public well, the increase in cost is well worth while."

I have found at times that the high prices for food which have persisted since the World War have kept our people from eating the best qualities. Fortunately price does not always determine food value. Chicken pie does not begin to cost as much as terrapin, but, of course, it will give just as much nourishment.

Every family should learn enough about food values to be able to choose intelligently in ordering for the table. I rejoice that the public schools are giving more and more attention to food as a factor in health. Lots of school children know all about protein, carbohydrates, fats, vitamines, minerals, calories and the food needs of the body. This is well.

If you permit your appetite and the clamorings of your palate to determine what you are to eat, I fear the result. If you live an unrestrained existence so far as eating is concerned, you are doomed. Fortunately, most mothers are watchful of their children and do not permit them to form harmful eating habits. While the children are within reach, certainly they are safe.

As I have observed it in the cities, it is the midday meal which requires reformation. A nut sundae and a thin sandwich do not make a meal. The same money may be expended in a real meal if you are taught what to order.

Milk—pure milk—is a high-priced article. But, at any price, milk is the cheapest of foods. It comes the nearest to being a "balanced" food and to most persons it is an acceptable food.

If it is not pure milk it is deadly. When I speak of pure milk, I refer to milk from supervised cows and sold under the restrictions of modern sanitary rules. Try to find a place where such milk is sold and make this the basis of your mid-day meal.

A soup of beans or peas, with whole wheat bread or graham crackers is another wholesome dish. Add to this and the glass of milk a fresh vegetable, lettuce or fresh fruit, and you have an ideal lunch.

Don't eat a big meal in the middle of the day if you are a business man or woman and are to have dinner at night. It is quite different, of course, if the mid-day meal is the chief one of the day.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 12—THE TWINS MEET HICKYDOO.

When Jupe and the Twins got safely over the hill in their automobile, Jupe put his foot on the brake and stopped the car.

"Whew! That was a close shave!"

Nancy shivered. "Don't talk about shaving, please!" she begged. "That is what started all the trouble. Blue Whiskers got mad when the bear told him he didn't need a shaving brush."

"That's right," said Jupe. "And do you know, that bear has been prime minister and chief cook and bottle-washer of the Land of the Blue Cherry for over a hundred years. That's gratitude for you!"

"What shall we do now?" asked Nick.

Jupe thought for a minute. Then he said, "Let's go and ask Hickydoo. He'll know. There is one thing that we have to be thankful for, however! You can talk again. Blue Whiskers removed the spell so you could tell him some stories, and then he forgot to twist your tongues again."

"That's right," said Nancy. "Where does Hickydoo live?"

"Right here," said a voice and turning quickly the Twins beheld the queerest looking person they had ever seen.

He was made of wood and as square as a block. His head was square and his body was square and his arms and legs and feet were square.

"Why, hello there, Hickydoo!" cried Jupe. "I didn't see you."

"I just came," said Hickydoo. "I was over on the other side of the world when I heard you speak my name. So I cam at once."

"But how did you get here so quickly?" asked Nick. "It takes Daddy a whole day to go to New York."

"I came by wireless," was all Hickydoo would say. "What were you talking about me for?"

"We want advice," said Jupe. "These children came to the Land of the Blue Cherry to find the blue cherry. It seems that the Fairy Queen's secretary, called Twinkle Pen, drank a bottle of blue ink. And all the fairy doctors say there is only one cure and that's a blue cherry."

"What did the ink do to him?" asked Hickydoo.

"It made him want to write all the time," said Nick. "He was writing all over the walls when we left. He'd got started on 'Forty-nine blue bottles,' and the Fairy Queen was worried because she says it has no end."

"It hasn't," agreed Hickydoo. "But what do you want me for?"

"Just to give us some advice," said Jupe.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

NICHOLAS LONGWORTH — "THE ECCENTRIC MILLIONAIRE."

When Nicholas Longworth attained his majority he determined to trail with the emigrants to Cincinnati, then an outpost on the far-flung front of civilization. He was born in Newark, New Jersey, in 1782.

His father had considerable property, but, being a Tory during the Revolution, it was confiscated. So young Longworth went to Cinnati, and read law. The first counsel fee he ever earned he was obliged to take in trade, which proved one of those queer twists of fate that placed him in possession of millions.

His client, having no funds, offered two copper stills then in the possession of one Joel Williams, who planned to use them in a new distillery. Williams offered to "swap" a piece of barren land of 33 acres on the outskirts of the town and Longworth reluctantly accepted.

This land eventually became the heart of Cincinnati's business section and exclusive residential district.

Longworth retired from law practice in 1819 to devote his entire time to the management of his properties, the planting of a large vineyard near the city and the manufacture of wine under the charge of a celebrated chemist from Rheims.

"The oldest vineyard in Hamilton County is of Longworth's planting. Toward the close of his life his vineyard had grown to 200 acres, annually producing 150,000 bottles of wine. His vaults usually contained 300,000 bottles in course of thorough ripening," writes an authority.

Though he became a multimillionaire, Longworth clung to his early habits of personal carelessness.

He had his own views about dispensing charity. The "deserving poor" he left for others to help. But the dregs of society, "the devil's poor," as he called them, he never turned away empty handed. "No one cares for these poor wretches" said he, "everybody damns them and no one else will help them, so I must."

He owned a stone quarry and picks and shovels were always about his office. When a husky mendicant craved assistance, he was given tools to work with and started towards the quarry, where wages were paid every night.

"Old Nick," as he was called, was trudging alone one broiling day and sat himself down beneath a tree to cool off. As he leaned back, his eyes closed, his worn hat on his knee, his clothes shabby, he looked the picture of a blind beggar. A passing workman tossed a few pennies in his hat, which awoke him.

In point of wealth Longworth, at the time of his death in 1863, ranked next to John Jacob Astor. He had erected a splendid mansion in the center of his vineyard and took great pride in his fine library and collection of art treasures.

He left more than $15,000,000, and Cincinnati pays incessant tribute in the form of a vast rent roll to his descendants. Of the present generation, his namesake, a Representative in Congress, married "Princess Alice," daughter of Theodore Roosevelt.

SUMTHIN' MISSIN'

Aw, shucks, I ain't so crazy 'bout my father's new machine. There's such a thing as havin' things too fine. He went and bought the bunch of us a classy limousine. The best that he could buy—but not for mine.

Ya know how people feel about a thing that's spankin' new. They're allus 'fraid of mars and scars and such. And every time I'm in it pop'll watch each thing I do. That's why I can't enthuse about it much....

The seats 'er all upholstered with a cloth of silver gray, an' all the wood and metal's shiny bright. But that don't mean a thing to me. I just found out today they wouldn't let my dog in. That ain't right.

Aw, what's the fun of ridin', when I leave my purp behind? I hate to see him whine an' fume an' fuss. I don't see why my father didn't wait and try to find a plain old common second-hand bus.

PILES DISAPPEAR

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonhardt, M.D., a specialist set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at McDermid and Jury, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

PEGGY HAS A CHAT WITH MAMA AND DADDY JUNCO

One morning when Peggy went to the back door to toss out the crumbs from the table cloth, she was greeted with a chatter of merry little birds.

"Why you poor little birds," she cried excitedly, "won't you freze your feet in that cold snow?"

"Not my feet, thank you," chirped Mr. Sparrow gathering up his share of crumbs and sailing away.

"But you two little birds," suggested Peggy. "Sparrow can always stand the cold weather, but how about you? I'm afraid you must have left your Winter quarters too soon. Better fly back down South until these Spring snows melt."

"Fly South nothing!" chirped the largest bird. "The South has no charms for my mate and me. I believe you are Peggy Brown. Mr. Sparrow told us you were always throwing crumbs out. This is my wife, Mama Junco."

"Mama Junco, I'm mighty glad to meet you," said Peggy bowing politely. "Mr. Sparrow is right. I always try to toss something out for my bird friends every day. I feel sorry for them when the ground is covered with snow. Now really Mrs. Junco, didn't Daddy Junco bring you back from the South too soon?"

"Goodness no," replied the smaller bird. "Neither one of us can stand warm weather. Why we're getting ready right now to travel up farther North just as soon as the weather breaks a wee bit warmer down here.

"You See, We're Snowbirds."

You see we're what some folks call 'Snowbirds.' I'll admit we are far from being white like snow. You'll notice Daddy Junco's upper parts are slate-colored and his head almost black. His vest is gray near his throat and white underneath. They didn't call us snowbirds because of our color, its just because the snow never bothers us."

"We love snowy weather," chirped up Daddy Junco. "The drifts never get too deep for us, do they mama?"

"Well, I'm glad," laughed Peggy. "For the Winter months would be mighty dreary if we couldn't hear a friendly chirp once in a while. It seems queer that just when all the birds are returning from their Winter trips, you and your mate will be packing up going North."

"There's a flock of us starting tonight," replied Daddy Junco. "You'll hear us as we swing over your window. It won't be many days now until your Summer warblers are back and we must be on our way, lightening the hearts of the children who live in the land of ice and snow. Thank you for your crumbs. Mama Junco and I both enjoyed them." Then without another word, Mama and Daddy Junco disappeared.

That night after Peggy was tucked in bed, she thought she heard the swish of wings outside her window. When morning came Mama and Daddy Junco were nowhere in sight and Peggy felt sure they were on their way to the cold North.

WEST HAM DEFEATED BOLTON WANDERERS FOR FIRST TIME

All Home Teams Winners in English Soccer—Crowds Total 650,000.

FREE SCORING

LONDON, Feb. 15 (Canadian Press).—The most notable feature in First Division League soccer on Saturday was the fact that for the first time this season, in the eleven games, all the home teams won. Their victories ranged from the six to nothing avalanche, wherewith West Ham swept Bolton Wanderers off the field at Upton Park, to the meagre one to nil defeat administered by Leicester City on Notts County. The fact must also be remarked that Saturday was the first time in history that West Ham had defeated Bolton Wanderers.

The afternoon was good for football. The sun shone everywhere, re-appearing on the soccer grounds after an absence of several weeks. The result was reflected in the attendances and an aggregate total of 650,000 witnessed the games.

Arsenal's Revenge.

The largest gate of the day assembled at Highbury when 50,000 fans saw Arsenal take revenge on Newcastle United for the heavy defeat inflicted on them early in the season. Arsenal evened a seven to nothing adverse balance by a score of three to nil in their favor, and again resumed the winning streak which had deserted them some time ago.

While the League leading Huddersfield Town were superior to Everton, they were nevertheless assisted when Raitt, right back for the visitors, put the ball into his own nets. It was a sparkling game, however, featured by the opportunism of Brown, who scored twice for the champions.

In the Midlands classic between Aston Villa and West Bromwich at Villa Park, the home team again demonstrated that their victory over the Albion in the Cup-tie was no fluke. For a second time in three weeks they defeated West Bromwich, Saturday's count standing at two goals to one.

Sunderland Victory.

Sunderland took the measure of Manchester City, handing out a five goals to three defeat to the Lancastrians. The City, however, played a stubborn game, and exacted from Sunderland all the tricks in their bag before going down.

The reputation of Manchester was upheld at Old Trafford Park, when the United took the points from Leeds United by the odd goal in three. Tempers got badly ruffled in this game, in which Leeds played with a very much weakened team.

Harper got two of Blackburn's four goals against Tottenham Hotspur, thus putting him at the top of the scorers this season. Harper's total up to the present is thirty tallies.

Bolton's sad story at Upton Park was written mostly by Gibbins, the former Clapton amateur, who scored two of West Ham's six goals, and by his magnificent play was directly responsible for most of the remaining four.

Second Division.

In the Second Division the surprise of the day was the defeat of Derby County at Swansea, while Fulham also created a mild sensation by coming out at the long-end of a two-one game against South Shields. Derby played without their regular backs, though, but Swansea were also without the services of one of their star players, Fowler, who was engaged at Belfast.

At Fulham the game was featured by penalties galore, with consequent great excitement. Fulham were awarded a spot-kick which Richardson saved, but the referee decided that the ball had been improperly placed and ordered the kick to be re-taken. McNab took the second shot and scored.

Port Vale and Chelsea were the only second string teams to win away from home.

CAMERA MEN WIN TENNIS DECISION

Exclusive Picture Rights Proposal is Withdrawn.

CANNES, Feb. 13. (Canadian Press).—Two victories for the French star, Mlle. Lenglen, and an equal number for Helen Wills, United States champion, marked Friday's Carlton tournament activities on the courts, while what a majority of the partons of tennis on the Riveria termed a victory for amateur sport was won when the organizers of the tournament decided to withdraw their verbal authorization for exclusive motion picture rights. All the camera-men will be treated on an equal footing when the expected finals match between Miss Wills and Mlle. Lenglen is played next week.

Miss Wills had as her opponent in the singles, Mrs. O'Neill of England, considered one of the strongest players on the Riviera, and defeated her handily, 6-0, 6-0. In the doubles Miss Wills was paired with Mlle. Contoslavos, and they beat Mlle. Gay and Miss Howsen, 6-0 6-0.

In her singles match Mlle. Lenglen played the usual stirring game, beating Miss Bower, 6-0, 6-0. With Mlle. Didi Vlasto, she defeated Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Frank J. Gould in the doubles, 6-0, 6-0.

SCHOOL LEAGUE GAME SURPRISE

King George School Defeated Central By 8 to 0.

FINAL FEB. 20.

The King George team pulled the big surprise of the Public School hockey schedule when they defeated the Central crew 8-0 at Mark street rink Saturday. It was expected that the game would be very close, as past performances had given this idea.

Queen Mary beat King George 3-0 in the first game and later in the schedule had downed Central 3-1. To all, indications pointed to a hot engagement when Central and King George clashed. However, the East City lads upset this dope and whitewashed Central.

Jimmy Ellis and Ronald Mowry were the scoring aces for the winners. These two combined nicely on rushes and got all their team's goals, giving Delahaye in the Central nets a very busy morning.

Queen Mary, last year's champs, and league leaders for this season, with no defeats, and King George now meet at Brock street rink next Saturday for the championship.

One of the chief points in the games this year has been the remarkable good sportsmanship shown by all the teams. The penalty box this year has been the most unpopular spot to the boys and has seldom been tenanted in any of the games.

TORONTO, Feb. 5. —(Canadian Press).—Displaying the prettiest and most effective combination of the attack that has been witnessed in a professional game here in some years and backing this up with a strong defence and persistent back checking by the forwards, Boston Bruins demonstrated to the smallest crowd of the present N. H. L. season why they are in the midst of a winning streak which their 7 to 4 victory over St. Pats on Saturday night brought to five wins and 1 overtime tie in the last six games and carried them from last place to fourth in little over two weeks.

BILL KLEM MAY RETIRE

Veteran National League Umpire Now Rated Florida Millionaire Realtor. Yes! Yes! Go On.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 15. — Rumor has it that Bill Klem, star umpire of the National League, intends to resign. Klem is now one of those Florida millionaires. It is reputed that he has cleaned up over $300,000 in Florida deals since the close of the 1925 baseball season. Some of it may be counterfeit money.

Klem has been calling them for over 20 years in the National League and he would be badly missed. He says the demands of his real estate holdings are such that it would be impossible for the National League to pay him a salary that would make it worth his while to return.

BILLY EVANS Says:

GOLF AND BASEBALL.

Soon we will have with us the annual dispute as to whether ball players should mix golf with the diamond pastime.

It is going to be a bigger problem than ever this spring because of the many players who are wintering either in Florida or California.

Climate, plus the real estate lure and the chance of picking up some soft money playing baseball, was the magnet that attracted many players to Florida. All the big real estate firms have teams.

I feel that I am very conservative in saying that at least 100 ball players from the majors are wintering in Florida. At least 80 of those players are strong for golf.

Once upon a time a ball player who donned knickers at the training camp would immediately lose caste. Now the plus fours and sixes are the favorite mode of dress with the athletes.

While many of the managers permit golf as a part of the spring training, several have taken a drastic stand in the matter and ruled it out the moment spring practice begins.

ANNUAL DISPUTE.

Manager John McGraw of the Giants has definite views on the subject. He wants a ball club to talk baseball when it is doing its spring training, not golf and automobile.

During my many trips to the spring training camps, it has been my observation that the New York Giants work harder than any other ball club. McGraw's teams train and you can always bank on them being in condition when the season starts.

A good many clubs have only one practice session daily. McGraw still sticks to two and often with an exhibition game on for the afternoon puts his team through a workout in the morning.

There isn't much time to play golf at the training camp of the Giants. In addition the players, after two workouts, are usually too tired to take a whirl at even nine holes.

DRASTIC RULES.

It is a rather interesting fact that practically every major league manager likes to play golf as a diversion; a good way to forget his baseball woes.

Once upon a time the golf craze got so strong with the Philadelphia Athletics that Connie Mack officially notified the players that he would do all the golfing for the team during the summer months.

That was seven or eight years ago, but I understand that Mack has lived up to the ultimatum. Only on an off day do his players have permission to hit the elusive golf ball.

Most ball players become quite proficient at the game. There are any number of players who are always in the eighties. All get great distance from the tee; most of them are weak at the short game.

Pitcher Dutch Leonard and First Baseman Johnny McInnis are two players who often break into the seventies.

As I understand it, Eddie Collins is about the only big league manager who doesn't put an absolute ban on golf during the summer. He leaves it up to his players to use proper judgment as to when they should and shouldn't play.

The chief objection to golf does not lie in injurious effects from swinging the club, but simply that it takes much of the player's reserve energy that is often needed on a hot day.

CHARITY GOAL GAVE MONTREAL NARROW VICTORY IN NEW YORK

Forbes Kicked Puck Into Own Goal Trying to Clear.

HAD MADE STOP

Americans Had Only Goal Until Third Period—Score 2-1.

MONTREAL, Feb. 15 (Canadian Press).—Montreal can thank Vernon Forbes for their 2 to 1 win over the New York Americans here Saturday night, the Gotham goalie parctically scored on himself four minutes before the end of the game, giving the Maroons the deciding goal; the match, and a chance still to catch the league-leading Ottawa Senators in the National Hockey League race.

New York started with a flash in the first period and took the lead on a smart goal by Alex. McKinnon, former Sudbury amateur, who took a pass from Billy Boucher and got around the Maroons' defence to force Benedict to dive and then flipped the puck around him for the opening goal.

The Americans held their margin through a scoreless second period though they began to show signs of weakening, the players casting longing looks at the timers' clock towards the end of the middle session.

Stewart Tied Count.

In the final sessions the Maroons were hemmed in to their own half of centre practically throughout. Nelson Stewart made one of his tricky thrusts count. From a face-off near centre ice, he broke with the puck and completely eluded the entire Gotham team as he swerved in on Forbes and beat the New York goalie with a whirling puck to the corner of the net.

The Maroons kept up the pressure, but Forbes was apparently again as invincible as in the first two periods. Finally Captain Dunc Munro started what proved to be Montreal's winning thrust. Stewart recovered the puck near the New York goal when Munro was checked out. He drove hard at the American goal from close in.

A Fluke Goal.

Forbes stopped the puck between his skates and close to his goal line. He went off-balance and, instead of clearing the disc with his stick, attempted to bend down and pick it with with his hands. He had to move fast and not being securely planted on his skates, floundered, and knocked the disc over the blue line for the deciding goal.

Line-Up.

New York.—Forbes, goal; Langlois and Simpson, defence; Burch, centre; R. Green and McKinnon wings; Campbell, Randall, Bouchard, Boileau, Hall, Cameron and Roach, subs.

Montreal.—Benedict, goal; Munro and Noble, defence; Stewart, centre; Broadbent and Siebert wings; Kitchen, Dinsmore Rothschild, Carson, Holway and Brophy, subs.

Referee—Billy Bell and Bobby Hewitson.

Summary.

Second Period:

Third Period:
2. Montreal—Stewart 9.20
3. Montreal—Stewart 6.40

LENGLEN SCORE STILL PERFECT

Miss Wills Dropped Two Games, But Won Her Round.

MEET ON TUESDAY

CANNES, France, Feb. 15 (Canadian Press)—Both Suzanne Lenglen and Helen Wills, tennis champions, came through yesterday to the semi-finals of the singles in the Carlton Tennis Tournament. Mlle. Lenglen's victory was more impressive than that of Miss Wills; she defeated Lady Roundway, 6-0, 6-0, thereby maintaining her unbroken perfect score, while her rival lost two games to Miss Eileen Bennett in the first set, the score being 6-2, 6-0. Thus Miss Wills' series of love sets with which she has won since the tournament opened came to an end.

Suzanne played like one inspired, and simply overwhelmed Lady Roundway, who is rated even with Miss Bennett inb oth English and Riviera tennis. Lady Roundway and Miss Bennett have met twice, the youthful player winning from the veteran once, and losing the second time.

There now remain only two obstacles to a meeting between Mlle. Lenglen and Miss Wills over the net—Mlle. Henriette Contoslavos, who will try to bar Suzanne's way, but should be easy for the French champion to overcome, and Mlle. Didi Vlasto, who will endeavor to keep victory from Helen on her way to the finals, but the California girl has already defeated Mlle. Vlasto twice, and is looked to to repeat that achievement.

Thus, outside of interference by rain, the match should take place as arranged at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Miss Bennett gave Miss Wills a great battle in the first set yesterday but the winner improved as the match progressed and made a better showing in the second set.

THUNBERG LOWERS WORLD'S RECORDS

Finland Skater Secures Big Lead on Score Sheet.

LAKE PLACID, N.Y., Feb. 15 (Canadian Press) — Three new world's records established in two days of skating against Charles Jewtraw, the Lake Placid flash, have given Clas Thunberg, of Finland, Olympic champion, a commanding lead over his competitor in their series of match races which will be concluded at Saranac Lake today and Tuesday.

Thunberg's records were made in the mile race Friday, and in the half mile and mile and a half Saturday. Jewtraw's only victory came in the 220 yard sprint on Friday.

Thunberg's record times Saturday were: half mile 1:15 1-5; mile and a half 4:12 3-5.

Lucien Bourque, of Moncton, N.B., the only Canadian entrant, failed to place in Saturday's events.

JOCK HUTCHISON—HOW BALL IS TOPPED.

Most players do not understand exactly how a ball is topped. This is an interesting point and might as well be explained here in connection with the duffer's attempt to hit the ball into the air. The majority of golfers, giving the subject a little thought would probably describe a topped shot as one that goes over the top of the ball, just barely skimming it.

A topped ball is not really hit on the top at all. It is nearly always done by starting the club-head up too soon. That is, the ball is caught on the upper swing after the club has reached the bottom of the arc and started upward.

There are all kinds of varieties of topped shots. There is only a fraction of an inch difference in a topped shot and one that is skied. If hit just a little below the center, it goes high in the air. If hit just the tiniest bit above the center, it means a topped shot, which will run along the ground looking for trouble. When the ball is hit this way a lot of spin is imparted to it.

The ideal shot is the one where the ball is hit on the downward swing.

BARNUM AND ROOSEVELT TO BE FILM SUBJECTS.

By NEA Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Motion picture producers are drawing heavily on American history for background and color. Of the new Famous Players productions—those tentatively scheduled to be road shows—three have historical background.

The frigate "Constitution," famed for its naval exploits, will form ed basis of a colorful drama to be called "Old Ironsides." James. Cruze will direct it.

P. T. Barnum, a picturesque figure in American life some years ago, will be the figure around whom "The Greatest Show on Earth" will be centered. Wallace Beery will play the part of Barnum.

Theodore Roosevelt's rise to national and international fame will be translated to the screen in "The Rough Riders."

Paramount is to make "The Sorrows of Satan," to be directed by D. W. Griffith. This is the story by Marie Corelli and is a romantic drama of Satan's life on earth. Adolphe Menjou will play the part of Satan, and the leading feminine role will be taken by Carol Dempster.

BASKETBALL

By THE CAPTAIN

NO. 29—REVERSE FORMATION ON THROW-IN

Playing one side of the court regularly gradually draws your opponents subconsciously into looking for the greatest danger from that side. That applies to formation play on a throw-in the same as it does to individual or team play on the tap-off.

By using a reverse formation on a throw-in you again bring the element of deception to your aid. It also permits you to use all five men, although in its beginning only two figure in the handling of the ball.

The left guard, on the throw-in of the ball from under your opponent's basket, passes to the right guard playing the right side of the court. The left guard, coming into the playing zone, also plays the right side.

The left forward and the right forward both move up to the left hand side, while the center takes a normal position. They continue to move up as the guards make short passes to each other.

When as close to the goal as the opposition will allow, the left forward cuts along the playing boundary in an effort to get clear and take a pass under the basket. The center and right forward also cut as opportunity permits. If unsuccessful each player resumes his position until another opening is presented. In this manner the five-man offense is always kept intact with the same scene of activity reversing quickly from the one side to the other.

AMATEUR TENNIS CAUSE IS UPHELD

Suzanne and Helen Joined Forces.

CANNES, France, Feb. 15.—(Canadian Press.) — Championing the cause of amateur tennis, Helen Wills and Suzanne Lenglen together have won a victory. They came to the decision that they would not meet in the finals of the women's singles of the Carlton tuornament if the match was to be turned into a sort of commercial affair by the exclusive sale for a large monetary consideration of the picture rights, and the organizers have finally agreed to permit all photographers and moving picture men equal privileges.

The stand taken by Suzanne and Helen brought the entire matter to a head, and Tuesday's contest will be filmed for America, Europe and other continents interested.

"This is a first class ending to a foolish situation," Mlle. Lenglen remarked.

ENGLISH RUGBY TEAM DEFEATED BY HIBERNIANS

Terrific Pace in International Game Played on Dublin Field.

SCORE WAS 19-15

England Failed to Hold Advantage Won in First Half.

DUBLIN, Feb. 15. —(Canadian Press Cable). — Defeating England's International Rugby Team here Saturday by a score of nineteen points to fifteen, Ireland moved up closer into championship contention. The Emerald Isle continues to run second to Scotland, who at present head the International standings on point average.

Twenty-five thousand fans braved the cold and penetrating weather and were rewarded by seeing the Hibernians pull the game out of the fire in the second half, after they had come to the turn with the Englishmen leading ten points to six. In the last frame, Ireland stacked up thirteen points, with England piling on five.

Two changes occurred in the home line-up. G. R. Beamish and W. F. Browne were both unable to take their places in the Irish pack, and they were subbed by A. M. Buchanan of Dublin University and S. J. Cagney of the London Irish. The English team was unaltered from the previously announced fifteen.

England Scored First.

Prior to the kick-off, the teams were lined up and introduced to the Right Hon. Timothy Healy, the Governor General of Ireland. The game early revealed itself as a struggle for supremacy between the Irish forwards and the English three-quarters. The intermediate line of the home fifteen did not often come into the picture, except for some fine tackling that helped to keep down the English score in the first half. At that, however, first blood came to England when A. T. Young of the Army secured from a pass by Francis and dashed over a try thaat Francis converted. The Irish came straight back however, and evened matters up when G. V. Stephenson obtained a touch for the home team. The situation did not long remain at three-three, for, following some fine play by Hamilton Wickes and good support from Voyce, Peliton got over for a try, to which Francis added the major points. Ireland reduced the margin when Stephenson kicked a penalty goal just before half time.

Facing a deficit of four points, the Irish went into the second half with a stubborn determination. The home pack pressed their attacks and held the English down to their own terrain.

The first score of the period came, following some fine open play, when Sudgen broke away from a scrum and passed to Cussen who got over. From a difficult angle Stephenson kicked a splendid goal. One point ahead the Irish fought desperately to widen the margin, and a tremendous battle ensued. The English three-quarters broke away time and again, with Hamilton Wickes and Devitt showing great speed, but the visitors seemed to lack that finish necessary to round off their efforts.

Terrific Pace.

The last ten minutes of play saw both teams all out for a point gathering bee. Sugden again sent Cussen over and Stephenson again added the full points. The pace became terrific with the English straining every nerve to ward off that defeat which was looming up, and their efforts were rewarded when Haslett scored after a combined attack in which Hamilton Wickes, Wakefield and Francis took part. The latter converted, with a minute to go, the English became desperate and put every ounce of energy into the game to bring down the one point lead of the Irish, but Hewitt clinched it for the Hibernians when he beat the final whistle to it and scored Stephenson failed to cosvert.

Score:—

Ireland: Two goals, One penalty goal, two tries, (19 points).

England: Three goals, (15 points).

The International standing now is:

Team	P	W	D	L	F	A	Pts
Scotland	2	2	0	0	28	11	4
Ireland....	2	2	0	0	39	14	4
England	2	0	1	1	18	22	1

 Frisch brought in 121 counters twice, 116 another time and 101 once. In 1925 he was out of the lineup considerably but managed to cross the plate 89 times. Had he played every day he would doubtless have passed the century figure by quite a margin.

 Frisch has also done well as a base-stealer. He has passed the 20-mark every season for the last six, 49 in 1921 being his premier effort.

FOUR INDOOR MARKS WERE SHATTERED

In Athletic Meet in New York Armory.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—Four world's indoor marks were shattered at the Wilco A. A. games in the Thirteenth Regiment armory Saturday night.

Charlie Hoff, of Osalo, Norway, holder of the world's outdoor pole vaulting record, soared higher than any man ever reached in indoor competition when he lifted himself over the bar at a dizzy height of 13 feet, 3 inches, after failing in his first attempt.

The most outstanding performance of the meet, and one that shatters a mark which has decorated the record books for seventeen years, was the feat of F. Morgan Taylor in which he carried the tricolor of the Illinois A. C. over the 80 yard low hurdle in 9 3-10 seconds, 3-10 better than the mark of Forrest Smithson, of San Francisco, established February 19, 1909.

Alan Helffrich, running under the colors of the New York A.C., won the 500 metre event in 1:05 seconds, 4-5 of a second under his mark for the distance set January 6, 1925.

Willie Plant, America's premier walker, was the fourth athlete to shatter a mark. Plant hoofed the 3,000 meter walk in 12:49, 1 1-5 seconds faster than his own mark established in this same armory February 7, 1925.

LADY BOWLERS WIN IN BELLEVILLE.

The annual visit of the two teams from the Ladies League of the Y. M. C. A. to Belleville took place on Saturday. The ladies went down in the morning and return. in the evening and in the interval they accomplished what they have desired to do for some time and, that was to beat the Belleville bowlers on their own alleys.

These annual visits were commenced two years when teams from the Ladies Bowling Leagues at the Belleville and Peterborough Y. M. C. A. met in friendly matches and the Belleville ladies who have been bowling some seasons longer than the local ladies always have won until Saturday, when Peterborough came into the fruits of their much desired victory.

The hospitality always extended by the Belleville ladies was again much in evidence on Saturday and the desire to bowl on one of the teams for Belleville has always been envied by every bowler from the Ladies League because win or lose, you were always assured of the great hospitality and good sportsmanship shown by the Belleville ladies.

As in former years, total pinnage was to count and though all games were close, Peterborough took three and Belleville three of the six games. Peterborough made the run close in two games dropping one by the narrow margin of six pins and the other by nine pins. The local ladies lead of 108 pins in the first series of three games was enough hold out against Belleville's gain of 40 pins in the next series of three games and still leave Peterborough up 68 pins on the day's play.

Miss Ethel Rae of the locals had the high single of the series with 233 and also had the high total with a good score of 602, she having two other good singles of 193 and 176. Mrs. Lee for Belleville had three nice singles of 218, 205 and 171 for 194. Other good singles were Miss D. Burgess' 213 and 187, Miss Adams 190 and 182, Miss W. Coon's 174 and Miss Gladys Coon's 178. For Belleville some good singles were Mrs. Goyers 192, Miss Mouck's 186 and Miss McIntosh's 191.

The ladies who went down under Mr. Max Sloan were the Misses E. Distin, G. Evans, C. Adams, D. Burgess, W. Coon, M. Stenton, G. Coulter, V. Buckham, G. Coon and E. Rae. The return visit of the Belleville ladies will be in about a months time.

CHANNING POLLOCK'S OWN STORY OF TRIALS AND TRIUMPHS OF GREAT STAGE AND FILM EPIC, 'THE FOOL.'

The difficulties that beset Channing Pollock, an established playwright, when seeking a manager to produce his great success, 'The Fool,' are set forth by him in the following article. He tells his story in an interesting, intimate way.

Mr. Pollock had a good idea in "The Fool." It was a new idea but none of the leading managers to whom he offered his play could appreciate the sovelty and force of this new idea, at least they couldn't see any profits coming from it, except Selwyn & Co., who produced the play.

"They call me a fool on the public squares; the fool who wears a crown of thorns." It was from this line dug up by Samuel Hopkins Adams in an excursion into Tennyson that Mr. Pollock took the title for "The Fool."

The play, which was written in white-heat sincerity has brought to its author a reward greater than any of his many successes. It is considered a masteriece of serious dramatic writing. The biggest success "The Fool" has ever scored now comes to it through its production on the screen as a William Fox picture. In its cinema form it amplifies and emphasizes many of the points and scenes that were conveyed by suggestion on the legitimate stage, and becomes one of the greatest motion picture productions ever offered by the Fox organization.

"You may think this letter a trifle unusual," read a note sent to Capt. M. W. Plunkett by a Winnipeg theatre-goer after seeing "Three Little Maids,' the imported musical comedy hit with the celebrated G. P. Huntley as its star.

"It is unusual as a matter of fact for I have never before written one like it but I feel, after seeing "Three Little Maids," to-night, that I should send my heartiest congratulations to you and your company.

"Not in seven or eight years have I seen a musical comedy of this type which I enjoyed so much and never before have I seen one as good in this city.

"Mr. Huntley himself is the peer of all English comedians. I have never before seen any actor create such an amount of mirth with such ease. His gold fish and golfing scenes are the funsiest I have seen and in Sasdy Shaw, the Scotch comedian who supports him, he has a magnificent aide.

"The music is abundant and supremely beautiful. Miss Hancock is a soprano who has few equals if any on any stage and Arlene Jackson and Sheelagh Hayes have unusually good voices. Nor must I forget Ernest Morgan. And the entire cast, moreover, can act as well as sing.

"In your dancers, you have a group of beautiful young girls who can be compared with anything I have seen on Broadway—to their very great credit.

"Three Little Maids' is expertly and smoothly starged and very artistically costumed and lit. My greatest hope at the moment is that I may be able to see it again."

Unsolicited testimonials of this variety are not rare but this one happens to sum up particularly accurately the high points of Capt. Plunkett's new production.

"Three Little Maids" comes to the GRAND for two nights, Friday and Saturday, February 19 and 20. The wiser theatre-goers will deserve seats as early as possible.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN.

(Contributed.)

The service yesterday, morning and evening, were of the usual inspiring nature, Rev. William Allan's discourses reaching large congregations. The morning theme, "A Strange Sight in a Public Place," was founded on verses 18 to 20, Acts 19th chapter.

Dealing with the sins and idolatry of the city of Ephesus, Mr. Allan referred to Saul of Tarsus as being without peer in the realm of intellect, at any time in the world's history. The people, through his preaching and reading of the Scriptures, turned their minds away from the black art of that time, and burned their books in the main street, the sum total of the book value being about $10,000. Surely a fine example of the power of the Apostle's teaching of the Word of God. There is always a right thing at the right time in God's dealings with His people. Paul's life was one of zeal for the cause. He had a pedigree of the best standing from the loins of Abraham, with Jewish history as its background. He had great conviction, which will carry us through trying times. And he had a message. He might have been termed a Modernist, but that he preached salvation through the Scriptures. Sin today is as rampant as in that day; and we all need Paul's attributes to live the pure and holy life God would have us follow.

The evening diet was also of interest, insofar as it was specially for the young men and women, and the choir, under Mr. Chenhall, had prepared special and well-rendered music.

"Two Certainties and a Chance,"—for which many people had scanned the Bible for the text chosen, was taken from 2, Kings, 7:3-4. Mr. Allan told how that Samaria was besieged by the Syrians—the conditions inside the city were dire in the extreme. The cry of hunger was heard; the little ones were emaciated, as were the older people—till at last human flesh was eaten to appease hunger. It was humanly hopeless. Again God's care is shown—Elisha appeared with a message of hope.

The First Certainty—Referring to the four lepers outside the city, if they entered they would die of starvation. All the city had to offer was death. So, like the world—if we go back to the free and joyous life of the world, we are starved. It makes us pay for all we get; we are hungry, and finally, death.

The Second Certainty—If the lepers sat still, they would die; nobody would care to go near them. As lepers they were the evidence of guilt, of defilement, involving separation. So it is with us—death is in our very make-up. Even if we had never transgressed, we have sinned. To go back to the world means death—to stay as you are will also mean death.

The Chance—as the verse says, "Now, therefore, come and let us fall unto the host of the Syrians; if they save us alive we shall live; if they kill us we shall but die." Oh, that men would think in their ways, and turn their backs on the world, face the future, and walk the paths of righteousness. We cannot go back; we cannot sit still. The sequel to their entry into the Syrian camp was that the enemy had fled, and the lepers held their peace. We are silent. We should flee to Christ for salvation, go out and live for Him, and tell the glad tidings to all people. Ours is the opportunity concluded Mr. Allan, to be shining lights for Christ and His Kingdom.

Next Wednesday evening Mr. Allan will take up the last address of the series on death and the hereafter—"Our Dead Now—Are They in The Grave, or Where?" A chart will be used to illustrate this interesting theme.

TRINITY CHURCH

Mr. Arthur Blight, baritone soloist of Trinity Church, Toronto, who sang at Trinity Church here at both services yesterday, charmed his audiences with a magnificent rendition of various favorite hymns and sacred numbers which included Dudley Buck's arrangements of "My Redeemer and My Lord," and "Crossing the Bar," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," Wooler's "Hear My Cry," and Ambrose's "One Sweetly Solemn Thought." The church was filled at both morning and evening services.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL

At St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning, His Lordship Bishop O'Brien made an interesting announcement with regard to the celebration in June next of the hundredth anniversary of the first Mass said in Peterboro, and His Lordship asked that anyone possessing information or photographs concerning the first priests or buildings would put them in the hands of the chairman of the committee in charge of this work, Mr. V. J. McElderry.

The first Catholic church in the city was erected on Hunter street, near George, the first Mass was said in a log building on the market square near the site of the present Police Station, the first separate school was situated near the corner of Simcoe and Aylmer streets, and the first priests' house on the corner east of the Cathedral.

Historical documents along this line would also be of use to the committee.

On Sunday, June 6th, the Apostolic Delegate in Canada will be in Peterborough and the celebration will take place somewhere in the neighborhood of this date. Bishops of the province have also been invited to be present.

BIBLE SOCIETY

Yesterday representatives of the Upper Canada Bible Society occupied twelve pulpits of the city Churches. In the Anglican churches the Rev. J. S. Harrington and the Rev. A. G. Walker spoke in St. John's, All Saints, and St. Luke's. Rev. S. G. Pinnock spoke at the Baptist churches — Murray Street and Park Street. Rev. W. G. Walton preached at the Bethany Tabernacle.

The Rev. Mr. Blodgett, the Rev. W. E. Hassard and J. Redmond, Esq., were in the United Churches—George Street, Mark Street, Trinity, St. Andrew's St. James' and Knox.

The speakers drew attention to the wonderful record last year of the British and Foreign Bible Society of over 10,000,000 of copies. This stands as the second largest circulation for any one year in the history of this Society. Of these copies over three millions were sold in China. Owing to the Soviet condition, no Scriptures were circulated in Russia.

The Scriptures are now printed in the amazing total of over 576 languages. The Bible must be printed in 110 different languages so that all living in Canada may read it. During the month of October one corporation sold the Scriptures in 22 languages in one city of Ontario.

Last year Peterboro sent in over $1,200 to help this great work. This week collectors will be calling for the subscriptions of 1926.

KNOX UNITED

An interesting discourse on the subject of the aims and objects of the British and Foreign Bible Society was presented in Knox United Church last night by J. M. Redmond of Toronto, who is representative of the Society. Mr. Redmond appeared in Trinity Church during the morning service.

Introducing his subject, he said that speaking of the old days, more particularly, liquor drinking and gambling were the causes of many business failures, but there were no business failures on record which resulted from too much generosity in giving for religious or philanthropic purposes.

There was no more potent agency in the distribution of the Gospel than the British and Foreign Bible Society, he asserted. Six hundred of a total of eight hundred and thirty-five translations into foreign tongues were due to the enterprise of the Society which he represented. Without its aid all religious work in foreign fields would be a failure. The colporteurs have blazed the way for the missionary. The native distributors have the entree into homes where a foreign missionary would not be allowed and a Bible in the home is the same as a missionary there at all times.

Mr. Redmond stated that the Bible was not losing its grip, as many believed, for 10,040 000 copies had been printed and distributed last year. Translations were given to missionaries without restrictions, although they were urged to sell them whenever possible, as a slight payment made them more highly prized. In the purchase of translations last year, the Church of England came foremost, followed by the Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist churches.

The Word of God was printed in the language of seven-tenths of the world's people, but the translation must be adapted to the locality and conditions which prevail where they are being sent. Missionaries are also confronted with teaching the meaning of the word "Love" to individuals of savage races.

The speaker said that less than five per cent of the people of India could read or write, but that when the colporteur and the missionary went, the school master followed. China has a simplied alphabet now, due largely to the work of missionaries and the desire to perfect a readable translation of the Bible.

Foreigners coming to Canada must be made over into Canadians. The most potent force in this transfusion was the Bible, declared Mr. Redmond. Branches of the Society are located at every port of entry, and immigrants are presented with Bibles written in their own tongue with an English version beside their language characters. Not only do the members of the Society greet intending citizens at the wharves, but they continue to keep in touch with them after they become settled."

"The Bible is the hope of the world" Mr. Redmond stated in conclusion.

INTERESTING ADDRESS.

H. A. Mowat Told of Work of St. Andrew's Brotherhood.

An interesting address on the work of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew was given by the general secretary of the society for Canada, H. A. Mowat of Toronto, in St. John's parish hall on Friday evening to an audience of about fifty members of the local branch. At the conclusion of the address, refreshments were served.

QUEER PEOPLE AT RINK TO-NIGHT

Rotary Carnival Will Bring Out Many Fine Costumes.

There will be a lot of queer looking people at Brock Street Rink tonight when the Rotary Carnival promises to produce a pageant of rare beauty and interest. Some very elaborate costumes are being prepared and the result will be a fairyland of quaint garbs and rich colour. The revival of the old time Carnival is attracting a great deal of interest and many people who have not been in the rink in years will be on hand to-night. The Carnival itself, of course, is only part of the programme for there will be a list of ice races and in addition, the Kiwanis-Rotary Hockey Game, the latter being an event of sufficient fun-provoking possibilities to fill the rink The programme starts at 8 o'clock and the tickets are 35c. There should be a record crowd hand.

PETERBORO' DOGS WIN AT NEW YORK

Herbert S. Routley's Trent Valley Breed Carries Off Prizes.

The Westminster Kennel Club, Jubilee Show, Madison Gardens, New York, closed on Saturday evening, with one of the most successful events of its kind in America, 2,266 dogs of the finest class competing from Europe, England, Canada and United States. Many of these were International Champions, priceless specimens of their breeds.

With the largest entry of Springer Spaniels yet exhibited and judged by F. Neilson, of Shrewsbury, admitted authority on sporting breeds, a remarkable win, came to a Trent Valley bred specimen, "Trent Valley Cutie," bred and owned by Herbert S. Routley, winning the supreme honors, and competing against many noted European winners. "Cutie" took first prize, winners bitches, and four Specials, including the English Horsford Challenge Cup, for the best English Springer that had won at a recognized field trial either in Great Britian, Canada or the United States. Also the famous Brookside Springer Trophy, for the best Spaniel, bred and owned by a member, and two other Special prizes. Trent Valley Firelight another bred and owned by Mr. Routley, took first prize in Novice bitches, and Trent Valley Spark taking third in the open class. The "dual" field trial and show bench winner Trent Valley Flintlock owned by Mr. Donald Carr, the famous golf expert of Mount Kisco, N. The first prize in Puppy and in novice dogs, were also sired by dogs owned by the Trent Valley kennels.

Prince Albert Voting Gives Premier King Very Large Majority

Captain Burgess, M.C., Defeated By Over 6,000 Votes, Losing His Deposit—Second Liberal Prime Minister To Represent Constituency.

FEW CONSERVATIVES SUPPORT BURGESS.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Feb. 16 (Canadian Press).—For the second time in its history the Federal constituency of Prince Albert has elected a Premier and a leader of the Liberal party as its representative in the House of Commons.

Prime Minister William Lyon Mackenzie King, following in the footsteps of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, was the successful candidate in the Federal bye-election held here yesterday, and his majority, when the complete returns are in, is expected to be between 6,000 and 6,500. Sir Wilfrid was elected to the seat in 1896.

The voters of the constituency literally snowed Capt. Burgess, M. C., Independent, under an avalanche of ballots.

Premier King will receive a majority greater than the total vote cast for Charles MacDonald, Liberal condidate elected to the seat in the ballotting on October 29th, while Captain Burgess will lose his deposit.

The actual vote falls short of the expectations of the campaign managers, who predicted a poll heavier than that of October 29th. The vote of yesterday will be approximately the same as that of the general election.

In statements, one wired from Ottawa and the other issued here, Premier King and Mr. Burgess last night expressed their appreciation of the support accorded them. Mr. King's telegram was brief but Mr. Burgess, in his statement, took occasion to blame the Provincial Government for his defeat.

The first polls to report last night left little doubt as to the outcome. Mr. Burgess had stated he expected majorities in the communities whose population was of British origin. Prince Albert city, which in the Federal election of October 29, when Liberal, Progressive and Conservative contested the seat, gave the Conservative a plurality, yesterday gave the Liberal candidate nearly 850 majority.

Other points which had similarly been counted on for support by Mr. Burgess, Shellbrook, Canwood and Debden, gave Mr. King a substantial majority. Final reports on the voting will not be known for four days. It will take that time for the outlying polls in the northern section of the constituency to report. Writs will be mailed on Friday, according to present plans, allowing Premier King to take his seat in the House some time next week.

Mr. Agnew stated last night that a protest against the manner in which the ballots were printed would be pressed. He has claimed that the Dominion Elections Act was violated in that the names of the ballots were not printed exactly as in the nomination papers.

Premier King's majority was taken in Liberal quarters to indicate that the Progressive and Liberal vote which in the Federal election of October 29 was divided between Mr. MacDonald, Liberal, and I. J. Diefenbaker, Progressive, had gone solidly for Premier King.

The returns indicated that Mr. Burgess had received only a portion of the vote accorded the Conservative candidate in the election of October 29th.

COMPLAINTS OF LAST YEAR TOLD

Commercial Protective Association Submits Letters Sent Premier.

AT CUSTOMS PROBE.

OTTAWA, Feb. 16 (Canadian Press)—Representations made more than a year ago by the Commercial Protective Association to Premier King and other members of the cabinet concerning smuggling were discussed this morning at the customs probe. R. P. Sparks, president of the Association, read letters which he had written to Premier King giving the result of investigations by the Association's detectives and asking for drastic measures against smuggling.

Mr. Sparks had previously informed Hon. Jacques Bureau, then Minister of Customs, that the Association had good reason to believe that J. E. Bisaillon, former customs inspector of the port of Montreal, was dishonest and that there could be no effective administration of that port until Bisaillon was replaced. Mr. Bureau replied, said Mr. Sparks, that Bisaillon was satisfactory to him and Mr. Bureau would hear nothing against him.

NEW DIVISION IS COMING TO-NIGHT

Expresses Regret at Effect of Trade Agreement on Dairying.

LIBERAL CAUCUS.

OTTAWA, Feb. 16 (Canadian Press). — A division on the Conservative amendment to the address is expected in the House to-night. This is the second amendment to the address moved by the Opposition. It expresses regret that the effect of the recent trade agreements made by the Government have adversely affected Canadian dairying. The amendment has the Australian treaty chiefly in mind. For some days past there has been talk that, following the present amendment, the Conservatives will move another, expressing direct want of confidence in the Government. If this course is adopted there will be more debate on the address and the proposed six weeks' adjournment of the House still further reduced. Government supporters are meeting in caucus to-day to discuss the situation.

MAN SMOTHERED BY SNOW SLIDES

Railway Worker Was Buried in Cut Near Sydney.

BODY RECOVERED.

SYDNEY, N.S., Feb. 16 (Canadian Press)—Cecil Embre, 27, night operator at Grand Narrows, was smothered to death in a giant snow slide that overwhelmed the Canadian National railway plow special in the deep cut at Hector's Point, two and a half miles west of Iona at 11 o'clock last night.

Over two hours digging by the train crew was necessary to recover the body.

The consumption of electric power in Great Britain, it has been forecast by a government commission, will be tripled in the next 15 years.

Chimes To Be Placed In Murray Street Baptist Church

Given in Memory Of Harold Matthews, Killed Overseas

During the Sunday morning service in Murray Street Baptist Church, Dr. Rose announced to the congregation a gift of organ chimes, of the best quality, made by Deagan. This set of chimes is presented by Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Matthews as a memorial to their son Harold, who made the supreme sacrifice during the Great War. The installation will be made during the present repairs to the church and organ, made necessary by the recent fire, and will be ready for use in the near future.

BOARD OF HEALTH PROPOSES TO LICENSE MILK PRODUCERS

29 Deaths In Los Angeles From Smallpox Epidemic

VICTORIA ,B.C., Feb. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Steps are being taken by the British Columbia Board of Health to prevent the spread to British Columbia of the small pox epidemic now sweeping through California. As an initial precaution the Board is urging on the public the desirabilty of vaccnation.

There have been 200 cases and 29 deaths in Los Angeles so far.

New Step Taken To Protect People Against Impurities.

SEEK ADVICE.

Chairman Declares People Should Have Assurance Milk Is Good.

This morning at the meeting of the Board of Health in the committee room of the City Buildings, a step was taken to insure Peterborough people against impure milk supplies when a resolution was prepared for submission to the Council with a view to obtaining legislation in that regard.

It was moved that the Council be requested to pass a by-law to require producers of milk sold in the City to take out a license and pay a fee of $2.00 a year and to increase the license fee for vendors. An additional clause is to the effect that the vendors be required to procure the milk for use in the City from licensed producers only.

In order to aid in the campaign for pure milk it was decided that information be obtained from the Veterinary General of Ottawa and from Mr. Reid of Belleville and that in the communications sent to them, would be conveyed the more important features of the situation which exists in the city at the present time.

The report of a recent milk test showed that three samples were below the required butter fat percentage. Alderman Hancock, chairman of the board, said that the people of the city should have some definite assurance that the milk they purchased was coming from a clean, sanitary environment.

Charles Stapleton injected the humorous touch when he remarked that a test had been carried out for a man who had two cows and a goat. "The test showed," he said, "that the goat was the best cow the man had." Mr. Stapleton declared that the test was becoming much more satisfactory than formerly and that there had been a vast improvement in he last two years.

On the report from the plumbing inspector, it was decided to issue notices that sanitary conveniences must be installed by May 1 in two houses which he mentioned.

Send Bills.

In an effort to clear the city of any unjustifiable onus resulting from cases being treated in the hospitals and the bills being rendered to the Board of Health for settlement, the Board to-day decided to bill two who had been patients in the Queen Mary hospital. One of the patients was a domestic while the other was the daughter of a lady employed in a local hotel. In the discussion which arose His Worship, Mayor Holloway contended that some responsibility should devolve upon the employer and that in any case people working for a living and being paid for their work had no right to ask the city to pay their hospital bills. In the one case, the girl had had an attack of mumps and in view of the fact that it is a contagious disease and the hotel was not forced to close its doors by virtue of the patients removal he thought that the hotel proprietors should assume part, at least, of the responsibility for settlement.

The estimates for expenditures, as prepared for perusal of the Council, was fully discussed and were allowed to remain practically the same as those for last year.

Those present at the meeting were: Alderman Hancock, chairman, His Worship, W. T. Holloway and Dr. J. O'Brien.

ROBERT STUART WILL DIVIDES OVER $2,000,000

Mrs. G. A. MacDonald, of Peterborough, Shares in Million

WITH BROTHERS.

Widow Gets Million From Estate of Quaker Oats Director.

CHICAGO, Feb. 16 (Special to The Examiner). — Mrs. Margaret Stuart Macdonald, 300 London Street, Peterboro, and her two brothers, John Stuart and Robert Stuart, will divide approximately one million dollars, according to the provisions of the will of their father, Robert D. Stuart, which was filed here late yesterday.

Mrs. Margaret Stuart, the widow, was left the income from one million dollars of the $2,100,000 estate. After several bequests to charity and relatives had been made, the remainder of the estate went to the three children. William D. McKenzie, Stuart's lawyer, estimated that they would share about one million dollars. Stuart, who died on January 26 at Pinehurst, N.C., was a director in the Quaker Oats Co., and was formerly president of a local bank.

TOO MUCH INTERFERENCE

Government Has Demoralized Markets, Says Chicago Man.

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Arthur W. Cutten, a prominent grain operator, believes that "government interference has demoralized the grain markets" and is driving this country's business to Winnipeg.

"Misunderstanding of the function that speculation performs has led to a series of ruling which, instead of helping matters for the farmer makes them worse", Mr. Cutten said.

PRINCE OF WALES URGES BRITISH MANUFACTURERS TO PUT FORTH EVERY EFFORT FOR WORLD TRADE

Spoke at British Industries Fair Banquet to Distinguished Assembly.

FULLY RECOVERED

Prince Found Great Potential Demand for British Goods on Tour.

LONDON, Feb. 16 (Canadian Press)—The Prince of Wales able to discard his arm sling for the first time since January 28 when he broke his collar bone in a hunting fall, spoke at the Mansion House last evening to distinguished gathering attending the inaugural banquet of the British Industries Fair. The fair opened yesterday simultaneously at London and Birmingham.

The Prince's speech recalled his father's famous "Wake Up, England," speech, made after the return of King George, then the Prince of Wales, from the colonies. At that time the present king made a rousing appeal to the nation for greater commercial enterprise.

After referring to the personal interest of their majesties in the fair, the speaker welcomed the visitors from overseas. Of these he said the fair "may help them to realize that even if we do suffer from a nightmare we still are able to get on with the job." He expressed the hope that the foreign guests would tell their compatriots that "we are not trembling on the brink of ruin, and that any reports to the effect that British trade is dead have at least — as Mark Twain would have said—been greatly exaggerated."

Demand for British Goods

The Prince continued: "I'm sure you will find at the fair the goods you require at the lowest price consistent with good workmanship, and that you will come back for more." He added that in expert opinion trade conditions at least show signs of improvement "I do not pretend to be an expert," he said. "But perhaps I have had more opportunity of travelling during the last seven years than is given to many men, and wherever I went I found an enormous potential demand for British goods.

"Throughout the empire sentiment plays a strong part in business transactions, and in competition for these markets we therefore start with an enormous initial advantage."

South America Friendly

Remarking that he had found abroad a real desire to trade with Great Britain, the prince continued: "For example, during my short tour of South America — a region which affords enormous scope for the development of our export trade — I was deeply impressed by the cordial sentiment toward this country manifested by the great republics I visited. This cordiality, I am convinced, was not merely courtesy to myself, but the result of the way in which our countrymen have co-operated in the development of those countries and by their energy contributed in no small degree to the state of prosperity which now obtains."

The Prince then urged manufacturers to exert the utmost energy in exploring new avenues of business. He expatiated on the great possibilities of economic development He concluded with an exhortation to manufacturers not to neglect home markets, which, he said, give splendid opportunities for British trade.

NOW, HONESTLY—

Wonder if you feel the same way I do about grouchy, sour by people.

Nuisance, aren't they?

And yet we get that way ourselves, sometimes.

Why? Nobody really knows. We just explain that we got out the wrong side of the bed.

'Twould seem that it would be far better to stay up all night—then we couldn't get out the wrong side.

And besides—in that case we'd really have a reason for feeling grouchy.

DEPUTIES VOTE CONFIDENCE IN PREMIER BRIAND

Bitter Session Lasting All Night Ends in Victory.

BUDGET PASSES

Marks Beginning of Downfall of Socialists as Power in House.

PARIS, Feb. 16.—(United Press and Canadian Press).—After many weeks of dickering and delay and at the close of a night marked by the most bitter recriminations between Socialists and Government men, the Chamber early to-day gave Premier Briand a vote of confidence, 258 to 145, on his preliminary budget project.

The Socialists finally restrained from voting. Now the measure goes to the Senate, and its reception there will determine the fate of the Briand regime. The vote of confidence with the Socialists abstaining probably marks the end or at least the beginning of the end, of the Left cartel which for about two years has been a dominating force in French politics.

Briand has been manoeuvring for some days to weaken cartels' power and the present show-down after a bitter speech against the Socialists indicates that Briand is still the man of the hour. In his demand for action instead of long delays such as have marked the budget project for many weeks. The Socialists were unable to force some of their pet projects into the budget.

With fear of their constituents ever before their eyes, the deputies, of whatever party, could not bring themselves to vote fresh taxation. As a consequence, the financial bill is shorn of most of the measures intended to obtain the funds for balancing the budget.

FIREMEN BATTLE UP NEAR ROOF OF SKY SCRAPER

Blaze, Starting in Basement, Leaped Up Shaft To 34th Floor.

DAMAGE $60,000.

Men Rescued From Roof Structure—Bad Blaze in Toronto.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (Canadian Press)—Forty storeys above Broadway, firemen today waged a successful and spectacular fight against fire in the $30,000,000 Equitable Building, one of the largest office structures in the world. Most of the damage, estimated at $60,000, was in the 34th and 35th floors. The blaze originated in the basement of the skyscraper and leaped through the shaft containing the electric light catbles to the 11th, 16th, 24th, and 34th and 35th floors skipping those that intervened. Four engineers and repair men were trapped in the penthouse, a three-storey super-structure on the roof, chiefly containing elevator machinery, and were found by the firemen on a narrow ledge, 43 storeys above the street level. The only ladder available was a short one, which was placed on the shoulders of the tallest fireman to reach the trapped men.

An elevator stalled between the 28th and 29th floors with five firemen in it. They had to chop their way out. Five firemen suffered from smoke suffocation.

FIRE IN TORONTO

TORONTO, Feb. 16 (Canadian Press).—Fire of unknown origin breaking out early today on the top floor of a three-storey building on Nelson Street occupied by Universal Printers and G. Trumper, a dress manufacturer, gave the firemen considerable trouble and caused damage estimated at $20,000. The fire blazed spectacularly in the wind and destroyed the 3rd floor and roof. Two hours of hard fighting extinguished it. The loss is covered by insurance.

LESS REQUIRED BY COMMITTEES FOR THIS YEAR

Property, Market and Health Need $14,305 During 1926.

NEARLY $2,000 LESS.

Legal Committee Appropriation is Cut Almost in Half.

The Property committee, for its various activities, will require less money than last year. The total is $14,305 made up of health department, $5,265; market $200; property, $490; and Isolation hospital, $8,350.

When the estimates were being considered Alderman Denne asked if all the inspectors were necessary when the amounts for the salaries of the plumbing and sanitary inspectors were discussed.

Ald. Fife said that there should be a salary alone and that there should not be an allowance for the use of the inspector's car.

An extra allowance for the sanitary inspector's transportation caused some discussion. It was said that he would have more work due to inspecting the dairies.

The Mayor urged that a higher license fee should be charged for vending milk so that there would be fewer vendors supplying better milk. He suggested a fee of $10.

Ald. Fife opposed allowances to either inspector, claiming that a salary should be paid and if the work weren't done the jobs should be opened.

Ald. Ackerman suggested that the vendors be required to produce a certificate from the sanitary inspector before getting a license.

Ald. Ackerman urged that other municipalities be communicated with so that some steps might be taken to prevent spending money in keeping up an isolation hospital with a full staff all the time.

Flags for City Buildings

Two flags will be ordered for the pavement in front of the City Clerk's and City Treasurer's offices.

When the matter came up Mayor Holloway said that the flags should be put in sockets on the buildings but the difficulty of finding positions to place the flags in a line was pointed out.

The matter of the gasoline tank on the market square was the cause of some discussion. Some of the Aldermen favored putting the tank on the same basis as those on the same basis as those on the streets, that is at a tax of $25 a year. Others favored ordering the tank removed.

The Board of Health suggested that the scavengers be paid by the city and the fees collected in the taxes. Some of the Aldermen opposed the idea, seeing danger of trouble if the man neglected his work.

A by-law will be prepared and sent to the council giving the Plumbing Inspector supervision over the installation of gas fixtures.

The chairman, the Mayor and Ald. Denne and Greene are a committee to look into the Market by-law with a view to revising it.

The Legal Committee also reduced its estimates from last year. The total estimated is $3840, while last year $7100 was provided, of which, $3,249.02 was spent. The amounts provided are:

Salary of City Solicitor .$1200.
Solicitor's Disbursements $100.
Postage and Incidentals $500.
Premium on Guarantee Bond $1540.
Damages for Injuries $500.

The increases over last year's expenditure is on the guarantee bond which last year cost only $760.

The claim of Mr. Grisdale for damages done to his car, done on the approach to his home was laid aside as it was felt that the approaches had been made as well as possible.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS BEFORE HOUSE SLIGHT, OPPOSITION SAYS

Only One Government Notice — Conservatives Deny Holding Up Business of the Country — Dr. Tolmie Criticizes Immigration Plans.

OTTAWA, Feb. 16 (Canadian Press).—R. K. Anderson (Conservative Halton) continued the debate on the Address in the House of Commons Monday. Dr. Anderson summarized the order paper of the House which had been steadily growing larger. There were 140 questions unanswered, and 49 notices of motion for the production of papers. The public bills and orders as shown on the order paper, were nearly all presented by Conservatives. As for Government notices, there was only one. It was for the creation of a committee to select the membership of standing committees and as such, was six weeks late. No business had been given to the House by the Government and the Minister of Agriculture was not justified in saying that the Conservatives were holding up the business of the country.

Dr. Anderson was opposed to adjournment. An adjournment of five weeks would cost $250,000 and it would be for the sole purpose of trying to reconstruct the Government.

Hanging by Boot Straps.

Hon. S. F. Tolmie (Conservative, Victoria) remarked that the Prime Minister was "Hanging on by his boot straps" to office. Prior to the last general election, the Prime Minister had said that he was consulting the people because he needed sufficient majority to carry on. He had also said that if he did not get this majority, he would resign. There was no hint of resignation at present. Instead, the Prime Minister, after having prospected carefully all the prospects in Eastern constituencies, had gone away out to Prince Albert to try and find a seat. Out there, he had told the people that his effort was to link up the East and the West. The fact that the Prime Minister was running in Prince Albert would not help to link up the East and the West, Dr. Tolmie said. Steps to accomplish that consisted of reduced freight rates and a real effort by people of both East and West to understand each others' difficulties.

If the Prime Minister could not be elected in Saskatchewan he could not succeed anywhere, Dr. Tolmie said. The Dunning machine in Saskatchewan had things under control. It controlled the important section of the press, the Radio system, and even the telephones were Government controlled.

C. R. McIntosh (Liberal, North Battleford) objected to Dr. Tolmie's declaration that the Dunning Government controlled the press. "I control some of the papers, and no Government controls me," he said.

"I might point out to the Hon. Member that the speaker referred to important news papers," remarked Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen.

No good could come from the present condition. It would be better to have "A general clean-up, a new election, and a party in power with a working majority," said Dr. Tolmie.

Railway Debt. $573,000,000

The National Railways had an accumulated debt of $573,000,000 from the past five years' operation he continued. The National Railway had had no support from the Government in the very important matter of immigration. Both railway presidents, as well as many prominent people in Canada were emphatic in their statement of the need of immigration for Canada. The Government could not afford to sidestep this important issue any longer. In 1911 there had been 682,000 occupied farms in Canada, and in 1920 there had been 711,000 of which 14,000 were soldier settlement farms. Thus the net increase had been less than 15,000 new farms. The Government only spent 20 cents per head on immigrants after arrival, while colonization ought to be the main feature of any immigration programme. If colonization could not be carried on satisfactorily, it would be better to scrap the Department of Immigration entirely. Dr. Tolmie pointed to the importance of immigration from the United States. In this, the railways, by co-operation could do a great work.

The Government's immigration policy enunciated in the Speech from the Throne, stated Dr. Tolmie, contained "None of the elements of success." Although the Government had endeavored to bring in settlers during the past four years, its efforts had produced little result. The present administration now expressed its intention of bringing in 200,000 farm workers under what was known as the three-pound plan."

From information Dr. Tolmie had received however, he believed that Canada could only absorb from 25,000 to 30,000 farm workers who could be given farm work the year around. The remainder of 175,000 farm workers, assuming that the Government did bring them in, would drift into cities or to the United States. Plans should be made for the proper absorption of newcomers and for that reason a proper colonization scheme should be put into effect.

Urges High Tariff

C. H. Dickie (Conservative, Nanaimo) urged a high tariff. "Let us get in the van of progress instead of being the camp followers of nations," he said.

The world was increasing its tariffs while Canada was letting hers slip away. The duty on wheat should be as high as United States duty on Canadian wheat. "We want to trade with them, but we want an even break,' he said.

Discussing pulp and paper conditions in Canada, Mr. Dickie stated that during the last fiscal year $133,000,000 worth of pulp was manufactured into paper, while $41 000,000 worth of pulp was exported. In other words, 28.6 per cent of all pulpwood cut in the Dominion was exported into the United States. This exportation was equivalent to a loss to Canada of $35,000,000. Canadian workment were deprived of their proper employment through sending this amount of pulpwood to the United States for manufacture.

Mr. Dickie suggested informing the United States that on January 1, 1928, "not one stick of pulpwood shall be exported under a duty of four or five dollars a cord—meaning practically an embargo." This would give American industries sufficient time in which to transfer their plants to Canada. Canadian pulpwood should not be exported for the purpose of building up the industrial centres on the other side. A policy of building up Canada for Canadians was, in his opinion, the only proper one.

What Canada needed was a policy which would build up our industrial life and give the manufacturers of Canada an opportunity to pay as good wages as those in the United States. This would solve Canada's emigration problem. Mr. Dickie asserted steps would have to be taken to see that the manufacturers did not attempt to profit by the tariff.

Destructive Tactics.

Hon. Dr. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works said that since the election, the Conservative opposition "Disappointed and destructive," had pursued the same tactics, blindly seeking to fulfill its desire to gain possession of the treasury benches. They had tried to represent that it was more important to be elected to parliament in one constituency rather than another. All the Prime Ministers of Canada have suffered defeat in their own constituency at some time or another, he said. Having failed at election in North York, it was right and proper that the Prime Minister should select a Western constituency. Sir John A. MacDonald and Sir Wilfred Laurier had both done so during their political career.

"For party advantage," he said, "the Conservatives had sought to prevent Premier King from coming into this Parliament at an early date." The Opposition had used the "cumbersome machinery of our Election Act" to accomplish this. The Government, said Dr. King, was asking no quarter. The Prime Minister would be elected.

"He is elected," said one of the Liberal members, and there was loud applause from the Liberal benches.

MANY PEOPLE KILLED BY FIRE

Blaze in Australian Bush Has Already Caused 28 Deaths.

VILLAGES BURNED.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Feb. 16.—(Canadian Press). — Twenty eight persons have perished in bush fires in Victoria and many others are said to be missing. Nineteen fatalities have occurred at Powell Town, in the Warburton District. Seventeen persons were surrounded by flames on a narrow tramway line at Powell Town and eleven of them perished. Women vied with men in the rescue work.

The flames have destroyed houses, timber mills and farms. Erica and Noojez, small towns in Gippsland, have been damaged. Acting Premier Peacock says the fires are the most disastrous in the history of Victoria. He says the Government will aid the farmers who have been burned out.

DRIVING OUT OF RUTS

Attempting to drive out of a deep rut places a severe strain on the parts of the front axle assembly. But if the car is brought to a complete stop, the wheels are turned to one side as far as possible, and the car backed, the wheels will easily mount the sides of the ruts without the least strain.

Vapors Check a Cold Overnight

There are many ways to treat a cold but only one DIRECT way—with vapors that can be inhaled.

Vapors penetrate immediately into every corner of the air passages and lungs, soothing and healing with every breath.

Vicks is so remarkably successful in treating cold troubles because it acts like a "vapor lamp in salve form."

When rubbed over throat and chest the body heat releases vapors of Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Turpentine. At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster.

This double, direct action often checks the worst cold overnight.

COUNTESS FIGHTS IMMIGRATION BOARD'S ORDER FOR DEPORTATION

Unwarranted Invasion by the Government Into Field of Domestic Relations—Several Societies Oppose Action of Immigration Officials.

CANNOT BE DEPORTED TILL FEB. 27TH

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (Canadian Press)—The "legality, the common sense and the justice" of deporting the Countess of Cathcart from New York on grounds of moral turpitude because of her elopement with the Earl of Craven, were challenged before the Labor Department board of review Monday by her counsel.

Issuance of any such order, it was contended, would constitute an unwarranted invasion by the Government into the field of domestic relations under a law which made such action not mandatory but merely discretionary.

Prior to the hearing, which was held behind closed doors over the protest of William A. Deford, of New York, and Wilton J. Lambert, of this city, counsel for the countess, the Labor Department, at the request of Immigration Commissioner Curran at New York, issued an order for the arrest of the Earl of Craven.

Earl to Montreal

This was done before it was learned that the Earl had gone to Montreal, but assistant Secretary White, in charge of immigration matters, said the "primary purpose," which "was to get him out of this country" had been accomplished. Should he return, he would be liable to arrest under the warrant for hearing on deportation charges.

The hearing on the countess' case yesterday saw delegations from both the National Woman's Party and the American Civil Liberties Union unsuccessfuly endeavoring to obtain admittance to the board room to present their view

The Woman's Party desired to protest aaginst the "double standard" of morality and the "discrimination" it saw in the admission of the Earl of Craven to the United States and the barring of the countess, but officials explained that the hearing was confined to consideration of the countess' case, without taking up that of the earl. The party was acting, its spokesman asserted, "on behalf of American women," as "it involves the status of all the women of our country."

Censor Private Morality

The Civil Liberties Union contended that to apply the law of deportation in the case would make the Government a censor of morals, applying its rules to private morality instead of to public crimes.

The Woman's Party was offered a hearing before Assistant Secretary White but declined, as it had stated its protest before him Saturday. It then adjourned to the sidewalk in front of the labor department building and held a mass meeting of protest against the proceedings.

Upon the conclusion of the hearing, the board of review took the case under advisement, promising to transmit its recommendations speedily to Assistant Secretary White for final action. Should its decision uphold the action of the New York immigration authorities in refusing to admit the countess to the United States, her counsel said they would seek to appeal directly to Secretary of Labor Davis, who, they contended, had the right under the law to modify or waive entirely any deportation decision.

Stays Till February 27

In any event, the countess cannot be deported before February 27, as the law provides for deportation on the same steamship line that brought the alien involved to this country, and no Cunarder is sailing before that date.

In a message to the Woman's Party yesterday she said:

"I thank you all for your kind interest and support. I hoped the past was dead for my children's sake, but now I am being stoned and branded and only God knows what is in my heart."

MILL DAMAGED BY FIRE AT BRAMPTON

Loss of About $20,000 Incurred—Elevator Saved.

BRAMPTON, Feb. 16 (Canadian Press).—Fire broke out about 10.30 o'clock last night in the plant of the Brampton Milling Company, owned by A. H. Balfour, and did damage to the extent of about $20,000. A short circuit or spontaneous combustion is thought to have been the cause.

The mill, a three-storey wooden structure, covered with galvanized iron, was completely destroyed, but the elevator was saved after a hard fight. The building was erected over thirty years ago.

W. I. PROGRAMME BY GRANDMOTHERS

Many Humorous Sketches and Readings Were Entertaining Feature.

ROSENEATH, Feb. 16. — The Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Albert Halstead on Thursday afternoon with a fairly good attendance.

After the opening exercises had been gone through, Mrs. O. Varcae reported the disposal of the clothing that had been given to a family in need. A report of the social given a week ago was given by the secretary and it was decided to have another entertainment on the 17th of March with a competent committee in charge.

It was passed unanimously to invite Mrs. W. J. Jibb of Fenella to be present at some future meeting to give her report of the Convention as she was representative chosen by the district. This Branch did not send a delegate to the last convention.

The advisability of putting on a play the 24th of May was discussed and a committee was appointed to carry on this work.

The grand-mothers of the Institute put on the programme for the meeting which consisted of readings by the following: Mrs. J. Robins, Mrs. O. Varcoe and Mrs. F. Nichol. Mrs. A. Campbell also gave a short reading on the lowly potato. These readings were all very interesting and some quite humorous.

The programme committee for the next meeting are Mrs Andrew Brown and Mrs. Mouncey.

A hearty vote of thanks was given the hostess who afterward served lunch.

The following day will be Ash Wednesday, marking the beginning of Lent, when social gaieties will give place to a season of fasting and prayer for forty days. Lent will be especially observed in the Episcopal and Catholic churches, where special services will be held on Ash Wednesday, Holy Week, Good Friday, Palm Sunday, and ending with the grand triumphant service on Easter Sunday.

The word "Lent", which is derived from the Anglo-Saxon "lencten spring," from the season in which it occurs, is used to designate the solemn period of devotion and abstinence which has from early times preceded the feast of Easter. It is mentioned as early as the time of Irenaeus in the second century and he speaks of it as not merely something of his own time but of much earlier date. It was arranged to extend over a period of forty days (not including Sundays) in order to correspond with the forty days of Christ's temptation in the wilderness and so to teach the great test to which every human life must be subjected to prepare it for its appointed duty and victory.

It is, in fact, an episode in the Christian life not to be evaded by those who make the year the following of the pathway of Christ through human life from the manger of Bethlehem which is in sight at Christmas to the triumph of Easter. Along this pathway leads inevitably to the Passion and those who learn the meaning of that Passion in the voluntary observance of the Lenten season will not, says the church, blench from the temptations and sorrows of life when they come in the sure course of experience.

The forty days of Lent, ecclesiastically, call upon the faithful children of the church for abstinence from the ordinary social pleasures for special devotion to the duties of the Christian life, for the exercise of self-restraint and self-sacrifice and for a general bracing of the tone of the spiritual life by devout reference to the standard set by Christ Himself.

Up to the sixth century the Lenten period covered only thirty-six days, this being a tenth of the year and, figureatively, a tithe of the Christian's time. It is generally accepted that the time was lengthened by Pope Gregory the Great.

Ash Wednesday, the first day of Lent, is so called because in the Roman Catholic church it begins with the solemn ceremony that has given the day its name. After a supplicatory service, the devout approach the altar rail and the priest places ashes on the head of each, reciting in Latin, "Remember, man, that thou art dust, and shalt return to dust." The ashes are customarily obtained by burning the palms of the previous year.

The administration of the ashes originally was made only to public penitents, who had to appear before the church door with bare feet and in penitential garb. After their penances were declared, they were admitted and the rite was performed. Other persons were allowed to join them, out of affection and humility, and the rite finally became general. The fast of Ash Wednesday is more rigorously observed than any other day of the church year except the four days immediately preceding Easter.

The carnival, of which this is the last day, come from the Latin words meaning a farewell to flesh-meat, and the name Shrove Tuesday implies a day whereon it is fitting that the faithful attend confession and be shriven.

The woman who was alone, apparently did not notice the approach of the train which was travelling at a high rate of speed and drove upon the tracks directly in front of the West bound express.

All are expected to recover.

ENTERED CANADA JAPANESE WOMEN

Two Purpose Going To U.S. as Teachers.

OTTAWA, Feb. 16.— (Canadian Press.)— The question of the reported entry into Canada of the Japanese women graduates of Tokio Normal College, who proposed to leave shortly for the United States to give tuition to Japanese children there, was brought up in the House yesterday afternoon by A. W. Neill (Independent, Comox-Alberni).

Mr. Neill asked under what section of the Gentleman's Agreement, had these women entered the Dominion. Had they come as agriculturists or as married women.

Hon. Chas. Stewart, Minister of the Interior, replied that he would investigate the report at the earliest possible moment. This was the first intimation that he had received directly of the entry of the women in question.

LORD BYNG REGRETS PRELATE'S ILLNESS

Archbishop Roy Sinking Fast Last Night.

QUEBEC, Que., Feb. 16.—(Canadian Press.) — Major J. P. U. Archambault, aide de camp to His Excellency, Governor General, the Lord Byng of Vimy, called at the Archbishop's palace yesterday at the request of the Governor General to inquire into the condition of His Grace, Archbishop P. E. Roy and to convey to the Administrator of the Diocese, Bishop J. A. Langlois, the sincere regrets of Governor General Byng and Lady Bygn in connection with Mgr. Roy's illness.

Major Archambault afterwards sent a message to the private secretary of the Governor General informing the latter that Archbishop Roy was sinking rapidly.

Inquiry at the Archbishop's Palace yesterday afternoon elicited the information that there had been no change in Mgr. Roy's condition during the morning.

Relieved After Other Remedies Had Failed

Ontario Lady Very Enthusiastic About Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. P. Alexander Was Run Down, Had Pains in Her Back and Her Blood Was in Poor Condition.

NICKLETON, Ont., Feb. 15.—(Special).—One more tribute to the great work Dodd's Kidney Pills are doing for women of Canada comes from Mrs. P. Alexander, well known and highly respected here.

"I was very run down and often had pains in my back," Mrs. Alexander states. "My blood was also very bad. I read in the paper about Dodd's Kidney Pills and thought I'd try a box. I have tried many other medicines and they did not relieve the pain in my back. Shortly after taking half a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills I felt my pain was not so severe, so I continued taking them—three boxes altogether and can say they have no equal for kidney trouble. My father would never be without them in the house. He suffered very much from kidney trouble."

Weak, nervous, run-down women should give Dodd's Kidney Pills a trial at once.

ROTARY CARNIVAL.

The big Carnival held under the auspices of the Rotary Club in Brock Street Rink last evening was an extremely successful event. Gate receipts, which will be used for the Rotary Club's Charity Fund, were considerably over two hundred dollars, and it was a crowd of nearly seven hundred people who took part in some way, either as participants in the skating carnival or as onlookers, with a total of about three hundred skaters on the ice, over one hundred of whom were in costume.

The rule which barred Rotary Club members from receiving prizes for costumes excluded several extremely good outfits, which added much to the gayety of the bright scene on the ice, many of the Rotarians having donned picturesque and original outfits for the event. The judges, Mrs. C. G. Graham, Mrs. Gordon Matthews, Mrs. J. Primeau, Mrs. Robt. Abbott, Mrs. Gerald McClelland and Miss Catheleen McCarthy of The Examiner staff, had considerable difficulty in awarding the prizes for costumes, as those taking part in the carnival went to extreme lengths in some instances to achieve notable outfits. Some of those that were extremely good were: Mrs. G. Ray Scott, as a trim maid, in black and white costume; Ken Graham as a clown with orange and blue stripes and a shock of vermilion hair; Mrs. Gerald McClelland as an extremely rakish "farmer's boy," with overalls, slouch hat and corncob pipe; Robert Dobie as a policeman; Miss Jean Eastwood and Mrs. Gerald Wood as soldiers, with crimson coats and muffin caps; Chris. Graham as a gorilla, with brown hairy suit and elongated tail; Margaret Borbridge and Mary Mulholland in "black cat" outfits, complete with long whiskers and big red neck bows; Jerry McClelland as a clown with long 'Mutt' nose; Gordon Matthews in a gorgeous Mandarin costume, with fair beard and large flat hat; J. H. Seels as a negro coachman, in black top hat and white long coat, adorned with red buttons; Mrs. Alan Cameron in a nurse's uniform; Mrs. Gordon Matthews and Mrs. Lionel Scott as gypsies; Bob Abbott as a "hill billy," with "rube" hat and short pants above bare knees; Mrs. Abbott as a pretty red and white Valentine; Jack Primeau as the "Count of No-Account," with white trousers, red coat and small black hat; Fred Morrison in an extremely clever impersonation of the Mad Hatter of the famous "Alice in Wonderland" tea party, with an enormous black hat over a pendant false face; Mrs. Fred. Roy as a gypsy queen and Mr. Roy in the black and white of a Pierrot costume; Miss Lenore Lyle in one of the funniest get-ups of the evening, as "Charley's Aunt from Brazil, where the nuts come from," an ancient lady with black mittens, brown shawl, overhanging bird-trimmed hat, spectacles and a row of extra false teeth; Mildred Mortimer as a Pierrette; Ross Dobbin as a rube policeman with waving whiskers; A. L. Killaly as a workman in dungarees and cap; Miss Gertrude Gimblett as an Indian Princess, with fringed leather suit; Percy Bond as Mary Martha Washington, a colored lady in yellow and green dress, with feather-trimmed straw hat and long earrings; Miss Forester Parsons in Colonial costume of purple velvet; the two small Herron children, Orrie and Orland, as a cunning bride and groom; Eunice Miller and Myrtle Melrose as Topsy, the former with a potato sack dress and inky face; Mrs. J. A. Morgan as a brilliant red and black Spanish Cavalier, with plumed hat; small Leslie Cheu as a cowboy; Miss Alma Fontaine in the dazzling white of a winter outfit; John Meehan and Joseph Jordan as two "Knights of the Road"; little Douglas MacPherson as a small Indian boy, with waving feather head-dress; Arthur Harris a good-looking Chef, in a white costume; little Sopha Yeotes as a cunning "bunny" with diminutive tail; James Petrie as a tall "coon parson," with long black coat and whiskers; and Carl Banks in a well-executed clown's outfit.

Prizes were finally awarded to the following:

For fancy dress, Ladies' first prize (fancy cushion) Miss Gertrude Gimblett as an Indian Princess; second prize (boudoir lamp) Mrs. Lionel Scott as a gypsy. Men's fancy dress (no entries) awarded to most original outfits; 1st prize (military brushes) John Meehan; second prize (golf hose) Joseph Jordon, both as Knights of the road. Girls' fancy dress, 1st prize (pullover sweater) little Orrie Herron, as a bride; second prize (three pound box of candy) Miss Alma Fontaine, as Winter; Boys' fancy dress, 1st prize (baseball glove) Orland Herron, as the bridegroom, second prize (watch) Leslie Cheu, as a cowboy; Ladies' comic costume, 1st prize (pullover sweater Miss Lenore Lyle, as Charley's Aunt, second prize, (bridge set) Eunice Miller, as Topsy; Gentleman-comic, 1st prize (blue sweater) Fred Morrison, as the Mad Hatter; second prize (Big Ben alarm clock) Mr. Percy Bond, as Mar. Martha Washington; girls comic, first prize (toque) Mary Mulholland, second prize (compact) Margaret Borbridge, both as Black Cats; boys' comic, first prize (belt set) Carl Banks as a clown, second prize (jack knife) little Douglas McPherson as an Indian boy.

A burlesque hockey match which occasioned much amusement, was contested between Rotary and Kiwanis Club members, an account of which appears in another coluumn. A feature of the play was the distressing illness of the policeman in charge (Robt. Dobie) who had to lie flat on the ice while the attending physicians (Drs. McPherson and Fraser) operated hastily on him with the aid of a saw and chisel. Mrs. Alan Cameron was the nurse in attendance on the patient.

The races, which were a portion of the evening's programme, were well contested and brought out a large number of entries, the boys' races proving particularly exciting. A feature of the girls' events was the friendly rivalry of the Mortimer sisters, both capable of speedy action on the ice. The prizes went to the following:

Boys' race (14 years and under), 1st prize (a book) won by Jack Wolstenholme; second prize (a box of butter scotch) won by George Milliken. Boys' race, 16 years and under, 1st prize (a flashlight) won by Stuart Cotton; second prize (a necktie) won by Donald Stewart; Boys' race, open, 1st prize (skis) won by George Milliken; second prize (box of cigars) won by Howard Doxsee. Girls' race (14 years and under), 1st prize (order on Neill's store) won by Mildred Mortimer; second prize (box of candy), won by Hilda Joyes. Girls' race (16 years and under), 1st prize (Eversharp pencil) won by Dorothy Mortimer; second prize (box of powder) won by Mildred Mortimer. Girls' race, open, 1st prize (lady's muffler) won by Dorothy Mortimer; second prize (auto mirror) won by Mildred Mortimer. Partners' race (box of cigars to the gentleman, toilet water to the lady) won by Dorothy Mortimer and Leslie Abraham, with honorable mention to the runners up, Mrs. G. McClelland and W. Jackson.

The energettic committee of gentlemen in charge of the arrangements for the Carnival was composed of Rotarians C. G. Graham (chairman), Gerald McClelland, Jack Primeau, Robert Abbott and Gordon Matthews.

SESSION OF HOUSE ON ASH WEDNESDAY

Unless Commons Decides To Adjourn To-day.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 16.—(Canadian Press.)—The House of Commons will sit on Wednesday, unless the debate on the address is concluded before that day. When the House opened Monday, Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, stated that the government proposed to follow the usual custom and sit on Ash Wednesday.

"Since when did it become the usual custom?" asked Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen.

"The House sat last year," said Mr. Robb.

"For the first time," replied Mr. Meighen.

The Minister said that he had looked over the list of the holidays which the government observed, and Ash Wednesday was not one of them.

VALENTINE TEAS

AT THE Y.W.C.A.

Last night the members of the elementary gymnasium class of the Y.W.C.A. entertained the members of the senior class at a Valentine party, which was attended by about sixty girls. The first hour was spent in gymnasium work, followed by games, dancing and Valentine contests. While refreshments were being enjoyed both classes put on very melodramatic stunts which brought forth much laughter.

Mrs. Morrison, residence superintendent of the Y.W.C.A., entertained the girls of the house department at a very pretty Valentine dinner yesterday evening. The tables and the dining-room were decorated in keeping with the occasion and red post office boxes on the tables provided a Valentine for each guest.

WOMEN'S CANADIAN CLUB.

Dr. Seraphin Marion of the Public Archives' Department, Ottawa, was the speaker at the meeting of the Women's Canadian Club yesterday, and gave an interesting address on "Fine Arts and French Literature."

Dr. Marion, who was introduced by the president, Mrs. F. D. Kerr, has a pleasant, well-modulated voice. His address, delivered with a characteristic Gaelic accent, abounded in well-rounded periods and quotations in French and was mainly a comprehensive review of a subject somewhat removed from the ordinary scope of the lecturer, the literature of France from a very early period, with a final glance at the Canadian literature of today.

Harking back to the Middle Ages, which Dr. Marion referred to as a period when poetry predominated over prose in literature, when imagination was the main faculty cultivated by writers and the predominating atmosphere was that of religion, the speaker said that the present passion plays had their origin at that time in the "mystery" plays of the Church, and declared that in this way, the Church itself was really the founder of the modern vaudeville and movie performance. The Crusaders weer also saddled by him with the responsibility for the cross word puzzle of today, a game similar to this having been invented by them at that period of history. To an age which is looked upon as backward the speaker pointed out the wonders of the cathedrals of that time as a refutation of such a charge.

During the period of the Renaissance, when Italy brought to France a new standard of beauty and learning, the writers of the latter country began to strive for cult and form. They loved fame, differing in this from the writers of the Middle Ages who often neglected to sign their own compositions, they had a passion for knowledge which led to one famous writer outlining a course of study for school-children that would have kept them at their books from morning until night and have filled even their hours of recreation with study of Greek and Latin, and they possessed a strong individuality in their work.

The keynote of this Golden Age was unity, with its two necessary corollaries of authority and discipline, and reason absolutely dethroned imagination in this period. The French classical art of the time was founded mainly on reason, and the period was called "The Age of Enlightenment." Destructive criticism also became the rage, and a reaction arose against the ideas of the earlier writers, who talked much of the duties of man, while their successors harped more on the rights of the individual, and "Liberty, equality and fraternity" became the watchwords of the France of that day.

Then came the inevitable change. Reason had choked imagination, but imagination once more came into its own when Romanticism became the cult of the French literateur. "Romanticism is hard to define," said the speaker. "Some have called it spiritualism in literature, others refer to it as Protestantism in literature, and others again say that Romanticism is poetry, while Classicism is prose. It was really an endeavor to express that side of life which cannot be explained by pure reason and was really a revolt against Classicism. The Classicist believed in hard work in achieving literary fame, while the Romanticist thought that genius came without effort and that rules were a hindrance rather than a help. It was the deification of imagination, and resulted in an outburst of lyrical poetry such as France has never since seen."

In 1850, declared Dr. Marion, the word "realism" came into use as a term of literary criticism, and truth drawn from nature was the watchword of its proponents. Realism aimed at reproducing slices of life cut at random from brute reality and the realists had a passion for exactitude and certitude. Some of them claimed that morality or immorality in art was none of their concern, and that art was beauty and beauty alone. The new school of impressionism which arose at this time drew some of its inspirations from such sources as prisons, hospitals and lunatic asylums and the novels of the day were said to be works that were merely picture galleries, hung with the momentary impressions of the searchers after the unusual and often the sordid aspect of life, striving to reproduce sensations experienced by their own highly-strung temperaments.

Then Symbolism became the passion of the literateur, and was a reaction against the scientific spirit of realism and naturalism. It was an attempt to evoke the sub-conscious life around us by subtle suggestion, and to interpret the hidden meanings of things. It stripped poetry of everything but its purely spiritual and musical elements and rejected precision in all forms. This form remained paramount until the Great War.

The French literature of today was referred to as one in which in one hundred books, there are only about five worthy of serious consideration, the great majority of novels declared the speaker, being composed without regard for the rules of French grammar, of commonsense or of logic. "Most of the artists seem to have the impression that a maximum of beauty may be attained by a delineation of extraordinary emotion or enthusiasm produced in people. The Greeks arrived at the same end, by the use, not of words, but of wine."

Speaking of Canadian literature, Dr. Marion pointed out that it had taken hundreds of years to produce the literature of other lands, and said that the majority of Canadians were occupied at the present time in fashioning the classics of the future by the creation of the railroads and the farms of the present.

A very hearty vote of thanks to the speaker was voiced by Miss Edith Murphy and seconded by Mrs. John Allan.

PANCAKE SOCIAL.

Women's Guild of St. Luke's Church Has Successful Affair.

The annual Pancake Social of the Women's Guild of St. Luke's Church was held last evening, and was an extremely successful affair, with a large attendance and a very enjoyable supper of pancakes and syrup and accessories provided by the ladies in charge, headed by the president of the Guild, Mrs. J. J. Turner. The tables were decorated with Valentine novelties. The buttermilk used in the manufacture of the pancakes, 16 gallons, was provided by Mr. G. A. Gillespie, and nine ladies were busy for hours making the pancakes for the crowd.

During the evening, a very enjoyable entertainment was provided, with a one-act farce entitled "Box and Cox," staged very successfully by Mr. Wm. Hepburn as "Box," Cecil Hope as "Cox" and Miss Queenie Hope as "Mrs. Bouncer," also several instrumental numbers by the church organist, Mr. W. Thompson, and vocal solos given by Miss Ida McBride and Mr. V. Boorman. Mrs. F. Whitehouse had charge of the programme.

ALCOHOL RELEASE NOW BEING PROBED

Customs Committee Seeks Information About Sale From Bond.

OTTAWA, Feb. 15.— (Canadian Press).—Negotiations for the release of alcohol from bond to the Dominion Distillers of Montreal were discussed at to-day's sitting of the Customs Committee. W. J. Hushion of Montreal, former Member of Parliament for St. Antoine, Montreal, and a shareholder in Dominion Distillers, was asked concerning his approaches to the Minister of Customs on behalf of the distillers for the purchase of some alcohol at about 35 cents a gallon. Mr. Hushion denied that he had any pecuniary interest in the transaction, "I might have done some missionary work for the distillers," he said. He had heard there were nine or ten trousand gallons of alcohol to be sold by Government and had approached the Minister when that gentleman happened to be in Montreal. He had offered 35 cents a gallon and Hon. G. H. Boivin had promised to see if the Government had any at the price. This morning Mr. Boivin tabled correspondence dealing with the release of 16,000 gallons of alcohol to the Dominion Distillers, recently in the House of Commons, Mr. Boivin was asked concerning the transaction, and replied that it was an ordinary business proceeding in which Government had disposed of a quantity of alcohol at a reasonable market price.

TOMORROW'S BENEFIT.

The benefit hockey game arranged for tomorrow night for Bert ("Shorty") Burgess, well-known local hockey player, who has been ordered by his physician to have complete rest for possibly a year, should enlist the hearty support of the sporting community.

Although not a native of Peterboro, Mr. Burgess, since coming to this city, has fought for the success of Peterboro in the hockey world with a spirit that won the admiration, not only of home fans, but of supporters of the teams encountered by the local club.

He has invariably given every ounce that was in him to the cause, and it is safe to say that few players who have worn the blue and white sweaters of Peterboro have been as generally popular as this game little battler from the Maritimes.

Now that the game of life has taken a "break" against him his numerous friends here know that he will continue to fight on, and the Examiner believes that the people of Peterboro will show their appreciation of his fine spirit by turning out in numbers for tomorrow night's game, which brings a Toronto all-star team here as opposition for the Peterboro Seniors, the proceeds to go to the Burgess benefit fund.

TEN TO ONE.

The average worker in industry in Ontario has an ordinary chance of working for ten years with one accident that is sufficiently serious to warrant it being reported to the Workmen's Compensation Board.

In normal times there are nearly 450,000 employees under compensation in this Province, and in the past eleven years there have been 502,014 accidents reported to the Board, indicating an average slightly in excess of one report for every ten workers per annum.

In the same eleven years there were 4.328 fatalities under compensation which represents an average of more than one death per day in that period.

One very encouraging feature of the reports of the Workmen's Compensation Board covering the year 1925 is that the death cases in that year showed a decrease of fifty-seven from 1924, there having been 402 death cases in 1924 and 345 in 1925.

A further decrease in serious accidents, including death cases, is something for which every employer and employee in industry in Ontario can conscientiously work with mutual satisfaction and benefit.

COBOURG'S SENSATION.

Cobourg is all stirred up over statements made at a recent Council meeting about lax conditions in the lakeshore town, especially as regards the smoking and drinking by children and young girls and to unseemly conduct in Cobourg's parks.

It is probable that Cobourg is no worse in these respects than any other Ontario town or city.

Everywhere there are signs of a looseness along the lines complained of, and the Examiner feels that the root of the trouble was uncovered by the Cobourg Councillor who bluntly declared that it would be better if parents would stay home sometimes themselves.

The absence of real home life is perhaps the principal cause of the situation, about which so much talk is being heard.

There are so many attractions that take people out at night that it is no wonder that, with their elders setting the example, children should develop habits that are causing concern.

Even the radio is not serving to keep the home circle intact; more often than not it is neglected until late at night and serves as an excuse for late hours, rather than as an amusement knitting the family together.

The controversy in Cobourg will probably peter out with no beneficial results.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN.

The Peterboro Rotary Club, which for some time has been looking after the crippled children of the city, has decided to extend its services to the children of the county, and with this end in view, the Clerks of the various townships are being communicated with in the hope that the townships will be able to take a survey in order to secure the necessary information as to the number of youngsters needing treatment.

The Rotary Club will co-operate with any of the townships in reviewing the cases, in supplying advice as to what treatment is required and attention to those cases that can be taken care of here, it being assumed that the township will assume any expense involved in the event of cases having to be sent to Toronto.

The first step naturally is to secure a list of crippled children, and it is hoped that the Township Councils will act upon the request of the Rotarians and have this information collected.

Possibly, in view of the benefits arising out of a successful completion of this work, the Township Assessors, some of whom have already commenced their duties, would be willing to undertake the task of securing the required details.

This would be a simple and effective way of conducting the survey, and Assessors who co-operate in this manner would have the satisfaction of knowing that they had contributed very materially toward brightening the future of many unfortunate youngsters.

SLANG AND GOOD ENGLISH.

It has been pointed out by an exchange that on a discussion of the use of slang by school children, an English instructor at a teachers' school declared that, "if we want our children to speak good English, they must obviously hear good English at home," says the Kingston Standard. No one must assume, however, that a child, just because he has heard correct English only, will speak correctly. He will make no mistake in the use of such concrete terms as "tree," or "man," but when he finds that "he" and "him" are applied to the same person, he will use the forms indifferently and is as likely to say "Him go," as "He goes." With this qualification one must agree with the lecturer that the way to learn a language is to hear it. His only complaint is that the school boy learns two languages, one from his parents and another from his playmates. He is, in fact, bilingual, with one vocabulary for the street and another for the home. It is to the street lingo, with its slang, that his teachers object.

The exposure to such influences may not after all be serious or lasting. Then, there is the question what constitutes slang. "Bootlegger" was once so classed, but it now bids fair to become as permanent a possession of the language as "skyscraper," while similar words, as "speak-easy," blind tiger" and "hole-in-the-wall," which have dropped out of use, are undoubtedly slang. In most cases of this kind there is already a word in the language that would have expressed all the speaker wished to convey. Some years ago the word "ringer" was applied to any person very similar to another in appearance, as in the expression, "a dead ringer for so-and-so"; it was connected somehow with the verb "ring in," but there had always existed in the language the word "double" to express the same idea. The habitual user of slang may be accused of ignorance of his own language.

The claim that slang is more expressive than the ordinary word for the same notion is open to criticism. It is the nature of slang to be new and so not always clear to the one who hears it. He may be, like the compiler of a dictionary of slang, who, read in an American newspaper that "a man seen out in the rain with a jag," and defined the word "jag" as "a small umbrella." But it is probably this very novelty that appeals to the school boy.

THE OLD TOWN HALL.

After many years of sorry neglect, the township hall and other community meeting-places scattered throughout the country appear to be coming into their own. An Eastern Ontario exchange tells us of improvements which are being made to one of these halls in a village not far distant where the Women's Institute, out of patience with the apathy and inactivity of the men, has assumed a duty long shirked and has commenced to make alterations and renovations which will render the building a much more agreeable place to frequent and one more in keeping with the dignity of the community. The stage is being re-constructed, new curtains have been placed in the windows, the sashes re-modelled to permit of ventilation (most crying need of all in most cases), the entire interior repainted and re-decorated, and new seating will follow. There are many other villages and hamlets in the district which can furnish similar illustrations of a new order of things as far as township halls are concerned. Community co-operation has, for instance, transformed a building of this type in the village of Elgin which was almost a reproach to the neighborhood into a fine, spacious, well-appointed gathering-place, one which any person may enter without fear of being obliged to send his clothing to the dry cleaner's or of being carried out in a state of semi-suffocation. And community co-operation has power to effect a similar transformation wherever such buildings continue to exist.

With the former condition of the particular hall under discussion we are not familiar. But from a fairly long and peculiarly disagreeable association with others in the same category, its state may well be imagined. The typical town hall in an Eastern Ontario village before the days when the Women's Institutes and kindred organizations began to make their presence and their influence felt, was old, dirty, uncomfortable and evil-smelling. The approach to its interior was, perhaps, by way of a dark and rickety staircase; the walls were time-stained and faded; the floor sometimes more than a match for any level. In one corner there stood a box stove of ancient pattern and limited usfeulness about which some of the male frequenters were wont to chat, smoke and expectorate. For those who did not indulge in these homely recreations, there were seats provided. And such seats! A dealer in antiques would have been in his glory. There were chairs with tottering legs, chairs with only three legs, chairs with broken backs, chairs without backs at all, and, crowning torture! wooden benches, occasionally arranged in tiers extending towards the ceiling. Upon a table before the unhappy speaker there smoked and sputtered two or three oil lamps, the odor from the burning of which added to the effluvium arising from the congested assemblage, and the complete lack of and distaste for ventilation made one lungful of pure, fresh air a thing to be prayed for. And over all there was dust and grime which seemed to be inches deep. A leakproof roof and four sound walls appeared to be all that the township council or whoever ran the place deemed necessary. And fumigation and a bath were the first things of which one thought after having penetrated to the confines of such a region.

Now all this is in process of disappearance, as the inhabitants of each neighborhood, and especially the women, have arrived at a determination to set things aright. The old Leeds boy who re-visits the scenes of his youth this summer and re-enters the familiar doorway of "the old town hall" will find himself in a new world, if he is fortunate enough to come from one of the villages which has undertaken this work. In place of the inadequate and smoking oil lamps, he will find a modern system of illumination; a furnace has replaced the box stove; no longer are windows hermetically sealed; the paint-brush has performed miracles in the rehabilitation of the walls, and the furniture dealer has been called into service to furnish chairs which, if not of that softness customarily associated with a Chesterfield, are, at least, presentable. And a caretaker makes it his duty to sweep, clean and dust the place regularly. Like many other things in the country, the town hall is improving. It is well.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

YOUR THOUGHT.

If you would be healthy, look to your thoughts. The health stream, if polluted at all, is polluted at the fountain-head—in the thought, in the ideal. You cannot hold ill-health thoughts, disease thoughts in the mind, without having them pictured in the body.

The thought will be expressed in the body somewhere, and its quality will determine the results—sound or unsound health or unhealthful. There cannot be harmony, cast in the body with disease in the mind.

Never affirm or repeat or think about your health what you do not wish to be true. Every man builds his own world, makes his own atmosphere.

He can fill it with difficulties, fears, doubts, despair, and gloom, so that his whole life will be influenced to gloom and disaster; or he can keep the atmosphere clear, transparent, and sweet by dispelling every gloomy, envious, malicious thought!

WESTERN BUYER FOR HOLSTEINS

Gordon Manhard, of Calgary, Is In Seymour—Honor For Alex Hume.

IS VICE-PRESIDENT.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 16. — Gordon Manhard of Calgary is in this vicinity for the purpose of purchasing 14 pure-bred Holstein cows for the West, animals which will, with their offspring, be fit for the show ring at the Fall Fairs in Alberta. He has travelled through different sections of Ontario and finally comes to Seymour to finish his work, having heard of the high-class stock that is raised in this section. While here he is the guest of P. B. Nelson, the well-known Holstein breeder.

Honor For Alex. Hume.

Alex. Hume of the Burnbrae district, was elected vice-president of the Ayrshire Breeders' Association of Canada at the annual meeting held last week in Toronto, at which he and F. M. Rutherford represented the Ayrshire Club of Menie. This means that Mr. Hume will next year have the first call on the presidency, a position which he held 15 years ago.

Mr. Hume is one of the pioneers in the breeding of Ayrshires in this district and one of the most successful. He is a past president of the Seymour Agricultural Society, and has held every office of importance in the Menie Ayrshire Club, of which he was one of the founders, the first organization of the kind ever formed in Canada. He is also a prominent figure in the various organizations of dairymen and his services are always in demand as judge at the agricultural fairs.

Held Successful Sale.

The ladies of Christ Church held a successful sale of home cooking and a tea in the Parish Hall Saturday afternoon. The attendance was good and every article offered for sale was quickly disposed of.

Wise and Otherwise.

The old time music is coming back. Only strange thing is it is coming back under its own names.

They want to revive the square dance, but this movement on foot is almost too sensible to succeed.

The waltz was a good dance. And while doing it you didn't have to wonder how you would get untangled.

Imagine a fellow ordering half-minute eggs. Pretty soft for some people.

HE—Do you mind if I smoke?
SHE—I should worry if ya burn up.

It takes two anybodys to make a bargain—and two hundred women to make a bargain sale.

Most popular dance step now seems to be sitting out.

The new dances are good exercise. They seem to develop almost everything, except discretion.

Women may have more sense than men. We don't know. A man might go around with his knees showing if they were good looking knees.

If they'd put "Post No Bills" on mail boxes, it would save a lot of us a lot of worry around the first of the month.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 15 (Canadian Press)—There was no improvement in the export trade in grain here today as the bulk of the cables received only asked for offers. Owing to the renewed strength in the United States market for millfeed of late and the advance of $2 per ton there was an increased inquiry from that source for bran today. The local market was steady with a moderate amount of trade passing. Manitoba bran sold at 30.25, shorts 32.25 and middling 39.25 per ton, including bags, ex-track, less 25c per ton for spot cash.

A steadier feeling prevailed in the local egg situation today. The demand, however, was small and prices remain as quoted on Saturday. Receipts today were 240 cases.

Prices for storage eggs were fully maintained today under an increased inquiry for supplies and somewhat smaller offerings. In a wholesale way sales of firsts were made at 23c, and seconds at 20c per dozen, the latter showing a further advance of 2c per dozen. Jobbing prices were unchanged.

The market for Quebec potatoes remains quiet. Prices are still unchanged at $3 to $3.10 per bag of 90 pounds, ex-track.

There was no change in the butter situation.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 15 (Canadian Press)—The egg market held fairly strong over the week-end with prices well maintained through out the East. British Columbia has undergone a slight price reduction.

Toronto extras are not plentiful and are jobbing at 42 to 43, other grades unchanged. Country shippers report receipts are light, paying extras 34, firsts 32, seconds 24, and making sales extras 38, firsts 36, seconds 28.

Montreal wholesale fresh extras 42, firsts 35, seconds 30, storage extras 23, firsts 20, seconds 17.

Winnipeg egg receipts show slight decrease for the week. Jobbing fresh extras 42, firsts 40, seconds 30.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 15 (Canadian Press)—Estimates that Argentina has an exportable surplus of only 89,000,000 bushels of wheat did a good deal to bring about a sharp upturn in wheat prices today after an early decline. Closing quotations on wheat were strong, 1 3-8 to 2 1-2c net higher, May (new) $1.68 3-8 to $1.68 1-2 and July $1.50 1-2 to $1.50 5-8. Corn finished 1-4 to 5-8c off; oats 1-4 to 5-8c advance, and provisions varying from 40 cents decline to a rise of 10 to 12 cents.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 16 (Canadian Press)—Flour 15 to 20 cents lower at $9.30 to $9.35 a barrel; shipments 46,244 barrels.

Our Millers feed 70 Nations

"Our wheat is bought by telephone—flour is sold by telephone—cars in transit are traced by telephone—this is largely a telephone business."

CANADA is now second among nations in flour exports. Dusky natives in tropical jungles, eating the white man's food, look for the name CANADA on flour bags.

"None appreciate more than the millers the tremendous speeding up of industry which Long Distance has made possible."

Your faith in YOUR business—plus the telephone—should be an unbeatable combination.

Build up YOUR business by telephone

From the first little flour mill on the continent, at Annapolis Royal in 1606, the industry has grown to 1364 mills, producing 20,000,000 barrels of flour a year.

A carload of grain every 43 seconds in the 24 hours, from September 1 to November 30, is the record of Canada's terminal elevators at the head of the Great Lakes—the greatest in the world.

HOW THE TELEPHONE IS BUILDING UP BUSINESS
(from letters in our files)

IT MIGHT MAKE TROUBLE IF EUROPE HAD AN ELLIS ISLAND

Rush of U.S. Divorce Seekers Might Be Stopped for Moral Turpitude.

LIKE LADY CATHCART

American Civil Liberty Official Calls Exclusion "Pharisaical Hypocricy."

By NEA Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Forrest Bailey, American Civil Liberties Union director, cast about for words to express his opinion of the exclusion of Countess Cathcart from America, by Ellis Island immigration officials, on the ground of 'moral turpitude."

And then—

"We'll be charitable," remarked Bailey, "and call it just pharisaical hypocrissy."

As Bailey spoke, the Earl of Craven, with whom the Countess Cathcart eloped to South Africa, thereby paving the way for the deportation order entered against her, relaxed in the luxury of a home on New Yorks fashionable Park avenue.

The earl had been admitted to America a few weeks ago without question. There had been no reference by the immigration officials, in his case, to the "moral turpitude" side.

"What," went on Bailey, "do you suppose the outcome would be if European nations applied to Americans going abroad the same rule that we have applied to Countess Cathcart?

"Our dissatisfied couples flock to Europe for divorces. In the newspaper stories of their lives, primrose chapters are the rule, not the exception.

"And divorce seekers are not alone. One after another they go—Americans who have not been entirely above moral reproach.

"What if Europe had an Ellis Island?

"Retaliation would be the most obvious of all reactions by Europe to our rulings in such as the Cathcart case—and if r "ating comes, I see America sitting up and taking extraordinary notice."

And as for the presence of the Earl of Craven in a luxurious Park avenue home, while the Countess Cathcart enjoyed Ellis Island's isolation—

"Just call it pharisaical hypocrisy Bailey smiles.

Why Have Gray Hair?

Don't deceive yourself. No one really wants gray hair. The world accepts it as a sign that you are aging—and the world wants Youth.

TO JAIL OR CANADA PRISONER'S OPTION

J. S. Woodsworth Refers To English Press Item.

OTTAWA, Feb. 16 (Canadian Press).—"Certain officials in England apparently still regard Canada as a sort of penal colony." J. S. Woodsworth, Labor member for North Centre Winnipeg, informed the House of Commons shortly after the opening yesterday. Mr. Woodsworth read the House a news item from English paper which stated that a prisoner named Shortt, arrested for threatening to shoot a woman and also for being drunk and disorderly, was given the choice of going to jail or going to Canada. It was first suggested that the prisner would go to the Channel Islands, but the judge objected on the ground that liquor could be obtained there. He suggested that the men be sent to Canada.

"May I ask the Government into which province is this man to be sent?" Mr. Woodsworth queried.

Hon. Chas. Stewart, Minister of the Interior, said that he thought he could assure the member that the man referred to would not come to Canada.

HOOVER CLAIMS RUBBER VICTORY

Price Cut Nearly in Half Says United States' Secretary.

CONSERVE RUBBER.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16. —(Canadian Press). — The fight against alleged British price control of the rubber industry is considered by Herbert Hoover, secretary of the United States department of agriculture as won. As indicative of this, Mr. Hoover, yesterday pointed to several developments in commercial circles.

One is that the price of rubber has been cut nearly in half and the drop is being reflected in gradual lowering of tire tariffs. Another is that there is evidence that United States tire users are backing the movement to conserve rubber and this is having its effect on the market. In addition the movement for development for a supply of rubber under United States control is being pushed.

CUSTOMS PROBE SHOWS ALCOHOL SOLD CHEAPLY

16,000 Gallons at 36c. a Gallon—Worth $14, Says Stevents.

HAS BEEN SEIZED.

Hon. G. H. Brown to Report on Montreal Investigation.

OTTAWA, Feb. 16 (Canadian Press) — When the customs probe entered its second week today interest centered again on the Montreal district. How the investigation into conditions in that customs district came to be initiated by the Government was described by Hon. G. H. Boivin, Minister of Customs, and much of the evidence collected was put in by him. His final report is to come down today. Both of these are confidential and details of the result of his two-month inquiry in Montreal will not be made public until Inspector Duncan himself is called to the stand, which is expected to be about Thursday. One result of the investigation is already known—the dismissal of J. E. Bisaillon from the post of special inspector of the Montreal district.

The sale of 16,000 gallons of alcohol at 36 cents a gallon, to Dominion Distillers of Montreal was also brought up and W. J. Hushion, former M.P., was brought to the witness stand to describe how he approached the minister of customs on behalf of Dominion Distillers for the purchase of the alcohol. It was, said the minister, an ordinary business transaction, carried out by the Government according to the usual procedure in such case, and the price was the best market price obtainable. Hon. H. H. Stevens, however, claimed that the alcohol should have been worth $14 a gallon. He also asked if it was not true that the distillers had received 400 gallons more than they bought.

The probe is proceeding slowly, the committee only sitting in the mornings and much time being taken up with routine discussion of procedure.

MORE OBEDIENCE NEEDED IN HOMES

Old-Fashioned Spanking Suggested By Priest.

WINDSOR, Feb. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Generous and thorough administration of the old-fashioned spanking as a cure for the disobedience present-day flappers and sheiks accord their parents was the advice of Rev. Father M. J. Pickett, C. S. B., of Assumption College, speaking at Assumption church, Sandwich.

"Parents nowadays put up with altogether too much from their children," Father Pickett said. "The flapper sits in the parlor entertaining her "sheik" while her mother is kept in the kitchen washing dishes or doing other housework. When these young boys and girls of 18 to 20 or thereabouts are not running the house they are running around at nights. There is altogether too much of it. Good old-fashioned spankings and plenty of them will do more good than any other remedy I know of."

The speaker recalled that not so long ago the father was admitted to be the head of the home while the mother was queen. In these days the young, even up to the ages of 18 and 20, remained obedient to their parents' orders wishes. It was up to the parents to bring back those days in households where obedience had been diminishing.

FEW BY-ELECTIONS TO FORM CABINET

Only Three New Ministers To Be Named, Says Ottawa Rumor.

OTTAWA, Feb. 16.—(Canadian Press).—The re-organization of the cabinet will, it is understood, involve only a few by-elections. The process, it is expected, will be one of cutting down the number of portfolios by the amalgamation of departments, rather than attempting to fill all the vacancies now existing. The appointment of two ministers from Ontario and one from Saskatchewan may complete the re-organization as far as new appointments are concerned, it is rumored now. The names of W. D. Euler, member for North Waterloo and James Malcolm, member for North Bruce, are mentioned in connection with the Ontari appointemnts. Premier Dunning has been mentioned repeatedly as the new man to be taken in from Saskatchewan.

Dispute With Municipality Over Contract Granting Tax Exemption.

INTERPRET CLAUSE

OTTAWA, Feb. 16 (Canadian Press).—J. A. The news item stated that the foreigners on board the vessel spoke 19 different languages. He wished to know if this was the class of immigrants which was being brought into Canada under the new immigration scheme forecasted in the Speech from the Throne.

Hon. Chas. Stewart, Minister of Immigration replied that such foreigners might come in under the non-preferred class if they were prepared to go on the land. In answer to further questions, he said that under the new system, immigrants admitted were being guaranteed employment for five years.

FINANCE FUNERAL FOR ELSIE REGAN

Benefit Show Saves Girl From Potter's Field.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16—A "benefit performance" the proceeds of which were used to pay the funeral expenses of Elsie Regan, a former dancer, was staged in Siegel's cabaret, Brooklyn, Sunday night. Ed. Siegel, the proprietor of the cabaret, contributed $100 toward the fund.

Elsie Regan's body was found in a snowbank last Monday morning after she had been shot to death after leaving a Brooklyn cabaret, where she had been performing Sunday night. Her murderer has not yet been arrested.

Today the body was buried in a private plot in the Lutheran cemetery.

Quebec Italian Received Three Stolen Cars.

QUEBEC, Que., Feb. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Salvatore Messina, an Italian, appeared before Judge Lachance in the Court of Sessions Monday and was sentenced to two years in the St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary on a charge of receiving a stolen automobile. WIFE BEATER IS NOT PROTECTED Investigation Refutes Ruling of Magistrate Allowing Slapping.

CAN BE PROSECUTED.

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—(Canadian Press).—A legal report bearing on the question of protection of women from wife beaters has been made to Attorney General W. F. Nickle and refutes the finding of a western Ontario magistrate delivered recently that a man has the right to correct his wife by slapping her.

The report delves into authorities back to 1784 when moderate correcting was permitted and those of later times when husbands were allowed to deprive a wife of her liberty for misbehaviour.

The report concludes that there is no protection in the present age for a man who beats his wife and that that he is liable to prosecution and punishment.

Glorious,

can be yours!

WHAT would we not all give for a body free from the hundred and one ills brought about by modern living? Nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of vitality, sluggishness, anaemia, are all taking their toll in tens of thousands of homes today, yet there would be less sickness if people realized that the body must have help in repairing the wear and tear of the organs and nervous system.

Medical research has definitely proved that one of the causes of a run down condition of the body is a shortage of certain mineral elements, including iron, potassium, calcium, sodium and phosphorus, and until a sufficient supply of these minerals is restored to the body, good health is impossible. Wincarnis contains every one of these elements in addition to other health giving ingredients, and in a form in which they are most rapidly absorbed into the blood and carried to every part of the body to be converted into vital force.

Wincarnis has been recommended by over ten thousand physicians in cases of nervousness, anaemia, sleeplessness, and the general debility that accompanies a run down body. For fifty years this strength giver and nerve restorative has brought new life and happiness to weakened men and women.

Buy a bottle of Wincarnis today from your druggist. Try it and see the difference just a few days will bring.

ADDRESS ON QUEBEC

Speaker at Campbellford Tells of Work of Baptist Church.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 16.—E. A. Therrien, who is connected with the Fellar Institute in Montreal, the educational centre of the Baptist denomination in the Province of Quebec, gave an address in the Baptist Church Friday night, in which he told of the progress that is being made in that section of the Dominion by the church which he represents. The Baptists now have 14 churches and 17 preaching stations in Quebec. Progress with the work has been slow but steady ever since the first missionary, Madame Fellar, came from Switzerland and started to preach the gospel to the French-Canadians, nearly 100 years ago.

Mr. Therrien is a young man and an eloquent speaker, one who believes that if the work is to succeed in Quebec it must be free from the element of violence, but must be inspired by the spirit of Christ. Prayer rather than money is needed to overcome the difficulties that lie in the way. He made no appeal for funds, but a generous collection was taken up at the close of the service.

The church was well filled, a large number being present from Warkworth and surrounding district. Mr. Therrien was heard here a year ago, and the reception that he received last night was the best evidence that he is a popular speaker with the people of Campbellford.

LEVIS RAILWAY APPEAL BEFORE SUPREME COURT

Claim Application of Exemption to Property Subsequently Obtained.

19 Different Languages Spoken by Foreigners Recently Landed Here.

COMMONS ENQUIRY

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 16. —(Canadian Press). — The appeal of the City of Levis, Que., versus the Levis County Railway was heard in the Supreme Court of Canada on Monday. Judgment was reserved.

The appeal arises out of a dispute over the interpretation of a clause of a contract between the parties. The Municipality granted the railway a 20-year franchise and an exemption from taxes and imposed several obligations on the company. The Railway acquired additional land : the city and demand was made for the payment of taxes. The company pays water tax on all its real estate but claims exemption from ground-tax on some property and rental tax on other property by virtue of its original exemption.

BRIAND WARNS AGAINST DELAY

French Premier Says Treasury Endangered By Prolonged Debate.

SPEECHES IDLE.

PARIS Feb. 16 (Canadian Press) —Premier Briand took a strong stand in the Chamber yesterday against those who are opposing the Government in its endeavors to restore normal financial conditions in France. He reproached the Socialists with dodging responsiblity of participation in the Government when it was offered to them, because the difficulties made such participation uninviting. But the necessities of governing France could not be disregarded at the behest of any single party, he declared, and if the Socialists desired to remain outside the majority which would save the financial situation, it would be done without them.

Measures which had been introduced increasing the selling price of tobacco were referred back to the finance committee to join that which raised the taxes on spirits produced by fruit growers for home consumption under the present laws The Chamber's action yesterday in the way of amendments and rejections reduced the yield of the new tax measures to practically nothing and brought M. Briand again to the floor with the declaration that the deputies were assuming a grave responsibility in refusing to vote the new resources which the Government demanded.

"The Left refuses to vote indirect taxes," he said. "The Right opposes all direct taxes. Between two fires stands the country upon which the effects of this political manoeuvring will fall. It it were the Government only that likely to suffer from this situation, it would not be serious, but it is the treasury and people on whom the consequences will weigh. Speeches cannot remedy the situation; only money can do so. The Government means to have it, and cannot remain at the mercy of any single party.

The Premier mentioned the fact that three ministers of finance had been overthrown before the Chamber had been given an opportunity to pass on their projects, though all of them were ready to co-operate with the Chamber and prepare new taxes in a spirit of conciliation, and exclaimed emphatically: "It is time that this sort of poltical play cease. The Government is ready to do its part. It has prepared a stamp tax in a concilatory spirit and will go with it to the Senate. If, when it comes back, its efforts to arrive at a decision fail, then it will appear that this Chamber is unable to vote financial restoration."

RUNAWAY KILLS STIRLING YOUTH

Floyd Gould Thrown From Back of Sleigh, Lighting on Head.

DIES SOON AFTER

STIRLING, Feb. 16—Floyd, the fifteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gould, who live just north of the village on the Marmora road, died on Saturday due to an accident. E. Sandercock's grocery sleigh had been delivering goods out towards Gould's and young Gould who was coming into the village, chanced a ride with the driver, George Tulloch. At the railway crossing the horse began to run and became unmanageable, going with such speed at Morton's drug store corner that it was unable to turn west and, crossing Front street, crashed into James Sailes' store doorway and smashed the glass. The slewing of the sleigh threw young Gould off, his head striking the brick work with great force. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and taken home shortly afterwards, where he became conscious enough to complain of his side hurting him. Four doctors were called and it was decided to remove him to Belleville hospital. The ambulance was called but before it reached here he had passed away.

Young Tullock, the driver, jumped from the sleigh before the crash and was only slightly hurt. Gould was on his way to take a lesson on the violin, and when advised to jump, did not, as he was afraid of injuring his violin, which was smashed to pieces in the crash. The horse extricated himself from the window and proceeded further west, turning on Emily street where Walter Barker captured it. The funeral will be held in the Anglican church on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to this stricken family.

While skating at the rink on Thursday Mrs. Dairns Green had the misfortune to fall, breaking her right arm at the wrist.

WOOLER INSTITUTE PLANS A LUNCHEON

Will Mark Close of Short Course by Entertainment.

WOOLER, Feb. 16.—On Wednesday afternoon the Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Geo. Anderson. Over forty ladies and young girls assembled at 2.30, with Mrs. J. J. McColl in the chair. The business was discussing the proposed luncheon for the banquet which is to be held on the evening of Feb. 26, the closing day of the winter short course, which is being conducted here, under the leadership of Walter Smith, district representative, of Brighton.

Miss Shortreed, from the department, is teaching domestic science this week to a class of twelve young ladies. Bringing her class to the meeting, she demonstrated the proper way of laying a table and the proper way of serving the guests.

Mrs. L. H. Rowe acted as convener of the programme, and the first number was a solo, by little Jean Steinburg.

The subject of the meeting was, "What can we as an Institute do to obtain a better observance of the Sabbath?"

Mrs. S. L. Terrill gave a very thoughtful and carefully prepared paper on this subject, showing that the example to young people rested on the individual members of the Institute.

Miss Shortreed gave a solo in her pleasant manner, followed by an encore, which was much enjoyed and appreciated.

The lunch committee served sandwiches, cake and coffee, and a very social half hour was spent, especially in the interchanging of greetings.

MONEY IN PURE BRED CATTLE SAYS CAMPBELLFORD BREEDER

Richard Honey Tells of His Experience With Holsteins.

TELLS OF MEETING.

With Lindsay Anderson He Attended Holstein Association in Toronto.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 16. — Richard Honey, president of the Holstein Breeder's Club, is authority for the statement that there is money in the pure bred cattle business, and his opinion is entitled to consideration, as he has been engaged in that industry for about 40 years and in that time has built up one of the largest herds in Central Ontario.

At a meeting of the club held here on Saturday afternoon P. B. Nelson made the remark that it was nothing unusual to hear some one say that there was no money to be made in raising pure breds. President Honey, however, was of a different opinion, and after giving a brief sketch of his own experience with the black and white, concluded as follows:

"If I had not gone into this business when I did I would have either been in the poorhouse now or bucksawing wood for a living."

At the age of 36 Mr. Honey started to raise pure bred cattle, and since that time he has paid for 300 acres of laid and raised a family of eight children, several of whom have been educated in the higher institutions of learning. He is prominent in the National Association of the Holstein Breeders, and is known all over Ontario as a judge of live-stock at Fall Fairs.

Mr. Honey's Suggestions

Mr. Honey and Lindsay Anderson, who were delegates to the recent meeting of the association in Toronto, gave a report of the main items of business transacted at that gathering. The registration fee was reduced and the constitution was amended so as to give the eastern portion of the province a fairer representation on the board of directors, but this change is not entirely satisfactory. Mr. Honey suggested that at the next annual meeting a notice of a motion be given to have the province divided into eight districts, each of these sections to elect a director.

When he was a delegate from Percy Township to the Central Fairs Association of Ontario, Mr. Honey was instrumental in having the province divided into nine districts each of these to elect a director, and this system has worked satisfactorily.

Mr. Anderson's Address.

Lindsay Anderson gave an address on the advantage of a live breeders' club. Such an organization, he claimed, was a benefit not only to the breeders themselves, but to the entire community. One way to maintain interest in these clubs, he said, was to hold judging classes and an annual picnic of field day. The district representative and other experts should be secured to deliver addresses at the meetings of the club.

P. B. Nelson and Sam Moir moved a vote of thanks to Messrs. Honey and Anderson for their interesting reports.

The club will hold another meeting on Saturday afternoon, March 13 when P. B. Nelson will deliver an address on the benefits of community effort in the preeding of pure Holsteins.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HENRY RAND middle-aged business man is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and a yellow stub of a theater ticket.

JIMMY RAND his son goes to Chicago where the theater is. The stub is traced to a THOMAS FOGARTY who says he gave it to OLGA MAYNARD a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. Later he finds Olga Maynard and she faints when he tells her she is suspected of murder. Mary out with SAMUEL CHURCH a wealthy lawyer sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the ticket stub and handkerchief were hers but might have got into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder. She doesn't know who he was. Police scoff but Jimmy believes her and arranges for her release. He receives several mysterious warnings to leave Chicago and on his way home one evening discovers he is being followed.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVII.

His back pressed closely against the building, Jimmy began to move cautiously away from the corner in search of a better position, for the street light on the corner picked out every nearby object in bold relief.

He felt a doorway at his back and stepped into its protective shadow. He saw that he was standing in the entrance to a grocery store. The place, closed for the night, was quite dark. The doorway, a few feet farther back from the street than the adjacent show window, offered him a haven from which he could command a clear view of anyone that passed without being readily seen himself.

The sound of that footfall—at least he felt positive it was a footfall—had entirely dissipated the feeling of uneasiness and vague irritation that had been preying on him.

In the shadow of the doorway he strained every nerve—watching, listening. He tensed his muscles, ready for instant action. His heart pounded terrifically.

"Nervous as a schoolboy," he said aloud. "Why don't I run?"

Now he was quite sure he heard footsteps again—following the same path he had taken to the corner. He waited, scarcely breathing, and then he saw a figure round the corner of the building and emerge from the shadows into the light cast by the street lamp.

The man was looking—looking the direction of Jimmy's rooming house. The light revealed his burly frame and, although a cap was pulled well down over his head and eyes, Jimmy got a clear view of the lower part of his face, the heavy chin and jaw.

He stood still for several seconds, looking and listening, and then he moved. As he drew abreast of the grocery store Jimmy stepped out into the light. "You seem to be looking for something," he suggested.

The other, startled at Rand's sudden appearance, jumped back. Recovering quickly, he muttered a reply and started to pass on.

"Come on, you were following me. What's the game?" Jimmy had moved quickly to block the man's path, his eyes glowing with hot anger.

"Out of the way, you—" With an oath the man in the cap suddenly shifted his right foot behind his left and swung a vicious blow with his right fist.

If it had found its mark the encounter must have ended right there. It swished wickedly through the air. But quickly as it had been launched, Jimmy had been quicker, and the blow fanned the air in front of his face as he sprang lightly back.

The man was still half turned with the force of his swing when Rand moved swiftly forward, and all the power in Jimmy's shoulders was in the straight thrusting punch that he aimed at the other's jaw. It crashed home, and the man staggered back on his heels. He tottered for an instant, and his knees sagged slightly, but he quickly regained his balance. With a bellow of rage he rushed his smaller opponent, his powerful arms flailing as he sought to land one of those bone-crushing blows.

Jimmy had aimed at the point of the other's chin—the vulnerable "button," as it is known in prizefighting circles. A powerful punch, landing squarely on that nerve center, robs a man of consciousness just as surely as does an ether cone in the hands of a surgeon.

"Too high," Jimmy muttered as he saw the other recover and come charging in. "I'll have to finish him or I'm gone."

It looked that way, certainly. A spectator witnessing that fight would have declared it too unequal. Rand, not a small man himself, but straight and slender for all of his breadth of shoulders, was actually dwarfed by the bulk of his antagonist, who was easily half a head taller and must have had a weight advantage of 20 or 30 pounds.

Once he reached out a mighty paw, showing surprising swiftness in a man of such size, and grabbed Jimmy by the arm, trying to draw him close. In that position his greater strength would have crushed the other into helplessness. Jimmy struggled against the grip, but his left arm was held fast. He clubbed his fist and brought it down with all his strength on the man's wrist, and the hold was broken.

Jimmy was not agile enough in backing away from those huge flailing fists and a thundering blow caught him on the shoulder and sent him reeling backward. He would have fallen if he had not backed into the brick wall of the building. He sprang away from the building and to one side just as the other came boring in with a bull-like rush. But another thing became apparent, too, as they maneuvered back and forth, the bigger man ever plunging forward and Jimmy retreating in a circle. That was this: In giving ground as he did, Jimmy not only managed to keep out of reach of the other's swings but also to keep to his opponent's right. Consequently the man was forced to turn slightly toward Jimmy before starting one of those right-hand "haymakers"—and he seemed to be using his right hand two to one in preference to his left. Invariably, every time he made the shift Jimmy would dart in with a stinging punch to head or body and back again in time to avoid the return.

There was another marked difference between the two. Whereas his opponent's attack was confined to those mighty wide-arced swings, Jimmy was punching straight from the shoulder or snapping little short blows from the wrist. It is an axiom in scientific fighting, just as it is in mathematics, that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points, and in countering as he did with those swift lance-like thrusts Jimmy was not only beating his antagonist to the punch every time, but he was astonishingly accurate. Besides this there was a deceptive power in those straight, snappy jolts that were raining a steady tattoo on the other's face and body.

"Come on and fight like a man." He snarled at Jimmy through lips that were puffed and bleeding. His breath was coming in short, jerky gasps, the effect of those telling body punches. "You damn dancin' master, you, let me get my hands on you, and I'll break you in half."

Jimmy pulled up short, well out of the other's range, and dropped his hands. Save for a bloody ear, where one of those wild swings had grazed the side of his head, there was no visible mark on him. He surveyed his opponent, whose tight-fitting cap was still pulled well down on his head, and told him, with a good deal of contempt in his tone, where he could go.

"I'm going to put you to sleep in just about a minute," Jimmy informed the other coldly. "You're pretty near gone now. I'll be aiming for the button from now on."

"You — —!" The man's battered countenance was conforted with rage. He gathered himself for another rush and Jimmy, braced to meet it. He came charging in, head lowered, and this time Jimmy, instead of retreating, stepped swiftly to his right, shifted his feet and then stepped in, lashing out as he did so with a lightning-like uppercut.

The other had no time to avoid the punch, but instinctively ducked, and Jimmy's fist, instead of finding its mark on the chin, crashed squarely on his nose. He went reeling back sickened into the building, and Jimmy waited for the final charge, which he knew would spell the end.

The finish was as unexpected as it was swift. Standing there braced against the wall, the man faced Jimmy much as an angry bull faces the final sword thrust of the matador. There was written on his face all the anger that a man can feel who has been beaten by a smaller antagonist.

"You may be interested to know," Rand said cooly, "that a little training in boxing is the greatest thing in the world to bring a big man down to your size. You may be interested, also, to know that after you go to sleep you are going to get a ride in the patrol wagon. I hope the police station benches are not hard."

"I'll kill you, you little squirt. You—." He glared at Jimmy and hunched his shoulders. He took one slow step away from the wall and then suddenly checked himself. His right hand, dangling at arm's length, had come in contact with his coat pocket. A look of cunning crept into his eyes as he gazed steadfastly at Rand. His hand slid slowly into the pocket.

Jimmy, watching him narrowly, suddenly sprang at him. "Drop that gun!" he cried as he closed in. His left hand gripped desperately the other's right wrist, while his right sought the man's throat.

He had his opponent backed against the wall, one arm pinned to his side and the other prevented from coming into action by the pressure of his own right forearm. He tightened his grasp on the man's throat. The latter, fighting convulsively for air, was trying to break the hold on his windpipe. Jimmy could feel him growing limp.

Jimmy suddenly released his hold on the man's wrist and thrust his own hand into the pocket. His fingers closed on a hard object and he jerked his hand away, at the same time letting go of the other's throat.

It was not a gun arter all, but a blackjack. The man, slumped against the building, was sucking the air into his lungs in great gasps. Jimmy backed away from him, holding the weapon in his hand.

It was then that he heard someone running toward them—a patter of feet coming from the direction of his rooming house. The man backed against the wall heard them, too. Hope blazed into his eyes.

"Kid!" he cried. "Oh, kid!"

FREIGHTER WRECKED.

Italian Liner's Crew Was Saved By Use of Life Lines.

BRIXHAM, Devon, England, Feb. 16 (Canadian Press) — Life lines were used yesterday to save 30 members of the crew of the Italian freight steamer Liberta, 2,563 tons, ashore in a storm off South Devon.

Three of the crew were rescued by a motor life boat, but further use of boats became impossible during the morning because of the thickened weather and the rising sea.

The remainder of the crew were rescued by the use of a rocket and life-line apparatus. The Liberta is likely to become a total loss.

ABOUT THE NEWS.

Hope for the future, after all! The wives of tomorrow want more than vaseline-haired sheiks for husbands.

Several hundred girl co-eds at Ohio State University answered a questionnaire asking their demands in husband material.

More than half listed "moral character" first. "Good health" was second. And—mirabile dictu—"good looks" received first choice from not one!

We have been told a lot about emotional make-ups and nervous systems fitting one for particular lines of work. How explain, then, that both Miss Helen Wills of America and Miss Suzanne Lenglen of France are the world's champion woman, tennis players?

Miss Wills is as cool as a rutabaga and as collected as a batch of day-old chicks under their mother's wings. Miss Lenglen is as nervous as a witch and as jumpy as a frog.

ANENT CLOTHES.

The bride of 1926 will wear white satin gowns, long but short. The satin ends at the knee. Maline from there to the floor or thereabouts.

Coats of mint green, pink, baby blue, and lavender are worn with white sport frocks at Palm Beach, they tell us.

And lace dinner gowns are most chic and all the rage!

FOR THE HOME.

My dander's up! Of all the printed asininities, and new pests in our present day of complex living with unnecessaries, the worst is a full page ad which has just smitten my eye, entitled "The Last Word!"

And a picture of "a lemon-holder!" The ad bleats, "It is the little things that make a deep impression upon your guests. Just that little measure of difference between fingers soiled and fingers not soiled makes a huge difference in the esteem in which you are held!

"Wherever sliced lemon is served this little table accessory makes friends for hostesses with its added touch of dignity and elegance to the table!"

Rubbish! How many of the best homes use the old-fashioned lump sugar tweezers and the olive fork?

MAKING "PIN MONEY."

Frances Flados, a girl at the College of Industrial Arts, Texas, had to earn her way through school. She opened an "eats shop" in a tiny yellow shop which she had built in the shape of an orange. She is "buying" it at the rate of $8 a month "rent."

Frances sells sandwiches, popcorn, candy, gum, apples, orangeade, and takes in $10 a day with monthly expenses of only $25.

The moral would seem to be that a novel idea fitted to the right location is a money maker.

THE BABY.

Use balance, not spring, scales. Weigh child shortly before meal and at same time each day. Until baby is three months old he should be weighed every day. After that, three times a week until he is one year old is enough. The weight record tells the story of baby's health.

The average girl baby weighs seven pounds and five ounces at birth. The average boy weighs seven pounds and eight ounces. Do not be alarmed if the baby loses about one-tenth of its birth weight by the time it is five days old.

The normal baby generally doubles its birth weight by the time it is five months old and triples it at the age of one year.

Today's Fashion

This Yellow Linen Frock is Trimmed with Wide Yellow Entre-deux.

While handkerchief frocks may be worn by the older generation only during the warm months, the small girl may wear a frock of this alluring material and color at any time.

The dainty model below is designed for dancing school wear, or for parties, and is made sleeveless, with a deep bertha partially covering the arms.

Wid entre-deux has been dyed a golden yellow to match the handkerchief linen which makes the frock, and the result is most pleasing.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young man of sixteen and have not gone out with any girls.

What should a young man say to a girl when asking her to go to some entertainment?

SWEETEST.

SWEETEST: I am afraid I can't give a formula for an invitation to a young lady, Mr. Sixteen. But if you ask her, without any flourishes, to go to a theatre or the movies on a certain day, she won't be shocked. How would you invite one of your boy friends to go somewhere with you? If you are not embarassed by this problem an invitation extended to a young lady of your acquaintance should not be a baffling problem.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

A young man in our city and I have been going together for a number of months. He has, on several occasions told me he loved me, but he never asked me to marry him. Really, I have become quite impatient.

What shall I do? J. L. K.

J. L. K.: It is trying—this interval between the declaration of love, and the proposal of marriage—isn't it, my dear? But there isn't anything you can do about it. I suggest that you continue your friendship with this young man, without, however, giving up your other friends until you are engaged.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a boy of eighteen years of age and was out a few times with a girl for whom I care a good deal, but I have not seen her for a long while. I would like to write her a note asking her for a "date."

Would it be proper for me to write her? A. J.

A. J.: Would it be proper? Why, certainly! If this young lady has accepted your invitations in the past she will probably be delighted to hear from you again.

DISCUSSION.

"Do you know, Dad," I asked, "if Mr. Becker has insisted that I marry Chuck because I stayed out with him unchaperoned until three o'clock in the morning?"

"Don't be foolish, Julia. You know very well that I haven't seen Mr. Becker. I don't know what he thinks."

"But I'm very much in earnest, Dad. I'd like to get your viewpoint. Would you have made your son, if you had one, marry the girl if he'd been with her until three o'clock?"

"On the contrary, young woman, I would do everything I could to keep him from marrying her."

"Great Heavens, Dad! I don't just understand your ethics. It seems to me that you are trying to foist upon Mr. and Mrs. Becker a girl that under different circumstances you would not have in your family for anything. Where've you been since the war?

"Don't you know that three o'clock in the morning means nothing more than three o'clock in the afternoon and don't you know that girls resent more than anything else, the idea that they must be chaperoned? I just don't get your viewpoint.

"One minute Mother seems to think that I'm a little angel from Heaven and couldn't possibly do anything wrong and the next minute both you and she make me fell that you think I am just waiting to be alone with some young man to misbehave myself. I tell you, Dad, that being alone with a boy at any hour of day or night really means nothing in the bright lexicon of youth today."

"It must have meant something to you, Julia, for you struck Charles Becker hard enough to black his eye last night."

"Then he told you I struck him, did he? Did he tell you that I also got out of his car and walked home? I tell you again, I will not marry Chuck Becker or any other man. You can send a hundred announcements to the papers and that's all the good it will do you. I will never marry any man but one of my own choice. You don't seem to realize, Dad, that the slogan of the modern girl is, 'I am the sole owner of my body as well as the captain of my soul.'"

Dad looked completely flabbergasted.

"That I should live to see the day that a daughter of mine should speak like this to any man, let alone her own father!" he said, turning to Mother, as though she were to blame for it.

Menus for the Family

By Sister Mary.

Breakfast—Orange juice, cereal, thin cream, baked French toast, syrup, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Baked luncheon squash, celery sandwiches, snow pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner—Casserole of lamb and vegetables, grape fruit salad, whole wheat bread, prune souffle with custard sauce, milk, coffee.

Children under school age should not be served the dinner salad but may have the rest of the meal as suggested. Plain lettuce is an excellent salad for small persons.

Baked Luncheon Squash.

One and one-half cups sifted squash, 3 tablespoons grated cheese, 2 eggs, 1-2 cup finely chopped nut, 1 1-2 cups milk, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons butter.

The squash should be baked and then rubbed through a colander or vegetable ricer. Combine squash, cheese, salt, nuts, butter, pepper and milk. Beat well and add eggs well beaten. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake 40 minutes in a moderate oven. When firm to the touch the dish is done.

The nuts can of course be omitted but they add to the food value and should be used unless the dish is planned particularly for small children. Even then if the nuts are finely chopped children as young as five years may be served the concoction.

Bronchitis More Than a Cold

Often develops rapidly into pneumonia—relief is found in Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

Any cold is serious enough when its dreadful possibilities are considered, but when there is soreness or tightness in the chest and a dry hard cough you can look for bronchitis, which is often confused with an ordinary cold.

It is usually known by aching limbs and body pains, chilly feelings, weariness and weakness, pain in the chest and a tight, tearing cough. Fever, dry skin, thirst, coated tongue and constipation are other symptoms.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine seems almost like a specific for bronchitis because it is so successful in loosening up the cough, aiding expectoration and preventing the inflammation from reaching the lungs.

"AT HOME" A SUCCESS

PONTYPOOL, Feb. 16.—The "At Home," held by L.O.L. No. 82 on Friday February 5th was a huge success. There was a considerably larger crowd present than at the previous one held two weeks before.

The progressive euchre was enjoyed by about 50 players and the winning lady was Mrs. Geo. Wilder and the booby prize was won by Mr. Lorne McGill.

Supper was served about ten o'clock, after which the light fantastic was enjoyed until midnight. The committee in charge was: H. M. Richardson, W.M.; Elwood Masters, Norton Chambers and Albert McMahon. The next social evening will be held on Friday, February 19.

Messrs. Howard McMullen and John Payne attended the County Orange Lodge held in Millbrook last week.

The Ladies' Aid is holding a Pie Social and Concert in the Oddfellows' Hall on Friday, February 12, and a good time is expected.

The regular meeting of the Y.P.L. was held on Tuesday night under the leadership of the Missionary vice-President, John Payne, who gave a very interesting reading on missionary work. The devotional reading was taken by Lorne Wannan and prayer by the pastor. It was decided that in the future missionary collections would be taken on missionary night.

The Secretary was instructed to write and try to procure a good play, to be given by the Young People in the spring, as each year the Y.P.L. gives a generous donation to the Building Fund. The next meeting will be under the Citizenship Department, Mr. Lorne Wannan being in charge.

The Quarterly Board Meeting of the United Church was held in the basement of the church on Tuesday afternoon. As there was no representation from some of the appointments, the meeting was adjourned to a later date.

Embroidered gaiters are being worn by women in Paris.

TWO BOYS FOUND ON ICE OF BAY

Had Lain Down to Rest When Exhausted in Storm.

WERE ASLEEP.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Feb. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Asleep in each others arms with their hands tucked under their heads, Joe Kushener and Willie Lebachuk, 12 years of age, were found by John Kushener, father of one, just in time to save them from death on the open expanse of Thunder Bay ice, a mile and a half from shore on Sunday evening. The two were members of a party of five who took advantage of a fine afternoon to go for a tour on the ice covered bay. Apparently they got farther away than they thought and returning home ran into a miniature blizzard.

The two little boys became completely exhausted and their companions were so done out as to be unable to help them. They lay down on the ice while the three others went ashore and gave the alarm.

COST OF SHIPPING NOVA SCOTIA AND ALBERTA COAL TO CENTRAL PROVINCES TO BE ASCERTAINED

Federal Government Instructs Railway Board to Begin Inquiry at Once.

ALLOW PROFIT

Actual Costs of Transportation Estimated on Practicable Basis.

OTTAWA, Ont. Feb 16 —(Canadian Press) — Two orders-in-council have been passed instructing the Board of Railway Commissioners "to immediately enquire into and report to the Government upon the question of the cost of transportation per ton in full capacity train load quantities, for seasonal movement,' of coal from Alberta and from the Maritime Provinces to consuming points in Ontario and Quebec.

One order deals with the Maritime Provinces and states that such enquiry is to show as nearly as practicable, the actual costs of the movement. overhead, superintendence and allowances for profit are to be shown in the report.

The profit statement is to be shown "(A) from an operating standpoint and eliminating the cost that would have to be incurred by the railways in any event whether any additional coal movement takes place or not. and also exclusive of any operating profits thereon; and (B) exclusive of the overhead and superintendence cost but inclusive of a reasonable operating profit." The report is to be made of cost of movement at a time when the river St. Lawrence is closed to navigation.

The order dealing with the enquiry into Western coal transportation costs, states that there appears to be reason to believe that the cost of the movement eastward could be very considerably reduced if the movement took place at a time of year when the rolling stock of railways is not mobilized for the transportation of grain. The same details are required on the movement from the West as from the Maritimes.

The $7 a Ton Rate.

The matter of the shipment of Alberta coal to Ontario again came up in the House yesterday on a question by A. U. G. Bury (Conservative-Edmonton East). Mr. Bury read a telegram from the Milnes Coal Company Toronto, asking whether further shipments of Alberta Coal could be arranged for at the $7.00 rate. Numerous enquiries. the Telegram stated. had been received from Toronto citizens for Alberta coal. and only immediate action would relieve the situation.

Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of Interior, replied that he had nothing to do with the fixing of the $7.00 rate. Arrangements had been made, he understood, in this matter, between the Ontario Government and Sir Henry Thornton. As far as Mr. Stewart knew. the $7.00 rate was still is existence. The minister also understood from Sir Henry that this rate would continue as along as emergency existed. The matter was largely in the hands of fuel Con- Board.

EARL OF CRAVEN IN MONTREAL TO ESCAPE 'MUD-SLINGING' DENIES COMMITTING 'CRIMINAL OFFENSE'

U.S. Immigration Laws Make Him Ashamed of His Mother's Country.

ESCAPED ARREST

Living Compatibly With Wife—Dreaded Prospect of Ellis Island.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 16.—(Canadian Press).—The Earl of Craven is in Montreal to consider the best method of obtaining redress "for this unwarranted mud-slinging". The United States immigration laws have made him ashamed of his mother's country, he said yesterday. He refuses to admit that he has been guilty of any "moral turpitude."

"I strictly deny having admitted guilt to the immigration officer who interviewed me on Saturday evening at New York. As regards the making up of the immigration forms, when I landed in New York, I put 'married' as I have most emphatically not been divorced from my wife. We are living perfectly compatibly together," declared the Earl.

The Earl yesterday recounted the incidents that led up to his going to Bermuda and from there to the United States and eventually Canada. It was while he was at Bedmuda in 1915, invalided from his regiment, the 3rd Hampshires, that he developed a fondness for the island. Last November he took a house for nine months, near Hamilton, Bermuda, and he and Lady Craven stayed there for three weeks.

Lady Craven had to go to New York for medical treatment and the Earl joined her, intending to return to Bermuda after a few days.

No Criminal Offence.

"If a man is not allowed to join his sick wife in a country which is, on his mother's side, his own, it seems to be pretty scandalous," he said, "considering that he had committed no criminal offense in that country, or in any other country. My mother was born in the United States, of American parents, her maiden name being Miss Bradley, Martin, of New York. She and my father, the fourth Earl of Craven, were married in New York.

"While in New, York we stayed at 400 Park Avenue, in the apartment of my uncle, Bradley Martin, who is at present abroad. Impressions received at the latter part of last week from the local newspapers were that I might be summarily arrested any minute, and on Saturday night, therefore, I took the train to Boston and from there caught the first train to Montreal. Lady Craven accompanied me to Boston and later returned to New York.

"I left New York," he continued, "for Canada as the idea of being incarcerated in that world notoriously infamous place, Ellis Island, for an indefinite period, on no charge, was not attractive."

The Earl did not disclose what methods would be taken to seek redress from "the mud-slinging". His desire is to return to Bermuda by a Canadian port in order to avoid contact with the United States immigration authorities. Halifax will be his only port of exit, and the next steamer sails from there on February 26.

MOTOR LEAGUE ANNUAL MEETING

Will Be Held on Feb. 19—Dr. Doolittle To Give Address.

ON MARITIME TOUR.

The annual meeting of the Ontario Motor League, Peterborough Branch, will be held on Friday, February 19th, at 8.00 p.m., in the council room of the Chamber of Commerce, preceding the annual meeting in Toronto, which will be held on the 22nd, in the King Edward Hotel.

Dr. P. E. Doolittle, president of the Canadian Automobile Association, an affiliation of the Royal Automobile Club, will be on hand Friday evening to give an illustrated talk on a recent trip to the Maritimes. The pictures in connection with this have not been shown previously so the motorists of the city have something unique in view.

Some will recall having heard Dr. Doolittle last year. A speaker of renown, with a grasp of highway affairs from coast to coast, he should have a very interesting and informative story to tell. The local branch of the O. M. L. is throwing open the meteing to all motorists feeling that it would be unfair to keep Dr. Doolittle to themselves, as his subject will no doubt touch on the interests of every motorist.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY FEBRUARY 17.

A very active day is forecast from the dominant lunar operations, Mars, the orb inciting to initiative and bold adventure, being in friendly and inspiring angle. Mercury assists in commercial and professional activities, and the luminaries, graciously aspected, help employment. But the position of Jupiter, with some slight menace from Uranus enjoins the need of discretion in the handling of funds, particularly as applied to speculative enterprises.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a particularly active year and a successful one if they exercise care in the matter of speculative enterprises, to which they may have a leaning. Litigation should also be shunned. Those in the employment of others are under a fair augury for advancement or recognition. A child born on this day should be resourceful, enterprising and courageous as well as versatile. If trained in conservative handling of its substance it should make a success of a variety of undertakings.

SILENT PARTNERS

There are always a couple of people in life who watch every move that you make. They worry with you through the luck and the strife, and they help when you threaten to break.

They know, from the start, what they want you to be, and they're for you, down deep in the soul. They're right at your elbow to help you to see the right way to get to your goal.

The older you grow, that much better you learn of the spirit that always assures that, any old time, you can readily turn to these two silent partners of yours.

Your life, in the long run, may be up to you, but despite it, you well understand that all through your living, in all things you do, they always are lending a hand.

Let's give all the credit where credit is due. Why, even the thought of it's fun. And, who are these silent-like partners to you? They call you their daughter—or son.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 13.—THE TRUFFLE HUNTER'S HOUSE.

As soon as Hickydoo, the square wooden man, vanished, Jupe said to the Twins, "Well, we know a lot more than we did when we came, that's one thing certain."

"He gave us very good advice, I think," said Nancy. "We know where the Blue Cherry Tree grows at last. He said it grew on Cherry Bounce Hill behind the Truffle Hunter's House."

"That's correct," nodded Jupe, "and fortunately I know where the Truffle Hunter lives. He lives just in front of Cherry Bounce Hill."

The Twins laughed at this which pleased Jupe very much. He was certainly a friendly kangaroo and wanted the Twins to be happy.

"Now we're all right," he went on, "as long as Blue Whiskers doesn't get after us. He had no right to treat you the way he did after you told him such funny stories. And I hope that Paddyfoot, the bear, will not have to stay a mouse long. We shall have to think how we can get him turned into a bear again."

"Oh, thank you, sir! I'm sure I hope so too!" squeaked a tiny voice and they were all astonished to see a mouse stick his nose out of Jupe's pocket and look beseechingly at them with his funny sharp eyes. 'I'm Paddyfoot," he explained. "When Blue Whiskers chased you, I followed, and when you jumped into your magic automobile, I jumped too, and then I crawled into your pocket."

"Oh, Paddyfoot!" cried Nick. "We're ever so glad you're along, but we're ever so sorry you were turned from a big black bear into a tiny mouse. And you always so kind and obliging, too!"

"To tell the truth," said Paddyfoot, "I was so glad to get away I don't mind being a mouse for a while. All I did from morning till night was to go to the pantry and get the by-laws and constitution out of the sugar barrel for Old Blue Whiskers. He never could remember what the laws were. Not that he wanted to keep them. He just wanted to break them."

"We're going to the house of the Truffle Hunter," said Jupe. "You may come along if you like, Paddyfoot. You may be of use."

"Thank you," said Paddyfoot, "I'd love to go."

So away they all went, and in about fifteen minutes they came to the house of the Truffle Hunter.

"Here we are! All out!" called Jupe as he stopped the automobile.

So the Twins got out and they all went up the steps of the Truffle Hunter's house and rang the bell.

And pretty soon the door opened and there stood a man with a very long nose.

Of course a lot of people have long noses, and the Twins had met many odd people on their travels who had extremely long noses, but this one was a nose of noses, for it went nearly to the ground.

"I'm sorry, but I couldn't find any truffles today, my friends," he began when he saw them. "I have a cold and I can't smell so well. Did you wish a pound or a half a pound?"

"We're not after truffles," explained Jupe hastily. "We came on another errand and we thought perhaps you might help us."

"So I may," said the Truffle Hunter obligingly. "Just so I don't have to use my nose. You see truffles grow under the ground, and there is no way of telling where they are unless one can smell cleverly. If one has a good smeller he can always find them. All one has to do is to smell where a truffle is and then dig down and get it. They are very delicious—truffles are —fine with minced chicken or to serve on toast.

"Won't you sit down now and tell me your errand," said the Truffle Hunter politely.

"Certainly," said Jupe. "We're after the Blue Cheery Tree on Cherry Bounce Hill."

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

A GOOD JOKE ON THE CRICKET TWINS.

One lovely evening Squeaky and Creeky Cricket sat swinging on a leaf when they heard shrill screams.

"Katy-did! Katy-did!" cried the first voice.

"She-did! She-didn't!" cried another voice. Squeaky and Creeky Cricket had visions of a terrible fight and ran as fast as they could for help.

"Oh, Johnny Grasshopper, do come," cried Squeaky Cricket. "The Katydids are having a terrible fight!"

Horrible! Horrible!" cried Johnny Grasshopper, joining the Cricket boys. They soon found the Tumble-bug Twins and stopped to beg them to come and help.

"We'll leave our mudball right where it is," cried Tilly Tumblebug and away Tilly and Milly Tumblebug scampered after the three friends.

Dotty and Willy Walking Stick heard of the fuss and came running after the crowd. By the time they had reached the bush where Katydid and her sister were sitting, they had gathered together quite a number of the meadow folks.

"Stop! Stop!" commanded Creeky Cricket in a shrill voice jumping up in front of the two Katy-dids. "What has Katydid done that is so terrible?"

"It's time we neighbors settled

Away They Danced!

this fight," cried Johnny Grasshopper. "We're tired of hearing you two fuss!"

"Fuss!" chuckled Katydid. "Why, friends, my sister and I are not fussing. We're just as happy as can be. We really can't help being merry, that's why we're singing. Did you think we were quarreling?"

"Goodness no," laughed the second katydid. "We were singing for joy. You see the fireflies have promised to light up the meadows for us this evening with their tiny lanterns. They said that whenever we were ready for them, to sing and that's just what we've been doing."

"Won't you all stay and help us entertain the Katydids?" asked the first Katydid.

Everyone looked at Squeaky and Creeky Cricket, then they all laughed.

"Never mind, Crickets," Johnny Grasshopper laughed. "It's a party and not a fight you've invited us to."

Squeaky and Creeky Cricket felt very much ashamed to think they had been so foolish. Katydid seeing their embarrassment came to the front.

"Everything turns out for the best after all," she laughed. "We were going to send you all invitations. Now we don't need to."

She caught hold of Squeaky Cricket's hand and away they danced to the tune of the fiddle Mr. Busy Bee held under his wings.

The fireflies by this time were there in full force and the meadow was aglow with their pretty lanterns and everyone had a glorious time.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

It has been said that the tongue is the mirror of the stomach. Even with the aid of the X-ray it is impossible to study the lining membrane of the chief digestive organ. Little can be seen of its state, its redness, or dryness, or moisture, its thickness, its thinness, or its general condition.

But the tongue tells a lot. It is covered with mucous membrane, continuous through the gullet with the lining of the stomach. When the organ is irritated or inflamed the tongue reflects its state of health.

If the stomach is upset from abuse of some sort, such as overeating, strong drink, tainted food or green apples, the coated tongue tells the story. In fever it is dry or parched. In typhoid or other protracted illness, the tongue becomes fissured and sore.

It is strange how the average person neglects the tongue. He cleans his teeth and gargles his throat, but the poor, distressed, overloaded tongue is entirely overlooked.

You see the tongue is rough and corrugated. There are prominences and depressions. It is like coarse sandpaper—just right to catch and hold food. This mass begins to ferment. The germs fairly revel in this soil and multiply amazingly.

When you stop to think it over, it is a wonder the tongue isn't sore most of the time. This member has pretty rough usage. It is at work most of the time, while you are awake, and it is abused at night if you snore.

Call to mind the hard crusts of bread and other food you take into your mouth and chew. It is really remarkable that the tongue is not cut or punctured in the midst of almost every meal.

How many times do you take a piece of hard candy and crack it with your teeth? This is a not uncommon cause for injury of the tongue. The candy splinters into spear-like bits which may tear or cut the tissues of the mouth.

Wooden toothpicks and other toothpicks, too, may damage the tongue and gums. If you really prize your mouth you will use floss or thread to clean your teeth, more than you do tooth-picks.

Hot drinks or soups may have such a high temperature as to burn the covering of the tongue and the roof of the mouth.

One of the frequent causes for soreness in this region is a rugged and jagged tooth. A rough edged cavity or a tartar covered tooth surface may be so rough as to injure the tongue.

In persons past middle life, sores of the tongue must not be left untreated. The cause, especially if it is a dental defect, must be corrected. A chronic and neglected sore may become malignant. The mouth may be washed with some alkaline solution, silver solution or other antiseptic.

If there is excessive acidity of the saliva, it adds to the discomfort. The alkaline wash will give temporary relief. The acidity itself should be overcome by proper diet and improved health.

Be careful about thrusting hard and sharp food materials into the mouth. Treat your tongue and mouth with proper respect.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

M. D. L. Q.—What would you advise for cataracts on the eyes?

A.—Have your eyes carefully examined and be guided by the doctor's judgment as to the procedure advisable.

WHERE YOUR STYLE OF HAT IS DICTATED BY RELIGION.

The recent adoption of the European hat by the men of Turkey and the great commotion it caused, recalls the origin of the picturesque "fez," which has for so long been the distinctive head-dress of the Turk.

It was not generally known that that particular type of hat was authorized by the Mohammedan religion. For the Mohammedan must wear his hat when at prayer. He must also bow down and touch the ground with his head. And you can easily see that it requires a hat which will stick to the head, a hat which has no brim, and a hat which is soft and not easily broken, to serve this purpose.

For when the Muezzin calls all the faithful to prayer, he must turn toward Mecca, he must unfold his prayer rug, and he must get down on his knees and touch his head to the ground. In this attitude he must make his prayer to Allah.

The fez is not the only picturesque part of this scene. The rugs themselves are often really beautiful. His prayer rug is one of the prize possessions of the good Mohammedan. Without it he rarely ventures far from home. And he often expends a good deal of his time and his money in finding just the rug that appeals most to him.

The decision of the government of Turkey to abandon the ancient custom of wearing the fez for the modern soft felt is to be regretted in many ways. For the fez lent a mark of brightness and color to many a European scene. And it was a mark of distinction, something a little different from the drab hats which one sees gracing the heads of Americans and Europeans the world over.

The idea behind it was probably the hope of breaking down the hold of ancient custom and tradition, the hope of introducing and establishing new and more advanced ideas and habits among the people. And it may be a very wise step. Still we must regret the loss of that distinctive bit of color on the European landscape.

It was a Mark of Distinction.

Hand-painted shoes and hand-painted hats are the latest fancy of fashionable women in Paris.

FRENCH AND AMERICAN LADY TENNIS CHAMPIONS MEET TO-DAY

Suzanne Lenglen Appeared Worried After Semi-Final Round Monday.

WON THEIR GAMES.

CANNES France, Feb. 16.—Today Suzanne Lenglen, the French tennis marvel and undefeated champion of the world for the past five years, will meet Helen Wills, champion of the United States, in the singles finals of the Carlton tennis tournament.

Both Mlle. Lenglen and Miss Wills safely passed the semi-finals yesterday after various vicissitudes. The former defeated Henriette Contoslavos, 6-0, 6-2, thus failing to keep her record of no games lost throughout the Carlton matches. Miss Wills defeated Didi Vlasto 6-1, 6-4.

Form experts thought Miss Wills showed better than did Mlle. Lenglen, for though the scores would indicate that the case was otherwise, it was pointed out that Mlle. Vlasto stands second to Lenglen in the tennis list of Europe, whereas Mlle. Contoslavos ranks fifth in France and has never before won a single game from the great Suzanne.

Suzanne Agitated.

The demeanor of the champions caused the experts much conversation. Mlle. Lenglen appeared pale and drawn and seemed to lack her debonair manner while she played slowly and cautiously. Her agitation when her opponent electrified the spectators by winning two games was marked.

Miss Wills played with coolness even when the score stood four to one against her in the second set.

Mlle. Lenglen walked off the court, berating the linesmen whose decisions she had disputed several times, and complaining of a pain in her side, while Miss Wills, at the conclusion of her match, said: "It was a wonderful match and I enjoyed it greatly. Mlle Vlasto is a great player."

Suzanne had allowed it to be known that she expected to reach the finals with an unbroken string of love sets and her disappointment when the little Marseilles girl won the first game in the second set was noticeable. Suzanne had been playing very careful tennis, taking absolutely no chances, remaining on the base line and returning the ball softly, evidently intent upon avoiding errors.

Mlle. Contoslavos, realizing the champion was below form, might possibly have won the set but the emotion which seems to affect all Continental players when meeting Mlle. Lenglen overcame her.

Royalty Present.

Royalty was again strongly represented. Former King Manuel of Portugal—for whom a seat in the distinguished guests' row was finally found and Prince George of Greece, sat through the entire Wills-Vlasto match. The absence of the Duke of Connaught, however, was commented upon. He has never missed a match of this importance on the Riviera, and his failure to appear gave rise to reports that he was again in poor health. But word was received later that he would be present at the finals today.

Miss Wills, paired with Mlle. Contoslavos, may have a second chance to meet Mlle. Lenglen, paired with Mlle. Didi Vlasto, in the finals of the women's doubles. This match, however, has been regarded as an anti-climax, and it will not take place if either Suzanne or Helen desires to withdraw after the singles match.

Botoh champions are entered in the Beaulieu tournament which began yesterday. Miss Wills, playing in the singles and women's doubles, and Mlle. Lenglen in the women's and mixed doubles. It is not expected there will be another singles meeting between the two stars in the Riviera, unless perhaps, in the second Nice tournament in March, which is the only one Mlle. Lenglen has entered for the singles.

DISTRICT HOCKEY.

AT MILLBROOK.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 16.— The Milbrook C.S.E.T. hockey team had a friendly game with the local Boy Scouts on the Cosmos rink, Friday evening, the latter winning by a score of 4-2. The line up was:

C.S.E.T.—Goal, C. C. Garside; defence, Walter Sayles, Aubrey Todd; forwards, Nelles Rowland, William Skitch; centre, K. Skitch; subs, E. Carson, B. Freelove.

Boy Scouts—Goal, Eddie Nattrass; defence, R. Shaw, H. Jordan; forwards, Burton Russell, Piercy Pitt; centre, Gerald Paper.

Referee—A. McCorry.

The local Cosmos hockey team journeyed to Peterboro on Thursday evening and played a return game with the Cognawagas winning out by a score of 6-2. The Cogs won here the previous Saturday, the score being 2-1.

A junior team of Peterboro hockeyists motored to Millbrook on Saturday intending to play the Midgets here. The visitors having the advantage in size by a good many degrees, it was necessary to use some of the older players and even then, on the whole, members of the visiting team were bigger and stronger than the home six who opposed them. The score was 3-1, favor of Peterborough. The soft condition of the ice made play difficult.

AT BETHANY.

BETHANY, Feb. 16.—The Nestleton hockey team played the senior team here on Saturday evening. The ice was not just the best but a fair game was played. The score, 4-1, was in favor of the Nestleton team.

PROUD OF TEAM.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 16.—The village is very proud of the athievements of the junior hockey team both here and in Markham. LUQUE IS MAJORS' HARD LUCK PITCHER

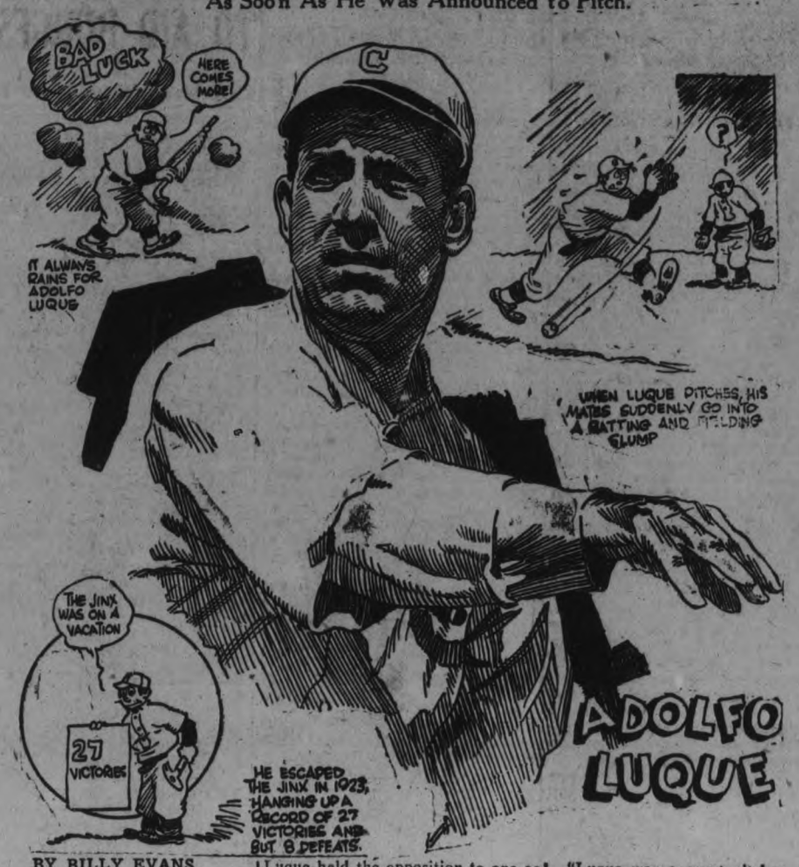
Star Twirler of Cincinnati Reds Seldom Gets the Breaks—Team Seems to Slump as As Soon As He Was Announced to Pitch.



BY BILLY EVANS

In baseball certain pitchers are known as tough-luck twirlers. They don't get the breaks.

The breaks are a large part of a pitcher's success He must have the smiles of Dame Fortune if he is to perch at the top of the heap.

Adolfo Luque of Cincinnati stands out as the jinx performer of the National League, while Stanley Coveleskie has had his share of woe in the American.

In the spring of 1923 I dropped into the spring training quarters of the Cincinnati club at Orlando, Fla. The genial Jack Hendricks, manager of the Reds, was the first person I met. We started right in fanning.

"What was the matter with Luque last season?" I asked.

Always a great admirer of Luque's pitching cunning, I was surprised at the poor showing he had made during the 1922 campaign.

"Not a thing," replied Hendricks, "if he got the breaks he would have been right at the top of the heap.

"When he pitched my club always seemed to be off its stride. If Luque held the opposition to one or two runs, we usually managed to be shut out. The team seemed to go into a batting or fielding slump just as soon as he was announced to pitch.

In 1922 Luque despite the fact that he ranked fifth in effectiveness as far as earned runs, was twenty-third in the matter of games won and lost. He managed to win 13 games while he lost 23. He led the league in games lost.

"If Luque just gets the breaks he will have a big season," was Hendricks' parting comment on his pitching possibilities.

Luque started to win at the outset of the 1923 race and kept it up all season. He got the breaks. His team always delivered behind his usual excellent pitching.

The close of the season found Luque not only leading in earned run effectiveness with the remarkable average of only 1.93 runs per game, but also the champion twirler in the matter of games won, with 27 victories against eight defeats.

"Luque was a great pitcher last season,' was the way I greeted Manager Jack Hendricks in the spring of 1924.

"Not a bit better than he was the previous season when he won only half as many games," was Hendricks' reply. Luque simply got the good breaks that have been so long due him."

The season of 1923 was Luque's best season, the one big rift in the cloud of adversity that has pursued him. The year over, he appears to have dropped back into his old ways.

In 1924 he could win only 10 games while he was losing 15. Last season, despite the fact that he was the hardest pitcher in the National League to make runs on, he couldn't break even. His record was 16 wins against 18 defeats.

Luque's pitching record, covering his entire career, is the best example that could possibly be offered as to the value of the breaks.

He got them in 1923 and had his greatest year, was the leading pitcher of the National League.

UP TO THE FANS TO HELP MISTER SHORTY BURGESS

A. Wise Cracker Breaks Into Print to Commend Benefit Game for Peterboro Player.

Mister Sporting Editor:

I don't usually bother you with a letter only Sat., but I just heard that they is a benefit game at Brock st. Rink tomorrow night for Mister Shorty Burgess, and I hadda drop you a line to say as how I hope every fan and fannie in town will be out there Wed. night.

They ain't no Peterboro player who ever give all he had for the team more than the same little herring-choker. Every time Mister Burgess was dropped over the boards the home crowd knew that so far as courage and determination went a Mills bomb had gone into action, and hostile fans never was too hostile to keep them from paying a tribute to the gameness of the vest-pocket Peterboro sub, which never backed away 1 inch from the burliest player on the other side.

Right now Mister Burgess is fighting a game fight, a long fight back to health. It is a battle that'll keep him in bed perhaps a year, and Peterboro fans know that he'll be the same little game-cock in the struggle that lies before him as he was out there battling for Peterboro.

The way I look at it is that it's up to all us birds which profess to be hockey fans to do what we can to help Shorty in this fight he's got on his hands, and the best way we can help is to help lift the financial burden. The proceeds Wed. night all go for this purpose, so that its plain that a big crowd means a lot less worry for Mister Burgess.

A Toronto all-star team is providing the opposition for the Peterboro Seniors. They will be a strong team and put up a real argument, but anyway, if the Petes was only playing Loon Lake, the way I look at it is that it's right up to me and everybody else what says he's a hockey fan to do what we can to make this here benefit game a bumper success.

Let's show Mister Burgess Peterboro appreciates a game guy and a square-shooter by sending down to the hospital by the Atlantic where he's scrapping for health a message of encouragement made to mean something by accompanying it with a substantial cheque that'll help to meet the heavy expenses.

Expecting to see you and all the gang there Wed. night.

Yours sportfully,

A. WISE CRACKER.

THUNBERG AGAIN SHATTERS RECORD

Fourth Mark Lowered in Races With Jewtraw.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Feb. 16. —Clas Thunberg, of Finland, Olympic champion smashed another world's record, the fourth in his series of races with Charles Jewtraw, former international champion, in the three quarter mile race against his American opponent on Pontiac rink, here yesterday. The Finn skated the distance in 1:55 4-5, lowering by 6 2-5 seconds the record formerly held by Joe Moore, of New York, and made at Lake Placid in 1923.

Thunberg, besides winning the three quarter mile, also defeated Jew traw in the 440 yard sprint, sprinting into the lead at the last turn. His time was 38 seconds and the record for the event is 36 3-4 seconds, made by Charles Gorman, of St. John, N. B., made in 1924.

In the longer race, both racers followed a terrific pace. Jewtraw was in the lead when he fell and had to be carried from the ice.

In three days of racing, Jewtraw has won only one event, the 220 yard dash on the opening day at Lake Placid. The match will be concluded to-morrow.

HELPFUL HINTS by GOLFING STARS

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH GOLFERS MAGAZINE)

FRANCIS OUIMET—PLAYING THE WIND

There are some things, though, that give the best of golfers much concern, the most prominent of which is the wind. Many a professional star will tell you that golf's real hazards are in the air, meaning, of course, the wind.

And what is there about the wind that makes it so troublesome. Many things. Foremost is the fact that it is ever so much more difficult to control an iron shot on a windy day than otherwise.

No doubt this is due to the tremendous effect the wind has upon the flight of a ball, for many a well intended shot has been swept yards off the line by a powerful gust and, whereas one shot may come off perfectly, the very next might meet with disaster.

The great English masters, golfers like Vardon, Hilton, Taylor or Braid, all made their marks through their uncanny ability at combating high winds. These men, I have been told, seldom tried to do the impossible when the wind blew hardest.

Sometimes they actually sacrifice a stroke and play away from a green. A direct shot may find a sand trap.

MARMORA LOST GAME AT HOME

Stirling Returned to Form and Won Great Victory.

SCORE WAS 4-2.

MARMORA, Feb. 16 —Marmora suffered another home defeat on Monday evening, losing to Stirling to the extent of 4-2. Bond, who had not fully recovered from his recent injury, took his place in the home team and proved most ineffective. The homesters form for the greater part of the game gave a very disappointing show whereas Stirling showed a return to form that was most noticeable, playing superior combination to their rivals. The ice was in very good condition and whilst permitting fast play was not taken advantage of in the initial period.

After fourteen minutes of play Tulloch opened the scoring for Stirling. Two minutes later McGee, who was deputising for Whitty, added a second.

In the second period Berry and Jack became aggressive for Marmora, Hulin being called upon to save many rapid shots from the latter player. The Stirling goalie was playing one of his finest games and just a bit surer than his rival. Playing good combination Stirling again scored through J. Ackers. Marmora now recovered somewhat and following a great rush Jack scored. The Stirling goal was again besieged a couple of minutes later and Jack again shot. The umpire gave a goal but this was hotly disputed by Stirling. The referee awarded the goal but on Stirling's protest the umpire was changed. With half a minute to go before completion of the second period lights suddenly went out through the burning out of a fuse. The period was called and the half minutes given to the final period.

Play in the third period was set at a terrific pace. Through individual work mainly Marmora endeavored to even the score. Hulin saved from Brady, Auger, and McWilliams who peppered in shots. Neal, too, in the other goal made some brilliant saves. To Murray McGee fell the honor to score the fourth goal for Stirling which proved the final goal of the game and also was disputed. Stirling played throughout without subbing a man and thoroughly deserved their win. Few penalties marked the game the referee having excellent control.

The game was followed with such interest that woud of a house being on fire a quarter of a mile away failed to bring about any appreciable exodus.

The line-up of teams:

Stirling		Marmora
Hulin	goal	Neal
McGee	r. defence	Jack
Tulloch	l. defence	Bond
J. Ackers	centre	Auger
Wallace	r. wing	Berry
H. Ackers	l. wing	McWilliams

MADOC CARNIVAL WAS SUCCESSFUL

Great Many Skaters in Costume Were in Attendance.

MADOC, Feb. 16.—On Wednesday evening a very successful carnival, the first one of the season, was held on Madoc rink. The ice was good and presented a gay appearance with the vari-colored costumes. In spite of the cold weather the various entries were well represented in both grown-up and juvenile classes, and a good number of spectators enjoyed the events.

Many characters had been chosen by the contestants, and red-headed Irishmen hobnobbed with gentlemen of the Negro race; a stately East Indian prince moved about in dignified fashion; a Colonial lady and gentleman stepped out of the Sixties and almost kept pace with Charlie Chaplin. A very tall, fine-looking University Professor drew forth many admiring comments and puzzled guessers. Elderly ladies hobbled about with canes and a 1927 Flapper flew about like a bird. Minstrels, brides, a widow, a Valentine, Little Red Riding Hood, small Indians, Clowns both small and large, Aunt Jemima of pancake flour fame, all were there; and some splendid exhibitions of skating were given.

The prize list was as follows:

1. Best dressed lady—Mrs. C. Ross, representing Miss Snowflake.
2. Best dressed gentleman—Alex. Robertson, as a Professor.
3. Best dressed girl under 12.—Eleanor Dafoe, as a Milk-maid.
4. Best dressed boy under 12.—Bob Whytock as a Clown.
5. Best lady skater in costume.—Jessie Rupert as "1927 Flapper."
6. Best gentleman skater in costume.—George Tweedie, an "Old Maid."
7. Best dressed couple skating.—Mabel Cornerford and Marion Robertson, a Chef and his bride. Also, Misses Foster and Wilson as a Cob of Corn and an English Hunter.
8. Best Comic Costume — Colin Ross, an Irishman.
9. Race, men over 20.—Arthur Brady.
10. Race, boys under 20.—Albert Barton.
11. Girs' race.—1 Jessie Rupert; 2, Edna Pettit.

13. Best gentleman skater of 40 or over.—Thoma, Caverly.
14. Best lady skater of 30 or over.—Mrs. W. Hhytock.
15. Open, boot and skate race.—Stanely Lewis.

A special prize was offered by Mr Munro, manager of the Empire Theatre for the best representation of the coming picture, "The Phantom of the Opera," and this was won by Miss Georgina Phillips.

Mrs. V. Reid and Messrs. Ryan, McLean and Belshaw acted as judges, and several of the merchants donated prizes. John Hailstone, manager of the rink, also provided prizes, and much credit was given him for the general success of the evening.

Theda Bara.
By JACK JUNGMEYER.
NEA Service Writer.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—It is a bit bizarre to see the voluptuous arrogance of Theda Bara set to the antic pace of hilarious comeda in her "come-back" picture, "High Explosive," presented by Hal Roach.

Amidst the new environment of rampant farce, Miss Bara retains that dark, hypnotic somnolence with which she endowed her old siren roles.

One has the feeling, in viewing Theda's return to the screen via two-reel comedy, of something painfully reluctant in her, and not yet relaxed to the demands of the new medium. However, she unquestionably lends quality to the picture.

The intention of Hal Roach in launching his new "Star Comedy" series is to add the luster of big box-office names to his rollicking short-reelers.

Lionel Barrymore and Clyde Cook are featured in "Wife Tamers," an other of this star series.

OMEMEE DEFEATED DE LAVAL TEAM 4-2

Third Tilt of Season By Old Opponents.

OMEMEE, Feb. 16.—On Friday night, Omemee and De Laval of Peterborough clashed in their third tilt this season. The game was played on Omemee ice, De Laval being the losers. Fast hockey was played with the teams, which inclined to mix matters, Omemee led in all periods. J. Crafton notched one in the first and Clemett one in the second. Early in the third period Ab. Clemett and Crafton increased the lead to four. The balance of the period was rather hectic with Walter Mitchell, the referee, banishing the players for their misdemeanors. Peterborough then bolstered the forward line and secured two goals, but Omemee finished on the long end of the count.

For Omemee every player was good with Jack Crafton and Noble Clemett, the best of the forwards, and Albert Clemett the best of the defence.

The line-up for Omemee was: Goal, Stan Tripp; defence, Ab. Clemett, W. Morton; wings, J. Crafton, George Morton; centre, Clemett. Subs, Cuth. Mackey, Roy Faulkner, Arthur Stephenson.

BASKETBALL

By THE CAPTAIN

NO. 30—POINTS TO REMEMBER

The overhand shot is far superior to the underhand toss and should be cultivated at all times.

Never play the backboard on shots at any distance from the basket or from where the angle presented is difficult.

In foul shooting use the overhand shot as you do in shooting from the field. Adopt that style and stick to it.

When your team is in possession of the ball let the other fellow worry about you but when the other team is on the offense remember every player on your team is a guard for the time being.

Practice starting and stopping quickly. Use of the pivot is one of the easiest ways to elude an opponent.

Deception of movements is the greatest asset an individual can have and without it his value to a team is only ordinary.

Shifting players against their individual opponents without changing them in their positions ofttimes causes the other team to let your players get loose for unguarded shots.

Never follow an opponent past mid-floor unless it is imperative that your side get immediate possession of the ball.

Don't foul an opponent in his own territory even if it's to stop him advancing. When forced to foul an opponent to prevent him scoring a field goal make sure that you accomplish your purpose.

Score of Intermediate O.H.A. Game With Cornwall 4-2.

CLEAN HOCKEY.

OSHAWA, Ont., Feb. 16.—(Special to Examiner.)—Oshawa defeated Cornwall in the first of home and home games by 2-0 last night for Intermediate group honors No. 1 and take a two goal lead to the eastern city in the return game on Wednesday night. The full sixty minutes was hockey as it should be played, with only three penalties being handed out, Houck being chased to the box for Oshawa, while E. Contant, of Cornwall, was given two rests. Neither team was able to bulge the nets in the first period, although Oshawa missed two easy chances through being over anxious, once when Lott got through with only the goalkeeper to beat, and again when Sam Lowe missed a pass at the mouth of the goal from Rowden.

In the second period, Rowden accepted a pass from Houck and hit the twine for Oshawa's first, eight minutes after Lowry blew his whistle for play, and repeated two minutes latter on a back hand pass from Houck, which was the prettiest play of the evening.

In the third period Cornwall tried hard to break the goose egg, but the defence, helped by the consistent back-checking of the forward line, kept the easterners well out from the nets, and the bell rang for full time with the score, Cornwall 0, Oshawa 2.

The teams were:

Cornwall—Goal, Filion; defence, E. Contant and M. Contant; centre, N. Dextras; wings, R. Contant and W. Gillie. Subs, J. Contant and W. T. Javies.

Oshawa— Goal, Smith; defence, Johnston and Lowe; centre, Lott; wings, Rowden and Houck. Subs, Stevens and Palmer.

Referee—Lowry, Toronto.

HOCKEY MATCH A WEIRD AFFAIR

Kiwanis and Rotary Did Everything But Score Goals.

The hockey match between the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs which was a feature of last night's Rotary carnival at Brock St. rink was as weird and wonderful as the costumes of the players.

Nobody won and nobody tried to win.

The game started with a football as a puck and a little later two regulation pucks were substituted and both were in action at once. There was plenty f golf, baseball, single sticks, high and fancy diving and excitement all through the mixup and it finally wound up with most of the players dropping apparently dead on the ice.

There was a scene of carnage even before the game began for it was necessary for Rotarians Dr. McPherson and Fraser to perform a major operation on one of the contestants.

The feature was the appearance of Kiwanian Frank White in goal wearing skis instead of skates and with a wooden ice scraper as a hockey stick.

The line-ups were as follows:

Kiwanis — Frank White, Walter Byers, Art Blade, Art Kimmell, Harry Huffman, M. Bredin.

Rotarians—R. M. Glover, Chris. Graham, Ross Dobbin, Bob Abbott, A. L. Killaly, Jack Gillespie, Roy Thompson, Jack Primeau, Jerry McClelland, Fred Roy.

Referee—W. Jackson.

RINK RATS WON FIRST OF SERIES

Beat Sons of Ireland 4-0 in Midget League Semi-Final.

WELL CONTESTED.

The Rink Rats defeated the Sons of Ireland in the first of the semi-finals of the Peterborough Midget League by the score of 4-0. It was a well contested game both teams playing good hockey. The Rink Rats have the advantage of the Sons of Ireland in weight and used it in last night's game. Jimmy Ellis and Willie Calladine were the stars of the Rink Rats, although everyone showed up well. Don Woods, F. Meagher and E. McGrath were the favorites on the Sons. The teams were as follows:

W. Calladine	goal	T. Tobey
J. Playford	defence	E. McGrath
G. Mulligan		R. Creighton
J. Ellis	center	H. Jones
G. Merrett	r. wing	L. Burke
T. McMahon	l. wing	F. Meagher
Starr	subs	H. Grady
Leonard		D. Woods

Referee—M. Melist.

The second game will be played on Wednesday at Brinton Carpet rink and should the Sons win the final will be at Brock. If the Rink Rats win they will play Lakefield for the District Shield presented by Mayor Holloway which is on exhibition in V. Tully's store, Charlotte street. The game last night was witnessed by a fairly large crowd.

LADY HOCKEY PLAYER READY

Campbellford Girls Play Opening Game on Friday.

WITH WARKWORTH.

CAMPBELLFORD Feb. 16.—The girl's hockey club, that has done so much to help make Campbellford famous on the ice, has been revived and the first game of the season, an exhibition contest, will be played in Covert's rink with the Warkworth girl's team on Friday night. The members of the local team went to Warkworth on Monday night to witness the game between the girls of that village and Trenton and so get a first hand impression of the prowess of their future opponents.

Substitutes — Frances Irwin and Dorothy Linton.

This team had a very successful career under the management of Charles H. Davidson. Three years ago they won from Lakefield in the semi-finals but were beaten by Ottawa in the play-off. Last season, they were out of the league but played several exhibition games with Warkworth. So far this year they have had only a few practice games and have not yet struck their best gait although they hope to give a good account of themselves on Friday night even though they go into the contest without a manager.

There are in this team players whom the sporting writers pronounced the equals of any in their class in Ontario.

JOHNSTON GETS DECISION ON FOUL

Fans Disagree With Referee's Award in Bout With Lynch.

TORONTO, Feb. 16. —(Canadian Press). — Jackie Johnston of this city emerged victorious from his engagement with California Joe Lynch, in the main bout of the Shamrock Club's show at the Coliseum, last night, but it was an unsatisfactory ending as the award was given to local lad on a foul in the fourth round. Lynch had driven Johnston into a neutral corner, and opened an attack to the body. Johnston dropped to the floor and appeared in agony. He was assisted in his corner and when he was unable to resume Referee Sinclair awarded the bout to Johnston though the spectators disagreed with the verdict

USE OF RESIN IS TURNED DOWN

International League Follows Example of American League.

SCHEDULE DRAWN.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16. (Canadian Press).—The use of resin by pitchers, restored to organized baseball with the approval of Commissioner Landis by the joint rules committee representing the major and minor leagues, will be denied the hurlers of at least two circuits.

Joining the rebellion of the American League against the return of a "foreign substance," banned several years ago as conducive to "freak pitching," the International League, in a long session which adjourned early this morning, declined to accept the resin bag proffered by the rule makers.

Turning down the plan for intersectional closing games, the League adopted a 1926 schedule similar to that of last year after many ballots. The season will be opened on April 14 with Buffalo at Newark, Rochester at Baltimore, Syracuse at Jersey City, and Toronto at Reading. The race will conclude on September 19.

HUGE CROWD IS SURE FOR GAME TO AID BURGESS

One Man Offers $5.00 For the Privilege of Refereering.

TORONTO ALL STARS.

Picked Team Will Be in Action Against Petes.

The benefit game for Shorty Burgess at Brock St. rink has met with the popular approval of the fans and there will be a real crowd out to see the battle and to help swell the Burgess fund.

As a sample of the way the game is being supported one local man has already offered $5 for the privilege of refereeing. The position is still open to anybody who is willing to pay more for the chance.

The Petes opponents will not be the Toronto Canoe Club as first announced but an all star team including Yank Boyd and other Toronto players; Geraldi, the Tweed defence man who has been going great guns and is said to be ripe for senior company; and it is possible that Harry Watson, famous Olympic star, will be seen in action.

The game will begin at 8.30 o'clock sharp and will undoubtedly attract a big turn out of fans. The tickets selling at 50c and $1.00 have been going fast and the reserved seat plan which is on sale at Bert McLeod's drug store promises to be soon cleaned up.

Peterboro fans are solidly behind this move to help Shorty Burgess and the attendance tomorrow night will demonstrate that fact.

There will be skating races between periods—a men's race and a contest open to ladies for which good prizes have been donated.

GAMES CANCELLED IN SENIOR GROUP

Game Between Petes and Kitchener Will Wind Up Schedule.

The remaining scheduled games of the Hamilton Rowing Club and the Toronto Canoe Club in Senior Group No. 1 have been cancelled. This leaves Parkdale Canoe Club on top in the standing and sure of a place in the play-off, while Kitchener and Peterboro are left to fight it out for second place. This will be decided by a replay of the tie game between Kitchener and Peterboro at Kitchener on Friday, Feb. 19. The play-off for group honors between the winner of this game and Parkdale will take place next week, the first game likely in Toronto.

Theatre

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE VANISHING AMERICAN."

One of the dramatic screen versions of Zane Grey's popular novels, in a filming of "The Vanishing American," is the feature at the Capitol Theatre for the first half of this week. It is an extremely interesting picture, rather out of the ordinary run, and well worth the watching. The usual run of such pictures depicts the red man as the provoker of conflict with the whites, but "The Vanishing American" leans in sympathy toward the redskin, and shows the glory and the primitive power of "Poor Lo." Although perhaps not historically accurate in its sympathetic bias, it makes an entertaining production and has been screened with power and an eye to the dramatic possibilities of the story. A prologue to the main picture shows the early Cliff Dwellers and their struggle for existence.

The cast is excellent, and includes the popular Richard Dix as Nophaie, the warrior, who holds first place in the hearts of his people and wins the love of the white girl, Marian Warner (Lois Wilson), named by her red-skinned lover as the "White Desert Rose."

Noah Beery is as good as usual in the role of the villain, Henry Booker, pseudo Government agent and oppressor of the red men. Kit Carson makes a momentary appearance on the screen as a forerunner of peace with the Indians, and then the actual story, which is filmed in the early portion of this century, deals with the struggle between the villainous Booker and the red hero, Nophaie, with the latter taking the place of honor over the white man.

Scenes of warfare between the Indians and whites are exciting and there is a great deal of picturesque backgrounding to the tale, which centres about the love of Henry Booker for Marian and her attachment to the Indian warrior. The conflict between the two men rises to fever heat. Finally, the Indian regiment, led by Nophaie, goes to France and the war scenes here are splendid. In the fighting, the Indian save the life of Captain Ramsdell, also lover of Marian,and comes back thinking that Marian also loves the white man. Booker fills the Indian's mind with false stories, but Nophaie still remains true and steadfast. The ending is not exactly a happy one, but is strictly in keeping with the tenor of the story, which is a likeable and entertaining one, and makes an excellent picture, filmed picturesquely and with a great deal of attention to historical detail.

AT THE REGENT

"THE FOOL," UPSETTING PREDICTIONS, MADE A FORTUNE, NOW FILMED.

Channing Pollock, the gifted man who wrote "The Fool," now believes that the tremendous success attained by his masterpiece on the speaking stage will be surpassed by the film version, which was recently launched by William Fox at the REGENT Theatre with Edmund Lowe as Daniel Gilchrist.

Mr. Pollock set a high mark for the stage when he penned. "The Fool." This work was so far removed from the preconceived ideas of a stage "Box-Office Winner" that some producers refused even to listen to it: others condemned it as "high-brow,' and others said it wouldn't last two weeks on Broadway.

Those who made the production did so in fear and trembling but soon ceased to tremble and rushed to the task of putting company after company upon the road; to-day being engaged at one time in presenting this romantic melodrama in every city and town in the country.

Nearly 6,000,000 people saw the play in less than three years.

Then another fortune came to the author in one bulky bundle, for William Fox determined to put this drama before scores of additional millions through the medium of the moving picture film.

AT THE GRAND

In his new theatrical venture, the imported musical comedy hit, "Three Little Maids", Capt. M. W. Plunkett has scored an instantaneous and outstanding hit from Vancouver to Halifax.

"Three Little Maids" is entirely and absolutely different from the record-breaking Dumbells Revues. It is a smart, smooth, rapidly-moving English musical comedy with a world-famous star, the celebrated London comedian, G. P. Huntley, with an imported English singing cast and a sperbly beautiful chorus of specialty dancers.

Capt. Plunkett has for years been rated as the Dominion's greatest producer of all-male reveues and, in his new undertaking, he has shown the Canadian public that he has the faculty of picking from the English stage and freshening for a Canadian tour, musical comedy gems that over-top anything seen in this country in seven years.

S. Morgan-Powell of the Montreal Star commenting on the comedy scenes of "Three Little Maids" said that he had not heard so much laughter from a Montreal audience in years.

Vancouver critics were tremendously enthusiastic over the music and singing, particularly the magnificent soprano of Miss Marie Hancock, who is now making her first Canadian tour after starring at Daly's Theatre, London, and taking Josie Collins' place in the leading role of The Maid of the Mountains, and other success during their British Isles tour.

The critics were unanimous in declaring that no English comedy artist had been seen in their cities in fifteen to nineteen years—or to be exact since the date of his last visit.

Ensemble dance numbers and the solo specialities, coupled with the beauty and vivacity of the smartly-gowned young chorus which Capt. Plunkett has given to "Three Little Maids" make it a spectacular production as well.

It comes to the Grand for two days, Friday and Saturday, Feb. 19 and 20, with a Saturday matinee.

FIRST SESSION OFFICIAL BOARD

Representatives of Four Congregations on Roseneath Circuit Meet.

CHANGE SERVICES

ROSENEATH, Feb. 16.—Under the new title of United Church, the Official Board of the Roseneath circuit held its first session since the Union on Tuesday afternoon. This circuit is composed of four charges, Roseneath, Fenella, Bethany and Centenary.

Those present were: A. Lonsberry, W. Curtis, Jas. Knox, Charles Macklin, Richard Sherwin and Fred Falling, representing the Fenella Church; W. A. Macklin, Howard Macklin, George Tucker and George Macklin, for Bethany Church; Thomas Arthur, Archie Sherwin and Frank Dowler, for Centenary appointment; W. J. Roberts, S. A. Tucker, Robert Campbell, George Ingham, A. J. Campbell, Archie Mouncey, Andrew Brown, C. W. Varcoe, William Arnold and M. Davey, representing the Roseneath Church. Rev. Lovelace was also present and conducted the meeting.

It was thought best to revise the membership roll. Therefore, Robert Campbell, W. J. Roberts, George Macklin, Fred Falling and Thomas Arthur were appointed to co-operate with the minister in making such corrections as were found necessary.

Formerly the amount of the upkeep of the parsonage, located in Roseneath, was levied over the different appointments, but now the Roseneath charge, with the help of the new Union members, will assume this completely.

Bethany Church, up to the present, has had every Sunday service, also Roseneath, with Fenella and Centenary alternating. But, due to the fact that Fenella congregation has promised greater financial help, it has been given a service every Sunday, with Bethany making the change to every other Sunday.

In order that all should be pleased with the arrangements, it was thought wise to have morning and evening service between Fenella and Roseneath alternately. This new procedure is to take effect the first Sunday in March, with the morning service at Roseneath.

The engagement of a pastor for the circuit was left over to be decided at another meeting.

EMBEZZLING BOND DEALER TO PRISON

Five Years in Quebec Prison For Swindler.

QUEBEC, Que., Feb. 16 (Canadian Press)—Joseph Larivee, a bond dealer of tS. Marguerite's, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary when he appeared before Judge Choquette in the court of sessions yesterday on a charge of converting to his own use monies and bodns entrusted to him by a large number of people.

In delivering judgment Judge Choquette appealed to the press and the clergy to inaugurate a campaign against spurious bond dealers who victimize the public. A campaign in the press and the pulpit would, he thought, have the effect of deterring many who might otherwise try to swindle the people and would also afford protection to legitimate bond dealers.

CANE PRESENTED.

Sharp Liverpool Declines Influence Chicago Market

CHICAGO, Feb. 16. —(Canadian Press).—Sharp declines in the price of wheat at Liverpool to-day led to some early gains in wheat values here. Opening 1-2 to 1 1-8c lower May 166 7-8 to 167 8 and July 149 1-2 to 149 3-4 was followed by a slight further sag and then by a moderate upturn from the early bottom figures.

Corn and oats were easier, sympathizing with wheat although the relative cheapness of corn was emphasized by a leading specialist in corn. After opening 1-4 to 1-2c lower, May 79 3-4 to 79 7-8, the corn market recovered somewhat. Oats started 1-8 to 1-4 off, May 41 1-2 and later held near to the initial range. Lower quotations on hogs weakened the provision market.

Prices Recede Somewhat From Recent High Levels

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—(Canadian Press.) — The expected recession from the high levels of the past few days materialized to some extent on the standard mining exchange this morning, together with moderation of trading to a turnover of a little less than 900,000 shares. There were still strong spots, however, one of these being Mining Corporation, which gained eight at 405. Premier was up 14 at 249 and Columbus Kirkland two at 24. Chaput gained two at 23. McIntyre, which led the advance yesterday, was weakest to-day, selling down 1.20 at 27.10. Teck Hughes dropped five at 365, Tough Oakes and Vipond each three and Hunton and Argonaut each 1 1-2. Beaver lost 4 1-2 and Castle Trethewey 3 1-2.

Smelters Led Market Trade Limit Narrow

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—(Canadian Press.) — Consolidated Smelters dominated this morning's session of the Toronto Stock Exchange. With a turnover of more than 1,600 shares, the stock was run up to a new record high of 235 1-8 and closed the morning at that mark, which was 11 1-8 points higher than the close yesterday. Trading was concentrated on a few issues. Brazilian recovered a point at 93. Brompton and International Nickel strengthened slightly. C.P.R. and Abitibi suffered substantial recessions. Canadian Pacific was sold down 1 7-8 at 155 1-8 and Abitibi 2 1-4 at 81 3-4. McIntyre was sent back to nearly normal after its huge advances of the past two days when it closed the morning at 27.00, 1.06 below yesterday's close.

SUCCESSFUL PLAY GIVEN BAILIEBORO

"Safety First" Was Much Enjoyed by Large Audience.

BAILIEBORO, Feb. 16.—The members of the Guild of the Anglican Church held their annual play in the basement of their church on Tuesday evening. The play was a drama given in four acts and entitled "Safety First."

The basement was crowded to the doors with an audience composed mostly of the people of this district, with the exception of a sleigh-load from Millbrook and three sleigh-loads from Perrytown.

Rev. Canon Allen and his assistant officiated as chairmen for the entertainment. Mr. McMaster of Garden Hill, who rendered several violin solos, and Messrs. Tom McCamus and Clair Winslow of Ida, who also entertained the audience especially well with their numerous comic duets, filled in the numbers between acts. Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Winslow and Miss Wilson also satisfied the large audience when they rendered very beautifully a number of piano duets while the scenes were being re-arranged.

The play showed plainly in the manner in which it was staged that there had been no end of time spent in preparing and getting up the really difficult parts. Each character took his or her part wonderfully well and acted the part so naturally that one would find trouble in distinguishing amateur artists from the old experienced performers of the stage.

The first scene was laid in a city drawing-room, with the mistress, Mrs. Jack Montgomery (Miss Laurie Jackson), in great distress. Her husband, Mr. Montgomery (Alfred Jackson), with her sister's fiancee, Jerry Arnold (James Johnston) had left home the night previously and had not returned home that night or the next morning. Her new maid, Mary Ann (Mrs. Reg. Armstrong), a humorous Irish maid, was attempting to comfort her mistress by telling her of numerous ways that her husband and Jerry might have been murdered. In the middle of all her difficulties, Elmer (Lionel Waterman), a college nut, came to see his cousin, Jack, and broke the news to Mrs. Montgomery that he was going to skip college and marry a Turkish tobacco dealer's daughter, (Miss Agnes Brown). Mrs. Montgomery is overcome with so much trouble that she telephones to her mother, (Mrs. Fred Wood), and her sister, who was engaged to Jerry Arnold, (Miss Irene Johnston), to come to her at once. When they arrived they put the case in the hands of the police, and while they were away at the police station, Jack and Jerry arrived home. They had spent the night in a box car after having had a duel with the police when they raided the house of the Turkish tobacco dealer, (Fred Wood), where the two men were trying to bribe the dealer's daughter, who was a fortune teller, and offering her a thousand dollars if she would give Elmer up and not marry him, as Jack thought it would be too much of a disgrace upon their social standing. However, it ended up that they were arrested afterwards for assaulting an officer and sent to jail for thirty days. They did, however, before going to jail, bribe the officer, (John Willan), and he explained to Mrs. Montgomery and her sister that the boys had gone and joined the Shriners' lodge, and right away they had been sent as delegates to Florida to the Shriners' convention. So while the two society leaders are serving a term of thirty days in the city jail, they are supposed to be away upon their thirty-day voyage to Florida. But as the days go by and no word is received from the Shriners and a telegram is received that the men have been drowned at sea, the women at home are overcome with grief, and while they are engaged in purchasing a monument for the deceased loved ones, the men are released from prison and come home. Of course, everyone is delighted to find the boys alive and home again, and both Jerry and Jack, while in prison, have made up a long tale about their trip to the Shriners' convention and of the desperate shipwreck that they were in. They also bring the loved ones at home a beautiful bag of oranges, all the way from Florida, but the boys bought the oranges in the corner store on their way up from the jail.

The story, however, like other stories of life, ends up by everyone righting difficulties and living happily ever after.

Adjustable to length and angle, a handle has been invented for one-man timber saws to permit them to be used by a person standing erect.

Judgment For $1,000 For Enticing Wife to Leave Her Husband Given By Jury at Peterborough Assizes

Civil Action Settled Last Night—Mr. Justice Mowat Declares Women Have Legal Right To Leave Home if They So Desire.

LETTERS ARE CHIEF EVIDENCE GIVEN AGAINST BELLEVILLE RAILROAD MAN

Present Day Treatment of Marriage Relation in Novels Lamented By His Lordship—Woman's Character Involved, Although She Is Not a Party.

Judgment for $1,000, with costs of action, was entered at 10.45 last night in the case of Mooney v. Doherty, heard before Mr. Justice Mowat and a jury at the winter sitting of the Supreme Court here.

G. N. Gordon, K.C., appeared for James Mooney of Haliburton, and John Doherty of Belleville was represented by B. C. Donnan of Belleville.

The jury was out an hour and ten minutes after His Lordship completed his charge at 9.30. The last witness was heard at eight o'clock and each of the lawyers took half an hour in addressing the jury, as did Mr. Justice Mowat in delivering his charge and outlining five questions to be answered.

The first witness was the plaintiff, James Mooney. In reply to G. N. Gordon, K.C., he said that he lived at Paudash in the Township of Haliburton. He was 56 years of age married Ethel Sweet in 1902. He had lived in the Township for fifteen years. There were five children born from the union. He said that things went along fairly well between him and his wife. He stated that his wife left him on June 9, 1924, and after she had left, he found some letters among her possessions. He stated that she had not returned since. He went to Doherty's house and found here there. He asked her what she intended to do, and she said that she would not live in Haliburton but would live "at the front." He stated that she was still away from home. He claimed that defendant had broken up his home and deprived him of his wife.

Cross-examined by Mr. Donnan, the plaintiff stated that his house was 12 or 13 miles from Highland Grove, that it was from 8 to 10 miles to a church. In answer to a question regarding attacks of appendicitis, plaintiff admitted that his wife had had frequent attacks. He could not remember her asking him for an operation. He had told his wife that he would leave the place if he thought he could make a living elswhere. He said that his house had been burned. He was at his brother's house on that particular night. When asked if his wife and three children had to walk to their nearest neighbors in their bare feet, plaintiff said it was so.

Answering a question, plaintiff stated that he had knowledge of his wife receiving letters from defendant.

Went to Work.

Mrs. Mooney was the next witness and was examined by B. C. Donnan. She stated that her son provided her expenses to Trenton and that she had gone to her brother's, and later went to work for defendant's father for $20 a month.

Upon being cross-examined by G. N. Gordon, she admitted using John Doherty's railroad pass as his wife. She said that she was born in Bancroft and had gone to school there. When asked about a bundle of receipts for wages, witness admitted that they were all written and signed on the same day, although bearing dates extending over the period of time she had been employed by defendant.

John Doherty, the defendant, in reply to Mr. Donnan, stated that he resided in Belleville, and that he was a switchman with the Canadian National Railways.

He said that he had met plaintiff's wife in Trenton and that she wrote to his father. She came to the house to look after his aged father and step-mother. He was not sure when it was that Mooney said it was alright to hire his wife. Mrs. Mooney was in their employ from July 21 1924 until January, 1926, when he saw a notice in the press that Mooney was taking action against him. He stated that no familiarity existed between them and denied that he had enticed her to leave her home.

On being cross-examined by Mr. Gordon, Doherty stated that he had not known Mrs. Mooney before writing the letters which were produced as exhibits. The letters, he said, were addressed to his father, and that he answered them for him and that he wrote them only on the suggestion of his father, and that his father knew the contents. He denied that he had given her a pass and said that she had taken it without his knowledge. He denied that he had ever taken her to Kingston.

Mr. Gordon read extracts of various letters that defendant had written to Mrs. Mooney and produced one dated February 28, in which defendant wrote: "I have no girl now, so I can take you anywhere you want to go." In the next letter dated March 11, was the following: "I had a good laugh when I read about Sarah wearing a big apron," and the next sentence "I would like to be with Sarah and you today—we would have a great time." When asked by Mr. Gordon regarding the statements defendant said that he did not see anything wrong with the remarks. Upon being asked what he meant when he wrote "Tell Sarah I am not doing any mugging this winter, if I don't get some soon I will forget how," defendant said he didn't just know.

"His Lordship wants to know," Mr. Gordon admonished.

"Perhaps he knows more about it than I do."

His Lordship: "What does it mean?"

Doherty: "As far as I know it means kissing."

His Lordship: Oh! I certainly didn't know that. I may have thought 'mugging' means messing around in the kitchen washing mugs.

The letter continued: "You must be lonesome. I wish I were there. I will have to have someone to look after the old people. How would you like to look after them?"

"You won't be lonesome here, not when I'm here anyway", another sentence read. Defendant stated that he meant he would make things pleasant for her.

In a letter dated April 22, he wrote: "Say Ethel, how would you like to come down and look after us."

Defendant denied that this was an offer.

Another sentence read: "So you are not going to have any more children" and ended up with: "He (Mooney) is away all week and that helps you out. It's a good job you have not me for a man."

Mr. Gordon: "Just a smutty, lewd joke?"

No; it's a clean enough joke.

Mr. Gordon: "Just a real clean joke?"

Yes.

Charge to the Jury.

In his charge to the jury His Lordship outlined the claims made by the plaintiffs. "They say in their pleadings," he pointed out, "that this man committed adultery with the plaintiff's wife and stole her and deprived him of her affection and care and insulted him.

It is difficult to prove adultery, because it's not done in the open. It must be judged by inference. This plaintiff says it is obvious—because the woman lived with the defendant alone in a small house. "Calling into play your common sense and your knowledge of the country and the men and women in it", His Lordship directed, "you are to draw your own conclusions as to that fact.

I must admit there didn't seem to be much in the letters produced and read by the plaintiff and said by his counsel to indicate a lewd man and a weak woman. That you must decide from your knowledge of people. You must decide whether these letters indicate a kind of long distance wooing."

Decries Novels.

His Lordship remarked upon the growing discussion of sex matters in the novels of today, in which highly paid writers bare and dissect what were formerly cherished secrets of man and wife. "Things are

KIWANIS CONVENTION.

Office Opened in Montreal To Handle Business For June.

MONTREAL, Feb. 17.—Kiwanis International's headquarters office has been opened in the down-town section of the city, and preparation is being made for the handling of the large volume of work for the 1926 annual convention of Kiwanis in Montreal on June 7-10. Morton S. Heiss, convention manager, predicts an attendance of 6,000 Kiwanian delegates and visitors here in June.

NOW, HONESTLY—

Are you a radio nut, too?

Isn't it funny how all of us who sit at the ol' dials, keep turning and turning until we've had a dozen or so stations—and none of them long enough to appreciate them?

That's how we play a mean, irritating trick on other folk, who may be listening.

Some day I'm going to cut out the switching around and stick with one good station when I get it.

Uh, huh—just about as soon as you do.

GOVERNMENT TO AID CITIES IN WORK OF RELIEF

Mayor Holloway Is One Of Delegation To Premier Ferguson.

REPEAT 1925.

Province Will Provide Part of Excess Cost of Winter Work.

TORONTO, Feb. 17 (Canadian Press).—Ontario municipalities will receive the same aid towards unemployment relief from the Ontario Government as they did last year, Premier Ferguson announced to a large deputation of mayors and aldermen from various cities and towns of the province this morning. This relief is one-third of the excess cost of public works started by the municipalities to provide work for the unemployed. The excess cost is the cost of the work provided over what it could be done for under normal conditions.

Premier Ferguson, in his reply, stated that the relief would date from January 1 to April 15.

Mayor F. F. Treleven, of Hamilton, said that by April 15, his city would have spent $107,000 on storm sewars started to provide work. He said conditions were better in Hamilton, but still 15,000 married men had registered as having no employment.

Other speakers were Mayor Holloway of Peterboro Mayor Slemin of Brantford, and Mayor Angrove of Kingston.

Premier Ferguson, replying, said that immigration was probably responsible to some extent for the unemployment, but that the province and municipalities must do their share to keep these people in Canada until times were better. The Government was in the same position as the municipalties regarding finance.

CANCER GERMS MADE VISIBLE

German Scientist Says He Has Made the Discovery.

MANY BACILLI

(By Frederick Kuh, United Press Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—Addressing the Micro-Biological Society, Prof. Josef Schumacher, declared he had succeeded for the first time in rendering the bacillus of cancer visible. Application of entirely new methods of coloring, or staining, the mass to be examined made possible this discovery, he declared, adding that the bacilli occurred in such vast numbers as to comprise a tenth of the whole cancerous mass. The London scientist doctors, Gye and Barnard, announced last summer that with the aid of new and powerful microscopes they had been able to discover the "virus of cancer." This virus, it was explained, was a sort of extract of cancer tissue from which cancer could breed.

Ten Cartridges Found In Rubbish For Incinerator

STRATFORD, Feb. 17. — (Canadian Press).—Employees at the City incinerator got an unpleasant thrill yesterday when they found ten large fully loaded cartridges in a load of rubbish just about to be dumped into the incinerator. The cartridges, which were loaded with steel bullets, were picked up somewhere around the uptown district and the city officials would like to discover who it is that put them into the garbage.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

New Department Inaugurated and Excellent Reports Presented.

The monthly meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held in the church parlor Tuesday afternoon with a good attendance. The president opened the meeting with prayer and Mrs. E. Shirley took the Bible reading.

After the reports were read and routine business attended to, Miss Dickson led in prayer, after which Mrs. Brooks rendered the beautiful solo, "The Ninety and Nine," by request.

A new department of work taken up by St. Andrew's W.M.S. this year, namely, "Heralds of the Watch Tower" under the able leadership of Miss Craw, was then heard from. Different members acted as Heralds from the various mission fields by bringing messages of interest from those sources. This is very helpful and instructive and keeps the members in touch with the work carried on in those fields.

At the conclusion of the meeting the youthful members of the Mission Band entertained the ladies by the service of dainty refreshments.

SUPPRESSION OF LIQUOR TRAFFIC SOUGHT BY DRYS

English Alliance Wishes Steps Taken To Aid United States.

HOLD UP TAX.

Have Home Tax Withheld Till Certificates Are Produced.

By MINOT SAUNDERS.
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Suppression of Britishers' smuggling of booze into America, thereby aiding the United States in enforcement of the dry law, is sought by the United Kingdom Alliance. This body, advocating the eventual total suppression of the "liquor traffic" has organized a determined movement to defeat what it terms "the disgraceful and dishonorable" traffic between the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Bishop of London is lending the crusade his support and seeking government co-operation.

George B. Wilson, political secretary of the Alliance, proposes that the deposit of home taxes on all exported spirits shall be held in trust until the exporter can produce a certificate showing that the spirits were sold for local consumption in the country to which they were shipped.

Since the smugglers could obtain no certificates for American shipments and because the tax runs more than $2.00 a bottle. Wilson believes that the flow of liquor to the United States would be checked. At present, he points out, the shippers avoid a tax since whiskey is free of the so called home tax and escapes re-shipment tax when passing through St. Pierre or West Indian ports.

On the other hand, legitimate exports to South Africa or India would not suffer.

"Naturally," he said in an exclusive United Press interview, "we can not infringe upon the legitimate export trade, but we can reasonably demand fair play. Feeling is rapidly growing here among decent-minded people against the Englishman's share in this smuggling. It's a dirty business. It's just as dishonorable for an Englishman to violate the sacred law of another country as it is for him to violate the law of his own land. We are out to stampede these "rotters." We feel that the smuggling of English whiskey is a most serious discord in the friendly relations of the two countries—one which Englishmen do not wish to endure."

Millionaire Straphanger Plans Institution For Poor

YONKERS, N.Y., Feb. 17 (United Press). — John E. Andrus, whose wealth has been estimated at $100,000,000, announced yesterday on his 85th birthday that he would leave on his death 35 per cent. of his fortune for the endowment of an institution for Westchester County poor. Andrus is known as "the multi-millionaire strap hanger" because he rides on the subway daily from his home here to his Wall Street office in New York.

A combination recreation centre and orphan asylum with educational facilities figures in Andrus' plans for the institution.

CONVICTS SHOT IN PRISON RIOT

Nine Hurt, Two Possibly Fatally, When Prisoners Rebel

AT SALEM, OREGON.

SALEM, Oregon, Feb. 17. — (United Press). — Nine convicts were shot, two probably fatally, during a riot in the dining-room of the Oregon State Prison here last evening. More than 150 prisoners, aroused over the tightening of disciplinary measures, hurled cups and plates at the guards in a barrage which forced the latter to retreat.

Armed guards rushed in and shots were poured into the dining-room before the convicts were subdued. Nine injured men were carried to the prison hospital. Of these, it is believed that Albert Corley, Multnomah County colored prisoner, will die.

C. R. Moore was shot in the back of the head and in the shoulder. His condition is critical.

CLAIM FOR ACCIDENT DAMAGES FAILS; COURT UPHOLDS RELEASE

$5,000 Asked For Injuries Arising Out of Auto Collision.

JURY DISMISSED.

Settlement Made For $125 Cannot Be Upset, Judge Declares.

The winter sitting of the Supreme Court of Ontario resumed this morning before the Hon. Mr. Justice Mowat.

The first case was G. W. Mulligan plaintiff, and R. H. Hunter, defendant.

The Hon. G. N. Gordon, K. C., appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. German, of German & Lennox, for the defendant.

The plaintiff claimed $5000 damages for injuries sustained through alleged negligence of defendant's driver, who while driving a truck, knocked him down while he was turning into the Quaker Oats Company's plant on Oct. 7th last year.

The defendant claimed that the plaintiff had signed a release for all damages in connection with the accident. The claim was dismissed.

The jury was sent out while counsels argued the validity of a release which was handed into the court.

Mr. Hall, a claims adjuster for an insurance company, was first called under examination. He stated that he had first interviewed Mr. Hunter, his driver, and several witnesses that had seen the accident. He said that he had found that Marshall, the driver, was not responsible. He next went to see Dr. Cameron who would not tell him anything. He then proceeded to the hospital and interviewed Mr. Mulligan, introducing himself as Mr. Hunter's representative. "We discussed the accident and I told him we were willing to make a small settlement. Mulligan told me to see his son, which I did. We arrived at a settement of $125. A. W. Mulligan Jr., and myself, went to the hospital, and saw G. W. Mulligan, Senior, who signed the company's release upon receipt of the cheque."

Cross-examined by Mr. Gordon, witness admitted that he entered the hospital without the doctors permission.

When you went to see Mr. Mulligan you offered to pay part of his expenses?

Witness—Yes.

You introduced yourself to Mr. Mulligan as Mr. Hunter's representative?

Yes.

Dr. Cameron was examined by G. N. Gordon. He said that he saw Mulligan on the day of the accident, but did not examine him until he got him to the office. The injuries were quite severe and he was suffering from concussion of the brain. He was still suffering from shock on the 15th. He did not think the man was in a fit condition to decide what he was doing.

Cross-examined by Mr. German — "On this hospital chart you mention the deep cut over the eye, but you said nothing about concussion."

Dr. Cameron examined the chart but there was no indication of concusion on it.

Dr. Cameron said that the chart covered fractures only. He explained the different charts covering the case. He showed where sedatives had been gives to the patient.

D. T. W. H. Young was called by Mr. Gordon.

Dr Young stated that he had examined Mr. Mulligan last night.

BROTHERHOOD OF THRESHERMEN CONVENES IN PETERBOROUGH AT TWELFTH ANNUAL MEETING

EXPRESS OFFICIAL

J. B. Sutherland, who has been appointed general foreign agent of the Dominion Express Company. Mr. Sutherland has been foreign agent for Toronto and West since 1907. His successor is H. Pickering of Montreal.

Application of Modern Methods and Insurance Systems Discussed.

ORGANIZATION URGED.

Value of Threshing Equipment is Equal to Eighth of Farm Value.

Threshermen of this district were given an opportunity yesterday of catching to some degree the spirit and enthusiasm of the annual convention of the Brotherhood which was held last week in London. Many of the officers of the association, as well as those representing the insurance company which has the interests of the threshers at heart, were present to instil a revised concept of the business and giving some hints as to how modern methods might be applied.

More than 25 of the threshers who have as their field the district surrounding Peterborough, found it convenient to attend the session.

In the afternoon the regular business meeting of the association was held and it was conducted with such despatch that the insurance meeting, which was to have been laid over for an evening session, followed immediately, so that all business was completed at an early hour. In the evening the session was of an informal character, part of it being devoted to a discussion on the relative merits of the small and large threshing machines.

E. S. Down, vice-president of the Brotherhood, acting in the capacity of chairman, called upon Joseph Cushman to explain the purpose of the meeting.

He said that there were 160 insurance policies held east of Toronto, and thought that people holding them merited the consideration. He discoursed at some length on the benefits of organization and co-operation.

In order to give an indication of the value of the threshing industry, from statistics which he had gathered, he proved that the value of threshing machinery was approximately one-eighth of the value of the farms. The Brotherhood of Threshermen was a distinct advantage, a fact which the speaker proved by reference to the defect of the proposed plan to have boilers inspected. In addition, the Brotherhood made it possible to insure machinery, obtain supplies at cost and to overcome petty jealousy. Organization was necessary for the protection of interests in all walks of industrial life.

Should Join.

Mr. Cushman said that a thresher who did not belong to the Brotherhood was a parasite who was willing to take advantage of the benefits of the association but contributed nothing in return. He said that machinery would not be so costly today if some threshers just engaging in business undertook to cut prices, and put the manufacturers on a precarious basis, because of failure to meet the obligations of payment.

Thomas Ingram of Millbrook, in addressing the meeting, said that to his knowledge 86 machines in this district had been insured during the past year and that in all his dealings with threshermen he had never been insulted or treated in an ungentlemanly manner.

SMUGGLING CAN BE DEALT WITH BY POLICE MIND

Too Much Routine in Departmental Mind, Hints R. S. Sparks.

SAVE MILLIONS.

Suggested That Smuggling More Than $100 Worth Be Jail Offence.

OTTAWA, Feb. 17 (Canadian Press) — The appointment of ten trained investigators to combat smuggling across the international border would save Canada millions of dollars a year, asserted R. S. Sparks, president of the Commercial Protective Association, at today's sitting of the customs probe. Mr. Sparks had expressed this opinion to Premier King, the Minister of Customs, and other members of the Cabinet, he said, and had proved, through operations of the Association's own detectives under Inspector Walter Duncan of the Finance Department, that results could be obtained by a vigorous campaign against smuggling.

What Mr. Sparks called the "police mind" rather than the departmental mind was required for the work, he said. The police mind was less concerned with routine reports and more concerned with "putting people behind the bars." It had been suggested that the Customs act be amended at the last session to make smuggling of more than $100 worth of goods a jail offence but Mr. Sparks had been informed by Deputy Minister of Customs that there might be difficulty in putting very drastic amendments through parliament. Other amendments suggested by the Association had been put through.

ACTRESS PLUNGED FROM 14TH STOREY

Pauline Armitage Instantly Killed in New York.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17. — Pauline Armitage, an actress, who has been in ill-health, leaped from the fourteenth floor of her hotel room here Tuesday and was instantly killed.

Miss Armitage's maid told the police that when she went to answer the telephone, she heard Miss Armitage move, and, turning, saw her leap from the window before she could reach her.

Miss Armitage was at one time leading lady of an English stock company in Toronto, Ont., going to that city in 1922, it was stated by Chamberlain Brown, theatrical agent.

Mr. Brown said Miss Armitage was born in Nashville, Tenn. Her debut as an actress was made with Leo Ditrichstein in "The King," about eight years ago. Her next engagement was about a year later in "Seven Days' Leave."

In 1921 she took over from Dorothy Dalton the leading role in "Aphrodite." Later she appeared with John Drew in "The Catbird" and subsequently with Helen Hayesiin, "The Wren." After appearing as leading lady of "Virtue" in 1922, she went to Toronto.

RAILWAY COMMISSION DECIDES TO DEAL AT ONCE WITH FREIGHT RATES APPLICATION FROM WEST

Board Debated Postponement of Hearing Until General Investigation.

PROCEED TO-DAY.

Old Battle of Equalization of Rates To Pacific Ports.

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—(Canadian Press.)—The old battle over Pacific Coast rates on grain and flour was renewed before the Railway Commission Tuesday afternoon. A double-barrelled application by the Provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia was scheduled to be heard, but the whole afternoon was occupied in determining whether or not it should be considered now or as part of the general rate investigation. The application covers two points. It asks, in the first place, that rates on grain and flour to Pacific Coast points for export "be corrected to basis of equalization proportionate to distance as such grain and flour would carry if moving eastward for export" as provided in an order of the Board of Railway Commissioners.

Secondly, it asks that the Board of Railway Commissioners set a mileage scale of what rates on grain and flour to Pacific ports in Canada for export, should be.

For General Enquiry.

At the outset of yesterday's hearing, objection was voiced. Commissioner Calvin Lawrence sounded the note when he said that he believed the matters contained in the application could not be dealt with by the Board save as part of the general rate investigation.

He based this view on statements made by five members of the commission in judgments recently issued. These judgments, he contended, made it quite clear that such matters should be dealt with only as part of the general rate investigation, and he "was not acrobat enough to go back and change a judgment I have already signed."

E. P. Flintoft, K.C., and Alistair Fraser, K.C., for the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways, agreed with the view expressed by Commissioner Lawrence. They made formal objection to the application being heard before the general rate investigation. This objection was contested by S. B. Woods, K.C., for the Province of Alberta, and W. M. McEwen, appearing for the Province of Saskatchewan. It was then considered by the Board and oral judgment given by each of the six commissioners in turn.

Decide To Hear Appeal.

The result was a decision to hear the application. Chief Commissioner McKeown, Deputy Chief Commissioner Vien, and Commissioner Frank Oliver all took the view that the application was in order and might be heard and disposed of by the Board at the present time. Commissioner Boyce and Commissioner Lawrence took the ground that the application was not in order in view of judgments already rendered, and that it could not be dealt with by the Board save as part of the general rate investigation. Assistant Chief Commissioner McLean agreed with the Chief Commissioner that the first part of the application dealing with the order in regard to rates on westbound grain and flour could be dealt with at the present hearing. He disagreed, however, in regard to the second part of the application. The question of establishing a mileage scale of grain and flour rates for the west, based on the Eastern Crow's Nest rates, involved going into the eastern rates and brought in questions of discrimination, etc., which should be dealt with in a general investigation, he thought.

However, the Board decided in favor of hearing the application, insofar as the first part is concerned, by a vote of four to two, and being evenly divided on the second part of the application, the whole application will be proceeded with to-day.

Just before the Commission rose, J. W. Ward, representing the Canadian Council of Agriculture, contended that the railways were violating the law and the order of the Board, and were not making Crow's Nest rates effective in the west as instructed to do. People were beginning to wonder who was supreme in this country, the railways or the government, he said.

PLAN NOW FOR THAT PACIFIC COAST AND ALASKA TRIP YOU INTENDED TO TAKE NEXT SUMMER.

Next summer forget the cares of business or profession and take a trip to Western Canada, the Pacific Coast or Alaska. There's satisfaction in this kind of a vacation—a swift journey through never-before-seen country, restful stops at splendid resort hotels, and, when you reach the Canadian Rockies, gorgeous vistas of lake, forest, and towering mountain peaks.

There is never an idle moment if you travel the Canadian National Route on radio equipped trains. Crossing the vast prairie country, the Granary of the Empire is always interesting. Then there is Jasper Park Lodge of Continent-wide fame. There are mountains on all sides, sky piercing giants, snow-capped massive, many of which have never been scaled.

From Jasper National Park is a never-ending succession of mountains—and more mountains—lovely valleys, turbulent rivers and dashing waterfalls until you reach the Coast at Vancouver or Prince Rupert.

To make the most of your trip the voyage through the Sheltered Scenic Seas of the North Pacific should be taken from Vancouver to Prince Rupert or Alaska. On the voyage you will see from splendid sea-going steamers, alluring inlets, towering headlands and tumbling icy streams and glaciers. On the return journey, see Kitwanga and its totem poles, Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, and again to Jasper National Park.

These trips, as mapped out by Canadian National Railways are not surpassed anywhere and furnish a liberal education on Canada to our Canadian people.

Summer Tourist fares are effective between May 15th and Sept. 30th, with return limit of Oct. 31st, at a minimum of cost.

Make sure of your Western trip this summer by planning ahead. Any Canadian National Agent will give you full information and illustrated booklets. 2d-17-27

TEMPERANCE IS DISCUSSED BY ONTARIO HOUSE

Governmen's Policy Will Be Submitted in Election at Proper Time

SAYS FERGUSON.

Question Forced To Front By Opposition Leaders in Debate on Address.

TORONTO, Feb. 17 (Canadian Press).—In a warm debate in the Ontario Legislature last night on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, Premier Ferguson, speaking on the temperance question which was forced to the front by W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, and W. E. Raney, Progressive leader, declare dthat the citizens of Ontario would be given an opportunity to pass judgment upon any change proposed by the Government.

"When this Government is prepared to make an annoucement," said the Premier "it will be made to the people and our action will be submitted to the people in a general election when the proper time comes."

The Premier gave no hint of what the Government action or policy would be. He reiterated statements made in previous speeches that there would be no referendum and that the Government would take full responsibility for whatever action it decided upon.

Mr. Raney moved an amendment to the reply which, in effect, is that the will of the people should prevail on the Ontario Temperance Act until they by their ballots decided against it.

The question, he thought, should be left entirely to the people and not made a party issue.

The Premier, in his reply, accused Mr. Raney of forcing the issue into politics, and the prohibitionists of Ontario of deserting Sir William Hearst in 1919 for partizan reasons. At the conclusion of the afternoon session, Mr. Raney, who had not finished his speech, wanted to adjourn the debate. On the refusal of the Premier to accede to the request he forced a division of the House, in which the Government was upheld by 15 to 57.

Mr. Raney said that if the Conservatives voted down the amendment, they would be voting against the principles of their past leaders and the promises of the present Premier. The people were demanding that he carry out his part of the bargain which maded him Prime Minister.

"The people, and especially the prohibition Conservatives, are entitled to an unequivocal declaration from the Premier on his intentions," said Mr. Raney, who contended that now was the time for the Premier to show the courage about which he boasted.

The Premier followed.

Mr. Raney he said, had treated with levity the attempt of the government last year to do something within the four corners of the Ontario Temperance Act—something that would promote real temperance purposes. He contended the unpopularity of 4.4 beer was because Mr. Raney had linked himself with the bootleggers to knock 4.4 beer. He could not expect any co-operation from Mr. Raney in temperance legislation.

The Premier said he was bringing the administration of Ontario back to responsible Government and would take full responsibility for the action of his Government. He said that Sir William Hearst learned his lesson in 1919 by finding out that people of opposite parties sacrificed their principles to partisanship.

This question will not be settled without a reference to the people. When this Government is prepared to make an announcement it will make it to the people and our action will be submitted to the people in a general election when the time comes."

The declaration of W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, that the Ontario Liberals stood behind the O.T.A. as the people's choice and his challenge to Premier Ferguson that he tell the country what he had on his mind in regard to the O.T.A. featured the afternoon session.

SURPRISE IN DEBATE.

T. W. Bird, Progressive of Nelson, May Shorten Discussion.

OTTAWA, Feb. 17. — (Canadian Press).—T. W. Bird, Progressive, of Nelson, has introduced a new and unexpected element into the debate on the address. His motion of the previous question will, if adopted as is expected, rule out any more amendments to the address. This should shorten further discussion to about a week or ten days, but it does not entirely end the debate. Members may now speak on the address itself, but each member can only speak once.

C. H. Cahan, Conservative, of St. Lawrence - St. George, Montreal, who had been scheduled to move the third Conservative amendment, continues the debate this afternoon. It is expected that the Liberals will only put up an occasional speaker.

CRAVEN IN OTTAWA

MONTREAL, Feb. 17 (Canadian Press) — The Earl of Craven, who flde from United States to avoid publicity in connection with the case of the Countess of Cathcart detained by immigration officials at Ellis Island, New York, left this morning for Ottawa. The Earl was unaccompanied.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF ROTARY.

By Rotarian H. R. H. Kenner.

"Fundamentally Rotary is a philosophy of life that undertakes to reconcile the ever present conflict between the desire to profit for one's self and the duty and consequent impulse to serve others. This philosophy is the philosophy of service—'Service above Self'—and is based on the practical ethical principle that 'he profits most who serves best'."

Let us analyze this statement in an endeavor to bring home to every Rotarian a knowledge of the fundamental working principles of Rotary.

1. By "a philosophy" we mean a systematic body of principles in which one has implicit faith, and by "a philosophy of life" we mean those principles applied to and practiced by the individual in his every-day life.

2. Note that this philosophy of Rotary is "fundamental"—containing the basis principles upon which the life, actions and deeds of the true Rotarian are built.

3. Observe the conflict—it is universal—in our lives between

(a) The desire to profit for one's self (selfishness) and

(b) The duty we owe to others (service).

4. Rotary "reconciles" this conflict and teaches us to lessen the selfishness in our lives and intrease our service to others — less egoism and more altruism. To quote Bill Manier, the author of Resolution No. 34 — "Seek only to profit in Rotary or in life, and you will lose the very end you sought. Seek unselfishly to serve, and, unsought, the real profits of life will come to you—profits of happiness, profits of achievement, profits of contentment."

5. Such reconciliation necessarily calls for a sacrifice on the part of the individual. No real service can be rendered that does not involve sacrifice. This sacrifice is the distinguishing characteristics of Rotary service.

6. Hence our outstanding and key slogan—"Service above Self."

7. The ethical principle involved in this Rotary service is stated in our other slogan: "He profits most who serves best."

Units of Rotary Service:

1. The Individual. The Rotary service born of sacrifice must begin with the individual—his every day life must show a service that stamps him a real Rotarian in action as well as in name.

2. The Club. The local club must render a community service which is distinctive, not duplicative, and is a tangible asset of unquestionable value to that community.

3. Rotary International. Rotary International's service to all mankind is the composite result of the members' and clubs' activities in the accomplishment of the great ideal—a world fellowship.

Examples of True Rotary Service:

1. The work of officers, committees and members of the club, or of the International organization, in promoting the objects of Rotary.

A Rotarian's service should begin in his own club. When requested to serve on committees or to assist in any undertaking of the club, his response should be prompt and positive and cheerful—that is in harmony with his obligation which he assumed when he joined the club. Of course there are alibis—but most alibis are excuses, not reasons. Officers and directors who accept responsibility and fail to function are doubly guilty and unworthy of Rotary membership or Rotary honors.

2. The participation in civic and philanthropic work of any nature, whether for the community, the state, the nation, or the world — which work clearly shows less of "profit for one's self" and more of "service to others."

Every Rotary club has, or should have, a community activity not in conflict with, or duplication of, any other local organization. Here comes the acid test of a Rotarian. He is no Rotarian in spirit or in action if he will not give of his time, energy and sometimes money, to the cause thus espoused by his local club. However, if he is already in some civic or philanthropic work and rendering a service to the community not connected with Rotary—if he is sacrificing his own profit to the welfare of his fellowbeings, he is performing a true Rotary service and is to be so credited. This test shows positive. Pick out the service "drones" in the club—all clubs have them in greater or lesser degree—and apply the Rotary service test to them. This test will enable the club to separate the wheat from the chaff, and will be found a basis for the recall of the loan of certain classifications and the transfer of such loans to those who will more willingly pay the interest (service) on them.

3. In general the performance of any act or the doing of any deed by a Rotarian in connection with his personal, business or community life, which exemplifies the Rotary conception of service.

There are many individuals not members of Rotary clubs who are living and practising the philosophy of Rotary. On the other hand, there are some members of Rotary clubs who never function as such. Unfortunately on account of our classification restrictions we cannot incorporate in our membership all the former, but we can eliminate all of the latter and in due time this will be done.

The Boy Scout's philosophy is "do a good deed every day." We men can do the same and all real Rotarians will whenever opportunity offers. No matter how small the good deed, it is a true Rtary service.

The rendering of service in the Rotary way should not be given undue, if any, publicity. Indeed many Rotarians today are living the philosophy of Rotary and their deeds are unknown even to members of their own clubs. Censure no Rotarian for lack of devotion to Rotary principles unless you positively know his life is in conflict with our principle of service. May he not be caring for an orphan boy? May he not be helping some fellow-beinupon whom misfortune has fallen May he not in his own business or in his own profession be doing an an unselfish service of which we or the world know nothing? Such acts are living examples of service, of a service of sacrifice, of true Rotary service rendered by one who has caught the Rotary spirit described by Edgar A. Guest of Detroit as:

Red roses for the living, and handclasps warm and true,
A heart that's tuned to giving, and strength to dare and do;
The sound of honest laughter, the joy of honest toil;
For those that follow after, to leave a finer soil.
All this has been and ever will be the Rotary plan.
A man's sincere endeavor to serve his fellowman.

A little less self seeking, a little more for men,
Less bitter in our speaking, more kindly with the pen;
A little less of swerving from paths of truth and right,
A little more of serving and less of dollar might.
More peaceful with our neighbors, and stauncher to our friends.
For this all Rotary labors, on this its hope depends.

To smooth the way for others, to make of life the most;
To make the phrase "our brother" mean more than idle boast;
To praise sincere endeavour, when praise will spur it on,
Withholding kind words never until the friend is gone;
This is the Rotary spirit, this is the Rotary dream,
God grant that we may near it, before we cross the stream.

Objects Accomplished Through Faith in Principles:

The accomplishment of the six objects of Rotary is dependent upon the faith of the individual Rotarian in the basic principle of unselfish service for humanity as set forth above in the discussion of the philosophy of Rotary. Faith will remove mountains; faith led Columbus across uncharted seas to a new world; faith has built nations; faith has conquered worlds. Without faith Rotary ideals are impossible of accomplishment. And that faith cannot be instilled in the heart of a Rotarian unless he has a knowledge and understanding of the full meaning and the application to practical life of the working principle of Rotary. Hence the importance of this program and its proper presentation in all the Rotary clubs of the world.

Rotary's Philosophy A Spiritual Stimulus

When we stop to reflect upon the philosophy of Rotary and its full meaning as set forth above—a philosophy involving the element of sacrifice in carrying out Rotary's fundamental, inspiring principle of action, and upon which all Rotary efforts and resultant accomplishments are built — the principle in operation rouses the spiritual in man and is the urge of the individual Rotarian that carries him on and on, and forever on, in his loyalty for, and devotion to, the ideals of Rotary.

The plot of the play centers about the efforts of Mr. Middleton, who offers his wife, and his niece, and daughters a sum of money to keep silent during the afternoon. COUNTESS WAITS WORD FROM DAVIS

To Find Out Whether She Is To Be Ordered Deported.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 (Canadian Press).—The Countess of Cathcart must remain at Ellis Island several days longer until Secretary Davis of the Labor Department decides whether she will be admitted to the United States.

The Secretary will take a brief vacation while the question involved are worked out, and when he returns, the Countess will learn whether the charges of moral turpitude, resulting from her elopement several years ago with the Earl of Craven, are to deny her admittance.

Should the Countess be deported, it appears that she will leave for home on the same day that her elopement companion will sail from Canada. The Earl, however, plans to sail for Bermuda on February 17, while the Countess will return to England.

PADDLERS' FINE CONTRIBUTION TO BURGESS BENEFIT

Paddlers Paying Travelling Expenses of Toronto Team.

The splendid sporting spirit that animates the Parkdale Canoe Club and has always been in evidence in their relations the Petes have had with them in the past two seasons, was again revealed today when the Toronto club, in securing an All-Star team as opposition for the Petes in tonight's benefit game for "Shorty" Burgess, refused to hear any other proposition than that their club should bear the transportation expenses. "We want to pay for the tickets for these boys as our contribution," declared Percy Scott of the Parkdale team over the phone today, and this generosity on the part of the Paddlers' management is thoroughly appreciated by the local committee.

The line-up coming down from Toronto will include Jack Cameron, Osgoode Hall's crack goaler, and one of the stars of the last Olympic team; Shrimp Morris Scotty Campbell and Bert Bowsfield of Parkdale Canoe Club; Jack Smythe, Toronto Canoe Club, and last, but not least, Joe Primeau, sensational St. Mary's left winger, considered one of the fastest Juniors in thre game today. CLAIM FOR ETC.

Defendant's lawyer objected to the question.

His Lordship did not sustain the objection and admitted the questions.

Dr. Young said he had found signs of recent injuries. The Doctor stated that temperature did not affect a case like this.

Mr. German, cross-examining Dr. Young, asked him if he had had much experience in this kind of work. The witness said he had been four years at the front. "And I mean the front," said the Doctor, "not a hospital back of the line."

Plaintiff's Evidence.

G. W. Mulligan, called by Mr Gordon, stated that he was the plaintiff in this action. He remembered a man calling, and this man telling him he was there from Mr. Hunter.

When cross-examined by Mr. German, plaintiff said that he did not remember his son calling at noon, accompanied by a man. Mr. Mulligan said they simply held him up in bed and handed him the paper which he signed. He said the endorsement on the cheque was his.

His Lordship: "When did you come to the conclusion, Mr. Mulligan, that you had made a bad bargain?"

"Some time afterwards," he replied.

A. W. Mulligan, Jr., said he remembered Mr. Hall coming down. He stated that they talked only about helping out with the expenses. His father did not discuss the matter with Mr. Hall at all.

Mr. Hall and himself went up to the hospital and he told his father the conclusion they had arrived at. He stated there was no seal on the agreement, and the first time he knew that an insurance company was mixed up in the affair was on his way down town, when he noticed Hill, Weddell & Hill's name on the cheque.

His Lordship stated that he knew a number of cases where people would have been better off if they had taken the insurance company's settlement in the first place, and had not started expensive litigation.

An agreement was arrived at between counsel to dispose of the jury trial, and His Lordship found the release valid, dismissing the action with costs.

The following jury was empannelled but was not required: Allen Taylor, George Fowler, John Whittaker, William Cooke, James Hatherly, William Rogers, A. Northey, Jr., W. J. Millage, Wm. Towns, Ed. Conroy, A. Tretheway, and S. H. Adam.

Norwood Case.

In the case of Seaforth Hogg and Mathew Stevenson, the plaintiff, Seaforth Hogg, alleged that the defendant, while driving his automobile in Norwood on September 5 last year, carelessly and negligently drove into the rear of his automobile. F. D. Kerr, K.C., appeared for the plaintiff and G. N. Gordon, K.C., for the defendant. His Lordship advised counsel to get together which they did, with the result that judgment was entered in accordance with terms of consent to the amount of $600 for the plaintiff's claim and costs.

BANQUET FOR BARACA CLASS

Winners of Membership Competition Feasted and Given Shield.

JOLLY EVENING.

Basking in a warm sea of adulation members of the Murray Street Sunday School Baraca Class realized to the full the truth of the ancient adage: To the victor belongs the spoils. Last night, in the church basement, the boys of the feted class were surrounded with beautiful decorations, food and girls, so that not one single youth could justly complain of any lack of attention.

The Baraca Class, due to the assiduous labor of officers and teacher and the interest of its members had attained first position in the race for attendance honors during the past year. The two girls' classes, "Others" and "Everybodys," as the losers were entitled to prepare the feast for the victors and watch with envious, but withal, congratulatory eyes, the presentation of the Joseph Wearing shield to the male organization. One could see in those eyes, a determination that it would not be always thus.

While the girls' classes represented the vanquished element, they showed that they still had their 'pep' and literally out-yelled the boys, giving tongue frequently and vigorously. There were many features of interest in the programme in addition to a number of brief addresses of congratulation from leaders of other classes and many prominent in various departments of the church.

Some of the outstanding events were excellent solos by Miss Alma Blanchard impersonations by members of the girls' classes, a cornet solo by Mr. Minicolo, and a reading by Mrs. Earl Kidd.. "Red" Eastwood and his "Singing Bandits" made a deep and lasting impression by their spirited rending of a number of ultra-modern selections The fine interpretation of the score quite justified the lengthy period devoted to a rehearsal in an adjoining room.

Immediately prior to the salvo of speeches, Joseph Wearing led the assemblage in singing that quaint poetic chanson of old Quebec, popularly known as Allouette, which has undertaken to describe in poignant phrases the physical features of that famed bird.

Mrs. C. H. Post and Miss Marion Rae presented greetings on behalf of their respective classes "Others" and "Everybodys", while Dr. Rose, as chairman, told of his gratification on seeing so many present. He spoke of the value which young people were in church work and said that he little realized how potent a force they would become when they were instituted a few years ago.

Roy White

Roy White, Baraca president, responded, although he was at a certain disadvantage having—as he said—left his copious supply of notes at home, and being armed only with a speech which he had prepared to launch at the Old Settlers on the occasion of their re-union. Although he frequently threatened to hurl that verbal array at the youthful banqueters, he never actually succeeded in getting started. He commended the girls' classes on their fine spirit of sportsmanship and declared the banquet to be the best ever given in the church.

Joseph Wearing

Joseph Wearing donor of the Wearing Shield, took up the tale of approval, mentioning in particular the banquet, the decoration and the orchestra. "The church cannot grow," he contended, "unless there is a continuous influx of youth. There must be constant enlistment in the army of God to prevent it from falling below strength. A general average must be maintained. The soldier fights harder if there is a guerdon to be gained; the runner travels more swiftly and tirelessly if there is some slight reward awaiting beyond the tape. That is my idea," he concluded, "in presenting this shield. I hope that it will be a source of pleasure to those who have won it and an incentive for those who hope to attain it.

Louis Ingram, in acknowledging the receipt of the trophy, said it was a great thing to have a symbol of that kind and indicated that it would in all likelihood remain in the possession of the Baracas.

Considerable disturbance followed this statement. Loud approval from Baracas and high-pitched threats from the ranks of Others and Everybodys.

Some of the other speakers who added their voices to the mede of praise were A. J. Madill, superintendent of the Sunday School; W. G. Shiner, Dr. W. D. Scott, A. J. Raddon, W. W. Richmond teacher of the Baracca Class, and Dr. Rose.

A vote of appreciation was tendered to the Hustlers' Class, which had shouldered the culinary problems. The mothers were also mentioned for the share they had in preparing the banquet. Three rousing cheers were accorded the girls and the eventful evening was brought to a close by the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali, for this is very injurious as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

LEATRICE JOY
The Film Favorite
How She Keeps Her Hair Beautiful

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

THE CITY'S MILK SUPPLY.

The proposal of the Board of Health that the producers of milk that is sold in Peterboro shall be licensed at the rate of $2.00 a year is not intended, of course, as a revenue-producer, but rather as an essential step to protect the people of Peterboro against impure milk.

With the producers licensed it will be possible to pay much closer attention to the sources of Peterboro's milk supply, as the vendors who sell the milk locally will be required to secure such milk only from those producers who hold licenses.

The importance of a pure milk supply cannot be too greatly stressed.

Some communities, in fact, insist upon the pasteurization of all milk sold within their borders as the only absolutely sure way of guaranteeing the consumer from infection.

Peterboro's Board of Health has not seen fit to go that far, but they are recommending the licensing system as likely to give a more convincing assurance of the cleanliness and purity of the milk that is sold in Peterboro.

The matter will now come before the Council, who will have to deal with the board's recommendation that a licensing bylaw be put into effect in this city.

NOT A PENAL COLONY.

J. S. Woodsworth, Labour member for North Centre Winnipeg, in the House of Commons contributed an excellent public service when he called the attention of the Government the other day to a news item to the effect that an English magistrate had given a prisoner convicted of threatening to shoot a woman his choice between going to jail and going to Canada.

Hon. Chas. Stewart, speaking for the Government, assured the House that the man referred to would not come to Canada.

Apparently there are still people in England who regard this country as an excellent dumping ground for the criminal class, as well as for the ne'er-do-wells and worthless.

Mr. Woodsworth, in throwing some light on this particular case, was living up to his responsibility as a member of the Parliament of Canada, and it is to be hoped that his protest will lead to a plain intimation that the Dominion does not propose to allow itself to be a refuge for convicted criminals shipped here instead of being sent to jail.

As the Winnipeg Labour member expressed it, "Canada should not be regarded by English officials as a sort of penal colony," which was apparently what this particular magistrate had in mind in giving the prisoner his choice.

LOCAL OPTION.

Naturally there is a sharp divergence of opinion among the people of this Province as to what Ontario's liquor policy should be, but among those on both sides of the question there must be a very large percentage of citizens who see the absurdity under modern conditions of a system of local option, such as it is said is contemplated.

The policy must be the same for one part of the Province as another, and the Farmers' Sun is right in pointing out that there is no room for any middle course, and that it must be Province-wide prohibition or Province-wide legalized sale.

It is folly to talk of local option when the motor car has completely changed the transportation conditions.

Again the Examiner agrees with the Sun in its declaration that "with distance annihilated by the motor car a bar within 25 miles of a prohibited area would be as easily accessible and as great a menace as one within three miles 25 years ago."

We are not in the confidence of the Ontario Government; what changes, if any, are likely to be made in the existing liquor regulations it is impossible to state.

But the Examiner feels that a middle course in the form of a system of local option is out of the question.

If there is to be Government sale of liquor it would be foolish to try to confine it to certain areas, for it could not be so confined.

THE PREMIER'S RETURN.

The success of Premier King in the Prince Albert by-election was even more emphatic than was first anticipated, and the returns show that while the Prime Minister received the whole Liberal and Progressive vote the Independent candidate did not even have the benefit of the ballots of a large percentage of the Conservatives in the riding.

Mr. King's election was taken for granted from the moment the resignation of the sitting member was announced, and the only effect of the entrance of Capt. Burgess into the field was to postpone the reentrance of the Prime Minister into the House.

His return to the head of the Government should be welcomed by Canadians of all political parties, inasmuch as it is obvious that no real attempt at government can be made until there has been a Cabinet reconstruction.

There has been no progress made since the session began so far as important Canadian problems are concerned, and as the Government's intention of carrying on the administration as long as possible is clear the sooner the Cabinet is reconstructed and an effort made to proceed with legislation the better.

Even then, of course, the Government may find the situation impossible and have to throw up its hands—but anything is better than marking time while serious Canadian problems are being neglected.

With the Premier back in the House it is expected that an announcement will speedily be made of the identity of new members of the Cabinet and as to the plans of the Government in general.

Meanwhile, of course, the recess voted by the House for reconstruction purposes is rapidly being eaten up by the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne which the Opposition continues to carry on relentlessly.

THE LESSON FOR CANADA.

Both operators and miners are claiming victory in the Pennsylvania coal strike. Both are wrong. Everybody lost in this strike, as in most other strikes—including the public. Millions lost in wages; hardship and hunger for thousands; dislocation of a vast industry, with attendant evils; soaring prices for the consumer—these were the sole fruits of the strike. It is a game—like war—in which everybody is defeated.

For Canada, the moral is clear. It is that this country, whose seven months of winter make its fuel supply vital, cannot sensibly depend upon the Pennsylvania coal fields. To do so is simply to place central Canada at the mercy of the whims and passions of greedy operators andf anatical strike leaders in the United States.

On three occasions within the past ten years this dependence has brought hardship to Canada. Must we await calamity before we awaken to our position and take steps to meet it? Locking the barn door after the horse is stolen is—for a nation—often a costly business.

Canada has an abundance of good coal. But so far, despite sad experiences that challenged action, Canadian enterprise has done nothing moret han to produce a lot of talk, a few futile parliamentary committees, and reams of reports and statistics. It has been a discreditable record.

When the existing parliamentary muddle isc leared up—as cleared up it soon must be if chaos is to be avoided—public opinion must insist upon a Canadian fuel policy.—Ottawa Journal.

HOW PROSPEROUS IS CANADA?

How prosperous is Canada?

Apart from those who declare that the country is gloriously prosperous and those others who say that it is going to the bow-wows, the great body of business men and taxpayers throughout the country are convinced that the improvement in the buying power of the people of Canada as indicated in retail trade has not been fully reflected in better conditions industrially. In short, Canadian industry is not benefiting from the improved buying power of the people to the extent that Canadian business has the right to expect. Four explanations are suggested:

Increased flood of foreign goods.

Large exports of unmanufactured materials.

Heavy taxation of such profits as are made.

Political uncertainty undermining all business.

The recent startling revelations as to wholesale smuggling of foreign goods into Canada offer one direct and easily understood explanation of why Canadian manufacturers are not sharing in the return of prosperity. Millions in merchandise which has paid no duty have been flooding the country. Not only Canadian manufacturers, but honest Canadian importers and merchants have been suffering from this situation. But apart from this unknown but great volume of smuggled merchandise there have been increases in the imports of manufactured goods which have been declared in the usual way. Imports of such goods in 1925 are shown at over $20,000,000. Following are some of the larger items:

Cotton goods	$34,000,000
Printed matter	12,000,000
Vehicles	36,400,000
Worsteds	12,500,000
Engines	11,600,000
Machinery	30 200,000
Farm implements	11,200,000
Paper	9,100,000
Manufactures of wood	8,500,000
Lumber	7,500,000
Wearing apparel	6,350,000
Glass	7,150,000
Clay products	7,500,000
Coke	5,500,000
Paints	3,800,000
Leather goods	3,400,000
Woollen yarns	3,800,000
Tweeds	3,000,000
Hardware	3,400,000

On the other hand exports of unmanufactured raw materials are continuing freely and in increasing volume. The total for 1925 was about $625,000,000, including such important items as:

Manufactures of wood	$116,000,000
Undressed furs	17,250,000
Hides	7,700,000
Leather	7,600,000
Nickel	12,600,000
Copper	14,700,000
Aluminum bars	6,500,000

In view of these figures the question is asked whether the Government might not well consider policies looking to the restriction of imports of manufactured goods and the curtailment of exports of raw materials. This particularly in view of the fact that the modern trend of manufacturing favors mass production and the industries of countries with large populations have an increasing advantage over those of countries like Canada. In a national way, however, this disadvantage might be offset by controlling the exportation of those raw materials on which manufacturers of other countries are dependent.

Canadian industry, too, is undoubtedly at a serious disadvantage, particularly in competition with that of the United States, because of the heavy burden of taxation being carried. And there is no indication of a real appreciation of this situation at Ottawa. Not only is there uncertainty in regard to taxation, which makes it very difficult for the manufacturer to lay his plans for the future, but the present levies—in which no real reduction is promised—are such as to discourage new enterprise. The Financial Post has from time to time submitted evidence to support this contention. There is little to attract new capital to come to Canada and Canadians who should be putting their money to work in the development of the country's resources find that there are much more attractive fields for investment in other countries. If they go into new ventures in Canada they find that they are faced with the situation that their losses must be borne fully by themselves, whereas if there are profits the lion's share goes to the Government.

But perhaps more discouraging to industrial development than these definite handicaps is the general uncertainty which prevails because of the political situation at Ottawa. Business cannot go ahead under such conditions. Plans for new projects are suspended in the meantime. There is stagnation where there should be progress and activity.

It is because of these things that Canadian business is demanding another election at the earliest possible moment. And this demand is being made with but one object—to give the people of Canada an opportunity to elect a Government which will have sufficient majority to get on with the country's business without constant haggling and bickering with bargain-hunting political factions which are in a position to impose their radical views and demands under the present state of exasperating political stalemate.—Financial Post.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—Butchers' cows continue to sell well. Choice cows are $6 and over, and good cows $5 to $5.65 a cwt. One bunch of mixed handyweight butchers good mediums sold at $6.90 a cwt. Export bulls were 25 cents a cwt. higher at $5.25 and $6 a cwt. Three extra good butchers' cows were held at $6.60 a cwt. A couple of choice export steers sold at $8.35, and export heifers at $7.10 to $7.25 a cwt. Butchers' cattle, unless good to choice, are draggy and slow.

An insufficient supply of calves is sustaining this market. Buffalo took a deck on Monday, and more can be used in that market. Buyers were keen contestants today, and prices were equally as firm as on Monday.

Australian lamb is now selling in Ontario, and this is influencing local prices. There were only a few medium quality lambs sold this morning at 13 cents for ewes and wethers. One good butchers' sheep brought 8 cents a pound.

Hogs advanced 25 cents a cwt., as expected, on Monday, and this market is said to be still below the prices being paid in the country. F.O.B. hogs are now $13.75 a cwt. bid, and sellers are still trying to jack the price up further. One shipper stated his cost in the country was $13.90.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, Feb. 16 (Canadian Press).—Eastern egg markets are fairly strong, especially for the higher grades. Local production continues rather light with American imports being relied on to meet demand. American spot fresh prices are down 2c today. Poultry receipts are light throughout Canada and both fresh and frozen stocks are moving satisfactorily.

Toronto — Domestic fresh are more plentiful and the demand is largely supplied by imports. One car of States fresh is here today. Local wholesale prices are unchanged.

Montreal—Egg market is steadier today under lighter receipts. It is thought that the present condition will hold unless there are further large imporations of American fresh. Jobbing, fresh extras 42, firsts 35, seconds 30. Storage eggs are also steady and prices unchanged.

Winnipeg—Dealers quoting country points, extras 38, firsts 33, seconds 22. Poultry receipts very light, prices unchanged.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Feb. 16 (Canadian Press).—A moderate amount of business was done in some lines of cash grain in the domestic market for export, but the demand on the whole was far from being satisfactory. The undertone to the market for oats was steady with few sales at unchanged prices.

A steady feeling prevails for all grades on the local butter market, but the volume of business was small and prices were unchanged. Receipts today were 16 packages.

The market for cheese was quiet, business being small, but the undertone was steady and prices were nominally unchanged. Receipts today were 559 boxes.

CONSTABLE GOT HALF O.T.A. FINE

Sales swore that Hill had suggested to him that he go in for making liquor and offered to supply him with a still.

"That is an awful charge to make against the High Constable of Oxford," said Chairman Hales.

"That is what he told me," reiterated Sales.

Denies Arrangement.

High County Constable Hill denied that he had any previous arrangement with Sales to go to Bruder and secure the liquor and entice the man to East Oxford to be caught. On the night in question Sales telephoned and said there would be liquor on the second concession and to get busy, said Mr. Hill. In answer to a question from Mr. Hales, Hill told of arrangements he had with different townships of the courts whereby in some cases he received as high as half the fines, while in others the reward was as low as $15. In answer to a question by Hales, the constable said he did not see anything wrong in the informant receiving half the fines in O.T.A. cases, and said he had received $500 of the $1000 Bruder had been fined. Hill was questioned at length as to how he happened to be hiding at about the exact spot and road where Sales and Bruder had stopped to transfer the liquor. His answer was that it was the only place where any automobile could park on that section. Mr. Hales asked him why he had not laid a charge of selling against Bruder in addition to having liquor in a public place. The answer was: "Possibly I might."

Took Liquor Home.

Constable Hill was questioned as to the disposition of the three cases of liquor taken from Bruder. The constable admitted that he had taken it home. "I used to drive the old inspectors around the county, and they always used to dump the liquor and break the crocks. I heard liquor was good for the radiator so I poured four of the bottles into a pail with anti-freeze and dumped the rest into the sewer," he said.

Thirteen bottles he turned over to the inspector. After further questioning on the disposition of the liquor, James Hales, K.C., the questionerr, said witness' answers were not very satisfactory.

Hill admitted that he had paid Sales $200, because he gave the information.

Admits Neglect.

R. N. Ball, Crown attorney of Oxford, admitted he was neglectful in not having the charge laid against Bruder of having liquor in the car for sale, but it never occurred to him at the time. The charge might have been under the section which provides for confiscation of the car. Mr. Hales commented that it was strange to him that such an ugly situation could exist in an Ontario county.

BODY FOUND IN HARBOR.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Reported missing from Port Coutlam, 15 miles east of here where he is said to have left on New Year's eve to spend the holiday in Vancouver, the body of Chas. Olsen, 44, a logger, was found floating in the harbor last night.

BROTHERHOOD OF THRESHERMEN

Threshers were not getting their due consideration, he contended. Wheat was valueless until threshed, and yet when a machine crashed through a weak and unplacarded bridge no consideration was allowed the owner. There should be a uniform scale of prices and also many threshers, who were enemies, should enter the Brotherhood in all senses of the word.

Some of the speakers who addressed the convention at this time were John M. Houston, president of the Insurance Company, Mr. White, representative of the John Goodison Thresher Co., Mr. Taggart and F. McItnyre.

Conditions Govern Price.

Byrell Harriss and Mr. Cushman conducted a discussion on methods of collecting accounts and setting price scales. It was decided that conditions in all cases governed the prices to be charged for the work, some of the more important factors being the length of straw and the length of jumps between jobs.

After a general discussion on this subject the session of the association was concluded and the meeting resolved itself into the Insurance department.

Annual Statement.

Mr. Cushman presented the annual statement of which the more salient features are recorded here:

Net risk, $343,310.
Premium rates, $34,331.
Residue of Premium rates. $25,538.98.
Assets, $30,287.87.
Expenditures, $8,423.89.
Balance, $2,972.94.

The Ontario Threshermen's Mutual Fire Insurance Company was organized in 1922 and for that year the fire loss amounted to $585.26. In 1923 the loss was high, amounting to $7,885.41, a figure which taxed the infant company severely, but which was met fully, due in part to the assistance granted by policy holders.

For 1924, the loss was $4,590, and last year it was practically halved, and amounted to $2315.85.

The total amount paid out in claims since the operation of the campany was $15,376.72.

Mr. Houston explained the formation of the company and gave Mr. Ingram credit for the manner in which he had submitted his applications.

Mr. Cushman read some letters which were intended to convey the thought that threshermen should have insurance on their machines, and further should know that the policies are valid, and not expired. The care which the machine was given, he said, had much to do with the amount of risk, and that the man was being insured as well as his outfit.

Mr. Ingram declared that in most instances fires were caused by loose matches and seldom by sparks from the engine.

A brief discussion of the supply business concluded the afternoon session. In it the comparative merits of canvas and rubber belting were debated. Mr. Cushman stated that excellent belting was available at an exceptionally low cost.

In the evening the convention took a social trend with anecdote and reminiscence rounding out a successful convention and aiding the feeling of brotherhood.

PREMIER KING WILLING TWELVE MONTHS AGO TO PROBE SMUGGLING COMPLAINTS

Senator Jacques Bureau, Late Minister of Customs, Refused to Believe Allegations Against Customs Inspector at Montreal.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 17.—(By Canadian Press).—When the customs probe resumed Tuesday, R. F. Sparks, president of the Commercial Protective Association, told the committee that his association had informed the Government from time to time since August, 1924, of the result of its investigation into smuggling conditions through Canada; had tried to secure a change in the inspectorship of the Montreal district, and failed to secure any definite results. Mr. Sparks expressed the opinion that Senator Jacques Bureau, former minister of customs, was "not satisfactory as a minister", and asserted that all attempts had failed to persuade Mr. Bureau that the Montreal inspector, J. E. A. Bisaillon, since dismissed by the present minister, was not effectively combatting smuggling in the Montreal district.

Business Men Act.

Mr. Sparks described how his association formed by Canadian businessmen to combat smuggling. It had secured the services of the best available detectives, including a special inspector of the department of finance, Walter Duncan, who had been loaned to them for the purpose. The result of the investigation, Mr. Sparks claimed, amply justified an investigation into smuggling especially in the Montreal district twelve months ago. Premier King and senior members of his cabinet had been approached from time to time by Mr. Sparks, who said he had always been received well "personally", but he "felt he was not getting anywhere."

Hon. Jacques Bureau had maintained that Bisaillon was perfectly satisfactory as an inspector. Premier King had offered to appoint a royal commission to go into the whole question. Correspondence dated February, 1925, was read by Mr. Sparks including letters in which he included reports of his secret service agents that Bisaillon had advised them to "go slow on seizures."

DAVIS PONDERS CATHCART CASE

U. S. Secretary of Labor Defers Decision on Exclusion of Countess.

FOR SEVERAL DAYS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(Canadian Press).—After a day of conferences surrounded by a veil of official secrecy, Secretary Davis of the Labor Department announced that a decision on the question of admitting the Countess of Cathcart to the United States would be delayed, possibly for several days.

The announcement was made after it had been stated that a final order in the case, which involves charges of moral turpitude growing out of the elopment of the Countess with the Earl of Craven several years ago, would be issued late Tuesday.

Attorneys for the Countess, who has been denied admission to the United States by immigration officals at New York and is now held at Ellis Island, were given a hearing Monday by the department's board of review. Because of the importance the case has attained, the board's recommendations were given personal consideration by Secretary Davis, and his decision to defer final action, he explained, was due to his desire to satisfy himself on all points involved before defining the department's position.

Due to yesterday's developments in the matter, Mr. Davis abandoned plans to leave last night for Ocean Park, Fla., for a conference on business of the fraternal order of the Moose and for vacation. He hoped last night to have the matter sufficiently advanced by this morning to permit his departure then.

Might Enter Under Board.

He will be absent several days, and was determined to be satisfied concerning the main points at issue in the Cathcart case before leaving. With these details out of the way, assistant Secretaries White and Husband could then put the department's decision in final form and this, Mr. Davis said, would bear his approval.

Meanwhile, William A. Deford, attorney for the countess, has returned to New York and it is understood to be prepared to institute habeas corpus proceedings to test the law in its application to his client, if the final ruling should call for her exclusion. In case such a writ were issued, it would be possible for the Countess to enter the United States under bond.

"Cradle Snatcher."

At Ellis Island the Countess said she thought the Earl's departure for Canada showed lack of pluck. She said she had "lots of fight" yet, and reasserted her statement that she did not come to this country to see either the Earl or Lady Craven. She hopes never to see them again, she says.

Lady Craven blamed the Countess for dragging "me and all my ideals in the dust." Her husband was a "poor, sick soldier" at the time of the elopment, when he was lured away by an older woman, she contended, with the remark that a good play for the Countess to see would by The Cradle Snatcher.

GREEKS AND TURKS QUARRELLING AGAIN

Exchange of Populations Has Given Rise to Disputes.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Relations between Greece and Turkey are strained once more by disputes growing out of exchange of populations.

The Turkish press is demanding that the Government seize the properties of Greeks living in Constantinople, unless the Greek Government agrees to return the properties alleged to have been taken from Turks living in Macedonia and Western Thrace who do not belong to the classes to be exchanged.

The exchange of populations between Greece and Turkey have resulted in the transfer of 2,000,0000 people, but not one yet has received reimbursement for the properties they were forced to abandon.

FORESTALL TREND TO TRADE TRUSTS

Policy of U. S. Department of Justice in Actions.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(Canadian Press).—The department of justice's anti-trust suit against the National Food Products Corporation filed last Saturday in New York, was in line with a purpose to forestall "tendencies toward monopolies" rather than to combat a monopoly already formed, it was explained Tuesday.

It was made clear that the department did not hold in the petition for a restraining order that the corporation had acquired actual control of a number of chain grocery and other food and dairy organizations, as previously reported. It was set forth rather, that the corporation had obtained stock in such ganizations, the amount of which was not specified, and that this stock should be relinquished.

Among concerns listed, in which the department said stock had been acquired by the National Food Products Corporation, were these:

Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company; National Dairy Products Corporation; H. C. Bohack Company, Inc.; James Butler Grocery Company; First National Stores, Inc.; Abbotts Alderney Dairies, Inc.; The Borden Company; Reid Ice Cream Company; United States Products Corporation; and the Detroit Creamery Company.

Self-Poisoning Increasingly Common

Modern Living Habits Promote Self-Poisoning—Thousands are Victims

The average man or woman does not enjoy consistent good health. Loss of appetite, headaches, biliousness and a lack of enthusiasm for either work or play are constant complaints.

Scientists have ascertained that such a condition is usually caused by self-poisoning resulting from constipation.

Due to modern living habits, the natural secretion which promotes regular elimination by softening the bowel contents, is often deficient—especially among middle-aged people. The poison from waste matter remaining in the systems of people thus affected is the insidious enemy of good health.

Such people need Nujol, because Nujol softens the waste matter and permits thorough and regular bowel elimination without overtaxing the intestinal muscles. It helps Nature help you.

Ask your druggist for Nujol to-day—and remember, look for the name "Nujol" in red on both bottle label and package.

Chronic constipation many times causes pimples. Carter's Little Liver Pills encourage the bowels to eliminate the poisons.

CONSTABLE GOT HALF O.T.A. FINE FROM 'FRAME UP'

In Collusion With Decoy Who Led Bootleggers Into Police Trap.

UGLY SITUATION.

Administrator of O.T.A. in Oxford County Shocks Commission.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Feb. 17.—(Canadian Press).—After a day of evidence which brought many sensational disclosures of what James Hales, K.C., chairman of the Ontario Board of License Commissioners, terms an "ugly situation" in connection with the enforcement of the O.T.A. in Oxford County, the investigation into the conduct of certain officers connected with the enforcement of the Act was brought to a close late Tuesday afternoon, the commissioners intimating that they would report their findings to the Attorney-General.

There was no comment by the two commissioners in charge of the inquiry, General V. A. S. Williams, Commissioner of the Provincial police, and Mr. Hales, as to the evidence of the various witnesses, except that at points Mr. Hales said a wonderful story was being told, and that they were not satisfied with the evidence given in connection with the changing of a charge against Leon Sales, who was convicted for an O.T.A. offence, from one of selling liquor to one of having liquor.

Fine For Constable.

The most damaging evidence was that of the same Leon Sales, who testified that he had made an agreement with County Constable Fred Hill to induce a number of bootleggers to make deliveries to him in the township of East Oxford so that they could be arrested there and the county constable would then receive half of the fine.

In one case, that of Harry Bruder of New Hamburg, it was brought out, Sales carried out this agreement, and Bruder was caught and fined $1,000 and costs. The evidence showed that Hill had received $500 of this fine, and had in turn given $250 of it to Sales as his reward for giving him the information. This $500 was paid to Hill under a by-law appointing him as the special O.T.A. officer for East Oxford, by which he was to be paid half of the fines collected in the Township, a by-law which chairman Hales condemned as being illegal and in contravention of section 120 of the O.T.A.

Kept Five Cases.

Sales' evidence also stated that Hill had known that he had received five cases of liquor out of the eight which had been in Bruder's car before he was arrested and that when Sales was faced with a charge for selling this liquor Constable Hill had told him he would have the charge changed to one of simply having liquor in a public place, providing he pleaded guilty, in which case Hill promised to raise the fine. The fine however was $300 and Hill did not pay it.

MINE WORKERS RATIFY TERMS

New Anthracite Contract Approved By Standing Vote at Scranton.

NO OPPOSITION.

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 17 (Canadian Press).—The anthracite miners yesterday ratified the agreement settling the coal strike.

The miners, in convention, approved the contract by a standing vote after the scale committee explained the terms of the agreement and emphatically declared that it does not contain arbitration as proposed by the operators. No voice was raised in opposition to the agreement.

The mine workers, after an idleness of five and a half months, are now free to return to work Thursday morning. The new contract will be formally signed to-day at a joint conference of operators and miners in this city.

POLICY HOLDER NOT TEMPERATE, COMPANY'S SUIT

Question of Sobriety in Insurance Application Not Truthfully Answered.

POLICY FOR $10,000.

Appeal By Company To Supreme Court From Quebec Judgments.

OTTAWA, Feb. 17. — (Canadian Press).—Claiming that a policy holder had misrepresented himself as "of sober and temperate habits," the Gresham Insurance Co. was appellant in an unusual action in the Supreme Court of Canada Tuesday.

The policy holder was J. E. O. Morin, a former member of the Legislative Assembly of Quebec, residing in Vilmontel, Que. Mr. Morin took out a policy with the company in 1920 for $10,000, and to the question: "Are you now and have you always had habits of sobriety and temperance?" he answered "Yes." Seven months after the issue of the policy, Morin disappeared and his body was afterwards found in the river at Vilmontel. The jury's verdict was that he had died of syncope.

The policy had in the meantime been transferred to the Banque D'Hochelaga as collateral for a loan and payment on the policy was refused on the ground that Morin had made a declaration he knew to be untrue.

The bank took action for recovery and won both in the Superior Court and the Court of King's Bench. The insurance company is now appealing to the Supreme Court, asking that the policy be declared null and void.

TWO PEOPLE DIE VERY SUDDENLY

Aged Man Had Stroke and Daughter-in-Law Heart Failure.

HUSBAND AWAY

COBOURG, Feb. 17. (Special).—The home of Mr. John Foster, Albert St., Cobourg, is plunged in inexpressible sorrow, for late Tuesday Feb. 9, the messenger of death twice visited it, and removed wife and father within a few moments of each other.

Residing with Mr. and Mrs. Foster, and their family of three young sons and a daughter, in the home (besides two sons and a daughter who are away) was his father, Mr. William Foster. The old gentleman who was in his 83rd year had not been in very good health for a month past, but was up and around the house. Yesterday he was seemingly as well as usual when Mrs. Foster left home to attend the funeral of a friend, the late Mr. W. H. Brooks. The old gentleman told her he felt quite well and she left her young son with him for company. While she was absent he was siezed with a stroke. Mrs. Foster was sent for and the family physician at once summoned, but when she reached hom he had passed away. Mrs. Foster had a weak heart, but was in good health apparently. The shock of finding her father-in-law dead, however, proved too much for her and a few moments after entering the house and sitting down on a chair, she was siezed with sudden weakness and died almost immediately.

Husband Was Away.

Mr. John Foster has been working in Oshawa and was there at the time. He had left his family in their usual health, but returned last night to find his children motherless and his father gone. It is a sad blow to him and to his children. The family is one that is generally esteemed.

Mrs. Foster before her marriage was Miss Charlotte Elizabeth Gray, of Akron, N.Y. Besides her husband, she leaves five sons and two daughters: William and Gladys, of Pittsburg; George, of Niagara Falls; James, Fred, Frank and Charlotte, at home. A brother, Edward Gray, resides at Niagara Falls.

The late William Foster was formerly engaged as a carter and teamster. His wife died some twenty years ago. He leaves two sons, John and George, of Cobourg, and a brother, Robert, at Belleville.

A double funeral was held last Friday afternoon.

You Must be the Judge

But You Have the Sani-Bilt Guarantee to Fall Back on

THE real test of a Chesterfield Suite is the test of time—the test of use and wear

You cannot supply the test of time to a Chesterfield before you buy it. That is impossible. You must be the judge yourself.

Rules of Procedure

In judging a Chesterfield suite proceed as follows:

Ask the salesman to tell his full story. Ask him what the manufacturers claim. Ask him whether it is moth-proof. When he has stated his case, you have one very simple piece of evidence still to bring out. Ask him: "What do they guarantee?"

Make him answer it clearly and straightforwardly in plain words—what do they absolutely and unequivocally guarantee?

Value of a Guarantee

If there is no guarantee you know at once that the "beliefs" of the salesman and the "claims" of the manufacturer will avail you nothing.

If the guarantee is for one year only it is useless. You might have moths the second year, and they would be just as bad the second year.

Make him say the suite is guaranteed moth-proof absolutely and for all time. No other kind of guarantee against moths is worth having. If he can't quote an absolute guarantee withhold judgment and adjourn somewhere else.

If he satisfies you that the guarantee is absolute, ask to see it. Then, as final proof, lift the cushions and look for the Sani-Bilt label.

An Absolute Guarantee

There is only one brand of upholstered living room furniture which is guaranteed absolutely. Snyder's Sani-Bilt guarantee protects you from the danger of moths not only for the first year, or the second year, or for any limited period, but forever. It is a permanent guarantee. No other manufacturer dare offer such a guarantee, because the Sani-Bilt mothproof process is the only moth-proofing process ever discovered which absolutely destroys the food value for moths in animal fibre such as wool, silk, hair and feathers, without injuring the material in the slightest degree, or leaving mark, stain, discoloration, odor or poison. Moths will never attack a genuine Sani-Bilt suite.

The Sani-Bilt guarantee also assures the buyer of a new Sani-Bilt suite, sound construction, clean, sanitary, upholstery fillings, and strong durable materials.

The extra beauty and comfort of Sani-Bilt Living Room Furniture testify for themselves at first sight, and the fabrics are of qualities that retain their shades.

Price comparison means nothing without an absolute moth-proof guarantee. Sani-Bilt is offered in a range of prices to fit every need. And in the most beautiful coverings—velours, tapestry, brocade, denim, etc., picked after world-wide selection. We leave you to judge. Ask to see our catalogue if the dealer's stock is incomplete.

VALENTINE TEAS

AT MILLBROOK.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 16.—A very pleasant afternoon was spent in B. B. Dawson's room at the public school on Friday afternoon when a special Valentine programme was given, under the auspices of the literary society, the president, Jack Stinson, being in the chair.

A number of the parents and friends accepted the invitation to be present, finding their pleasure in hearing and watching the young folk who entered wholeheartedly into the spirit of the occasion.

Large red hearts, dart-pierced, decorated the walls, blackboards, window sills, and the doors, and were suspended from the red and white streamers which crossed the room at the centre. An object of much interest was the big, red-covered box labelled, "To My Valentine" which had served as a post office for the pupils' rememberance to each other during the week, and which was found to be filled to the brim when the exciting moment of its opening arrived.

The programme, prepared entirely by the pupils, included:

Reading, "The Story of Saints Valentine," by Dorothy McDowell.

Reading, "The Return of St. Valentine," by Mary Vance.

Recitation, "As you look over your Valentines," by Winnie Lord.

Reading, "A Queer Valentine," by Mary Burnham.

Chorus, "A Happy, Little Valentine," by the school.

Recitation, "An Odd Valentine," by W. Lord.

Contest, the girls having white hearts to be matched by the boys who chose red.

Reading, "Mother's Valentine", by M. Vance.

Opening of Valentine Box, and distribution of contents, Owen McCarthy, postmaster.

A treat of sandwwiches, apples and homemade candy concluded the afternoon, Mr. Dawson expressing his personal appreciation of the presence of the parents and others, and extending a cordial invitation a second visit, before the National Anthem was sung.

SUPREME COURT SESSION OPENS IN PETERBOROUGH COURT HOUSE UNDER HON. MR. JUSTICE MOWAT

No Criminal Cases on the Docket For Winter Assizes.

GRAND JURY.

Case Set Down For Trial Settled By Apology and $200.

The winter sitting of the Supreme Court of Ontario opened in Peterborough County Court House yesterday before the Honourable Mr. Justice Mowat, and continues today.

When His Lordship took his seat there weer within the bar, Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K.C.; the Honourable G. N. Gordon, K.C.; F. D. Kerr, K.C.; R. R. Hall, K.C.; E. C. Cattanach, K.C., of Toronto; Magistrate O. A. Langley; B. C. Donnan, Belleville, Crown Attorney of Hastings County; J. F. Strickland; V. J. McElderry, and J. H. Corkery.

His Honor Judge Huycke was on the Bench at the commencement of the court.

The Grand Jury was sworn and chose C. E. Moore as foreman.

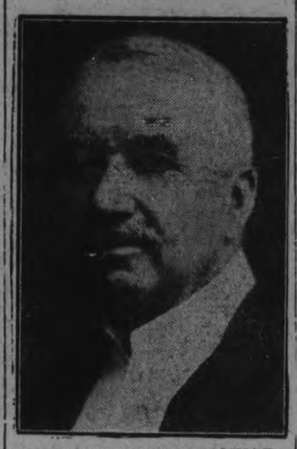
The members are: W. J. Booth, Henry Brown, David Butters, Alex Darling, J.E.A. Fitzgerald, Walter Garbutt, Victor Hamilton, Maxwell Kidd, F. J. Lynch, C. E. Moore, Percy E. Rutherford, Howard Smithson, Archie Wilson.

Mr. Justice Mowat addressed the Grand Jury as follows:

Gentlemen of the Grand Jury,—You are occupying today the position of honor and distinction which your predecessors occupied in days of yore. For over one hundred years it has been going on. It is an important thing in a man's life and only men of substance and good character can attain to it. I am told there is no criminal business for you to deliberate on. As a consequence your labors will be considerably reduced. I believe in the Grand Jury, I believe it is a good thing for citizens to come and view the procedure of the law, and also assist it. You have the power to place men in the dock if they do not attend to their duties. You stand between the public and the guardians of the law. You stand between the public and the Government, in the administration of public buildings. The public should know that twice every year an honorable body of men looks to its interests You should go to the jail and see that it is in a sanitary condition. Inspect the diet sheet of the prisoners. There are institutions in the County that receive money from the Government and the County Council. You must see that they are kept right. Inspect the fire escapes, especially in the hospitals. There are no prisoners, so you will have nothing else to do but inspect these places.

The first case was that of Jean Hansman, plaintiff and Thomas J. Moore, defendant. The plaintiff was the only witness called and after a few preliminaries V. J. McElderry, counsel for the plaintiff and R. R. Hall, K.C., for the defendant with the permission of His Lordship Justice Mowat withdrew and consulted together with the result that the defendant made the following statement. "I wish to state on oath that I know nothing against Mrs. Hansman or her character. What was said was in the heat of anger. I did not mean to say anything reflecting on Mrs. Hansman's good character or good name. If in the heat of anger, I have made use of any language reflecting on Mrs. Hansman's good name I unreservedly express my regret and apologize for same." Judgment was entered for the plaintiff to the amount of $200 for plaintiff's costs.

PRESIDING JUDGE.



HON. MR. JUSTICE MOWAT who is presiding at the winter sittings of the Supreem Court now proceeding here.

MAN IS LIABLE IF SLAPS WIFE

May Be Prosecuted Says Legal Authority—Ontario Report.

RECENT CASE.

TORONTO, Feb. 17.—A technical report covering the legal aspects of a case involving the chastisement of a woman by her husband, has been made to Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney-General of Ontario. It follows a recent decision by a Western Ontario magistrate, that a husband had a perfect right to slap his wife, and the report sums up that this interpretation is not correct.

The first point in the report is a quotation from Blackstone's commentaries, third edition, 1784, which states "the husband also (by the old law) might give his wife moderate correction—but this power of correction was confined within reasonable bounds, and the husband was prohibited from using any violence to his wife. But with us in the politer reign of Charles II., this power of correction began to be doubled and a wife may now have security of the peace against her husband, or in return a husband against his wife. Yet the lower rank of people who were always fond of the old common law, still claim and exert their ancient privilege; and the courts of law will still permit a husband to restrain a wife of her liberty, in case of any gross misbehavior."

Husband Liable.

The report then quotes from Blackstone at a later date, in which he says "there can be no doubt that if a wife receives bodily injury from the hands of her husband, he is liable to criminal proceedings for a felony or misdemeanor." Another ancient belief that a man might chastise his wife with a stick if it were no bigger around than his little finger, is also quoted, with the comment that in this more enlightened age the belief about the stick and its size has passed into the limbo of forgotten things.

From the past centuries the report drifts into the present age and reduces the criminal code to the interpretation that there is no protection for the man who beats his wife and that he is liable to court proceedings and punishment.

The charge is brought under a 1925 amendment to the Criminal Code of Canada. The case was adjourned until Feb. 19.

not as nice between men and women as they used to be," he said, adding that the young must decide whether these things are so commonly talked about that the references in the defendant's letters are not strange. The jury should not confine itself to considering whether such things would be written by people in high society, but "by the people of the farms in Canada—the best people in the world."

Not Like Hiawatha.

Referring to the contention of counsel for the plaintiff that Doherty used his home as a means to induce Mrs. Mooney to leave her husband, His Lorship said: "It will be a matter for your careful consideration whether a man goes wooing with a house that has a pair of snow shoes and six guns hanging on the wall. That is not like Hiawatha wooing Minnehaha. He did not take bows and arrows—he takes the deer, itself—the fruit of the chase, and lays it at her feet."

Doherty's letters, His Lordship continued, referring to a good time may be just the expression of a good natured man who would have a good time with any woman. As a matter of fact he was carrying on a correspondence with two women at once, perhaps thinking there is safety in numbers.

This woman claims she is worn out on the farm and wanted to go to the "front." It would be difficult to say, therefore, that it was wholly on account of the seduction of this man that she came out. Her mind was made up some considerable time before she started corresponding with Doherty. That you must decide.

Woman Has Rights.

"It has been depicted here by counsel for the plaintiff that woman is a weak, frail, creature, to be made to do whatever men like and if they put her in a home and don't treat her right that is not her business," His Lordship said. "Ah! gentlemen; we have progressed a long way past that. Surely the individual must be considered. A woman has the right to change her home; she has the right to go where she wants to go; she has the right to leave her husband. It is not desirable, but it is legal.

If that is so, and she desired to leave and did leave of her own free will she was not then induced and enticed. If her real reason was dissatisfaction with her life, then I don't see where the plaintiff can make out enticement.

The trouble is she did not see the importance of leaving the house after the old people were gone. She stayed on. That's not a worldly wise thing to do—for a married woman to stay in the same house alone with an unmarried man. The question for you is, 'was adultery committed—is he guilty?'

This woman is not a party to the case, yet she is on her trial more than Doherty is. She is naturally emphatic in defending her reputation. If you condemn the man you cannot help condemning the woman, too. Is she a bad woman? Did she forget her marriage vows? Could she, if she were sinning daily, have written this letter of October 15 to her husband?"

In submitting five questions to the jury, His Lordship advised against making the damages, if any, too high.

too high. "This plaintiff was rather complacent about the affair," he said.

Five Questions.

The following were the questions submitted for answer by the jury, with the answers:

(1) Did the defendant seduce and commit adultery with the plaintiff's wife? .....Answer, No.

(2) Did the defendant entice the the plaintiff's wife away from her home by scheme, device, or other means? .....Answer, Yes.

(3) If you find defendant did so, state the acts upon which you base your finding .....Answer, Letters show defendant induced plaintiff's wife away; also his living with her and giving her a home.

(4) Did the defendant harbor the plaintiff's wife against his will? .....No answer.

(5) What damages do you say the plaintiff should receive for (a) adultery. None. (b) enticing and harboring, $1,000.

Jury.

The following was the jury that tried this case: Fred Goodfellow, foreman; Ernest Henry, V. J. Tully, E. J. Cadd, S. H. Abbott, Robert McMillan, William Preston, James Collinson, James Hatherly, William Crane, William Rogers and Edward Graham.

AMENDMENT TO ADDRESS BEATEN BY TEN VOTES

Progresives Vote With Government to Retain Australian Treaty.

VOTE 118 TO 108.

Conservatives Attack Treaty During Session and Denounce Government.

OTTAWA, Feb. 17. — (Canadian Press). — The Sutherland amendment to the address from the Throne, calling for greater protection to agricultural products and the abrogation of treaties harmful to agriculture was defeated by 118 to 108. Every Progressive voted with the Government to maintain the Australian treaty.

Just before the vote Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, the Opposition leader, made a final attack on the treaty. He declared that it exposed practically all the farming population of Canada to unlimited competition from a country which was almost the largest exporter of meat in the world, and one of the greatest exporters of dairy products. He believed that since the treaty went into effect more butter had come to Canada in a month than had formerly entered this country in a year. The Government speakers, he said, were fond of blaming the Opposition for the defeat of reciprocity in 1911. If reciprocity had not been voted down by the Canadian people in that year, he declared, it would subsequently have gone by the boards at the hands of the United States people.

Contest For Floor.

After the division there was a contest for the floor by C. H. Cahan, Conservative, St. Lawrence - St. George, and T. W. Bird, Progressive of Nelson. Speaker Lemieux declared in favor of Mr. Bird, who proceeded to discuss the main motion.

Afternoon Debate.

Conservative and Progressive members carried the debate during the afternoon and evening. The Conservative speakers included J. A. Fraser of Cariboo, Hon. J. W. Edwards, Frontenac-Addington; H. C. Hocken, Toronto West Centre, and G. B. Nicholson, Algoma East. The Progressives were W. T. Lucas, Camrose; John Evans, Rosetown, and J. L. Brown, Lisgar. Mr. Lucas announced his intention of opposing the amendment, even though he had voted against the Australian treaty in the last Parliament. He felt that Canada, having obtained the treaty, it should be given a fair trial.

Dr. Edwards said he would support the Sutherland amendment, and charged the Government with exhibiting "pitiable weakness" in acceeding to the demands of members of other groups in the House. Mr. Hocken denounced the regulation of the Immigration Department prohibiting the immigration to Canada of children under 14 years of age.

The YELLOW STUB

by Ernest Lynn

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HENRY RAND 55 a business man is found murdered in a cheap hotel in GRAFTON. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the yellow stub of a theater ticket.

JIMMY RAND his son goes to Chicago where the theater is. The stub is traced to a THOMAS FOGARTY who says he gave it to OLGA MAYNARD a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. Later he encounters Olga Maynard who faints when she learns she is wanted for murder. Mary out with SAMUEL CHURCH a wealthy lawyer sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the ticket stub and handkerchief were hers but might have got into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder.

Jimmy receives several mysterious warnings to leave Chicago. He is followed one evening and in the fight that follows he is getting the best of his opponent when he hears someone running toward them in the darkness.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The patter of running feet drew nearer, but the darkness, intensified by the drizzling rain, was like an impenetrable screen, and Rand, with eyes straining, waited for the invisible runner to draw nearer to the light.

The man who had collapsed against the wall was gathering himself together. Jimmy Rand, looking off into the darkness, had his back to him and did not see the stealthy approach, the huge outstretched paws.

A sudden sound behind him caused him to turn just in time to escape the other's grasp. Once more he backed away from his opponent.

A form took shape out of the darkness at his back. "Plug him, Kid!" There was the light of recognition in the big man's eyes. "Plug him, Kid, plug him!"

Jimmy wheeled and caught a fleeting glimpse of a dark face and twisted nose and light glinting from a revolver. Without an instant's pause he left his feet and launched his flying body straight at the legs of the newcomer.

The man's feet shot from under him and he fell to the sidewalk, his right hand still brandishing the revolver. He scrambled wildly to his feet, but the catapult that had struck him had risen in a flash and was flying down the street. He raised his hand and fired.

Rand was twisting and dodging in his flight. The shots went wild. Jimmy pulled up, panting, at the gate in front of his rooming house and ran swiftly up the walk to the porch. There he waited and listened, but there was no pursuit; evidently his assailants had decided to leave before some policeman, attracted by the sound of shots, should appear to spoil their plans.

He opened the front door, went in and slammed it shut, and then stood leaning against it, breathing deeply.

The slamming door brought Mrs. King, the landlady. "Oh, it's you, Mr. Rand— why, Mr. Rand, you're hurt." Her hands, buried in the capacious pocket in the front of her gingham apron, were hastily withdrawn. They fluttered helplessly about her head. "You're bleeding."

"Someone tried to hold me up, I guess, but I got away all right. My ear's cut a little; that's the only damage, I think."

He moved to the telephone. "I'm going to call the police." Mrs. King, in a high state of excitement, left and returned a little later with a basin of warm water and a towel.

He hung up the receiver, and Mrs. King, in spite of his protests, proceeded to bathe his injured ear and to wash away the blood that had caked on his cheek and neck.

"There was a telephone call for you yesterday, Mr. Rand."

"Who was it?" he asked.

"I don't know. I thought it was queer at the time. A man called and asked for you. I said you had left town."

"Was that all?"

"Oh, no. He said, 'Oh, is that so?' and then I told him that you would be back in a day or so. He said, 'Oh, he will, will he?' and hung up."

And that was all he said?"

"Why, that was all. It was just the way he said 'Oh, he will, will Jimmy, he said 'Oh, he will, will mean, And—ok me as being queer." "What do you "Wall of erect a the equa feet thick. ...en you say it sounded queer?"

"Why, I—I don't just know how to explain it. The man sounded disappointed, in a way, when I told him you were coming back. No, not exactly that, either. Not disappointed, but sort of surprised. I—I didn't like his tone."

"You mean he sounded as if he expected I had left town and was rather taken aback to learn I was returning. Is that it?"

"Yes, you've put it just right. I suppose I'm foolish to imagine things like that. It might have been a good friend of yours—although I should think he'd have given his name."

Jimmy was on his way up the stairs. "I don't think you're imagining anything, Mrs. King. I don't know who it was that called, but you may be sure it wasn't a friend."

He turned away. "I'm going to take a bath. Is there plenty of hot water?"

"Yes, Mr. Rand. And you'll find liniment in the medicine chest."

"By the way," he added, "I expect Lieutenant O'Day, a police officer. When he comes show him to my room, please. And—oh yes, Mrs. King, the next time you get a queer telephone call for me will you notify the chief operator and ask her to try to trace it?"

He was gone up the steps, leaving his landlady—hands locked together in her large apron pocket, mouth agape—agonized with curiosity.

"And now tell me all about this little party you had, me lad." Lieutenant O'Day, comfortably seated in an armchair, removed a fat black cigar from his cap and asked for a match.

"It's against the regulations—smoking on duty before midnight, but I was never one to look a regulation in the eye when my system's crying out for the weed. Rand, don't take things too—what is it, now?—too literal."

Jimmy, propping himself up on the bed with a couple of pillows, a bathrobe covering his pajamas and his feet thrust in a pair of felt bedroom slippers laughed and lit a cigaret for himself.

"It's not the breaking of regulations that counts so much, lieutenant, but the spirit in which they're broken. I'm glad to find that you don't take things too literally."

"But here's what happened," and he told O'Day of the adventure he had just been through, beginning with the first of those premonitions that had made him so nervous and ending with his flight from the man with the gun.

"I got off pretty easy at that," he finished, exhibiting his torn ear. "Just this and a bruised shoulder."

"And what do you make of it?" asked O'Day.

"I'll tell you after you give me your opinion."

O'Day puffed reflectively on his cigar. "Hm-m-m. Did you say this fellow with the gun came running from the direction of this house here?"

"Yes. Evidently he was a partner of the other man."

"Yeah, no question about that. Well, Rand, it might have been a holdup. The smaller fellow with the gun went around the block to head you off at your house and the other man trailed you. They had you headed off both ways. The trouble is you upset their plans by not waiting. You got away with it because you surprised this guy off his feet."

"You say you think it might have been a holdup, but doesn't it strike you as funny that those men should know where I lived?"

"Well, yes. Mind you, I said to MIGHT have been an attempted holdup. I'm not sayin' I think it was one. And, of course, it's not out of the question that a couple of stickup guys should take the trouble to find out where the party they're after lived. They might have been watching you for some time, waiting for the opportunity."

"They were watching me, all right. Listen." And Jimmy told O'Day of the warning note he had received the night he left for Grafton, and of the phone call that followed.

"And now the landlady tells me I got another phone call yesterday from someone who seemed surprised to learn I was coming back to town."

O'Day whistled. "Jumpin' Jerusalem! Why didn't you say something to me about this before? You've had a narrow squeak and no mistake."

"Well, I'm no alarmist, but I confess this thing has got me guessing now. That letter and the phone calls and now this thing tonight—they all connect up pretty closely, don't they?"

"Connect up? I'll say they connect up. Whoever wrote that note meant it. He wasn't bluffing. But who's after you, and what for? Are you holding something else back, Rand?"

"Not another thing." He smiled. "Hereafter, lieutenant, you'll know every card that's played in this game. I didn't believe it before, but now I'm convinced that whoever is behind this thing will murder me if he gets the chance. I think their plan tonight was for the man with the revolver to stop me in front of the house on the pretense of robbing me while the other sneaked up from behind and hit me over the head with that blackjack. Oh—I didn't show you that blackjack, did I?"

"No," grunted O'Day. Jimmy climbed down off the bed and walked over to his coat. The weapon was still in his pocket and he threw it down in O'Day's lap, a rough contrivance of leather with a crudely fashioned handle and a heavily weighted end.

O'Day pulled out a pocket knife and ripped the stitches. "Filled with emery," he said after a short inspection. "Heavy as lead almost, and in a strong man's hands capable of breaking a skull without cutting the scalp. It's homemade, which proves that the owner knew what he wanted with it."

He bit his cigar viciously. "Rand, who in the devil's behind this?"

"Find the man that murdered my father and I'll tell you," said Jimmy.

"You mean the same people who got your father are after you?"

"Exactly. Somebody's afraid I'm going to find out something. Perhaps whoever it is thinks that because I'm here in Chicago I know more than I do. And another reason for connecting the two. I believe it is more than a coincidence that the weapon that killed my father was, as far as we've been able to make out, exactly like that blackjack there. It might even have been the same one, lieutenant."

She Was Troubled With Chronic Constipation

Once your bowels become constipated you are in for a lot of trouble, as constipation is one of the most prolific sources of disease that the human race is addicted to, therefore a free motion of the bowels every day should be the aim of everyone who aspires to perfect health.

Mrs. O. W. Lawrence, Cloverdale East, N.B., writes:—"I was troubled with chronic constipation, and became so bad I was almost afraid to eat anything.

One day I saw your advertisement of

so I got three vials, and after taking them I have never been troubled since with constipation."

TWO BAD FIRES OVER WEEK END

Roof of John Johnston's House Burned — James Leonard's Home Destroyed.

MARMORA, Feb. 17.—Two outbreaks of fire occurred in Marmora Township on the western side of the river this past week-end. In the noon hour of Friday a minor outbreak occurred in the residence of Mr. John Johnson, situated just outside the corporation bounds. The roof became ignited near the chimney. With the assistance of neighbors, the flames were subdued with little damage having been done. In the same hour of the following day the home of Mr. James Leonard, a log building that has weathered the storms and other ravages of time for over eighty years, fell a prey to devouring flames. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard, both elderly folk, were partaking of their dinner when they were suddenly made aware of the presence of fire upstairs. Rushing up to note its extent preparatory to taking action, Mr. Leonard was quite unprepared for what happened. The burning roof fell in upon him, scorching him badly about the head and blistering his face and hands. Medical treatment was given him by Dr. Thomson. Very little of his household effects were saved, and the insurance carried being small, much sympathy is felt for Mr. and Mrs. Leonard in their loss.

ST. MARY'S AT HOME IS WELL ATTENDED

Over 450 Guests Present at Enjoyable Social Event.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 16.—The At Home of St. Mary's parish which was held Monday night drew the largest crowd that ever assembled in the auditorium of the High School, there being over 450 guests present these including not only members of the parish but residents of the town of all denominations as well as from surrounding towns and district. A few more such gatherings and it will be necessary to give serious consideration to the half jest of Dr. O. C. Watson that an addition to the High School will be the next problem with which the Board of Education will be called upon to deal. Large as the crowd was, however, so perfect were the arrangements made by the various committees that it was handled without the slightest confusion.

The dances, of which there were 24 numbers, including six of the old time quadrilles, were held in the auditorium to the music of Leonard's orchestra. Dancing quadrilles is by no means a lost art in this town and this chapter from the amusements of bygone days seemed to be as thoroughly enjoyed as were the waltzes. William Martin, who is about the only man available equal to the task, "called off" the quadrilles. There were nearly 200 couples on the dancing floor at one time.

The Progressive Euchre.

In the hallways of the upper floor of the building 20 tables were placed for progressive euchre and at these 80 ladies and gentlemen competed for the prizes, the games lasting until 11 o'clock when Chas. H. Davidson, Chas. Ackerman and J. O'Connor acted as a committee to sum up the results and award the prizes. The winners were as follows:

Ladies—Mrs. John Roach won first prize, a pair of salt cellars, and Mrs. Andreson and Mrs. Joseph Kelleher were tied for second place. In the draw Mrs. Kelleher won second prize, a half dozen coffee spoons, and Mrs. Anderson third, a handsome embroidered handkerchief.

Captain P. J. Kelly won the first prize for gentlemen, a fountain pen, and R. Long and James Daly were tied for second place. Mr. Daly won the draw, his prize being a tobacco pouch. Mr. Long's prize was an ash tray. Captain Kelly also won the gentlemen's prize for lone hands, a pair of silk socks. Mrs. George Haig and Miss Bessie Locke were tied for the ladies' prize for lone hands and Mrs. Haig won the draw, the prize being a box of handkerchiefs.

In the Dining Room.

The tables for the lunch were laid in the basement and the dining room was bright with floral decorations that had been arranged by Mrs. James Kerr. There were bouquets on every table and from every electric light there were suspended decorations in keeping with the Valentine season. Over 80 guests could be seated at a time and the large crowd was accommodated in short order. Mrs. Kerr and Mrs. Thomas Dewey were the committee in charge of the lunch and in this work they were assisted by the ladies of the parish.

The Committees.

The other committees who arranged the details of this successful entertainment under the general oversight of Rev. Father Phelan, were as follows:

General committee — Richard Cook, Robert Lee, Michael Murphy, P. J. Sarginson, George O'Sullivan, Donald Robertson and Harry McFaul.

Dining room committee— John Anderson, Edward Forrestall.

Cards committee—Vincent Farrell, Jerry O'Connor and Tobias Forrestall.

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestents

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gassourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestents, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

Two Men Sentenced For Hold-up of Yard Foreman.

TORONTO, Feb. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Fifteen years in Portsmouth Penitentiary was the sentence imposed by Magistrate Jones today on Roy Davey and Fred. Moore, who were convicted of holding up Thomas Hankin, yard foreman of the Central Coal Company, late one afternoon in January and robbing him of $400 in cash and a number of cheques, after threatening him with a revolver.

ACTION DENIED.

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—(Canadian Press).—The rumored Government action to dissociate Canada from the Locarno Treaty was officially denied here this morning. No action is necessary on the part of the Dominion to remain outside the terms of the treaty, as it expressedly provided that the treaty shall not apply to the British Dominions unless they definitely accept it.

SEEN ON FIFTH AVENUE.

Russian boots, snugly encasing the foot, and endorsed by Paris and London.

Gay colors still in the lead for gowns and hats.

Lovely shawls of embroidered silk, or painted velvet.

Patent leather slippers with a net work of metal leather straps over the instep.

Very little, if any, roupe used for daytime! The latest for street make-up being no rouge at all, and very vividly colored lips.

Semi-precious stones set in antique gold. One set composed of necklace, earrings and bracelet, was of onals and carnelians in a dull gold setting.

Slender chains gleaming with brilliants used as anklets and worn under the stockings.

The passing of the light colored stockings: gun metal and sheer black now being seen everywhere.

The New Shadow-proof Bloomers

In this day and age of elimination to acquire a sylph-like figure, this latest innovation is a boon. When worn with brassiere or vest, this clever garment is all that is needed under a frock of silk. You may do away with a petticoat, or even the familiar costume slip, for a loose panel both back and front achieves the necessary shadow-proof effect. The bloomers themselves are especially attractive with scalloped ruffle at the knee, and if desired both panels may be omitted. No. 1283 is in sizes 28, 32, 36 and 40 inches waist. Size 32 waist requires 3 yards 32-inch, or 2⅝ yards 39-inch material for bloomers with panels; or 1⅞ yards 32-inch, or 1⅝ yards 39-inch for plain bloomers. Price 20 cents.

Every woman's desire is to achieve that smart, different appearance which draws favorable comment from the observing public. The designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book are originated in the heart of the style centers and will help you to acquire that much desired air of individuality. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

Menus for the Family

By Sister Mary.

Breakfast—Grapes, cereal, thin cream sour cream waffles, syrup, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Creamed noodles and mushrooms, brown bread, masked bread pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner—Stuffed baked haddock, twice baked potatoes, buttered beets, orange salad, floating island, graham bread, milk, tea.

A "party" dish of some sort is always needed when fish is served. In this instance the salad supplies this need.

The beets are chosen as much for their contrasting color with the fish as for their food. However, you will find that this color contrast is very dependable for the making of well-balanced menus.

Masked Bread Pudding.

Two cups dry graham bread crumbs, 3-4 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons butter, 1-3 cup jam or preserves, 1-2 cup whipping cream.

Melt butter and add to bread crumbs and sugar. Mix thoroughly. Line a baking dish with waxed paper and pack mixture firmly in dish. Bake in a moderate oven until solid and top is brown. It will take about 30 minutes. Remove from oven and turn dish upside down on serving platter. Pull off paper. When ready to serve spread with jam and mask with cream whipped and slightly sweetened and flavored with vanilla.

The pudding can be served hot or cold but I like it just comfortably warm.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl eighteen years old and in love with a young man twenty years old. I have known him for several years, but we have been going together only two months. He has asked me to marry him in the near future. My parents do not believe in young marriages, but I care for him very much.

Kindly advise me. CURLY.

CURLY: If your parents feel that you are too young and immature to marry, I should advise you to be guided by their advice, my dear. They know you better and more intimately than any one else—and they are, accordingly, more interested in your welfare. Continue your friendship with this young man, but don't make any definite plans until you have the full consent of your father and mother.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have been going with a young man for about three months and we love each other dearly. He told me I ought to go out with other boys but I love him too dearly to do that.

Do you think it would be fair to him if I did go with other men?

J. B. K.

J. B. K.: If you are not engaged to this young man there is no reason why you should not go out with other friends, Miss K. And I think this young man is very generous when he suggests that you do this.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

A MARTHA WASHINGTON TEA.

In celebration of the famous birthday suppose the hostess has a real Colonial tea party. The decorations should be in the lovely buff and blue that made the dress uniforms of the soldiers of the time so fascinating.

For the tea, the table should be covered with a white damask cloth. The centerpiece of lace, or embroidered linen, may hold a gilt basket of flowers, yellow roses and blue flowers if any are to be had in the shops. Silver candlesticks with buff candles should be enough in number to light the scene.

At either end of the table a tea service should be placed. This enables quick service. At the sides, plates with the tea napkins between should be stacked. Around the center of the table, there should be silver dishes of bonbons, olives, salted almonds, stuffed celery, deviled eggs, and a few easily managed relishes, plates of dainty sandwiches, bowls of salads, and plates of hot biscuits.

Pound cake and marble cake sliced in old-fashioned cake baskets adorn the table also. When it comes time for the sweets, the cakes are passed with frozen custard, or homemade Charlotte Russe made with lady fingers.

The Woman's Day

Touching brightly on woman's every major interest in life from books and babies to politics and psycho analysis.

(By Allene Sumner)

Clipped From the News.

Did you know that no longer than 10 years ago, less than one woman in 500 paid as much as $2 for silk stockings? Cotton hose were worn by highest and lowliest then. Women's clubs clamored for a tariff reduction on plain cotton hose, priced 25 cents.

Modern woman's feet are growing larger and larger. Shoe dealers sell more sixes and sevens than any other size, and few stores are without a stock of nines, tens and elevens.

Things to Read.

"Soundings," by Phillip Gibbs. Sane and clear thinking. It tells you what your sons and daughters are thinking about and doing to-day. It will show you an ideal father and daughter relationship. "Father," asks Nancy, who has been hard bumped by life, "I only want a child even without love. Isn't that my little right?"

Too Tired for Beauty!

Of course, you can't do all those beauty stunts the expert beauties tell you to! But try these on your waistline and epidermis:

At least every other night clean your face and neck with cold cream instead of soap and water.

Put peroxide every night on your hint of a mustachio.

Use vanishing cream before powdering.

If your skin chaps, wash with "soap" made of oatmeal put in cheesecloth squares, tied at the top with string.

To Beautify the Home.

Bittersweet, which can be found along the country road even now, brightens the drabbest home when banked on a mantel, stuck in a plain stone jar or crock, or burning like flame from a copper or brass bowl.

Batik paper, bought at any stationer's, is now being used for tapestries as cretonne pieces have been. A strip of the light color and right size and shape used as a wall panel in the right nook or cranny is lovely!

What Famous Women Are Doing and Saying.

Being a mother is a full-time job, declares Irene Castle, famous dancer whom we have missed from the limelight for some time. Baby Barbara is the reason. Her mother says she is through with the stage forever.

Any woman can raise a baby right and keep on being an individual herself, says Neysa McMein, artist, who goes to her studio every day, leaving baby Joan with a nurse.

Style Tips.

Green is "the" spring color.

Cape Coats and caped dresses, even capes of lace, will flap in April breezes.

Skirts remain knee length and ensemble suits for morning, afternoon and night, continue to reign.

Fancy Foods for Fancy Dates.

Cream cheese and red raspberry marmalade for sandwiches also, candied ginger, chopped date and nut. Sponge cake covered with ice cream and hot chocolate sauce, and marguerites made by melting marshmallows upon saltines and topping with nut halves or maraschino cherries will thrill "the literary club."

Bit of Verse.

To stay at home is best."

DECISION.

"Don't worry Mother, Dad, about what I've been saying. She's probably quite as horrified at it as you are with my action but I want to make it very emphatic that when I marry, it will be to a man of my own choosing."

"May I ask then, what you intend to do, young woman?" asked my father. "You know I'll not brook anyone about my house who defies me as you have done. You certainly know me well enough to know that I am the head of my own house."

"I certainly do, Dad, but I also know that you cannot own me, even if I am your daughter."

"What do you mean by that? Why, even Charles Becker was more amenable to reason than you have been.

"I don't blame him, however, for not wanting to marry you. His eye is swelled shut and the color of spoiled meat from the effect of your blow last night. I never thought I would be called upon to suffer such humiliation as I did when Charles Becker told me that you had blackened his eye. You young women have usurped every other foible and even vice that might belong to man and it seems now that you're going in for the talents of the prize-fighter."

I laughed. It struck me so funny to think of Dad commiserating with Chuck because his obstreperous daughter had blacked the poor young man's eye. He did not seem to realize why I had struck him. However, he seemed suddenly to come to the conclusion that he was talking too much, for he looked at me fiercely as though to intimidate me and said:

"Now, young woman, I'm ready to hear from you."

"Well, in the first place, seeing as how you asked me, I'll tell you as well as the rest of the world. I'll not marry Chuck Becker. Nothing you can do or say can make me."

"Julia, Julia," interrupted my mother, "Don't you know that no other young men in town will marry you if Charles Becker tells the story of last night?"

"Why not? The fact that Chuck has a black eye and that I walked home in the rain ought to be proof that I am still—in spite of what Dad thinks and what he has just said—a decent young woman."

I turned to my father impulsively. Here was my chance.

"Dad," I said, "you and I will never see things in the same light. You are of the old order. I am of the new, and I will only be a thorn in your flesh if I try to live in this house longer. Let me go away, Dad. I can take care of myself—"

Dad shook his head.

The Temptation.

Read Matt. 4:1-11. Text: Heb. 4:15.

One that hath been in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin.

Meditation—Jesus knows what is in man because he has lived man's life and this first hand knowledge of human life qualified him to save men. The descent of the Holy Spirit at Jesus' baptism finally and vividly testified to his divine mission. Immediately after this experience came the tempter's voice: "If thou art the Son of God." This was calculated to throw doubt upon his heavenly vision.

He refused the suggestion that he demonstrate his power to satisfy the craving of the flesh, or make a spectacular display before the people, or take an unworthy way to success. He endured temptation and demonstrated his capacity to overcome the appeal of evil and his right to the moral leadership of mankind.

Prayer—O thou Saviour of the World, redeem us from sin. Make us overcomers, able to endure the disciplines of temptation. Keep us strong of will, knowing that God will not suffer us to be tempted above what we are able to bear. Amen.

HIGHER-HEELED SHOES.

In shoes for spring and summer wear, there appears to be a tendency to slightly higher heels, with light colors remaining in the forefront of favor, and whites apparently a negligible quantity. The two-tone effects are still good, with the trim carried out in inset designs on the darker leather.

Patent and kid will reign supreme, and dressy Oxfords promise to be the favorite for summer wear. Gore pumps will be outstanding also, and the ever-popular one-strap slipper.

Local dealers report an ever-increasing demand for scientifically fitted orthopedic shoes, with the always present controversy raging between the proponents of the flexible type which can be bent backward or forward with equal ease, and the shoe of rigid, arch-supporting construction.

The color card issued by a well-known shoe firm shows the vogue for browns of almost every shade, from the archemin tint that is really a light blonde to the Gypsy, or dark brown, shade. Interesting names are included in this list. The browns have bois de rose, Sudan, Sauterne, cornrugby tan; July is a reseda green; hydrangea is an ashes of roses shade; zephyr and corniche and Pervenche are soft blues, while lapis is like a pencil blue. Lancret is a rose color, cattail is another shade of brown, and shell is a pink. Again there is Vernata, a green; Viking, a deep blue; String, a tweed brown; Rosita, a pale rose; Amarelle, a warm brown; Cucumber, a green and a grey in thistledown.

SENATE ADJOURNS UNTIL APRIL 6TH

No Legislation Before Upper Chamber at at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 17.—(Canadian Press.) — The Senate convened yesterday and on the motion of Hon. Raoul Dandurand and Hon. W. D. Ross, the resolution of sympathy to their Majesties on the death of the Queen Mother that was adopted by the Commons was concurred in by the Senate.

Senator Dandurand informed the House that there was no legislation before the Senate. The indications were that there would be no measures from the Government or from the Commons to be reviewed by the Senate for some time. He felt that an adjournment until Tuesday, April 6, was quite possible as the Commons proposed adjourning until March 16, and there could be no measures reach the Senate from the Commons before April 6. The Senate accordingly adjourned until that day.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 14—THE TRUFFLE HUNTER'S STORY.

"So you are after the Blue Cherry Tree that grows on Cherry Bounce Hill!" said the Truffle Hunter when the visitors were seated and Waldo, his servant, had gone out to bring in some lemonade. "I never knew there was a blue cherry tree there."

"There isn't exactly," said Jupe. "All the cherries are red except one. And that one is not only blue but it had a blue gem in it instead of a stone. Beside all that, it is magic."

And he told all about poor Twinkle Pen drinking the ink and how the only way to cure him was to find the blue cherry as soon as possible.

"I shall be delighted to help you," said the Truffle Hunter. "I often look for truffles under the trees on Cherry Bounce Hill. And with my long nose I may be able to smell the tree that has the blue cherry on it. Waldo, hurry with the lemonade—we're all going out."

Waldo waded in with some lemonade in glasses and passed it around. Jupe took a glass and Nick took a glass and Nancy took a glass and Mister Truffle Hunter took a glass, and Waldo was just going to tkke the last glass for himself, when suddenly Paddyfoot, the mouse, popped his head up out of Jupe's pocket and squeaked, "Don't I get any?"

At this Waldo was so startled that he dropped his lemonade and dived out of the window.

But he came in almost as quickly as he went out, crying, "Master, master, the hill's gone again! There is nothing there but a meadow. There is no hill at all!"

"Dear me!" cried the Truffle Hunter. "That is because I ate eggs for breakfast!"

"Eggs for breakfast!" cried Jupe and the Twins. "What has that to do with it?"

"That's what I should like to know!" said the Truffle Hunter. "But it seems that every single time I eat eggs for breakfast something happens that day. Would you like to hear the story of my life?"

"Yes," squeaked Paddyfoot impatiently, "if it doesn't take too long."

"It won't," answered the Truffle Hunter. "Besides, what if it does? The hill isn't there anyway. It has bounced away and probably won't be back until it hits the Rocky Mountians and bounces back again. Cherry Bounce Hill is as bouncy as if it grew rubber trees instead of cherry trees. They say that rubber trees used to grow on it and that the roots are still there. But to go on with my story:

"Once upon a time when I was a little boy, I had a little hen called Ambrose. She was a nice little hen and used to crow to show how much she loved me."

"Hens don't crow," laughed Nick. "Besides Ambrose is a funny name for a hen. Don't you mean she was a rooster?"

"The idea!" said the Truffle Hunter crossly. "There you go, too, just like everybody else! I named her when she was just out of the egg. She was sort of amber and sort of rose colored, so I called her Ambrose. And when she got older and learned how to crow, I couldn't help that either, could I?"

Here Waldo began to cry. "She was an awful cute chicken," he sniffled. "I never held it against her that she tried to swallow my tail one time, thinking it was a worm."

"But what has that got to do with your bad luck?" asked Jupe. "Why can't you eat eggs without something happening?"

"Why, don't you see—one day we had chicken pot-pie, and I never knew until I had had three helpings that it was Ambrose. Not Ambrosia, but Ambrose," said the Truffle Hunter sadly. "I said then that I would never eat another bite of chicken or an egg as long as I live. Sometimes I forget and eat an egg and when I do I always have bad luck."

Suddenly there was a bang. "There!" said the Truffle Hunter. "Cherry Bounce Hill is back again. Let's go!"

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

— By Blanche Silver —

BETTY CHANGES HER MIND ABOUT HER YARD.

"Oh, dear!" Betty complained. "I wish I had a bigger yard. This one is so dreadfully small."

"The very idea," laughed a merry voice, and Gocomeback, the wee little elfin from Travel-land, hopped upon the post beside Betty. "You might have cause to complain if you lived with a little girl I know."

"Hasn't she any yard?" questioned Betty. "Where does she play?"

"The queerest place you could imagine," replied Gocomeback, and before Betty had time to ask any more questions, she was whisked through the air and set down on the deck of a houseboat dancing on a pretty canal.

"Oh, Gocomeback! I know where we are!" Betty exclaimed. "We're in Holland. I can tell by the windmills along the banks of the canal."

"You're right, my dear," laughed the elfin.

A little boy and girl came running out from the tiny cabin to greet Gocomeback. He introduced them as Jok and Nina.

Jok wore a short, tight, blue jacket

"We Are in Holland."

buttoned up to his neck. His great big baggy pants, that reached to his ankles, looked so big for him Betty had to laugh.

Nine wore several full skirts, a tight little waist and a pretty little white bonnet trimmed with bits of lace and ribbon.

"Oh, Gocomeback and Betty, we're so glad you have come," cried Jok. "We have just finished our work, and Mother said we could play a while."

"Please stay and play with us, Betty," begged Nina.

"I wouldn't mind playing with you," Betty smiled, "but where in the world do you play. Surely not on the deck here?"

"Of course we play on the deck," laughed Jok. "You see we children who live on houseboats have no nice grassy front yard like Gocomeback tells us you children in America have. We haven't even a dustry road to play on either."

"Sometimes Daddy fastens the houseboat to the dock. Then Jok and I can play on the bank a while, but not very otten," sighed Nina. "But one thing Mother has taught us. We must be content with what we have. We can have a nice game of tag," and, tagging Jok, Nina ran around the side of the cabin.

Betty soon fell into the spirit of the fun and was chasing after Jok and Nina. But she stumbled and tumbled with a splash into the water.

Betty opened her eyes and began to laugh. She had fallen asleep on the steps of the porch and had dreamed of her visit with Jok and Nin ain Holland.

"My yard is small," she told her Mama, "but I'd rather have a small yard than no yard at all," and off she trotted to play.

SHAVIN'

To the beard on my face I'm a morning-time slave, and I shave, and I shave, and I shave, and I shave. In youth, I remember, I thought it was fun, not knowing, of course, what a task was begun.

If all things were right, as I stand by the glass, the shave hour would come, and quite easily pass. But I have a reason to kick o'er my lot, for nine times in ten the hot water's not hot.

I toil with my razor, while lathering fades. It's dull—and I find that I'm just out of blades. I lather again that the growth may be loose, and groan at each swe ep, 'cause it pulls like the deuce.

No time am I saving by simple self-shaving, but, shucks, I'm like all other men. Each morning I say that I'll swear off today, but tomorrow I do it again.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

THURSDAY FEBRUARY 18.

The astral influences for this day should be interpreted as conveying a subtle menace. The planet of intrigue, Neptune, in evil aspect, with Luna, a figure whose menace is accentuated by the unfortunate place of Venus as well as Mars, may be responsible for bringing malevolent situations and experiences into the personal relations. Mars may bring these sinister conditions into the open. But in any case extreme caution must be taken not to become involved or surprised into compromising activities, either business or personal.

Those whose birthday it is should anticipate a year of subtle or peculiar situations born of intrigue or deception. This applies to all manner of relations, but is especially strong in personal connections. Every precaution should be taken against conspiracy, fraud and betrayal. A child born on this day may have many eccentric or singular endowments. It should receive early training in straightforwardness as well as to protect itself from fraud.

Miss Pearl Kramer, who at 30 years of age has become director of a prominent New York banking firm, is soon to sail for Europe to bring about an amalgamation of firms in England, France and America, capitalized at $50,000,000.

ANSWER TO YESTERDAY'E CROSSWORD PUZZLE

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Not for a long time have I told you anything about broken bones, or fractures, as the doctors call them. You may have occasion to meet this trouble some day, so you had better know a little about it.

Nature has been wonderful in preparing the bones and shaping them for their particular uses. The bones of the two sides are alike, but aside from the fact they come in pairs, they are as different in appearance as can be imagined.

There are the long bones of the arm and leg, the curved rib, the flat shoulder blade, the spherical skull, and the short bones of the wrist and ankle. When strength, or power, or protection is needed, Nature has planned the bone most appropriate for this particular use.

The bones of children are flexible, as they need to be because of the tumbles and antics the youngsters indulge in. As age progresses the bones become harder and more brittle. Perhaps this would not be the case if proper feeding were the universal practice. But as a practical fact, the brittleness of the bone corresponds to the age of the person.

Not all persons of a given age have bones of equal strength or brittleness. The individual elements determine this. Once in a while a man is found whose bones seem to be like pipe stems, ready to break on the slightest accident.

I once knew a man who had had a dozen fractures within a dozen years. He had to watch every step for fear a sudden fall or jolt would break a bone.

Not all fractures are complete. By this I mean that while the boney tissue is broken, it is not divided into two parts. There may be a splintering of the bone—a condition where parts only of the structure are split off.

Sometimes the bone bends, like a piece of fresh hickory, but does not break in two pieces. This is given the appropriate name of "greenstick fracture."

Usually there is a break in but one bone, but sometimes two bones are broken at the same time, causing a "double fracture." If the surrounding tissues are not perforated or damaged, it is called a "simple fracture."

If the bone is broken into more than two pieces, it is a "comminuted fracture." Crushing injuries are apt to cause shattering of the bone a fracture of this description.

If the bone causes a perforation of the tissues and skin, so that the atmosphere is communicated with, we have a "compound fracture." This may be a "simple compound fracture," or, if the bone is broken into several pieces, it may be a "comminuted compound fracture." Then we have a very serious condition.

If some important organ, blood vessel or cavity is opened by the broken bone, it becomes a "complicated fracture." If the two broken ends are driven into each other, telescoped as it were, we have an "impacted fracture."

This description will make it easy for you to understand your doctor when he describes a fracture.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

MRS. J. M. B. Q.—What causes pain on the bottoms of the feet? It is almost unbearable.

A.—This may be due to neuritis. Application of heat should give relief. There is probably some infection responsible for the trouble. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

HELEN AND SUZANNE BOTH NEAR COLLAPSE AFTER MOST DRAMATIC TENNIS BATTLE BY WOMEN STARS

Miss Wills Made Second Set Close By Great Performance.

COOL IN DEFEAT.

"Other Matches Coming," Said American Girl—Suzanne Triumphant.

CANNES, France, Feb. 17 (Canadian Press)—Suzanne Lenglen remains undisputed tennis champion of the world by virtue of her victory yesterday over Helen Wills, but for a few minutes it seemed as though her reign might end.

It was a match between the greatest women players of the old and new world, this finale in the singles of the Carlton tournament, which packed the stands with enthusiastic supporters of the two contestants and brought together huge clamoring crowds outside the gates, who were unable to get in.

The score was 6-3, 8-6 in favor of Mlle. Lenglen after one of the most dramatic matches in the history of tennis, ending with both players near the verge of collapse.

Miss Wills took the lead in the first set, as had been hoped by her supporters, and the score stood 2-1 at the end of the third game. But the French champion, playing with oldtime skill and finesse, evened matters in the fourth, and won also the fifth and sixth. Helen took the next game, but Suzanne finished the set with careful placements.

A Tense Battle

It was in the second set that all the dramatic features of the contest were displayed. From start to finish it was give and take, each striving at the end for the extra point that would spell victory. Miss Wills performed far above her usual game while Mlle. Lenglen, at times trembling with emotion, stroked like one in pain.

From the point of view of tennis, the contest was not what had been expected. But, after all, the interest lay in the meeting of Suzanne and Helen, long deferred and, at one time, throught never to come. For weeks little else had been talked of, and betting on the outcome, whether real or in fancy, had played a prominent part in accentuating world-wide inteerst.

Both seemed conscious of the responsibility resting on them, and for once the emotions of Miss Wills were not entirely held in check. Care and action dominated the play which during the greater part of the time was from the baseline. But as the fight became more bitter, extra driving power was put into the strokes, and when finaly Mlle. Lenglen had achieved victory she threw her racquet in the air and leaped for joy.

Tears and Smiles

Surrounded with flowers and showered with congratulations from many of the great of the world, Suzanne was accorded an ovation such as perhaps before she has never experience in her career. The reaction made the tears flow down her face as friends gathered about her, but the cheers of the multitude soon brought back the smile of the victor.

"I told you you would have to congratulate me," she said to one who had previously expressed some doubt as to her ability to win.

Helen Wills, with youth in her favor, took her defeat philosophically "There will be other tennis matches; other years are coming," was all she would say.

The two champions entered the court together and were immediately surrounded by ubiquitous cameramen. Suzanne was laughing, but with a somewhat strained, pinched look; Helen bore her usual impassive expression. The French girl was gorgeously adorned in pale rose silk and full length sleevesweater and pale rose turban to match. Helen, wearing a plain white sailor blouse with flowing collar, looked like a school girl.

Even Periscopes Used

Upon her arrival from Nice, Mlle. Lenglen was nearly mobbed by her admirers and had the greatest difficulty in making her way through the crowds which were larger outside the courts than in the stands. The roofs of neighboring houses were burdened so heavily with spectators that they might be expected to crash in at any moment. Periscopes were utilized by men standing outside the high fences to get a view of the play.

The match was contested under the most trying circumstances ever beheld in tennis. Fully 2,000 spectators from the most varied outside vantage points imaginable kept up a running fire, cheering, talking and commenting, to the intense annoyance of Suzanne, who spoke to the crowd after the manner of a queen addressing her subjects, ordering them to remain silent. When her orders were ignored, she pleaded: "Please be quiet."

Dramatic Finish

Fireworks and dramatics marked the finish of the concluding set. Mlle. Lenglen became furious when the umpire overruled a decision of the linesmen that enabled Miss Wills to deuce the match at 6-6. The blood rushed to her face and she shot an angry glance toward George Hillyard, the British umpire. She mumbled something under her breath and looked to the gallery for sympathy.

She seemed to be on the point of retiring, then suddenly, rushed back to position, started smashing the ball with angry ferocity, and overwhelmed the young American. Miss Wills was very tired when she left the court and was troubled with a slight nosebleed.

Winner Disgusted

"I am absolutely disgusted with everything that has happened here," Mlle. Lenglen said after the match "I haven't said my last word about the officials."

Miss Wills was in a much better mood. She smiled when her friends gathered around her and fenced off any offers of sympathy.

"It was an enjoyable match," she said. "Mlle. Lenglen is just as good as I thought she was."

Mrs. C. A. Wills, mother of the defeated girl, presented the Lady Wavertree cup to the winner, and the Duke of Connaught presented the several other trophies that were offered. Miss Wills stood by smiling graciously, when Mlle. Lenglen was crowned with a wreath of flowers and borne off on the shoulders of her admirers.

Cause of Controversy

The decision which caused the controversy was made on a ball which the linesmen called an out, and which apparently ended the set in Mlle. Lenglen's favor at 7-5, the umpire, however, ruled that the ball was inside and the point went to Miss Wills, who then deuced the set.

Mlle. Lenglen carried her attack against the weakness that all the critics had picked out in the American girl's game—her lack of speed afoot. Miss Wills had to chase so much around the court that she was limping in the second set and seemed to be hampered by a weak knee. She suffered a slight cut on one knee, when she fell during her semi-final match Monday.

Crowds battled at the gate to get into the stands before 9 o'clock, and hundreds failed to gain admittance. Many stood on the tops of expensive automobiles and peered over the fences.

Ovation for Miss Wills

After Mlle. Lenglen had been adorned with flowers and laden with trophies, the gallery turned its attention to Miss Wills and gave her one of the greatest demonstrations a foreign athlete had ever been honored with in this country. For at least ten minutes she was cheered and yells in college fashion were shouted for her and for California.

The ovation completely drowned out the demonstration for the winner and the young American girl lowered her head with her white shade covering her eyes and an occasional tear drop glistening on her cheek. Her mother put her arm around her and comforted her, but the mother was fighting tears herself.

C. F. Aschlimann, her friend and adviser, and his wife, the former Miss Leslie Bancroft, of Boston, were at her side, and they had to fight back the Americans who stormed to get near her for a consoling word.

Miss Wills gathered herself together quickly and when she looked up she was smiling. "You are all so good to me," she said.

One of the biggest surprises of the match was that Mlle. Lenglen succeeded in outlasting Miss Wills who was generally thought to have twice the endurance and strength of the French girl.

Miss Wills was badly winded in the second set, and several times she had to bend over her racquet while her opponent waited to serve. Mlle. Lenglen took frequent sips of champagne while changing courts, but the American girl took no stimulant.

PLAY TOWN LEAGUE GAMES ON THURSDAY

Two Close Struggles Expected at Campbellford This Week.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 17. — This week's town league games will take place Thursday night at Covert's Arena. The first game at 8 p.m. will bring the Outlaws and Junior Colts together, while the Clerks and Cloth Company hook up at 9.15 p.m.

Both the Clerks and Outlaws are blessed with clever goalers and neither has been defeated so far in the town league games, but Charlie Montgomery, manager of the Cloth boys, expects a change in the group standing with his boys right up near the top, and the Colts need a win in the very worst way, or their chances of a play off position will be very slim. Both should be tidy arguments and the fans are assured of a couple of hours of good hockey.

Beginning next week the league will operate two nights a week, with two games each night; in order to reach the finals while the ice is still good.

BOXER SUSPENDED.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17. Canadian Press. — The State Athletic Commission yesterday indefinitely suspended Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, world's bantamweight champion, for failure to appear before the boxing solons and answer a challenge from Bushey Graham, of Utica, N. Y., for a title bout here.

PLENTY OF SCORING IN BASKETBALL NOW

Teams Have To Cross 30 Mark to Win Nowadays:

BY ART CARLSON

Basketball scores are mounting. They're getting higher all the time.

A few years ago 20 points were usually sufficient to win. Now a team invariably has to hit well above the 30-mark to have a chance. And even then it's no sure bet.

Just take a flance at the scores being turned in by Western teams. Many of them have chalked up a combined total of more than 70 points for an evening's work.

Strict enforcement of the playing rules has tended to boost the scores, too. Not so far back a total of 10 free tosses was a good average. Foul shooting didn't play a very big part in the game.

But it's different now. About as many fouls are being converted into points as there are field goals chalked up. In a recent Big Ten encounter 31 personal fouls were called. Just 25 of them were turned into points. In eight games played one week, as many players were banished by the "four personals" rule. Iowa lost two of its stars in one evening.

Are the officials calling 'em too close? I believe so. Basketball is necessarily a rough game. There is plenty of personal contact; body checking, charging, and so on. Some of it is intentional; some not.

Intentional rough play should bring a penalty, of course. But those in charge should not draw too fine a line. Tooting the whistle for some infraction of the playing code slows up the game. It takes away action, one of the main things in basketball. Needless to state, when 30 or more fouls are called the game loses much of its luster for the fans that enjoy it for the thrills it gives them.

Recently I saw a professional league contest in which 43 fouls were inflicted. There were 27 points accrued from the free throw line. But few field goals were thrown. The field goal is the big thrill; a long toss from mid-court, a clever shot from underneath the hoop after a pretty pass—that's what the crowd wants to see. The game I refer to turned out to be quite a nice exhibition of foul-shooting ability. That's not basketball!

Giving the players a little more leeway before tacking on a penalty would place less of a premium on free-tossing expertness, would furnish more action and would make pocket tabulators excess equipment at the games.

The Examiner's series of thirty lessons in basketball ends today.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (Canadian Press)—The lowly New York Americans received a 3 to 2 humbling at the hands of Toronto St. Pats here last night in a match that was only saved from the "listless" column by a last minute rally that carried the locals to within striking distance of victory after it appeared they were to suffer a shut out.

Completely outclassed in the first two periods of play, the Americans went into the third frame on the short end of a 2 to 0 count.

VISITORS TAKE MAIN PRIZE AT CAMPBELLFORD

Victoria Cup Play-off Today Between Cobourg and Keene Rinks.

EIGHTEEN RINKS.

Seven From Outside Clubs on Hand—Peterborough Curlers Missed.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 17. — There were seven visiting rinks at the Bonspiel that opened here on Tuesday morning, the small attendance being due to the fact that bonspiels are being held in Lindsay and Orillia. Peterborough curlers sent no contingent, the first time this has happened since the local club was organized. It was reported here that Peterborough sent three rinks to Orillia and five to Lindsay. J. Bacon of Peterborough, who held the Riendeau Cup, returned the trophy which he accordingly loses by default.

One of Campbellford's oldest and best players, T. S. Tait, is unable to take part in this Bonspiel, the first he has ever missed, owing to a lame back, and the local men miss him from the line-up.

The Campbellford rinks taking part are the same as those given in The Examiner on Tuesday, with only slight changes. Another rink has been formed with A. J. Meyers as skip, Lew. Reynolds, lead, Chas. Calver second, and George Nicol vice-skip. A. J. Jenkins takes the place of Mr. Meyers as vice-skip for S. J. Moore.

The Visitors.

The visiting rinks, in the order in which they play, are as follows, Belleville and Keene sending two each:

Cobourg—R. Fitzgibbons, W. F. Griffiths, W. G. Potts, W. J. Titford (skip).

Colborne—S. J. Cox, L. Redpan, V. J. Wilson, James Coyle (skip).

Belleville—G. S. Dawkins, C. I. White, E. W. Dickens, J. Galloway (skip). A. A. Fish, A. R. Symons, J. W. Davidson, W. H. Bottom (skip).

Keene—Taylor, Howson, Wilson, J. J. Moore (skip). David McIntyre, C. Nelson, Fred Hall, I. Fletcher (skip).

Lakefield — H. Armstrong, H. Kidd, R. Murduff, G. Gibson (skip).

The Victoria Cup was the first trophy put up for competition, the cup that was held by R. H. Cole of Campbellford. Mr. Cole was eliminated in the first round by W. J. Titford of Cobourg. The play for the Campbellford Cup began this morning, seven outside rinks competing against an equal number from Campbellford in the preliminaries. This cup is now held by D. W. Douglas of the local club.

Loses Victoria Cup.

Campbellford loses the Victoria Cup as Ed. Tait's rink, the locals who survived the longest, being the only home rink to reach the semi-finals, were defeated in that round by Titford of Cobourg. Titford and J. J. Moore of Keene play the final for this trophy to-day. In the semi-finals Moore defeated Dr. Gibson of Lakefield by six shots.

The following is the complete record of the day's play:

Victoria Cup Preliminaries.

F. J. Smith, Campbellford, 17; J. Galloway, Belleville, 4.

A. J. Meyers, Campbellford, 5; W. H. Bottom, Belleville, 15.

S. J. Moore, Campbellford, 7; Dr. Gibson, Lakefield, 17.

A. L. Riendeau, Campbellford, 11; G. Haig, Campbellford, 5.

Second Round.

W. H. Bottom, 12; Dr. Gibson, 15

J. J. Moore, 11; P. J. Kelly, 10.

W. J. Titford, 15; R. Dunk, 7.

Ed. Tait, 14; A. L. Reindeau, 8.

Semi-Finals.

Dr Gibson, 7; J. J. Moore, 13.

W. J. Titford, 10 Ed. Tait 8.

The members of Ed. Tait's rink were Ray Connor, lead; George O'Sullivan, second; and J. P. Archer, vice.

The Consolations.

The consolation prize will be the Riendeau Cup, which was lost by default by J. Bacon of Peterborough. This contest was not finished last night, but the trophy is almost certain to remain in Campbellford, as the majority of the visiting teams have been eliminated. The games so far played were:

First Round.

R H Cole 19, James Coyle 6.
I Fletcher 16, Stevenson 9.
John Gay 10, George Haig 9.
S J Moore 11, D W Douglas 9.
J Galloway 11 A J Meyers 9.

Second Round.

J Galloway 16, S J Moore 7.
I Fletcher 7, R H Cole 14.
John Gay 13, F J Smith 15.
R Dunk 7, P J Kelly 12.
A L Reindeau 14, W H Bottom 4.

The rinks of Ed. Tait and Dr. Gibson, losers in the semi-finals for the Victoria Cup, will now play in the Consolation.

Hastings Rink on Deck.

A rink from Hastings, the members of which were Keith Kennedy, R. A. Cassidy, W. Wellman and George Stevenson, skip, arrived too late for the draw for the Victoria Cup. They played in the Consolation in the afternoon, but were defeated by Fletcher of Keene.

Notes of the Bonspiel.

The ice in both rinks was in excellent condition and the play was above the average. The oldest man on the ice was C. S. Gillespie the first man to be enrolled as a member when the Campbellford Club was organized, and who is one of the steadiest players. Playing second for R. Dunk yesterday, Mr. Gillespie made two button shots in one game, and by good luck both counted.

On F. J. Smith's rink, which is still in the Consolation, was one man who had not before yesterday played a game this season, James Gay, whose regular position on this rink is lead, was vice-skip yesterday and with the player who was not in condition, gave an excellent account of himself.

The bonspiel has demonstrated one fact—Pat Kelly is not only a good curler but possesses the strongest lung power of any man on the ice.

Play was continuous as the curlers were provided with lunch in the club's rink.

It is understood here that the reason the Peterborough curlers went to Lindsay and Orillia instead of coming to the bonspiel here was that the clubs in the two towns that were given the preference, hold cups that were won from the city club, and which the Peterborough men are anxious to bring back home.

TELLS HOW TO AVOID LAMENESS AFTER EXERCISE

Athlete advises a simple method of keeping muscles in trim

Men who put their muscles to the strain of hard exercise have learned a quick, sure way of taking out pain and stiffness.

"In my training work," writes a well-known athlete, "I have used Sloan's Liniment for the past five years and found it most effective for soreness caused by vigorous exercise. Also an incomparable remedy for stiff neck." (Name and address of writer given on request.)

It is marvelous how ache and stiffness in lame muscles yield to the magic of Sloan's. Just a little patted on lightly, and baling new blood tingles through the hurt place.

Away go "fatigs-poisons." New tissue gets needed nurishment. Sore muscles limber up and stop aching. Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

GROVE SCONDS BEAT T.C.S. 4-3

First String Squad of Port Hope School at Lakefield.

NO PENALTIES.

LAKEFIELD Feb. 17. — The Grove School second team defeated 4 to 3 the first team of the Trinity College School Port Hope, in a game played in Lakefield.

The teams were very evenly matched, and the play was close throughout, with the score always close. The boys all showed clean sportsmanship, and there were no penalties.

The Grove scored first after nine minutes of play, Peck scooping a nice one past Howard. Elliott, for T.C.S., quickly evened the counter. McCrae put Grove in the lead for the first period on a fine rush.

The second period the teams battled along evenly, the goalkeepers being repeatedly tested. Elliott evened the score for T.C.S. for the only counter of the period.

In the third, with the score tied, Elliott again scored, putting T.C.S. in the lead. The Grove boys swarmed around the visitors' nets, and Dawson and Emsley each banged in a goal in quick succession. The winning goal came just before the last gong sounded.

Elliott, the T.C.S. captain, and Howard were best for T.C.S. Peck, although the smallest boy on the ice, was ever in the limelight for Grove.

Line-ups:

T.C.S.—Goal, Howard; r. defence Eyche; l. defence Kirk, Max; centre Elliott; r. wing, Chishamm; l. wing Johnston; subs., Howard, Grunder and Kirk, Major.

Grove School—Goal, Leggett; r. defence, Westcott; l. defence, Dawson, Max.; centre, Peck, Major; r. wing, Emmsley; l. wing, McCrae; subs., Dawson (Major) and Hedley.

Referee—L. Sabatino.

MOVIEGRAPHS

By RUSSELL J. BIRDWELL.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 11.—This spot called Celluloidia is the capital of the world, with every nation represented by a star. As a result there are restaurants catering to the international palate.

If you would seek the enchiladas, the tortilla and the rarer Mexican dishes seek an invitation to one of Ramon Novarro's exclusive little parties. He'll take you to an Aztec inn or a little hole in the wall down on Main street where you may put a nickel in the piano and be served with old-world courtesy by a Spanish-speaking senorita.

Valentino often cooks his own spaghetti, but just as often you will find him in some sequestered Italian place down a flight of stairs where the stains on the tablecloth come from good minestrone.

Since Vilma Banky arrived from Budapest two Hungarian inns have blossomed on the boulevards.

Malcolm McGregor, who once went adventuring in the Orient, has entertained enthusiastic parties at a Japanese restaurant, which is quite different from the Chinese. Entrance is only obtained by the aid of the Buddhist priest or a member of the legation.

But strangest of all is the Zulu hut, owned by the actor, Raymond McKee, where you are greeted by a Zulu negro speaking French and invited to eat in a circular straw-thatched hut.

The only eating utensils are your fingers, and the only light that of candles oozing their tallow over the bottles that contain them. The place is packed every night and nets its owner two thousand a month.

NEW YORK FAVORS TEAM IN BROOKLYN

No Opposition From the Gotham N.H.L. Club.

NEW YORK, February 17.—Canadian Press. — Opposition to the move now afoot to instal a Brooklyn team in the National Hockey League will not be forthcoming from the New York Hockey Club, Thomas J. Duggan, executive officer of the latter organization, made clear yesterday.

Mr. Duggan's statement came upon the heels of current gossip that attempts would be made by his club to block the efforts of Colonel J. S. Hammond to secure permission from the hockey scions to operate a Brooklyn team in the National league next season. Colonel Hammond recently resigned the presidency of the New York Club with the announced intention of forming another club in this city.

Mr. Duggan said he would welcome a second team in the metropolitan. "The sport could stand it, and if we develop a spirit of rivalry between the twin boroughs, the attendance should be aided instead of hampered," he declared. Despite word to the contrary, Tuesday's Telegram says that application was filed by Col Hammond at last Sunday's League meeting in Toronto for permission to form the Brooklyn club. The paper says that he "was politely turned down," but predicts that renewed application will be favorably acted upon.

BASEBALL ARMY OFF FOR SOUTH

Migration Begins This Week —Giants Start on Thursday.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The big parade moves South this week. Out of the land of ice and snow into the land of sunshine more than 500 baseball players with major league aspirations will go, and when they return those who return at all will find spring and the 1926 season at hand. Many have been called by the major league managers, a few will be chosen to carry on through the campaign, the rest will be dropped by the wayside.

The Chicago Cubs were the first to shove off for the spring training camp. Other contingents will be moving off daily. The three metropolitan teams will board the Southbound trains the end of this week, with the Giants' representatives departing on Thursday, the Yankees on Friday and the Robins on Sunday.

The first groups to reach the respective training camps will consist largely of pitchers, catchers, coaches and newspaper men, with the rest of the squads arriving a week later. Manager McGraw, already at Sarasota, will be on hand to greet his batterymen, old and new, when they reach camp and he will have charge of the workouts from the very start, which will be next Saturday. However, Roger Bresnahan, who used to catch the great Matty and who has been engaged as coach for the coming season, will shoulder the real burden of getting the pitchers into shape. The rest of the Giant squad will report on March 1, when the training camps will be buzzing with activity.

Pitchers to Leave Thursday.

Hugh McQuillan, who has settled his legal difficulties with the Giants and who is looking forward to a good season; Jimmy Ring, recently obtained from the Phillies, and Davies and McNamara, two young pitchers, will form the party which will leave New York with about a dozen newspaper men on Thursday. The other pitchers and catchers will travel to Sarasota directly from their homes.

Only the younger set of batterymen will report to Manager Miller Huggins on Feb. 22, the veteran pitchers, catchers, infielders and outfielders waiting until March 1 to start the grind of preparation for the long campaign. Pitchers Beals, Bloomer, Brennan, Chesterfield, Love, McQuaid, Braxton, Jacobs and Cummings and Catchers Collins, Barnes and Smith will be the first Yankees to don their uniforms. Coach Merkle, Scout Paul Kritchell and Secretary Mark Roth, with another group of newspaper men, will also be in the first party to arrive at St. Petersburg.

The Robins' batterymen will report to Manager Wilbert Robinson at Clearwater on Monday, Feb. 22. Uncle Robbie, with seventeen pitchers and four catchers, will have one of the biggest early squads in Florida. The other players will arrive a week later.

Since the close of last season nearly every team in the two major leagues has made efforts at improvement and there are several newcomers who will be watched closely. The Giants have attempted to strengthen their pitching staff by the acquisition of Jimmy Ring, and in Al Tyson, from Louisville, they have obtained an outfielder who seems certain of making the grade.

In the Yankees' camp there will be a whole troop of youngsters who have a chance of stepping into the regular line-up, the most promising of whom are Tony Lazerri, the home-run king of the Pacific Coast and probable shortstop; Mark Koenig and Mike Gazella, who will seek to fill the second base position; and Myles Thomas, the Toronto pitcher.

HELPFUL HINTS BY GOLFING STARS

By Special Arrangement With Colliers' Magazine.

CECIL LEITCH—SWING MUST BE SMOOTH.

The word "swing" implies an action that is smooth and regular, and calls to mind the movement to and fro of a pendulum. This smooth, rhythmical movement is what every beginner must try to acquire and to do so she must look upon her arms as an extension of the shaft of the club. The club-head is going to do the actual hitting of the ball, and it is to be propelled by a twisting action of the body.

In order to accomplish this action the player must plant her feet firmly on the ground and feel that her weight is thrown on to her heels. Falling forward on to the toes at the beginning of the swing throws the whole machine out of gear, and any mistake made at this stage of the shot cannot afterwards be rectified.

Now the player is ready to swing. The first thing to move is the club-head, and this must be on with a slight tightening up of the wrists, chiefly the left. The left arm must be kept as straight as possible during the backward and downward swing.

ROUGH GAME ON LAKEFIELD ICE

Rink Rats and Colts Swing the Hickory to Merry Tune.

RATS WON 7-5.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 17. — Last evening the Rink Rats slipped a 7 to 5 victory over the lively Colts in a game in the Lakefield District League. The game was exciting throughout, and kept the spectators on their toes, not by the speed of the play, but rather by the heat and consequent roughness of the argument. Penalties came thick and fast as the game progressed, and Walter Jackson will doubtless have to ease his good right arm after the unusual overwork.

Stabler scored early for the Rats, but Northey quickly shook the curtains behind Junkins for the Colts. At the end of the period it stood 3-2 for the Rats, with B. Wannamaker, Blewett and Stabler scoring in order for their respective clans.

The Colts answered the whip in the second period and gambolled around the Rats' citadel, collecting three goals, while the Rats snatched one lone counter, making it 6-4 for the Colts.

In the third period the Rats came back and won the game on clever work by Stabler and B. Wannamaker.

Line-ups:

Rats — Goal, Junkin; defence, Sherin and Hamblin; centre, B. Wannamaker; forwards, Stabler and Northey; sub., G. Wannamaker.

Colts—Goal, Graham; defence, L. Sabatino and Hill; centre, M. Wannamaker; wings, E. H. Northey and Blewett; subs., S. Snider and W. Trude.

Referee—W. Jackson.

BOWLING

On Monday "Steve" Elliott stepped out to show the boys something, and the result was the highest single on record at the Water Street Alleys—396. Steve started with a spare in the first frame, followed by seven consecutive strikes, another spare in the ninth, and two strikes and a 10 count in the tenth. This is doubtless a record single for Peterborough, and one that will take some beating.

Last week Mrs. Frank White won the weekly prize being offered for the ladies at the Water Street alleys each week with a total of 540 for three games.

The first game will be played on Brock Street Rink and the other in Lakefield; goals to count.

BENEFIT GAME WILL ATTRACT BIG ATTENDANCE

Fans Are Rallying Behind Shorty Burgess Fixture To-night.

A POPULAR PLAYER.

Local Enthusiasts Eager To Honor Player Who Gave All He Had.

Everything is set for the "Shorty" Burgess benefit game at Brock St. Rink tonight and about the largest crowd of the season will be out to do honor to the popular little player and to see the Petes in action before their all-important clash with Kitchener. The line-up o fthe Petes opponents will not be definitely known until game time, but a number of well-known Toronto players will be in the list, as well as Geraldi the Tweed youngster, who has been playing great hockey for the Easterners.

The Petes will have their full line-up with the possible exception of Bert McLeod, who hurt his back in the game with Kitchener and may not be able to get into action tonight. If he is not in harness, Ray Rose will take his place on the defence.

The proceeds all go to "Shorty" Burgess, and it is hoped that the committee will be able to send him a very substantial cheque as a result of tonight's game.

The fans are rallying, as they always do behind a player who gives them all he has, and there will be few vacant seats when the game gets under way.

Theatre

AT THE GRAND

When Capt. Plunkett, producer of the Dumbells' Revue, first announced that he was sending the musical comedy success "Three Little Maids" on a tour of this country, representatives of three American publishers called him within a week asking for an opportunity to republish the play's famous song hits.

No better evidence could be found of the tremendous popularity of the "Three Little Maids" music. Such popularity, too, would be impossible if the music were not remarkable.

The play's score is known all over the English-speaking world as one of the largest and one of the most beautiful ever written. Among its most famous numbers are "She was a Miller's Daughter," "I'll Dream of You", "Think you've known Me Long Enough" and "We're Three Little Maids".

Because of the music's unusual nature, Capt. Plunkett took particular care in selecting the singing cast which he has imported. Every member of the company had to undergo a rigid voice test.

Artists singing the leading parts all have established reputation. Marie Hancock is the well-known Daly's Theatre star who took Miss Josie Colin's place in the leading part of "The Maid of the Mountains" and other English hits during their Irish, Scotch and English tours. This marks her first Canadian tours.

Arlene Jackson is a well known concert comedienne; Ernest Morgan was leading baritone with the Savoyards; John Power comes from the Palace Theatre, London, where he was a headliner; Sandy Shaw, the Scotch comedian, has just completed four years of striking success in big-time vaudeville; Clara Reid is the famous headline tap dancer and London character actress.

As for G. P. Huntley himself—he is G.P. Huntley, little more need be said. He is one of those rare comedians who are born and not made by years of stage apprenticeship.

With this superb cast, an equally outstanding chorus and a remarkable scenic production, "Three Little Maids" 'comes to the Grand Theatre for a two day engagement beginning Friday, February 19, with a special Saturday matinee.

Capt. Plunkett has made every effort to stamp this as one of the most exceptional efforts of his career—and has succeeded.

AT THE CAPITOL

SPEEDSTER OF SCREENDOM IS CHAMP LAUGHSTER TOO

Denny in "Where Was I?" Demonstrates Both Proclivities

When Reginald Denny drives the taxicab at breakneck speed in "Where Was I?" the Universal-Jewel which is coming to the Capitol Theatre on Thursday he is right at home.

Denny's hobby off the set is speed and more speed. He has two airplanes and three racing cars, all of which he drives himself.

When Universal signed the successful young actor under a long-term contract there was a clause in it forbidding Denny to ride in his airplane. But Denny objected so strenuously that the restricting clause was taken out and Denny is free to race or drive his airplane whenever he wishes.

In several of his pictures before in "Where Was I?" he drives a taxiing cars. In "I'll Show You the Town," he drove his airplane and in "Where Was I " he rives a taxicab at full speed over roads of every type from smooth and paved to bumpy dirt highways.

Denny is considered the most skilled driver in the movies, a title bestowed upon him after his daring feats in his fast-moving films. He has skidded perilously on race tracks and has made forced landings with his airplane.

One method of obtaining speed in motion pictures is by cranking the camera slower than normal during the photographing of the scene. Denny refuses to use this artifice and always drives with the throttle wide open. The dust and the swinging of the automobile are more true to life, then, Denny believes.

William Seiter directed the picture which was adapted by Melville Brown and Rex Taylor from the story by Edgar Franklin.

The cast includes besides Denny, Marian Nixon, Pauline Garon, Lee Moran, Chester Conklin, Otis Harlan, William H. Turner, Tom Lingham, Arthur Lake and James Corrigan.

AT THE REGENT

To-day is the last day of the engagement of that mighty screen melodrama, "The Fool" at the Regent theatre, and while attendance records at the Regent have been broken during its run, the management is sure that there are many among the local screen patrons who have not taken advantage of the opportunity to see this greatest of Fox pictures produced and shown this year. They are reminded that the film adaptation of Channing Pollock's sensational stage play has been acclaimed greater than the original and that no theatre-goer's background is complete who has not seen "The Fool."

"The Fool" is the story of the young zealot minister who tries to live like Christ in the twentieth century. Edmund Lowe, handsome young Fox star, plays the title role. Others in the cast are Brenda Bond, Mary Thurman, Ray Bloomer, Anne Dale, Paul Panzer and many more well-known names and faces of the silver sheet.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH WILL BE IMPROVED

Plans Made for Repairs and Alterations Before Centenary Year.

The sidesmen and members of the Advisory Board of St. John's Church met for supper on Monday evening in the Parish House at 6.30. An excellent repast was provided by the Church Women's Association, the tables being prettily decorated with flowers and candles. During supper community singing was enjoyed under the direction of F. G. Mann. The church's business was then taken up, and the officers of the Board elected for the year as follows: President, J. A. Aylmer; Secretary, W. R. Thompson. A duplex envelope committee was appointed, with A. W. Turner as convenor.

The most important business was the striking of committees to look after the extension and improvements connected with the celebration of the centenary, which takes place in 1927. These preparations have been going on for some time. If fully carried out, it will mean that the entire plant and equipment of the church will be so completed and rounded out as to require no further expenditure, except upkeep, for many years to come. The Vicar pointed out that if this is to be accomplished, the committee must have a subscription of $12,000. At present about $7,000 has been subscribed, of which about $1,300 is on hand. This amount has been subscribed by only about 125 people in the parish, leaving a very large number who have not yet undertaken any share in this improvement which will be used and enjoyed by all equally in the years that lie ahead. An effort is to be made after Easter to secure the remaining $5,000 for which a committee was appointed.

In order to have the Parish House repaired and extended in readiness for the centenary celebration in the early part of 1927, it will be necessary to have it done during this coming summer. The whole programme includes repairs and extension of the Parish House, the installing of a new organ in the church and the erection of a concrete retaining wall on the west side of the church grounds. This whole work can be carried through if the remaining $5,000 required for the extension of the Parish House is now or shortly to be subscribed.

The following committees were appointed:

Canvas and Publicity Committee—D. J. Melton (convenor, secretary of the Centenary Fund), A. W. Turner, Geo. Boucher, R. Fair, W. R. Turner, G. Davis, W. R. Thompson, R. Denne.

Building and Heating Committee—J. A. Aylmer (convenor), Dr. G. S. Cameron, A. E. Cady, the Wardens, Messrs. E. Martin and S. T. Medd, W. C. Ackerman and ladies of the Board.

Literary Committee—F. M. Dela Fosse (convenor), H. Rush and R. N. Stuart.

Organ Committee—S. T. Medd.

Fence Committee—R. N. Jones, W. C. Ackerman and W. R. Blackwell.

MANY SUBSCRIBERS FOR CHOIR CONCERT

Over 400 Tickets Have Already Been Sold By Members.

With the approach of March 26th, the date set for the sixth annual concert of the Peterboro Male Voice Choir, it is quite evident that the choir is fast approaching a state of perfection in the singing of the beautiful numbers chosen for this year's programme, and the individual interest and co-operation among its members "spells success" for the organization again this year.

Subscription lists were placed in the hands of the choir members quite early this year, with the intention of selling out the house quickly, and during the intermission of last night's practise, G. S. Parlour, chairman of the ticket selling campaign, reported that the results had been very gratifying indeed, and that over 400 tickets had already been subscribed, one member reporting having subscribers names covering 52 tickets. This is a very good indication that the efforts of the choir in the selling of the house prior to the concert, will be fully realized.

H. AND S. ASSOCIATION.

Queen Mary Branch Hears Interesting Talk By Mrs. Morris.

The regular monthly meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association was held in the kindergarten room of the school last evening. The president, Mr. P. L. Allison, occupied the chair, and the minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mr. M. N. Clark. The banner for this month was awarded to Miss Thomas' room.

An interesting feature of the evening's programme was an address by Mrs. W. R. Morris, who spoke in brief, succinct fashion of the new methods in use in Windsor schools, and of the latest educational ideas in caring for blind, deaf and sub-normal children.

The musical programme, which was in charge of Mrs. C. Willison, included two very clever readings by Miss Irene Wright, a piano duet by Freda and Arlie Herron and vocal solos by Miss Catheleen McCarthy, with accompaniment by Miss Lucille Doris.

VALENTINE TEAS

SEWING CIRCLE.

The South-End Sewing Circle of Knox United Church held a very successful and well-attended Valentine Tea on Tuesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Thomas Rose, River Road. General convenors were Mrs. J. Ego and Mrs. A. Long. The guests were received by Mrs. Ego and Mrs. Rose. Decorations were carried out with red hearts, candles and streamers. Mrs. J. Whitfield and Mrs. J. Buckham poured tea, assisted by Mrs. George Cookman, Mrs. A. Long, Mrs. E. Benson, Mrs. Girard and Mrs. C. Cook. The ladies were ushered into the tea-room by Mrs. J. J. Pollock. Selections on the gramaphone and a very amusing contest were the musical entertainment.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA SCHOOL.

An unusually pretty and enjoyable Valentine tea was held at Queen Alexandra School on Saturday afternoon by the ladies of the Home and School Association.

The president, Mrs. Walker, received, assisted by Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Touchborn and Mrs. Cheverill.

The tables, in charge of Mesdames Lang, Manning, Tedford, Hales, Staunton and Tewsley, were exceedingly pretty with red carnations and red hearts. Mrs. Dearborn and Mrs. Hamilton poured tea. The convenor, Mrs. Robert Reid, was ably assisted by Mrs. Orville Kingdon and Mrs. Giles

The programme was exceptionally pleasing:

Instrumental duett, Mrs. Saunders and Mrs. Dickens; vocal solos, Mrs. C. H. Stuart; instrumental selection, Miss Marjorie Turner; vocal solo, Miss Ida McBride. Miss Turner and Miss Blanchard were accompanists.

An orchestra composed of Messrs. Arfere Tedford, Ted Kingdon and Don. Morrison, played during the afternoon, and another orchestra, the Misses Violet and Isabel Davidson, Emma Lou Chenhall, Gladys White and Messrs. Bill Sangster, Pearson Mowry and Harry Chenhall, entertained the company from five till six.

The room was very attractive with pretty Valentine decorations, handsome ferns, plants and flowers.

The ladies are to be congratulated on their success and the very liberal donations left at the pretty table in charge of Mrs. Tremain and Mrs. Emmerson.

AT LAKEFIELD.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 17. — The W. A. of St. John's Church held its annual Valentine tea in the School-room last Tuesday afternoon, with very gratifying results. This tea has become a village institution and is much looked forward to. The room was decorated in scarlet and white, hearts, cupids and arrows figuring prominently. The fancy goods booth was in charge of Mesdames Mahood, R. H. Jackson and Barker, while Miss Hetherington and Mrs. McCarron were in charge of the home cooking stall. Attractive Valentines were on sale and also tried recipes donated by members and friends of the W.A. Mesdames Wm. Watson, Sr., Braden Blewett and Ira Lennox presided over the candy table, which was loaded with "sweeties" of every known variety. Mrs. Trude Waldon was the convenor of the tea-room committee, and was assisted by Mrs. Stenner, Mrs. Junkin and Mrs. A. Wannamaker. In a retired corner, curtained off from the main hall, a palmist (Miss Northcott) was in great demand, and spent a busy afternoon. Miss Florence Atwood, Mrs. Cox and Mrs. Marling received the visitors and assisted the various committees.

In the evening the gentlemen were invited to attend and were charged according to their weight. The evening was spent in playing progressive euchre. Mrs. Woodhouse and Mrs. Waldon were tied for first prize, each was given a trophy, while Mrs. Cox received the consolation prize.

This is the second year that the men were invited in the evening, but the success of last year's effort prompted a repetition of the pleasant social gathering.

AT HASTINGS.

HASTINGS, Feb. 17.—A very successful St. Valentine dance was held in Lynch's Hall last Wednesday evening. The hall was decorated in red and white color scheme, in keeping with the occasion. Cupids, hearts and darts were placed in suitable places, and a large crowd was in attendance. Lunch was served at midnight.

CLAN ALPINE CAMP HAD SOCIAL EVENING

Sons of Scotland Spent Evening Listening To Songs of Home.

Under the auspices of Clan Alpine Camp, a concert with song, music and story was held in the Sons of England hall last night. Worthy Chief, Bro. T. Hendry, presided.

The opening number, "Ye Banks and Braes," was sung by the audience, led by Bro. A. Clark.

Mrs. MacDonald gave a very pleasing rendition of "Home Songs." Mr. Jack Smith, with his Jacobite numbers, roused the enthusiasm of his audience. Mr. MacDonald added to the evening's entertainment with a Scottish ballad. Bro. Bob Hendry, in his own inimitable style, put the company in good humor with his droll songs and pawky humor. Bro. A. Clark was at his best in interpreting "Green grows the Rashes, Oh," and "The Hundred Pipers." Miss E. Hemphill was graceful in her sword dance and sang in a manner that pleased and surprised her many friends. Mrs. A. Clark emphasized the Scottish tone of the gathering with her recitation of Alex. Andersons poem, "Bairnies Cuddle Doon."

Bro. J. Grierson read an interesting and instructive paper on Scottish martyrs.

Bro. S. D. Shaw, the Ontario organizer of the association, also addressed the meeting, giving a brief outline of the progress of the Association, and told his audience that the society was in such a sound position financially that the executive had decided to pay a bonus to all members of over two years standing.

The chairman in his concluding remarks intimated that the Rev. Mr. Edgar of the Gilmour Memorial Church, would at their next meeting of the camp, lecture on the Scottish Covenanters, covering the period immediately after that dealt with by Bro. Grierson. He also intimated that for the first time in the history of Peterboro Camp, ladies would be admitted to the organization.

Mr. R. J. Devey ably presided at the piano. Refreshments were served during the evening.

26 Bodies Are Recovered from Utah Snowslide

DEATH TOLL ESTIMATED AT 60 IN AVALANCHE THAT ROARED DOWN UTAH MOUNTAIN BURYING DEBRIS OF SHATTERED HOUSES SWEPT BY SNOW INTO SAP GULCH

Thirty Persons, Fifteen of Them Injured, Rescued From Snow Filled Canyon, Eighteen Miles From Salt Lake City.

MANY OF VICTIMS HORRIBLY BURNED IN BOARDING HOUSE FIRE FROM STOVES

Twenty-six Bodies Removed Up to Last Night—Church and Twenty Miners' Cabins Caught Up By Snowslide.

BINGHAM, Utah, Feb. 18 (Canadian Press)—An avalanche of snow and debris that swept down the steep mountainside in Sap Gulch, near here, yesterday morning, resulted in 26 known deaths, with the possibility of the toll being swelled considerably with the estimate last night that 40 men, women and children remained buried. In addition to the 26 bodies removed during the day, 30 persons were taken out alive, 15 of them injured.

As the mass of snow, accumulated from the heaviest snow storm of the winter, let loose on the mountainside above the gulch, in which are located the Utah-Delaware and Utah Apex mines, it swept trees and rocks with it and filled the narrow canyon, which is only 700 feet long. Men, women and children were caught without warning when the avalanche struck the MacDonald boarding house and a smaller one nearby conducted by a Mrs. Rimby. A small church and about twenty miners' cabins, lining both sides of the gulch, were buried or swept away. The boarding house and cabins, heated with stoves, caught fire as they were crushed in the snow slide. Many of the victims were terribly burned and identification of the bodies was extremely difficult.

Houses Mere Debris

The entire first shift of the Utah-Delaware mine was coming off duty when the slide swept the gulch sides clean and filled it with debris. It was with a sudden, thundering roar that the slide bore down the mountainside, said persons outside its path. As the mass gravitated down, houses caved in like egg shells and became a part of the moving mass.

Rescue crews plied their shovels in limited areas that had been roped off. Their efforts were speeded up late in the day as the fires died down under the mass of snow. More than two thousand persons from the countryside and neighboring towns had gathered about the scene before dusk.

Caused by Wet Snow

The avalanche is believed to have been the result of unusually "wet" character of the snow that had been falling for 24 hours, adding 14 inches to previous snows on the surrounding heights.

Sap Gulch, a mile from here, is one of several off-shoot gulches clustered about this city of 4,000 population, which is noted for the largest "open" copper ore mine in the world, that of the Utah Copper Company.

The distance to Salt Lake City is 18 miles.

Canyon Filled In

As fast as a body was dug from the rocks and snow, it was placed on a small hand-sled and taken to the morgue in Bingham proper, several miles down the narrow canyon, which is completely closed at the scene of the slide. Rescue parties worked from each side of the slide.

The heaviest loss of life was expected at the J. T. McDonald and William Rimby boarding houses, which were completely covered by snow.

The snow which slid one and one-half miles down the mountain, lodged near the Utah-Delaware Mine in Sap Gulch. The slide came so rapidly that little warning was given.

An emergency hospital was erected at Bingham proper, and the entire force of doctors and nurses available was on hand.

TRAFFIC CHIEFS OF MILLS MEET

Delegates From Many Sections Discuss Problems in Transportation.

LAUD Q. O. PLANT.

Matters of the greatest moment in the milling industry were discussed to-day at the meeting of members of the Traffic Committee and Canadian National Millers' Association held in the board room of the Chamber of Commerce. J. Wells Fraser and Frank G. Stinson welcomed the delegates, Mr. Fraser in his address stressing the pleasure it afforded him to extend a greeting to the representatives from Montreal, the city which he declared was, in his opinion, the mecca of Canada. He assured them of the importance of the milling industry in the world of business.

The agenda which forms the centre of discussion is comprehensive, dealing as it does largely with the railway situation and the individual complaints of certain milling companies.

Those present were Charles La Lerle of Toronto, traffic manager of the Maple Leaf Milling Company; E. V. Morphet of Peterboro, vice-chairman of traffic; those from Montreal are Charles Litz, eastern manager of The Robin Hood Mills, Limited; D. M. Wilson, mill superintendent of the St. Lawrence Flour Mills Company; E. D. Stuart, of The Ogilvie Flour Mills Company; R. W. Hardie, of the Lake of The Woods Milling Company, and J. L. V. Malette, secretary of the Association. F. T. Rosebrugh represents the Western Canada Flour Mills, and George A. Gray the T. H. Taylor Company of Chatham.

In the morning the members of the conference visited the mill of the Quaker Oats Company, which Mr. Mallette described as one of the finest plants in North America.

Arrangements are being made which may result in a curling match in which some of the delegates will take part.

NOW, HONESTLY—

A flock of friends get together at someone's house and suddenly, for no apparent good reason, they gather around the piano and start to sing.

Generally speaking, everyone has a fairly good voice—except one.

And that's the person I'm thinking of.

When the best you can do is flat notes that aren't written in flats, or sour ones that are really sharp—why sing?

'Tis a wise person who knows that silence is a golden opportunity not to put the kibosh on a perfectly good bit o' harmony.

PARTY SPLIT IS EXPECTED OVER L. GEORGE PLANS

Liberal Congress Decides in Favor of Land Reforms.

DIFFER ON CLAUSES.

Compromise Likely With Lloyd George Continuing as Leader.

LONDON, Feb. 18 (United Press)—Lloyd George's political future is bout to be determined. Upon the outcome of the Liberal Congress position tomorrow toward his land nationalization scheme, it will depend. So far the Congress has decided unanimously in favor of land reform, but there are signs of a big party split over some of the nationalization features in the former Premier's scheme.

However, it is probable that a compromise will be reached and that Lloyd George will continue in his present place as chief of the party.

He favors a plan whereby the laborer and small farmer will have greater opportunity to own his own home and some land.

$45,000 BUSINESS BLOCK FIRE LOSS

One of Old Buildings in Fort William.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Feb. 18.—Canadian Press. — A fire which started in the basement at one o'clock yesterday destroyed the Castlegrove Waddington Block, on Victoria Block on Victoria Avenue. The block was owned by Colonel S. C. Young, and was occupied by A. S. Seeley as a pool room, barber shop and cigar store, and by the Scotland Woollen Mills. The upper storey was laid out in suites and was fully tenanted.

The building and contents of all kinds are a total loss, the tenants saving nothing and only just getting out in time, the building being an old frame shell, and the fire spreading with great rapidity, fanned by a strong west wind.

It was built 30 years ago and was one of the oldest business buildings in Fort William. The total loss on the building and contents will be 000.

U. Fairlie, chief engineer of the Ontario Hydro Commission at a special meeting of the Windsor City Council yesterday afternoon. The improvements include line extensions, double tracking, increased power equipment and the purchase of 20 new truck cars and a sweeper.

WHO WAS FIRST TO DIE? QUERY IN WILL CASE

Former Peterborough Resident Died With Beneficiary Under His Will.

HELP ASKED.

Finding of Nathan McIlmoyle and Mrs. Khan is Recalled.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Feb. 18 (Special to The Examiner). — Executors of the estate of the late Nathan McIlmoyle, Fort Erie, Ont., nursery salesman, have asked Justice Lennox, in Toronto, what disposition they are to make of the property. McIlmoyle, who was divorced, had bequeathed his property to Mrs. Rose Kahn of Buffalo, if he preceded her in death, and if she died first, the estate was to go to his heirs at law. McIlmoyle and Mrs. Kahn were found dead in the salesman's cottage in Fort Erie, Ont. Death was due to ptomaine poisoning. The executors have informed the court that they have no means of determining who died first. Bennie Kahn, Buffalo cigar store owner, has made no effort to obtain the McIlmoyle estate, as the heir-at-law to his wife. The McIlmoyles resided in Peterborough, Ont.

PETERBORO' TO GET BUS LINE WITH TORONTO

Tenders Submitted and Service Likely in Short Time, Says Henry.

HOSPITAL GRANT.

City Delegation Assured of $1,000—Urge to Transportation Decision.

According to assurances from Hon. George S. Henry, no transportation franchise will be granted to any corporation which will interfere with local facilities which should be developed by the civic department. However it is quite possible that a bus service will be instituted within a short time between Peterborough and Toronto by way of Port Hope.

This information divulged to His Worship Mayor W. T. Holloway during a visit to Toronto yesterday. The deputation gathered that several tenders had been submitted for the route.

Mayor Holloway was assured by W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P. that the re-request of $10[illegible] for the Isolation Hospital would be granted.

Premier Ferguson commended the stand taken in providing municipal work for unemployed. He urged that a similar procedure be encouraged throughout the year.

At a consultation with Hydro officials last week, when Mayor Holloway attended, the Peterborough Municipal Council was urged to consider what steps they proposed taking regarding the street railway, whether they desired an all-bus service, an all-street car service or none whatever.

Mayor Holloway said to-day that on March 4th, a number, including Commissioner McGrath, were going to visit Peterborough to learn the decision of the council.

His Worship the Mayor, declared that personally he favored an all-bus service.

The index finger of his left hand has been amputated.

The whole situation was canvassed in conference. TWO NOT GUILTY OF TRAFFIC FATALITY

Youths Acquitted of Manslaughter at Chatham.

CHATHAM, Ont., Feb. 18. Canadian Press. — Acquitted by a jury yesterday follwing their joint trial on charges of manslaughter, Russell Robinette of Toronto, and Martin McAlpin of Alvinston, were discharged by Justice Rose.

The young men were indicted as a result of a motor accident which occurred near Kent Bridge, on the provincial highway last fall, and as a result of which Clifford Knight was fatally injured.

McAlpine was driving a roadster, when it crashed into a road construction truck driven by Robinette. Knight was hurled out of the roadster and under a wheel of the truck, and suffered injuries from which he died several days later.

Evidence showed that Robinette was driving his truck without lights, and that he made a left turn in the road to avoid a bad rut. McAlpine saw the truck which being without lights he believed was stationar in the road. He made a left turn with his roadster and as a result both vehicles met in almost head on collision.

FORMER K. K. KLAN ORGANIZER CHARGED WITH WIFE ASSAULT AND BLACKMAIL IS RUMORED

Harold Gilbert Held By Peterborough Police For Beating Mrs. Gilbert—Branished Knife and Threatened to Take His Own Life.

POLICE FOUND HIM HIDING IN HOUSE.

Klan Disowns Accused Man and Declares He was Not a Member When Alleged Offences Were Committed—Police Investigate at Millbrook.

Harold Gilbert, until a few days ago organizer in Peterborough of the Ku Klux Klan and now under arrest on a charge of beating his wife and causing grievous bodily harm, faces the probability of having charges of blackmail brought against him by victims in Millbrook and Peterboro. Gilbert was read out of the Ku Klux Klan, and on Monday last a notice to that effect was published in The Examiner, warning the public that he is no longer connected with Klan activities in this district.

In police court yesterday, Mrs. Gilbert, 226 Rubidge Street, appeared as plaintiff in a charge of assault brought against her husband, the alleged offence having taken place on Saturday. The hearing will be resumed tomorrow.

Attempted Suicide.

Gilbert, it is reported, attempted to commit suicide on Tuesday and made a demonstration with a large butcher knife, falling down on the floor and writing in apparent agony. Mrs. Gilbert, thinking her husband had actually killed himself, rushed out of doors and fell fainting on the street. Sergeant Wigg investigated, and found Gilbert, unharmed, hiding in the house.

It is said that the Ku Klux Klan is not involved in any of the questioned activities of Gilbert, and that several others in addition to Gilbert were dismissed from the ranks of the Klansmen for similar offences.

When a special officer from Toronto arrived yesterday to investigate activities of Gilbert he was surprised to learn from Chief Newhall that the wanted man was already under guard.

Provincial Constable N. F. Maker is investigating at Millbrook.

FRED EDMUNDS 50 YEARS WED

Former Peterboro Showman Celebrates Anniversary in Lindsay.

REMEMBERED HERE

LINDSAY, Feb. 18.—Mr. Fred Edmunds, a native of Peterboro, and a veteran showman, this week celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his wedding. Mr. Edmunds will be remembered by many of the old residents of the Electric City. Many years ago a road company was organized in that city with which Mr. Edmunds was associated. Other members of the troupe were the late Mr. Len Caise, who conducted the Caise House, which was the leading hostelry for a great many years, Prof. Waterford, of Peterboro, who was a well-known ventriloquist and others who have passed to the great beyond. The troupe had a stormy passage, and after touring a section of the province, finally landed on the rocks at Lindsay, where Mr. Edmunds decided to remain. He was quite an artist in magic and "black art", and was seen for a number of years afterwards at fall fairs in Peterboro, and also on the market square on public holidays. Mr. Edmunds opened the first movie theatre—the Wonderland—in Lindsay.

GUINEA PIGS TEST LIQUOR

Raid on Grocery Store Uncovers Amateur Research Bureau.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. — (United Press).—Guinea pigs believed to have been used as "test tubes" to find whether bootleg whiskey could be drunk safely by human beings were seized by prohibition agents who raided the grocery store of Rudolph Gelb.

In addition to the pigs, the raiders found forty gallons of alleged alcohol and whiskey in a nearby apartment owned by Gelb.

AMUNDSEN PLANS PRELIMINARY TRIP

Will Test Dirigible Before Starting Polar Flight.

PORTLAND, Oregon, Feb. 18. — (Canadian Press).—Captain Roald Amundsen plans to make a preliminary flight in a dirigible from Spitzbergen to Paris, London, Pulham, and Leningrad before starting from Spitzbergen to Alaska this year, he said here Tuesday. Captain Amundsen said he would begin his second attempt to fly over the North Pole in April if the dirigible was ready by that time. The explorer wished well for the Detroit expedition headed by Captain Geo. Wilkins, but feared that if the party depended on the Arctic waste to provide food it would be disappointed. He said the members of the Detroit party would starve unless they carried their own food.

ST. PETER'S LADIES' AID

(Contributed.)

It was in the year 1882, on Sept. 2nd, that Bishop Jamot, the first Bishop of St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterborough, came to the city.

On Sunday morning, November, 1882, a meeting of the ladies of the congregation was called in order to form a sewing society to sew for the poor children of the parish, to provide warm clothing for the little ones so they might be able to go to school. On the following Friday afternoon a little band of ladies met in a class room of the convent, then under the good Sisters of Notre Dame. Bishop Jamot was there to meet the ladies, and there the first Society started; the good Sisters provided the table and sewing machine, and on that day a number of poor little ones were dressed and ready for school on Monday morning, and many a mother made happy by the work done by the good women.

Every Friday the ladies would meet, hail, rain or shine, and soon many other members joined until the Society was quite large.

They then removed their work room to old Murray street school, from there to the old "T.A.S." rooms on George street, and then to the present sewing room in the H. N. Rooms, Simcoe street.

In the early days of the society good old time socials and parties, raffles and concerts were held, many of them in the old Lake street school and socials in the old Murray street school grounds.

Later on the Sewing Society meeting was changed to Tuesday.

Much good work has been done by St. Peter's Ladies' Aid In 1914 a tag day was organized in aid of St. Vincent's Orphanage, "Shamrock Tag Day." As one can see, every year this tag day is bringing in large returns, last year, 1925, the sum was cleared of $1206.35.

In 1920, the St. Peter's Ladies' Aid held the first garden party on St. Vincent's Orphanage grounds, and cleared $335, which was handed to Mother Superior of the Orphanage.

That much good work has been done by the good ladies during the many years they have worked for God's poor, meeting every Tuesday from 1 p.m. to 5.30 p.m., sometimes longer, for very often the caretaker forgot and locked them in. For the ladies would be busy on a rush order for first communion, when so many white dresses and little boy suits are needed.

Still the good ladies work on, sewing stitching, ripping up old clothes to make up warm coats, etc—sewing away as if they were working for pay. This society has never once failed; for 44 years they have kept together, better and better every year. For such good women what a reward awaits them in the world to come.

How true are the words of our Lord: "Inasmuch as you do unto the least of these little ones you do unto me."

To the leading figure in the society, the president and acting president for many years past, Mrs. Anna Dunn, the organization owes much of its success and unceasing vigor in carrying on the work. Mrs. Dunn, a venerable and outstanding figure in the good works of St. Peter's Cathedral, whose quiet endeavors have always been carried out in the background, as it were, has done much in past years for the poor of parish, and the children at the Orphanage. Her clever fingers and kindly heart, almost as keen as ever, although many years have passed over her head, have always been at the disposal of the needy and the little ones.

The YELLOW STUB

by Ernest Lynn

COPYRIGHT 1920 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HENRY RAND, 55, a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the yellow stub of a theater ticket.

JIMMY RAND, his son, goes to Chicago, where the theater is. The stub is traced to a THOMAS FOGARTY, who says he gave it to OLGA MAYNARD, a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. Later he encounters Olga Maynard. She faints when she learns police want her for murder. Mary, out with SAMUEL CHURCH, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the stub and the handkerchief might have got into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder.

Jimmy receives several mysterious warnings to leave Chicago. He is followed one evening and escapes from his two shadowers after wresting a blackjack from one of them. He tells POLICE LIEUTENANT O'DAY that it was a blackjack or something similar that caused his father's death.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIX.

"Sure. Who knows?" agreed O'Day. "But," he added hastily, "you're jumping at conclusions, Rand. Agreed that it was a blackjack or sandbag that was used on your father—God rest his soul—you're a little hasty in trying to put the two together."

O'Day rose. "I'll be running along, lad. I'm detailing a man to keep close watch on this house from now on. And take care of yourself. Don't be taking any unnecessary chances." The door closed behind his massive figure. . . .

Jimmy sat for a long time after O'Day's departure. His knees hunched up before him on the bed, a frown wrinkling his forehead. Then he jumped up, took some writing paper from a drawer and wrote a letter to Barry Colvin.

He wrote page after page, describing in full the events of that exciting evening. "And not a word to the family, Barry," he wrote. "You know what they'd say if they found out. You might, however, say something to Detective Mooney if you get the chance. He was one who said we were fools to believe Olga Maynard's story. This might give him a new slant."

The long, low sport-model roadster belonging to Mr. Samuel Church came silently to a stop in front of the modest looking apartment building and Mr. Church stepped out. In the vestibule of the apartment he rang the bell opposite the name Lowell.

Mrs. Lowell's welcome was radiant. "Good evening, Mr. Church." She stepped to one side as he came in the door. "Let me take your hat, and your coat—Mary has not finished dressing yet and you won't want to sit indoors with your overcoat on. One takes cold so easily as it is. I told Mary to hurry. I hope she won't make you late for the concert."

"Thank you. We have plenty of time." His manner was easy, and sasured as he handed her his hat and removed his loose-fitting black coat. He stood immaculate in his dinner clothes, his wavy, gray-tinged black hair sleek with pomade.

He drew a silver bound leather cigar case from his pocket as Mrs. Lowell returned from hanging up his coat and hat. "Mind if I smoke?" he smiled.

"Of course not, Mr. Church. I'd rather you would, in fact. I like to see men smoke—especially cigars," she said as he finished lighting his. "It is so masculine and Mr. Lowell used to be so fond of them—but please sit down. Shall I tell Mary to hurry?"

"I find it rather pleasant waiting." He flashed her a smile. "You are comfortable here, aren't you?" He glanced around the living room.

Mrs. Lowell sighed. "We try to like it, but it is rather trying, this apartment life, after so many years in a big home. Oh well, things of course have been different since Mr. Lowell died. It almost breaks my heart to see Mary work, but she seems to like it. I'm afraid I'll never get used to it." There was a suspicion of tears in her voice.

Church smiled. "The modern girl, Mrs. Lowell. And I'm not sure that I agree with all her theories. I rather cling to the old-fashioned idea of woman's place being in the home and that sort of thing. This striving for equality and economic independence is all very well, but after all there are certain inevitable contacts the girl in business has to make that are not—well, I don't like to see it.

"And now, Mrs. Lowell, I'm taking the liberty of saying something that has been on my mind for some time. It is about Mary."

"Yes?" Mrs. Lowell was all eager attention.

"I love her. I want to marry her. Now just a minute, please. May I finish?" He waved away her interruption. "I can offer her and you, too—a wonderful home. While I am not exactly a millionaire, still most people would call me wealthy."

"Yes, of course," breathed Mrs. Lowell, "very wealthy."

"And," he went on smoothly, "I think I, ah, hold a certain position in the community that cannot be bought with money."

He was on his feet, gesturing gracefully with his arms to add emphasis to his words. "Mrs. Lowell, all Mary has to do is to say the word."

"Have you said anything to Mary?" Mrs. Lowell's voice fluttered.

"That is another thing I am old fashioned about, Mrs. Lowell." He bowed slightly. "I am speaking first to you. I have dropped an occasional hint, which is only natural for a man in love. I had gathered that she was somewhat interested in a young man named—let me see—Rand."

"Oh, that?" She smiled deprecatingly. "I did my best to discourage that. They met in a rather romantic way and he was here a few times, but that was all. She never mentions his name any more."

"These wise mothers!" he exclaimed softly. "It must have been—let us call it intuition—that led you to discourage that." I haven't had the opportunity to observe the young man very much, but the first time I saw him he was standing on the street with a notorious woman in his arms. Right in front of the Mayfair Hotel, with dozens of people passing."

"Brazen!" Mrs. Lowell exclaimed.

"Oh, both of them must have been drunk. There's no other way of accounting for it. Mary saw it, too. Perhaps that's why she hasn't mentioned his name since."

"Mary hasn't been quite herself lately," she admitted. "I wonder if she's been thinking about that—that Rand."

"A little talk with her," he suggested, "might—"

"She shall have it."

"Without, of course, bringing me into it. Things might be misunderstood, you know, and I have a certain delicacy about suggesting—"

"I understand perfectly, Mr. Church. I think it quite noble of you to let me know."

"It was quite distasteful, I assure you, Mrs. Lowell."

"I know, I know. But there's Mary calling. Some last minute help with her dress, I suppose. Excuse me."

Along, Church smiled a self-satisfied smile. With his left hand he carefully flicked his cigar ashes into a nearby receiver. With his right he smoothed down his flawlessly combed hair. He walked over to the wall mirror and adjusted his black bow tie. Then he sat down and waited.

Mrs. Lowell, in Mary's room, said as she helped her daughter into her coat, "Mr. Church asked my permission to night to propose to you."

"Mother!"

Mrs. Lowell went on, unheeding. "That's such a rare and admirable trait to find in a man today. Not very many of them think of us mothers."

"Mother, don't talk like that. Did he say—"

"He has wealth," Mrs. Lowell interrupted, "refinement, position — everything a girl could ask. Not many girls get such a chance. If he says anything to you tonight I want you to think of what it means to me—to both of us. No more of this—this awful poverty. I don't think I could stand to go on with it."

She dabbed at her eyes with her handkerchief and left the room, and Mary, strangely white faced, stood staring out of the window for some time before she followed. . . .

On the drive downtown and during the concert Church was attentiveness itself to Mary. He made no allusion to his conversation with her mother, but on the way home he quite casually brought up the topic.

"That," he said, with a graceful wave of the hand toward the imposing looking home they were passing, "is the kind of house you should be living in. You were born to things like that. There's no reason why you shouldn't have them."

Mary, biting her lips, said, "I am happy where I am, Mr. Church."

"You say that because it isn't in you to be selfish. You think too much of others, Mary, and not enough of yourself. Think how wonderful it would be for your mother and you—a home like that.

"Mary," he continued impetuously, "I can give you all that and more. I love you and want you to marry me."

"Don't. Don't," she protested, her face buried in her hands.

"I don't want your answer now, Mary. I want you to think it over. Will you?"

"Yes, I will. Please take me in."

In her room once more, she flung herself face down on the bed, still fully dressed. "Selfish!" she cried in a strangled voice. "Is that what I am—selfish?"

. . . Through the open window came the purr of an automobile engine starting. It faded away in the distance.

In front of Jimmy Rand was a letter, the ink on it hardly dry. It began, "Dear Mary."

Jimmy slowly read it through—several pages, that had taken him hours to write. He read it again. Then he pushed his chair back from the table and slowly crumpled the letter in his hand.

Rising, he tore it into tiny fragments and threw them in the waste basket.

SCHOOL CONCERT

Youthful Students Entertained Friends at Valentine Social.

YOUNG'S POINT, Feb. 18.—On Friday afternoon the scholars of the junior room and their teacher, Miss Lorna Ackenhead, entertained a few friends and small brothers and sisters of the pupils in their school-room to a Valentine concert, consisting of songs, choruses and several plays dramatized in a splendid manner. After the programme Valentines were distributed from a post office and a bountiful lunch was served.

Among those from the village who attended the card party and dance in Lakefield on Friday evening were Mr. and Mrs. J. Waite, Mr. and Mrs. R. McGee, Misses Laura McFarlane, Mary O'Toole, Clara Young, Bessie and Dorothy Wilson, Messrs. Joseph Walsh, Oswald Brooks, Leonard Wilson, Victor Young, George Peake, Jack Waite and Wm. Heinan.

Hair bracelets and hair rings, once so popular, are returning to favor now that women are being shingled, have so much hair to spare.

EAST EMILY HAS FACTORY MEETING

Veteran Director Tenders Resignation and is Replaced by Alonzo Moncrief.

EAST EMILY, Feb. 18.—The annual business meeting of the East Emily Dairy Co. was held at the Creamery on Friday afternoon, Feb. 5th. A representative number of stock-holders were present to discuss the problems connected with the business with which they have been associated for a number of years.

This year Mr. O'Donnell, a veteran director, and closely connected with the East Emily Dairy Co. since its inception, wished to be relieved of his duties and responsibilities. The board of management accepted his resignation with reluctance, and felt that a valued and trustworthy member was being severed from the ranks. Mr. O'Donnell has a host of well-wishers, including his fellow-colleagues of East Emily Dairy Co., who hope that he may be spared to use and wear out a great many walking sticks.

Alonzo Moncrief, formerly directors' auditor, stepped into the break left by Mr. O'Donnell's retirement, and he in turn was succedeed by Harry Deyell as directors' auditor, while Geo. C. Franks continues as patrons' auditor.

The new Leanord boiler has arrived on the scene, and is under cover, needing only a few touches of mechanical skill, when everything will be in readiness at East Emily for another successful season.

DISMISS BREWERY CASE

Magistrates Concluded Beer Was Over Strength, But Not Brewer's Fault.

KINGSTON, Feb. 18.—The case against the Lake Ontario Brewing Company of this city which came before Magistrates B. E. Sparham and J. T. Kirkland, at Smiths Falls, was dismissed. The magistrates were of the opinion that although the beer was overstrength, it was due to no fault of the brewery.

Y.P.S. UNIONIST

Officials at Last Meeting Represented Many Religious Persuasions.

WARSAW, Feb. 18.—The last Young People's meeting was decidly Union. Rev. H. B. Herrington, once Methodist, now United Church, has charge of the devotional evenings. The leader for the evening is a Presbyterian, who has remained out of the Union. The lady who took the topic, "What Jesus would do if we let Him," was a Presbyterian who went with the Union. The young man who had the topic, "What Jesus would do if He were here," is a Baptist. These Union or community gatherings are exceedingly interesting.

Orchestra "At Home."

The Warsaw orchestra gave an "at home" on Friday evening. There was a good crowd out, and those who attended said it was one of the nicest "at homes" they had been at for some time. They dispersed about half-past one.

THE FUEL QUESTION.

The press of Canada seems to be unanimous in the belief that this country should proceed with the development of a Canadian fuel policy that would render the Dominion independent of the Pennsylvania anthracite supply.

The fact that the strike is now over and that coal from the United States will soon be available should not be allowed to interfere with the movement to place Canada in an independent state so far as her coal supply is concerned.

East and west of the central Provinces of Quebec and Ontario, which have been the chief Canadian market for Pennsylvania anthracite, are vast coal fields, ample to look after the needs of these Provinces.

Facilities for coking the eastern product and the transportation of Alberta coal to the east as cheaply as possible are two essentials in the development of a Canadian policy that would keep many millions of dollars in the country, supply employment for Canadian miners and profitable business for Canadian railways.

The resumption of work in the anthracite fields should not be regarded as a signal to drop all attempts on this side of the line to establish Canada's fuel independence.

THANKS, PARKDALE.

The success of the benefit hockey game for Shorty Burgess last night was due to the unanimity with which everybody concerned, including, of course, the loyal fans of Peterboro, threw themselves into the spirit of the occasion.

Outstanding, however, was the very fine demonstration of sportsmanship given by the officers of the Parkdale Canoe Club, who not only secured a team of Toronto players as opposition for Peterboro in last night's game, but who insisted upon paying the travelling expenses of these players as Parkdale's contribution toward the Burgess fund.

In these days when there is so much talk about the commercialization of amateur sport it is refreshing to be able to record this very splendid example of generosity on the part of a sporting organization.

Peterboro officials and players have found it a pleasure to be associated in the same group as the Paddlers, gallant fighters on the ice and gallant sportsmen always, and one of the most pleasant features of the Peterboro club's participation in senior hockey has been the warm friendship that has sprung up between Parkdale and Peterboro, a friendship that will be permanently cemented by this latest and convincing evidence of the fine spirit that animates the Paddlers' organization.

The Examiner is voicing the opinion of local fandom in this, acknowledging on behalf of Peterboro the very deep debt of gratitude that is owing to the Parkdale club.

PAY THEM HERE.

The attention of local business firms who are required to pay a business profits tax and of all citizens who are liable to income tax is called to the desirability of paying these taxes at the local Customs House instead of sending them to the income tax office at Belleville.

It is not only more convenient to pay these levies locally, but it also affords a chance to materially increase the revenue of the local customs office, as these payments are included in the receipts.

Custom returns are generally regarded as a barometer of trade conditions, and those cities which show large receipts are usually anxious to secure as much publicity as possible from this source.

That being so, there is no reason why Peterboro firms and individual citizens should pay their taxes in Belleville and thus swell the revenues of the Belleville Customs Department when the sums they are called upon to pay might be used to make it possible for the Peterboro customs office to make a much better showing.

Last year a large percentage of these taxes was not paid locally, but with the attention of local people directed to what is entailed, it is trusted that this year the customs office here will receive practically all of the income and business profits tax payable from Peterboro.

This point should be remembered when these payments become due.

WHY, MR. FERGUSON?

The arraignment of the Ontario Government by Mr. W. E. Sinclair, M.P.P., for leaving seven ridings in the Province without representation in the Legislature during the present session was merely what fair-minded citizens of all shades of politics are saying.

These ridings have been without a member since before the Federal election, and there has been ample time in which to hold the necessary by-elections long before the Legislature met for the present session.

The Government has seen fit, however, to defer these contests until after the session, and the Province is still waiting for a logical explanation of why seven constituencies should be deprived of a voice in the administration of Provincial affairs.

There are those, of course, who argue that there are too many members in the Legislature now, and that if it is possible for the business of the Province to go on with seven constituencies unrepresented, it would also be possible to carry on government efficiently with a score or two of seats eliminated.

That, however, is not the point at issue.

There is supposed to be a membership of 111 in the House, and the law provides for the speedy filling of a vacancy when one occurs.

That law has been deliberately ignored by Mr. Ferguson and his colleagues.

The people are at least entitled to an explanation of why this has been done.

Those of us who are not tennis enthusiasts as well as some who may be are relieved that the much discussed Lenglen-Wills "battle of the century" is at last over. Reading the press agents' stuff has been as wearisome as browsing through the pages of Hansard.

THE GOD OF RESPECTABILITY.

Having excluded the Countess of Cathcart from the United States on the ground of "moral turpitude" and thus earned the plaudits of many millions of more or less correct living Americans, (not to mention the breathless devotees of Bertha M. Clay) it became necessary to take steps to eject the Earl of Craven, a temporary resident of the United States—or endure the charge of hideous inconsistency, of upholding the "double standard" for men and women. The Earl of Craven was the co-respondent named by the elderly Earl of Cathcart in his successful suit for divorce—a suit that provided rather sensational copy for newspapers in all parts of the world in 1921.

As in the original suit, there are some unusual factors in its latest sequel that are of particular public interest. For instance, when the Earl came to the United States o visit a relative last fall he answered "No" to the form question of the immigration inspectors as to whether he had been convicted of or admitted a crime involving "moral turpitude." Presumably he made the same negative answer when three weeks ago he returned to New York from a visit to Bermuda. But when the Countess came to the United States last week she, in reply to the same question, did not give a specific answer, but related the circumstances of her divorce from the Earl of Cathcart. Informed that the Earl of Craven was then in New York, immigration inspectors questioned him further and he confirmed the Countess' story. A New York despatch says: "Immigration officials have conceded that a simple denial on the Earl's part would have freed him from the operations of the statute," so we presume that "a simple denial" by the Countess would have freed her also.

The dictionary defines "turpitude" as "baseness, depravity" and "depravity" as "moral perversion, viciousness, corrupt especially in moral character or habits." It is the Earl of Craven who, evidently giving his own view about the term "moral turpitude" and a narrow interpretation to the word "crime," denies being guilty of them, but it is the Countess of Cathcart who is more precise, the same lady who at the divorce trial startled British society by defending her conduct with the Earl of Craven with whom she subsequently lived in South Africa, although he was already married.

The Earl of Craven is a young man of charming manners who wears a "tin leg" as the result of his service in the British army during the war. Apart from his participation in the Cathcart scandal, his reputation so far as the world knows is good and his wife is said to be again living with him. Of the Countess of Cathcart much the same may be said. She is a novelist and playwright and about to be married to a gentleman in England, who cables the women of the United States to support his fiancee in her "terrible ordeal."

Was the Earl of Craven a liar when he denied that he had ever been convicted or admitted moral perversion, or was the Countess of Cathcart a fool to be so frank in her story to the immigration inspector? It is a nice point.

* * * *

There is a disposition to believe that those United States inspectors have made a laughing stock of themselves by the exclusion of this titled pair. It is held that a country in which the marriage tie is so easily broken through legal channels and where the newspapers daily report gross cases of "moral turpitude" cannot afford to be so strict or squeamish about the morals of distinguished immigrants or visitors. Some thoughts on this.

The United States has a severe immigration law found necessary because of the attractions of that prosperous land to hordes of people from Europe. The United States excludes among others criminals and moral perverts. Thousands of these undesirables probably get through the line—their record is not known or they disguise themselves and lie. But the law is there notwithstanding, and the law is no respecter of persons—neither moral perversion nor crime is excused by reason of a title inherited or otherwise. To hold differently would be absurd.

The divorce mills in the United States do seem to be operated pretty continuously, but what we are apt to forget is that there are one hundred and twenty millions of people in the United States and that a huge total of divorce cases would be but a small percentage of the married. The fact is that while the immoral get their names in the papers and are heard of a great deal, the huge bulk of the population of the United States may be characterized truthfully as of high moral character, strong in support of the home and the family. Hollywood discovered this to its amazement and cost—roused to indignation over the conduct of certain movie stars the patrons of the cinema in the course of a few hours forced the permanent removal of the offenders.

Is it said that as austere a policy adopted by other countries would prove inconvenient for many prominent and wealthy American travellers? Perhaps the answer would be that the United States has as little sympathy for its own divorced people as for others—that foreign countries may do what they please.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Despite the dryness of the Speech from the Throne, there are signs of a persistent effort to give a wet turn to the proceedings in the Legislature.

It must at least be admitted that the campaign manager who selected Prince Albert as a safe seat for the Prime Minister certainly knew his business.

The latest advices do not reveal any indication of a recount in Prince Albert being asked for by Capt. Burgess, the Independent candidate.

Anyway, says the Globe, it was worth while to get coal from Alberta even if the Pennsylvania strike is settled. It would be worth while, perhaps, to keep getting it from Alberta and reduce the amount obtained from the United States.

Going into the new Red Lake mining field has one advantage over going to Florida. There are not so many real estate operators in New Ontario.

Divisions in the Legislature cannot by any exercise of the imagination be termed exciting. That is one of the disadvantages of a big majority.

A lot of speeches have been made in the Ottawa debate, but it is just a question whether anything has been said so far that is worth remembering.

Peterboro's Legal Committee doesn't require as big an appropriation as last year. Loud cheers from the worried taxpayers.

You can lead a man to Parliament, but, as the St. Catharines Standard points out, you can't make him think.

Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Bible reading and meditation prepared for Commission on Evangelism of Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

THURSDAY
The Creative "Word" of God.

Read Jn. 1:1-9. Text: 1:1. In the beginning was the Word.

Meditation—The old testament in which Our Lord and his disciples were schooled began, "In the Beginning God created." The fourth and last Gospel of the New Testament is a spiritual interpretation rather than an ordinary biography and begins, "In the beginning was the Word," a profound conception of God's energy as the Creative Word. In the ancient picture God was a potter moulding man from clay. With deeper understanding John symbolizes the Creative Power of the Almighty under the Greek term "the Logos"—the Mind, the Word. Man may achieve something by patient toil. God speaks and it is done. Without the Word "was not anything made that hath been made." This "Word" John identifies Jesus Christ through whom we come into personal contact with the heart of God.

Prayer—Almighty Father, thy word is hidden in the frame work of the world, shines in the mind of man and is made flesh in Jesus Christ. Our unbelief has made spoil of us. Forgive us our folly. Make room for us within Thy love and wisdom that we may know Thee and live. Amen.

Christian Woman in India Seeks Market for Crocheted Goods.

J. H. Burnham has received the following letter:

Amolapmana,
Godavaywist,
India, Jan. 11, 1926.

Dear Friend.—I am a poor Christian woman of this place, and who has a great desire of friendship with foreign friends.

I thought of writing you when I saw your name and address in a paper. I can prepare beautiful crochet work in all kinds, such as yokes, collars, d'oylies laces and many other lovely things. But these are not saleable in India, as there are very few people who use these things.

I therefore request you to kindly sell these things to your friends there, and thus assist me from my poverty or kindly introduce me some of your friends who can help me in this way for which I shall be always thankful.

I do hope our Heavenly Father will open a way of help through you, and I request you to kindly remember me and my poor family in your daily prayers.

Hoping to hear from you a favorable reply.

With best Christian regards.

Yours sincerely,
(Mrs.) Y. N. Reddy.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

REPLY TO CHRISTIAN.

Dear Editor:

I read with interest a letter in a recent issue of your paper signed "Christian."

Now I haven't the least doubt but what the writer was sincere but has evidently been taught the doctrine of eternal torment from babyhood, as I do not believe that any others would give such a theory a moment's consideration.

I know as a child it was a nightmare to me. I knew that Jesus said "Straight is the gate and narrow is the way that leadeth unto life and few there be that find it", but I know of no hope for the vast majority of mankind. No wonder men and women were burned at the stake and subjected to the most fiendish torture in the "Dark Ages" by those who thought, or professed to think, they did God service. They naturally reasoned that if a loving and just God could allow the torture of billions of His creatures to all eternity, and for no wise purpose in the end, why should they not inflict some torture on those who would not conform to their particular creed.

Now when God's word says "Destroy" or "Die" does He really mean preserve ard live in fire? The word "destroy" signifies to "annihilate, to put to an end or cause to cease." What does the Bible say "That through death He might destroy him that had the power of death, that is the Devil" Heb. 2,14 "For this purpose the Son of God was manifested that He might destroy the works of the Devil". I John 3,8. "But all the wicked will He destroy." Psalm 145, 20. The last enemy to be destroyed is death. Now we have, or will have in God's due time, Satan destroyed, sin destroyed, sinners destroyed, and death destroyed (also see Rev. 11:18, and margin) "Shouldst destroy them that corupt the earth."

I do not want anyone to make the mistake of thinking the dead are totally destroyed now. No! "The dead shall hear the voice of the Son of Man and shall come forth." "There shall be a resurrection both of the just and the unjust." But it is after they have "come forth" and come to a full knowledge of Jehovah and His plan for mankind, and then under His Righteous rule, they persist in sin, that they shall be "cut off from among the people" die the second death. Rev. 20,14; 21,8.

RADIO TROUBLES.

Editor Examiner:

May a disconsolate radio fan address you? Your many radio fans in the north end, and no doubt throughout the city, are pleased the interest you are taking in the matter of radio reception—witness your editorial this (Monday) evening. There are, however, more radio disturbances that mar radio reception than "blooping", through the "bloopers" seem to be legion and one's fears are almost beyond redemption. Just now there is a Violet Ray machine operating away merrily. Saturday night last was the first time it came to the writer's notice, and then all Sunday morning during the church service period, and now this evening. It may have been going Sunday evening as well but the writer was at church. However, in the morning great effort had been made to "bring in" a sermon to a shut-in, but it was impossible through the awful disturbance, (did you hear it?) You get the same thing intermittently on the telephone at times when the linesmen are testing out their cables, using similar high-frequency. The unfortunate part of it is that no doubt some invalid is getting necessary treatment and other shut-ins are losing entertainments and instruction that may be just as valuable. At the same time, of course, all radio sets within quite a radius are put out of commission completely.

Do you think the world will ever be run so that all will feel they are getting a square deal and be happy, or is it necessary for our own good that we should feel at times the result of others' thoughtlessness?

Anyway after a poor season at best, to have this further calamity strike us—well, you will no doubt understand how we feel.

Yours truly,
DISCONSOLATE.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 17 (Canadian Press).—Flour 10 cents lower; at $9.35 a barrel. Shipments 29,641 barrels.

Wheat—No. 1 Northern $1.60 to $1.63; May $1.58 July $1.55.

Oats—No. 3 white 36 to 36 1-4.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG Feb. 17 (Canadian Press).—Bearish foreign news and continued inactivity of foreign buyers gave a further weakness to wheat prices here today. The market was a dull affair throughout the session with the decline ranging from an extreme dip 1 7-8 to about 5-8c at the close.

There was considerable worked on the declines. It was a typical scalping market, the periodic bulges being difficult to hold when the demand failed to broaden. May closed 7-8c below Tuesday's quotation at $1.53 1-8, July was 5-8c lower at $1.52 1-4 and October at $1.36 dropped 1 cent.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, Feb 17 (Canadian Press).—Conditions on the egg market are rather varied today, Toronto reports an easier undertone while Montreal is firm, Maritime and Prairie markets are generally unchanged but British Columbia reports a stronger feeling. States markets are higher under lighter receipts.

Toronto—Wholesale fresh extras 41 to 42, firsts 37 to 38 seconds 32 to 33. Three cars of States fresh are on the market here and another rolling, costing 29 f.o.b. Chicago.

Montreal — With light receipts there is a steadier undertone on the market here today. Jobbing, fresh extras 43, firsts 39, seconds 35.

Winnipeg—Unchanged.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, Feb. 17 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.87 7-8.

Sterling cables $4.88 3-8.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Feb. 17 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in grain here today was again dull owing to the fact that what few firm bids were received from foreign buyers for oats and barley were 1s to 1s 3d per quarter below working basis. There was no change in the condition of the spot market for oats prices being about steady with a limited demand.

The storage egg situation was stronger with an advance of 2c per dozen for extras and firsts in jobbing lots. Sales were made at extras 32c, firsts 27c, and seconds 22c per dozen.

There was no actual change in the condition of the local butter market and prices were unchanged with a fair trade passing. Receipts were 3,307 packages.

The trade in cheese on the local market was again quiet, there being very little enquiry from foreign buyers and prices were nominally unchanged. Receipts were 103 boxes.

A weaker feeling developed for Quebec potatoes on the local market today and prices declined 15c to 30c per bag. The demand here was very limited and Quebec varieties were offered at $2.80 per 90 pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 17 (Canadian Press).—New setbacks in the price of wheat today resulted largely from word of a large grain-trade failure in Great Britain and from dearth of foreign demand. The wheat market here closed unsettled, 3-4 to 1 1-4 cents net lower, May $1.65 3-8 to $1.65 1-2, and July $1.48 1-8 to $1.48 3-8. Corn finished 1 1-8 to 1 5-8c off, oats a shade to 3-8c down, and provisions varying from 20 cents decline to a rise of 5 cents.

Depression of wheat values here was added to by a sharp break in Liverpool quotations on future deliveries. Pressure to sell slackened when evidence began to appear that strong interests were accumulating wheat at around $1.65 for May (new).

At the day's low point the wheat market was about 2 cents a bushel down. Export sales at the seaboard were less than 100,000 bushels.

SENSITIVE SWISS WATCHING LEAGUE ATTITUDE TO RUSSIA

Transfer of Disarmament Conference Would be an Affront.

LEAGUE ANXIOUS

GENEVA, Feb. 18 (Canadian Press).—Reliable information indicates that the Swiss Government would regard as an official affront any decision by the Council of the League of Nations to transfer the disarmament pour-parlers outside Geneva. The general belief is that Switzerland would interpret such action as tantamount to siding with Russia in the Russo-Swiss conflict which grew out of the assassination on Swiss soil of the Soviet emissary, Vorovsky.

Official Swiss opinion is even described in some quarters as so strong as to lead to the presumption that the Government might go to the limit of making it clear that Switzerland no longer desires to harbor the League

Would Avoid Crisis.

This situation, coupled with the controversy waging in the principal capitals of Europe over the question of increasing the permanent seats in the League Council, is causing anxious days in League circles, where there is apprehension lest both problems create a crisis, especially in view of the attitude of the Scandinavian countries against granting any additional seats at the present time except to Germany.

In the meantime, assurances are given that the League's permanent military committee will not be permitted to dominate the discussions of the proposed disarmament meetings. It has been arranged to transform the committee into a special organism which would virtually be a sub-committee of the disarmament commission. The United States and other countries which are not on the council or are non-members of the League will be invited to sit with the committee. They will be asked to collaborate with the League's technical committee which will advise the preparatory disarmament commission.

SHIRTS MADE IN U.S. PRISONS ARE SMUGGLED HERE

Sell as Low as 65 Cents a Dozen, Committee Told.

CUSTOMS INQUIRY

Montreal Inspector Carried Large Bank Deposits in Own Name.

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—(By Canadian Press).— Prison-made shirts from the United States are being sold extensively in Canada, having been smuggled in without payment of duty, it was suggested at yesterday's sitting of the customs probe by R. B. Sparks, president of the Commercial Protective Association. Mr. Sparks produced in evidence a shirt which he had bought in Ottawa, and which he believed to have been made in a penitentiary in the U.S. He also filed a list of American firms dealing in prison-made apparel, at prices as low at 65 cents a dozen for shirts. There was a growing prejudice in the United States against these articles made by prisoners, and those who dealt in them were turning to Canada for an extended market, said Mr. Sparks.

Correspondence with Premier King and other members of the cabinet, regarding smuggling in general and conditions in the Montreal port in particular was the principal matter discussed yesterday. Mr. Sparks read numerous letters in which he had sought to bring conclusive evidence that J. E. A. Bisaillon, former chief inspector of the customs port of Montreal, should be replaced, and evidence that Bisaillon had deposited in his bank account sums as high as $14,000 and had at one time a balance of $69,000, which he said he had collected, deposited to his own account and transmited to Ottawa at his convenience. Mr. Sparks submitted to the government that satisfactory explanation had not been made of these transactions and that "no such officer should be kept for a minute in the public service."

A number of merchants from Rock Island and Beebe, on the Quebec-New York border, were examined briefly and their books were received by the committee for analysis.

No One Really Wants Gray Hair

There are thousands today who, for reasons beyond their control, have hair streaked with gray. They realize, too, how this handicaps them both socially and in business. But these people will not resort to mussy "dyes" because of the embarrassment of such an instantaneous change.

They do not know, perhaps, that thousands of men and women like themselves use Kolor-Bak—a marvelously pleasant liquid which is so gradual in its action that the daily effects are impossible to detect. Yet results often appear in a week.

Kolor-Bak, while it has no color in itself, oddly has the power to restore gray hair to its natural shade. It also has the merits of a tonic, giving the hair an exquisite softness and lustre besides thoroughly routing dandruff. And it is as easy to use as water. Better still, the same bottle can be used for any gray hair. Make the test. If desired results do not appear, your money will be returned. Guarantee in each package.

FRANCE APPEARS BEFORE COURT OF NATIONS GIVING ACCOUNT OF STEWARDSHIP OVER THE SYRIANS

Usurpation of Unauthorized Powers Denied Before League Tribunal.

HISTORIC EVENT

Permanent Mandates Commission Cross - Examines Great Colonial Power.

ROME, Feb. 18 — (Canadian Press).—The cross-examination of a great colonial power in regard to its treatment of a weaker nationality took place here yesterday for what is believed to be the first time in history, when representatives of France appeared before the Permanent Mandates Commission of the League of Nations to explain France's administration in Syria.

The French spokesmen were Count Robert De Caix, secretary-general of the French High Commission in Syria, and Count Gaston Glauzel, director of the French service of the League of Nations.

The afternoon session, while devoted principally to the French report on the mandate for 1924, took up many important problems relating to charges of misadministration by the French. The members of the commission, while not losing their friendly attitude, asked numerous questions insistently and sharply.

Usurpation Denied.

The questions chiefly concerned the number of French officials in Syria, their qualfications and their relations with the natives. Count De Caix vigorously denied charges that France had usurped unauthorized powers, while members of the commission mercilessly went over details.

Another question exhaustively treated was the administration of justice and the prison system in Syria. The Frenchmen were asked to explain charges of the misuse of the system of forced residence, by which Syrians are said to have been held in virtual imprisonment before being tried by courts.

Other matters taken up were religious questions, in connection with which charges of offences against Moslem customs were examined, provisions for refugees, concession contracts, and Syria's frontier with Turkey.

DOUMER URGING FRENCH SENATE TO SAVE BUDGET

Finance Minister's Tax Measures Heavily Reduced by the Deputies.

REVENUE NEEDED

Doumer Needs 800,000,000 More Francs to Balance the Budget.

PARIS, Feb. 18 (Canadian Press) —The financial measures passed by the Chamber of Deputies which were the subject of a conference yesterday been M. Doumer, the minister of finance, M. Millies-Lacroix, chairmain, and Henri Cheron, reporter, of the Senate finance committee, will, according to the best information be voted promptly by the upper house with such conditions as will produce the 2,500,000,000 francs extra revenue needed to balance the budget. In the opinion of the leaders of the different groups in the chamber, the lower house will vote the measures with the Senate amendments.

The most aggressive leaders of the groups of the coalition of the Left, who heretofore have been loud in their assertions that they would not allow the upper house to overthrow the chamber, elected by universal suffrage, have modified their tone. Possible dissolution in case of a conflict between the two houses is regarded with apprehension, and it was admitted by one of the most active opponents of the Government yesterday that the chamber would vote whatever amendments the Senate makes.

The finance committee of the Senate has agreed to work night and day on the bills to have them ready for consideration before the end of the week.

Doumer's Extras

The budget deficit which must be covered totalled 5,525,000,000 francs, M. Doumer informed the committee, and the chamber had voted only 1,600,000,000 additional resources. He asked the senators to vote 100,000,000 francs alcohol taxes, 35,000,000 on salt, 50,000,000 on coffee, augment the customs revenues by 400,000,000, increase tobacco prices 30 per cent, which it is calculated would bring in 8,000,000,000 francs, while he hoped to recover 200,000,000 from the disposal of state property and accumulated merchandise, and make up the balance with the 1.20 per cent stamp tax on industrial transactions, yielding 2,400,000,000 francs.

M. Doumer also asked the Senate committee to adopt the bills the Chamber has already voted.

LINDSAY BIDDING FOR POWER LINES

Deputation Seeks Favorable Price From Hydro.

LINDSAY, Feb. 18.—A deputation from Lindsay, comprising His Worship Mayor Wilkinson, Reeve O'Reilly, Town Clerk Allely and T. H. Stinson, M.P., left for Toronto yesterday where they plan to meet the Hydro-Electric Commission to discuss the question of the proposed purchase of the local distributing plant by the municipality.

Some time ago the Hydro expressed its willingness to dispose of distributing plants in the Central Ontario area to any municipality that would agree to purchase power from the Commission. The Hydro has obtained a neat surplus yearly from the operation of the local utility, and a great many citizens feel that it should be purchased by the municipality, providing the price is reasonable. Some years ago Lindsay had the opportunity of purchasing the local plant from the Central Power Company before it became part of the Hydro system, and many believe that the purchase price will be lower than that fixed by the Hydro.

CANADA'S FIRST PROVINCE - WIDE LEGION FORMED

111 Delegates at Regina Organize Saskatchewan Branch of Veterans.

83 DISTRICTS

Loyalty Declared — Ritual Simple—Foster Patriotism Among Children.

REGINA, Feb. 18 (Canadian Press). — Representatives of 83 district in Saskatchewan yesterday created the first provincial branch of the Canadian Legion to be formed in the Dominion.

Under the name of the Canadian Legion in the Province of Saskatchewan, the organization, into which all previous soldier bodies will enter in a province-wide and later a Dominion-wide association, was brought into being when the 111 delegates unanimously passed a resoluting forming themselves into the first provincial convention. That resolution was so worded to make all succeeding resolutions apply to the affairs of the Legion.

The convention pledged never-failing allegiance to the King, continued interest in and loyalty to the Prince of Wales, and extended messages of appreciation to many individuals and organizations who have helped to make possible the fusion of the many soldier organizations in Canada. No elaborate ritual, common to the secret orders, is to be observed by the provincial body. The initiation will be simple and impressive, in the form of an obligation, and the matter of additional ritual will be left with individual branches.

A special committee has been appointed to draft a resolution designed to foster patriotism among children. It is probable the effort will be directed largely to the schools in the province. Observance of Dominion Day, Trafalgar Day and Armistice Day were mentioned in the original resolution before the convention yesterday morning as suitable occasions for the visits schools and the direction of patrotic effort.

HORTICULTURISTS OF MADOC AT MEETING

Last Year Armoury Grounds Were Beautified By Flower Beds.

MADOC, February 17. — The annual meeting of the Horticultural Society, was held in the Public Library on Wednesday evening.

In the reports for the past year it was announced that the membership had reached 67. Theer were two very successful flower shows held during the season of 1925. A choice of plants, bulbs, seeds or horticultural magazines were allowed as premiums to members. One noteworthy improvement accomplished by the Sosociety was the beautifying of the armory grounds by the addition of flower beds.

Many ruggestions were made for the 1926 programme and the members intend doing their best to carry out as many as possible. Some of the plans in view are the cutting of noxious weeds, the improvement of the grounds to the east of the post office by flowers, a hand rail to be placed on the bridge near the grist mill, the securing of a parking place for tourist cars, the cleaning and beautifying of the banks of Deer Creek, which flows through the heart of the town, and which could be made a charming spot for the delight of both citizens and tourists, and the acquisition of a public dumping ground, and its proper supervision.

These are very worthy objects which the society has in view and it is hoped that the citizens will show their approval by adding to the membership and heartily endorsing the steps being taken for the furtherance of sanitary conditions and of the natural beauties of a pretty village.

COLLUSION OF GOVERNMENT AND PROGRESSIVES TO 'GAG' DEBATE, ALLEGATION OF CONSERVATIVE

C. H. Cahan of Montreal Loosed His Wrath in Stormy Scene.

WITHDREW REMARK

Progressives' Resolution Prevented Further Amendments to Address.

OTTAWA, Feb. 18. — (Canadian Press).—Dramatic moving of the previous question in the House, had yesterday a lively sequel. It was just about midnight on Tuesday when T. W. Bird, Progressive, of Nelson, moved the "previous question" and barred the way to further amendments to the address. At the time, C. H. Cahan of Montreal was waiting to move a Conservative amendment of non-confidence.

When the House met yesterday afternoon, Mr. Cahan declared that Liberals had secured the "co-operation" of Mr. Bird.

Mr. Bird was immediately on his feet with a denial. "I repudiate the suggestion," he exclaimed, "that there was any co-operation between the Government and myself."

There were loud cries that Mr. Cahan should withdraw.

Mr. Cahan accepted Mr. Bird's denial but with the hope that Liberals would declare that they had not directly or indirectly procured the moving of a motion that they themselves were "afraid and ashamed to move."

There were renewed shouts of order.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, acting Government leader, added his repudiation that there had been co-operation between Liberals and Mr. Bird.

"This is apparently a merry-go-round," observed Speaker Lemieux, "and so we may accept the statements of both sides."

Mr. Cahan then wanted to know if the previous question had been moved with the authority of Robert Forke, Progressive leader.

Mr. Forke smiled. "I have no doubt Mr. Cahan would like to know all about the policy of the Progressive party," Mr. Forke returned.

Trying to Gag Discussion.

Mr. Cahan continued with his speech. He referred to Mr. Bird and to the proposed completion of "a railway" through Mr. Bird's constituency of Nelson to Hudson's Bay. Mr. Cahan declared that he was prepared to judge every question on its merits, but," he added, "when the hon. gentleman seeks to preclude us from reaching a vote of want of confidence in this House, when he seeks to gag us in the discussion of what we regard as material and vital to the interests of this country, I can tell him that he will have to change the rules of the House in order to prevent my obstructing in order to prevent the forcing through of any such measure as that."

Mr. Cahan was speaking the whole afternoon and when the House rose at six o'clock his speech was still unfinished. Hon. Lucien Cannon charged Mr. Cahan with wasting the time of the House. "If we are not witnessing obstruction, what is it?" questioned Mr. Cannon.

Copious extracts from Premier King's Richmond Hill speech were read by Mr. Cahan, who finally observed that the reading of the extracts was merely preparatory to their discussion.

Mr. Cahan continues to-day.

Outmanoeuvred By Progressive.

Resuming the debate yesterday afternoon, Mr. Cahan said he had intended on Tuesday night to move another amendment to the address which was to take the form of a simple expression of want of confidence in the Government. The vote being finished, he had the floor, but sat down to permit another member to make a formal statement concerning his pair in the vote. He had been under the impression that he would not thereby lose his right to the floor. When he attempted to speak he found himself forestalled by the member from Nelson (T. W. Bird).

The motion which Mr. Bird proceeded to place before the House had the effect of preventing any possible amendments to the main motion, said Mr. Cahan. On the occasion that a similar motion was made in 1913, a member of the present Government, then in opposition, had described it as a "shameful proceeding on the part of the Government, to gag public debate and prevent the free expression of public opinion." Nevertheless, Mr. Cahan believed that the Government Tuesday night had secured Mr. Bird's co-operation.

Mr. Bird was immediately on his feet, and for several minutes there was a mild uproar in the House. When he could make himself heard, the member from Nelson said, "I repudiate the suggestion."

"I am bound to accept the hon. gentleman's statement," said Mr. Cahan, "so far as it goes. But I hope before this debate has proceeded too far, some member on the Government side will rise and say that the Government, neither directly nor indirectly, secured the moving of a motion which they themselves were ashamed and afraid to move."

E. J. Garland (Progressive, Bow River) then rose to a point of order. He suggested that Mr. Cahan withdraw. Mr. Speaker ruled that his understanding was that Mr. Cahan had agreed to accept Mr. Bird's word.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen then intervened. He hoped that it was understood, that while one member of the House had expressed willingness to accept the word of another, the House still awaited some word from the Government.

Denial By Lapointe.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, acting Government leader: "If my right hon. friend wants me to associate myself with the member from Nelson, I will say that I repudiate the suggestion that there was any such 'co-operation'."

Insofar as the Progressive member for South-East Grey (Miss MacPhail) was concerned, she had declared in Parliament that the King Government had "played atrociously poor politics when it continued to hold office after the verdict of the people had been given."

Hon. Lucien Cannon, Solicitor-General, arose on a point of order. Mr. Cannon objected to Mr. Cahan quoting a speech of a member of the House on another question.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen contended that Mr. Cahan was in order.

Mr. Speaker ruled that Mr. Cahan could only give the effect of the words of the member for South-East Grey but not quote them.

Mr. Cahan was proceeding with his speech when the Solicitor-General again raised the question as to whether Mr. Cahan was in order. Mr. Cannon continued to discuss this point, but all his remarks could not be heard above the cries of order from the Conservative benches.

"Sit down, sit down," shouted several members of the Opposition.

When the tumult had subsided, Mr. Cahan remarked: "I knew the rules of the House when the hon. gentleman who has just spoken was a mere child."

Mr. Cahan then proceeded with his speech. Miss MacPhail, according to his memory, had declared in effect to the House that she had absolutely no confidence in the King Government. Other members of the Progressive group had uttered words to a similar effect.

Miss MacPhail interrupted to ask why the Conservative party had not taken the opportunity of moving a straight want of confidence vote earlier.

Mr. Cahan replied that he did not profess to be able to express fully the opinion of the Conservative party in the House. He would leave that to the right hon. leader of the party for the proper time. Members of the House, however, had every right to express their views and to move any proper amendments. He felt considerably aggrieved that he had been prevented from moving his amendment calling for a straight vote of want of confidence.

No Notice of Intention.

J. L. Brown (Progressive, Lisgar) asked whether Mr. Cahan had notified the Progressive party that he intended to move his amendment.

"I had assumed there was a certain degree of intelligence in the Progressive party in this House," replied Mr. Cahan. If the members of this group had taken the trouble to read the news of the day, they would have learned ten days ago that he had intended to move his amendment at the first available opportunity.

Mr. Cahan denied that the Opposition was wasting the time of the House.

The Opposition was being accused by certain newspapers of holding up the business of the House. Mr. Cahan said This was not the case. The position of the Opposition was due to two resolutions moved by the acting leader of the House. The first resolution gave precedence to the address. The second one provided for adjournment after the debate had been disposed of. These two resolutions, in effect, prevented the House carrying on any other business. Therefore the Government, and not the Opposition, was to blame because it had precluded discussion of other important business. It was not costing the country one cent more, as far as the members were concerned, for this debate than it would for an adjournment. "We are not wasting one dollar of the public funds while we stay here and force the Government to go ahead and do business," Mr. Cahan insisted.

The member for Nelson (Mr Bird) Tuesday night had expressed admiration for Robin Hood. He had dilated upon the fact that this hero of old had been an apostle of freedom for all men. Having expressed his admiration, the member for Nelson, however, had proceeded to gag the other members of the House. He felt satisfied that the Progressives were not unanimous in their support of Mr. Bird's motion. If they were unanimous, he suggested that Mr. Forke (Progressive leader) should cross over to the other side of the House, take his seat among the Liberals, where he might be regarded by the Conservatives, "not as a treacherous friend who may stab us in the back, but as a political enemy whom we can look in the face."

Wealth of Saskatchewan.

The people of Canada could not live by wheat alone, said Mr. Cahan in discussing the relationship of agriculture to other Canadian industries. Every member of the Conseravtive party was as anxious to benefit Saskatchewan as any other province in Canada. He pointed out, however, that Saskatchewan was the highest province from the point of view of per capita wealth, of any in Canada. The Maritime Provinces were the lowest. In the year 1923, the agriculture in Canada had produced $1,107,000,000. He had heard it said that this was an exaggeration because a certain proportion of agriculture went to the upkeep of the farms. The production from manufacturing, or rather the net increase in the value of raw material when labor had been applied to it, during the same year, was $1,581,000,000, or one-half as much again as the wealth created by agriculture.

It must be remembered also that the manufacturing industries gave employment to a large number of people. On the other hand, great quantities of wheat were shipped aboard to Central Europe, where the people were engaged in producing commodities which were shipped to Canada. The man in the Canadian factory was doing as necessary work as the man on the farm.

Discussing the migration of Canadian citizens to the United States, Mr. Cahan declared that these people had been "driven abroad" by the mistaken policy of the Government. Mr. King had announced the policy of his administration as a "tariff for revenue."

M. N. Campbell (Progressive, Mackenzie) interrupted to ask what was the difference between the tariff policy of the Liberal and Conservative parties.

Mr. Cahan replied that he would answer that question before he was through his speech. "You know this is going to be a long debate," he humorously remarked with a look towards the Ministerial benches.

Destitution in Montreal.

Continuing, he said that millions of dollars of capital had been transferred from Canada to the United States, where a safe and economical tariff policy had been adopted and was being maintained. The Government's attitude on the tariff was "directly responsible" for the sending of a considerable number of her men across the border to seek employment. In the City of Montreal alone, there was destitution, the like of which was never known when the country had a stable policy. Canadian markets were being left open to the unfair competition from foreign countries, due to the attitude of the present administration on the tariff question. Mr. Cahan believed in a policy that would give fair play to the industries in this country. Such a policy would not only afford employment in Canada to from 350,000 to 500,000 more people, but would sustain families totalling possibly as high as 2,000,000 people. A proper tariff policy resulting in proper stimulation of Canadian industries would permit the bringing in of expert artisans from other countries, in addition to farm laborers.

HON. MR. JUSTICE MOWAT ANNULS MARRIAGE OF GIRL OF SIXTEEN

Ceremony Performed by Rev. Mr. Bamforth in April Last.

NO OBJECTION

Parties Did Not Live Together and Marriage Was Kept Secret.

Judgment annuling the marriage of Annie Dawson, 16, and Charles Ellsworth Dawson, 19, was delivered yesterday evening by the Honorable Mr. Justice Mowat, presiding at the winter sittings of the Supreme Court. F. D. Kerr, K.C., representing Annie Dawson, asked for a declaration that a valid marriage was not effected between the plaintiff and Dawson. E. C. Cattanach, K.C., represented the official guardians, and F. P. Brennan represented the Attorney General.

According to the story told by the plaintiff, she was importuned by the defendant to marry him, and last April she went with him to Rev. Mr. Bamforth, who performed the ceremony. Then she went to a girl friend's home for tea, and later to a movie show. The case, which was tried without a jury, occupied the afternoon session, and judgment was delivered immediately. The defendant did not appear, and no protest was entered on his behalf.

Plaintiff's Evidence.

Annie Dawson, the plaintiff, was examined by Mr. Kerr. She said she was a daughter of Donald Campbell. She entered into a form of marriage with the defendant last April before the Rev. Mr. Bamforth of Peterborough. She stated she was 16 years old at that time.

The ceremony was performed between 5 and 6. After the ceremony they then went to a girl friends' for tea and then to a movie show. She then went to her home with her sister. She left the defendant a few minutes after the ceremony, at the corner of Mark street.

"Did you have the consent of your father or mother to this marriage?"

Witness: "No."

"When did your father and mother learn of the ceremony?"

Witness: "In May."

"When did they first know?"

Witness: "Defendant called them up and told them."

She had not lived with, nor had she been in any house with the defendant since the ceremony.

Mr. Brennan stated that he was intervening on behalf of the Attorney General.

Cross examining the witness he asked:

"How long did you know Dawson before the 11th day of April?"

Witness: "Three years."

"Had he any money?"

Witness: "Not that I know of."

"Had he any prospects "

Witness: "Not that I know of."

"Did your parents like Dawson?"

"They did not think he would be good to me."

"Was he a bad tempered young man?"

Witness: "Yes."

"Would you tell His Lordship why you married this man?"

Witness: "He was always wanting to marry me."

"How did Dawson come to 'phone your father?"

Witness: "I don't know."

"Where were you employed at that time?"

Witness: "Canadian General Electric Co."

"Hasn't he been meeting you 'on your way back from work?"

Witness: "Sometimes."

"After the ceremony did Dawson leave town "

Witness: "Yes."

Donald Campbell.

Donald Campbell examined by Mr. Kerr stated he was the father of Annie Dawson. She was born in Mariposa township.

Mr. Kerr: "During the month of April, 1925, were you a resident of Peterborough?"

Witness: "Yes."

Mr. Kerr: "Did you give consent in writing or otherwise to the marriage?"

Witness: "No."

Mr. Kerr: "Where did she stay during the month of April?"

Witness: "Right at home."

Mr. Kerr: "How did you find out about the marriage?"

The witness said he heard that Dawson wanted to get in touch with him. His wife then told him.

Mr. Kerr: 'That was the first you knew of it?"

Witness: "Yes."

Witness had never had a conversation with Dawson, he said.

Mr. Kerr: "In taking proceedings to annul the marriage of your daughter, you have her full consent?"

Witness: "Yes."

Mrs. Campbell.

Mrs. Campbell, examined by Mr. Kerr, said she was the wife of the former witness and was the mother of the plaintiff.

Mr. Kerr: "How long after the ceremony did you learn of it?"

Witness: "May 11."

Mr. Kerr: "How did you first know?"

Witness: "Dawson called up and told us."

Mr. Kerr: "Has Dawson been in your home prior to or since the day of the ceremony?"

Witness: "No."

Dr. George Raymore Scott examined by F. D. Kerr, K.C. stated that he had examined the plaintiff and found the marriage had not been consummated.

Mr. Kerr proposed calling the Rev. Bamforth as a witness, but His Lordship said: "I do not want the Rev. Bamforth called as I feel I would say something to him."

Edna L. Campbell, examined by F. D. Kerr said she was a sister of the plaintiff.

Mr. Kerr: 'Were you away from home any night in April, 1925?"

Witness: "No."

'Was your sister away from home any night in April, 19..'

Witness: "No."

F. C. Cattanach, K.C., stated that the defendant was now in the United States, and had shown indifference as to whether the marriage was dissolved or not.

Judgment.

His Lordship immediately gave judgment declaring that a form of marriage was not entered into and that plaintiff and defendant have not lived together as man and wife and that the marriage was not consummated.

Hopes That Australia Knows It's Just a Joke

OTTAWA, Feb. 18 (Canadian Press). — "I hope our friends in Australia will not take this debate too seriously," said Hon. James A. Robb, Minister of Finance, in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, when answering a question by Peter Heenan (Liberal, Kenora-Rainy River). Mr. Heenan had quoted a news item stating that a member of the Australian Parliament had stated that such a treaty as that negotiated between Canada and Australia should not be allowed to become a political football. "In view of the vote Tuesday night, will the Government inform Australia that we do not treat our treaties as scraps of poper?" Mr. Heenan asked.

ICE AND WOOD FOR NORHAM FARMERS

Peterboro Doctor Detected Smallpox Symptoms in Patient.

NORHAM, Feb. 18.—Nearly all the farmers have their wood supply secured for another year, and several are busy now hauling logs to the saw mill at Warkworth. Ice cutters have begun work on the Mill Pond and those requiring ice are busy laying in a supply.

A sleigh load of thirteen from Cramahe went to Campbellford on Friday to hear the missionary who spoke in the Baptist Church there that evening. They were afterwards entertained for lunch by Rev. and Mrs. Ford.

Case of Small Pox.

The case of chicken pox reported in the village turned out, when diagnosed by a Peterborough doctor to be a mild type of small pox. The patient is about again, and so far no other members of the family have contracted the disease, which was brought in from the outside by a young man who had been away from home, and, having taken ill, returned.

David Harnden, of Warkworth, conducted the services in the United Church at Meyersburg on Sunday morning.

A fancy covered box was the container for the huge pile of Valentines, which were placed therein. A draw had been previously made, so that each pupil received at least one Valentine and the joy was equally shared.

Splendid programmes were given by the pupils and great glee was later evidenced when the mailman proceeded on his rounds and unloaded his heavy mail box.

LIBERALS ARE NOT AGREED ON SCHEME

Some Think Lloyd George Plan Amounts To Socialism.

LONDON, Feb. 8.— (Canadian Press.)— The Earl of Oxford and Asquith, speaking at a convention of the Liberal Associations of England and Wales yesterday, following the adoption by delegates of Mr. Lloyd George's land scheme laid emphasis on the fact that no Liberal dissenting from the scheme need necessarily be ejected from the party. This was looked upon as an important pronouncement in view of the opposition which the scheme had aroused. Many delegates argued that Mr. Lloyd George's plan on points of acquistion and taxation of land amounted to socialism.

Further extensions are planned and negotiations are now being conducted with other countries with this in view.

CHECK ARTIST GIVEN THREE YEARS IN JAIL

Stanley Salisbury, Who Served Month Here, Sentenced at Oswego, N.Y.

Stanley Salisbury, the smooth check artist, who drew a sentence of one month from Magistrate O. A. Langley as a result of an appearance in the local Police Court, has once more incurred the displeasure of police authorities and will spend a term of three years, accompanied by hard labor, in the Auburn Prison because he could not control his unlawful financing proclivities.

The following is an extract from the Oswego Palladium - Times: "Stanley Salisbury must serve three years in Auburn Prison for passing worthless checks in Oswego recently. Salisbury admitted that he dropped checks totalling $900 in Oswego, Auburn and Peterborough, Ont., within two months last year. He was indicted on the charge of forgery, first degree, in uttering a check on which the endorser was mulcted of $366."

A remarkable sample of the artist's work is recorded by the Peterborough police department. Salisbury had obtained blank checks on a certain oil company. He called at the local branch and made out a telegram to one of the officials at head office. Later he called again, complaining bitterly about bank managers, who demanded credentials before accepting checks for payment. The credulous oil man immediately yielded to his generous instincts and fortified as he thought by the telegram which he had heard delivered over the 'phone supplied the necessary reference. Arrest and conviction, however, followed swiftly, and the charmer was given a taste of civic hospitality.

day's stock market again lacked a uniform trend with opposing speculative forces still struggling for control. Renewal of selling pressure against the U.S. Steel common, American woollen and some of the other standard industrials brought about sufficient profit taking in other quarters to cause cancellation of all, or part of some of the early advances, but bullish operations persisted in American Can., which was lifted to a new record high price at 323¾, and Gen. Electric, which touched 382½.

Financial Headache To Follow Fast Business

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 18.—(United Press.)—The United States faces a financial headache if business improves too much this year in the opinion of Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National city bank of New York.

It would be dangerous if this year turned out to be any more prosperous than 1925," Mitchell said. "It would mean inflation, the forerunner of deflation, which in turn means a headache."

Mitchell, who is en route to the north-west on a business trip, was optimistic of the future, however, pointing out that most of the financial leaders were guarding against inflation.

Brazilian Again Leads Touching New High Mark

TORONTO, Feb. 18 (Canadian Press) — Brazilian was again the leader in a fairly active session of the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. After touching 97 1-2, a new local high, the stocks closed the morning at 97, a 1-4 point higher than yesterday, Consolidated Smelters eased 5-8 at 243 3-8. Winnipeg Railway, the third leader, was again the strong spot, advancing 1 1-4 at 53. Brompton gained 3-4 at 35 and Nickel 3-4 at 42 3-4. British Columbia Fishing was 1-4 firmer at 61 1-2. F. N. Burt was one of the few weak issues, losing one at 62 1-2 and Atlantic Sugar was a half lower at 25. Steel of Canada sold up one at 101 and British Empire Steel common at 2 1-2. McIntyre led the mines with an advance of 50 cents at 27.10.

Trend Was Mixed To-day With Declines In Majority

TORONTO, Feb. 18 (Canadian Press).—The trend was mixed on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning though declines were still in the majority. Columbus Kirkland, the leader, was run down 7½ at 5, and Tough Oakes lost 1½ at 53½. McIntyre eased 50 at 27.00. Strong spots were Dome, advancing 75 at 19.25, Teck Hughes gaining six at 361, Premier up nine at 244, Amulet up six at 123, and Noranda up 25 at 15.65. Mining Corporation firmed 3 at 4.18.

Commission Houses Active On Buying Side To-day

CHICAGO, Feb. 18. — (Canadian Press).—Commission houses showed more activity on the buying side of the wheat market to-day in the first part of the Board of Trade session, and, with offerings light, prices went decidedly higher. One of the stimulating factors was an estimate from a trade leader that even should the United States exports between now and July 1 be as low as 25,000,000 bushels, the final domestic carry over would be only 36,000,000 bushels. Liverpool quotations counted also as a bullish influence. Chicago opening prices 5-8c to 1 1-8c up, May 166 1-8 to 165½, and July 149, were followed soon by material further gains. Corn and oats were firm, owing chiefly to wheat strength. After opening unchanged to ½c higher, May corn 78¼ to 78¾, the corn market scored a moderate advance all around.

Oats started at a shade to ½c higher, May 41¼ to 41 3-8, and later continued to harden. Higher quotations on hogs gave an upward slant to the provision market.

MINERS BUSY AFTER STRIKE

Maximum Output Will Not Be Reached Until End of Month.

RESUME TO-DAY.

SCRANTON, Feb. 18. — Canadian Press. — Mining was resumed in the anthracite region to-day when a vast army of underground toilers returned to their jobs after being idle more than five months because of the strike. Thousands of workers thronged about the shafts of the different coal comanies everywhere in the coal fields, at 6 a.m., at which hour the cages began taking their loads of human freight to the bowels of the earth, to begin the actual production of anthracite. The first coal was mined by shifts that went to work in the mines last night.

After a week it is estimated the industry will settle down to normal, all the while steadily increasing production until the maximum output is attained about the end of the month.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 (Canadian Press).—With her New York operatic debut safely behind her, Marion Talley, once a choir singer in Kansas City, Mo., to-day began preparations for her second appearance at the Metropolitan Opera House as "Lucia," at a special matinee on Monday. Seats were sold out yesterday. By selling out the house for two operas before Broadway had heard her voice, Miss Talley, who is only 19 years old, has set a record. To-morrow night she makes her radio debut, singing with Martinelli, the Metropolitan tenor, from WJZ and allied stations. Miss Talley to-day stands acclaimed as North America's newest and youngest prima donna of first rank.

Exclusion Of Countess Denounced By Minister

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 18.—(Canadian Press).—The exclusion of the Countess of Cathcart from the United States was criticized yesterday by Rev. August Steimle, New York, at Lenten services under the direction of the Lutheran Church.

"It is strange that the nation which has more adultery and more divorce than any other should be telling a foreigner to stay out," Dr. Steimle asserted. "We ought to look first within our own boundaries. Our popular lack of reverence was never more clearly illustrated than in the fact that many of us seem actually puzzled as to whether adultery constitutes 'moral turpitude'."

R. P. SPARKS AGAIN HEARD BY MEMBERS

Cross-examined at Sitting of Customs Probe This Morning.

OTTAWA, Feb. 18 (Canadian Press).—Very little new ground was broken at to-day's sitting of the Customs probe. The history of negotiations between the Government and the Commercial Protective Association during some eighteen months, was again reviewed. R. P. Sparks, president of the association, was on the stand. He described a conference of several hours' duration in Montreal on December 2 last with the present Minister of Customs, Hon. G. H. Boivin. He also had been in touch with Hon. H. H. Stevens, and had given him some information about J. E. Bissaillon, former special inspector of Customs, Port of Montreal. He had told Mr. Boivin that committees of his association approved of his negotiations with Mr. Stevens, and had unanimously approved of the idea of a Parliamentary committee to investigate smuggling. "I think Mr. Boivin found no fault with it," added Mr. Sparks.

J. C. Elliott, of West Middlesex, cross-examined Mr. Sparks as to the attitude of the Government to the proposals of his association for more drastic measures against smuggling. Mr. Elliott read letters from the Prime Minister's office which he thought indicated that the association was receiving sympathetic consideration, and referred to a meeting which Mr. Sparks had with the Cabinet for the purpose of suggesting changes in the Customs Act.

STUDYING BUDGET.

Doumer Warns Senate Committee of Impending. Disaster.

PARIS, Feb. 18 (United Press)—Under the warning that "another cabinet crisis would cause a cataclysm" the French senate finance committee proceeded with its study of the budget projects today. Finance Minister Doumer told its members last night that "successive crises in the past year coupled with enormous inflation" had brought France "to the verge of the abyss in which France's prestige and prosperity might be destroyed."

GOVERNMENT SALE PROPOSED FOR U. S.

Official Would Have It Purchased and Handle All Medical Whiskey.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (Canadian Press).—Intense interest has been aroused here, both in wet and dry circles, over the plan proposed by Assistant Secretary Andrews of the Treasury to have the Government purchase the entire supply of medical whiskey, amounting to about 20,000,000 gallons, at a cost of nearly $400,000,000, in order to keep it from the bootleggers. If the Government buys it, it will distribute the whiskey, and many advocates of the modification of the Volstead Act believe it will prove the beginning of a great movement to establish the system of Government handling of liquor now in force in certain Canadian provinces.

LIBERALS ADOPT NEW LAND POLICY

Lloyd George's Scheme Approved By Convention.

LONDON, Feb. 18. — Canadian Press. — Approval of the principles of the land policy laid down by Lloyd George was given in a resolution adopted by 1500 delegates from the Liberal Associations of England and Wales gathered here yesterday.

The resolution said the delegates unanimously were of the opinion that the time had arrived when the land system of the country should be reformed according to the principles laid down by the Liberal party leader which provides a drastic policy for dealing with land monopoly.

KIWANIS EFFORT

New Booklet Outlines Policies of Farm and City.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—A new Kiwanis pamphlet "Better Town and Country Relations" outlining policies and activities to create a better understanding between the farmer and city man has just been issued to all clubs in the United States and Canada. The development of a county and community consciousness in which the farmer feels himself included in the working out of economic problems is urged by A. W. Hopkins of the University of Wisconsin, a member of the Kiwanis International Committee on Agriculture.

SHE ADORES HERSELF.

Lady Craven "Just Loves" People Who Get Into Trouble, She Says.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(Canadian Press.)—Interviewed last night regarding the decision of the Government to exclude the Countess of Cathcart for eloping with her husband, the Earl of Craven, Lady Craven De Arl, was "just a wild boy" and called the exclusion order "disgusting." The warrant for her husband has been issued and he might have been deported but he went to Montreal several days ago.

Lady Craven declared she had never blamed her husband for anything he had done. "Strangely enough," she said, "I just love people who get into trouble."

"Women," she added "have gone all through this sort of thing before many, many times—ever since there were sexes. All men are polygamous at heart. They just can't help it. If the world were run in accordance with the ideas of men in these matters, it would be a terrible place—very terrible. Men would be first, then, to want to change it back again.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

A few nights ago I met a young man while skating. I agreed to meet him the next night. It was impossible for me to go and I had no way to communicate with him. I saw him a few nights later and I spoke to him, but he did not ask me to skate with him. I would like very much to tell him why I couldn't come. How should I go about it?

TROUBLED.

TROUBLED: If I were you, I should obtain the address of this young man through the person who presented him, and then write him a note of apology. Make your letter straightforward and honest and say in it how sorry you are that you were unable to keep the appointment. And if the young man really values your friendship, I think he will forgive you.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of seventeen and have been corresponding with a young man one year my senior. At one time he said he loved me, but some one has told him that I was not "true" to him and now he doesn't speak to me.

WILD ROSE.

WILD ROSE: Since you are not engaged to this young man there is no reason why you should not go out with other friends, my dear. And you must make this young man realize that it is your privilege to do this, just as it is his privilege to meet other friends.

HIGH SCHOOL FEES RETROGRADE STEP

Comment by Teacher to Saskatchewan Trustees.

REGINA, Sask., Feb. 18.—(Canadian Press.)—Declaring the recent amendment to the Secondary School Act, by which trustees of High schools were empowered to charge fees, was a step backward instead of forward in the advancement of education, M. J. Coldwell, vice-president of the Canadian Teachers' Federation, said in his address to the annual convention of the Saskatchewan school trustees which opened here yesterday.

The amendment Mr. Coldwell declared to be a hardship on the boys and girls of parents who were not in good financial position. Many would not be able to pay the fees and as a result would not attend the upper grades.

Menus for the Family

By Sister Mary.

Breakfast—Shredded pineapple, scrambled eggs with rice, graham muffins, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Oyster stew, oyster crackers, celery and mayonnaise sandwiches, hominy pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner—Stuffed pork tenderloin, baked sweet potatoes, creamed onions, brother Jonathan, bran bread, milk, coffee.

In this dinner menu there is no "green" salad. However, the menu for the entire day makes up for this deficiency. If necessary a salad of spinach and hard cooked eggs is excellent with this particular dinner.

Hominy Pudding.

One cup cooked hominy, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 cups milk, 2 eggs, 1 lemon, 1-2 cup maple syrup, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup chopped dates.

Heat milk and hominy and beat until smooth. Beat yolks of eggs until thick and lemon colored and add to first mixture with sugar, syrup, grated lemon rind, salt, butter and lemon juice. Beat mixture well and add chopped dates. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Turn into a buttered mold and bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven.

Serve warm with or without a sauce. Hard sauce is particularly good with this pudding as the pudding is not overly rich.

HER OWN WAY

by A GIRL of TODAY

FATHER YIELDS.

"Don't shake your head, Dad," I said, when I noticed his disapproval of my going away. "I can take care of myself. After last night you ought to realize it. That should show you that I do not have to have a chaperone or adviser. Dad, you might just as well come around to it. Girls of Mother's time and the girls today are more than a generation apart. This is a fast age and youth has moved as rapidly as does the radio or the aeroplane or other inventions and discoveries of the last few years.

"We speak a different language today, Dad, in which the words individuality and independence take the place of dependence and reverence of older opinion. Give me a little money, Dad—half of what you would have given to my brother if I had had one, and let me go to Toronto and work out my own salvation."

Dad looked at Mother who had quietly come into the room a few minutes before. In his face there was a curious blending of fear and relief. He had realized that if I stayed at home, he would have a somewhat humiliating explanation to make to Charles Becker. As usual when in a tight place he turned to Mother.

"What do you think, Susan?" he said, "you can keep in touch with her, can't you?" Then and there putting the responsibility upon his wife.

"Why, of course, Jason. I'll go with her and get settled," said Mother brightly.

"That won't do at all, Mother. You'll do nothing of the kind. If I go, I'll go alone. I want to pull this off all by my lonely."

By this time, evidently my father had come to the conclusion that he had been making a great mistake. If, by giving me a chance and sending me away from the gossip of the town for a while he could get out of the whole mess, it was quite the best thing to do. I will say this for my father. Once decided, he put a thing through.

He walked over to my mother's desk and wrote me a check for two hundred and fifty dollars. This seemed to me, who had never had in all my life before more than ten dollars I could call my own, untold wealth, but I schooled myself to act very calm and casual as I took the check from his hand. Was I mistaken, or did his hand tremble? Anyway, I could not help but notice that my mother was sobbing.

"Thank you, sir," I said, "and I want you to trust me. I'll make good. You'll be as proud of me yet as though I were a boy."

JAIL EXPERIENCE CRIME INCENTIVE

Brother's Plea Based on Own Incarceration.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 18.—(Canadian Press.)—"I speak as one who has been through the mill," said the brother of Herbert Love, 17, who was being reprimanded by Magistrate Joynt in police court yesterday. The brother asked permission to say a few words, from the body of spectators. "My first offence was a minor one, but I received a stiff sentence. I went to jail and there associated with many who were guilty of far more serious crimes than mine. When I came out I was certainly not a better man than when I entered, and the effect of my incarceration was to make me wish to emulate the deeds for which some of those prisoners were doing time."

Following the plea of the brother, Magistrate Joynt further admonished the 17 year old boy to follow the "straight and narrow path," and allowed him to go on suspended sentence.

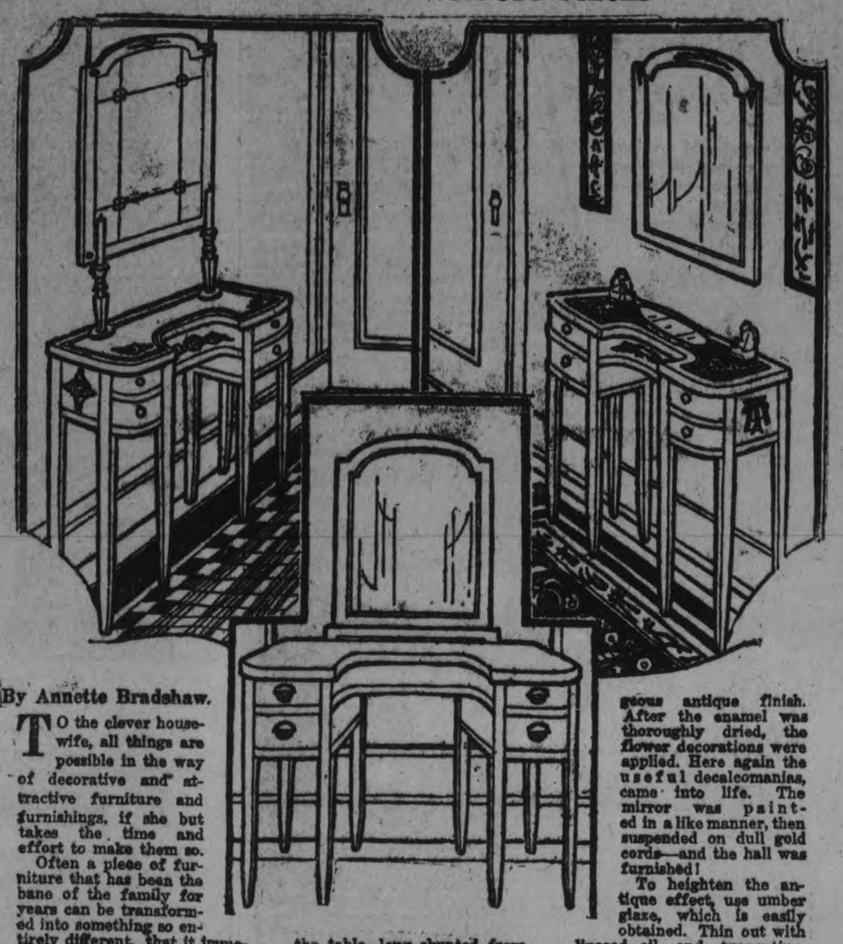
NEW FURNITURE FROM ODD PIECES



By Annette Bradshaw.

TO the clever housewife, all things are possible in the way of decorative and attractive furniture and furnishings, if she but takes the time and effort to make them so.

Often a piece of furniture that has been the bane of the family for years can be transformed into something so entirely different, that it immediately takes on the glamor and pride with which we view, inevitably, anything that is our very own handiwork.

BY ANNETTE BRADSHAW

To the clever housewife, all things are possible in the way of decorative and attractive furniture and furnishings, if she but takes the time and effort to make them so.

Often a piece of furniture that has been the bane of the family for years can be transformed into something so entirely different, that it immediately takes on the glamor and pride with which we view, inevitably, anything that is our very own handiwork.

As an instance, in the picture above, the insert at the center is of a dressing table which seemed to have passed its day of usefulness. The daughter of the house had been begging for a console and mirror with which to dress the hall, but the family would not permit. On searching the house for anything eligible, she came across the table long shunted from pillar to post, and seeing the beauty of the line, albeit lacking paint, she set to work. The result is shown at the upper left-hand corner.

The table was first sandpapered and all the paint removed. Then a coat of flat paint ws applied and allowed to thoroughly dry; then it was sandpapered lightly again. A double coat of enamel was applied and presto la console appeared. In this instance the paint was of dull green, and when enameled had a gorgeous antique finish. After the enamel was thoroughly dried, the flower decorations were applied. Here again the useful decalcomanias came into life. The mirror was painted in a like manner, then suspended on dull gold cords—and the hall was furnished!

To heighten the antique effect, use umber glaze, which is easily obtained. Thin out with linseed oil and turpentine. Add a bit of white varnish, which hastens the drying process. Smooth it over the painted table and mirror frame with a soft cloth, where it will give the effect of the shadow of age.

If an Oriental style be preferred, paint the table and mirror in black or brilliant red, using paint with lacquer finish. Japanese motifs should be used instead of the flowers. An embroidered Japanese panel hung each side of the mirror will add to its beauty.

CLIPPINGS.

Youth is too much for some of them! A superintendent of schools in the east resigns because the school board will not forbid school dances, and seems powerless to stop the libation of gin at said dances.

In Cleveland, O., two high school girls, daughters of prominent families, hide in a cheap hotel, leaving the traditional notes on the family pin cushions about "never see me again," as the aftermath of a gin party with some high school boy friends.

One wonders how many of the adults who throw up their hands in holy horror at "such goings-on" keep "it" in the cellar and boast of the flask on the hip?

What do elders expect of youth which is only following its elders' example and trying to do "the smart thing?"

IT'S BEING DONE THIS YEAR.

One of the simplest laws of correct table setting is knives and spoons to the right of the plate, forks to the left. Start from the outside with first utensils to be used. Thus, soup spoon first, coffee spoon, bread and butter knife, dinner knife. On the other side salad fork on the outside, dinner fork on the inside.

WOMEN ABROAD.

Dictator Mussolini permits his army officers to marry only girls with generous dowries, thus resuming an old custom which recognized the low pay of army officers coupled with the charm of their uniforms.

If the women will pay and pay and pay, why not, reasons the dictator.

BEAUTY TIPS.

The juice of one lemon, strained and put in the final rinse water of the shampoo, gives a red glint to the hair and "cuts" the soap.

Blondes think that a pinch of soda in the water keeps hair yellow.

Rosewater and glycerine keep hands from chapping and cures those already chapped, if you can't abide the smell of hot mutton tallow.

WHAT SHALL I READ.

"Perennial Bachelor," by Anne Parrish, Harvard prize-winning novel. It tells mothers their faults in bringing up daughters and sons. It shows the folly of too much mawkish sacrifice. Incidentally, the author didn't dare let her husband know she was writing a book until it became the rage it did. "He" didn't believe in "writing women."

* * *

"Barren Ground," by Ellen Glasgow, will make you glow with pride for your sex. Mothers and grandmothers will delight in this book, most unlike the usual modern novel with its turgid realism.

They are seen at all smart gatherings, and continue to be featured at all of the most exclusive dress showings. The model above uses enough beading to be effective, yet is not entirely covered with it.

The foundation of the dress is pale pink satin, and the blue and yellow and lavender beads appear in several shades of each color.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin. —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

J.M.J.C.—You have a fine type of character, with virtue and permanency as natural attributes. Service—the service inspired by love—is your destiny. Do not try to sidestep it. You should have musical ability. You are dominant in home and family life, and have an ardent heart, although some who do not know you well may consider you cold. Do not fear poverty. It will not come to you if you seek good cheer and sunshine at all times, and never allow any disease to take a hold on you, as with you medicine is slow to act. You have strong healing powers within your own system, which should cause you to have little or no illness, if you guard well your throat, kidneys and lungs. Try above all things to strengthen your will and learn to distinguish the true from the false, both in people and in things. Respect the opinions of others and govern your own innate tendency towards jealousy. Realize that happiness can be had even if you can't be at the head of affairs all the time, as you wish. Control those strong dislikes which animate you at times, and look for the good in others. It is always there, even though you may not be able to see it at first glance. Say to yourself, "Why should anyone wish to harm me?" and do not give way to a tendency toward laziness. You were born on Monday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are red and brown.

Betty—You should have ability along artistic lines, and should also be interested in religious and educational matters. You are inclined to be restless and need a certain amount of travel to overcome this trait in your nature. Although you are apt to talk too much and have a habit of asking unnecessary questions at times, you have a peace-loving temperament and should make a very good wife, as you are pre-eminently fitted for marriage, although you may not think very much of the opposite sex. You have a habit of changefulness and uncertainty that will not lead to the most success in life, unless you strive to overcome it. Strive for self-esteem and do not give way to melancholy and fits of solitary weeping. If you can overcome this inclination a few times, you will be surprised to see how strong and self-reliant it will make you. Learn the value of silence, and also the necessity for saving money. You were born on Monday. The day you ask about, a Sunday, is one for undertaking new enterprises. Exercise logic and good judgment in arriving at decisions on this day. Your colors are orange and grey.

B.A.O.—You have a strong character, with the ability to face the circumstances of daily life, but you will attain most success by the use of the velvet glove rather than the mailed fist. Diplomacy is your watchword in every aspect of your existence. You have ability, both of head and hands and are fearless and kind, when not irritated. You like arranging parties and good times, and are inclined to pay too much attention to the showy side of life, leaning toward the snobbish element in social life. You must remember that the greatest people have often been the most retiring and that the cover of the book is seldom an index of its contents. You have a wonderful memory and should be good in debates or arguments. You should excel in fine embroidery work and decorative enterprises. You will only be happy in the married life when you have learned to control a capricious element which mars your nature at times. It is but necessary for those who are born under your star to try to do great things in order to accomplish them. Hitch your wagon to a star and then watch the ground for pitfalls. You were born on Wednesday. Your colors are red and brown.

Curly—You are quite strong physically, and also have ability to plan and work out big enterprises, or will have as you grow older. You may not achieve much in life in the material order, but, if you so desire, you can be a real leader in your own way, with unusual understanding and sympathy for those about you. Do not marry early in life, but wait until experience with the world has developed your judgment. Marry a girl born in November, March or January. You are inclined to be jealous, sensitive and, at times, lazy. These are not characteristics which make for true happiness and success which may be your lot in life, if you strive to overcome your faults. Never attend funerals and do not talk too much. Listen to and learn from others. Do not look for the fault in your neighbor. You should be busy correcting your own deficiencies instead. And above everything else, conquer sensitiveness or it will ruin your life. Give others the benefit of the doubt. They do not wish to hurt you, as you imagine. Cultivate, above all else, a cheerful outlook, truthfulness, energy in work and loyalty to your friends. You would make a good civil engineer, electrician or architect. You were born on Sunday. The day you ask about, a Thursday, is one on which to avoid arguments and undertake nothing new. Your colors are green and silver.

Mary Ann—You should have accomplished something during your life. Forces governing both your birth and life point to achievement, mainly in a business way. Possibly the circumstances of your life have not allowed you much scope in this way, but you have rather out of the ordinary ability, of both head and hands. To develop the spiritual side of your nature should be your main outlook from now on. Never touch anything stronger than tea or coffee in the way of refreshments. Be careful in the selection of your food, as you are apt to have stomach and intestinal trouble. Do not try to domineer in every situation and control your temper at all times. Listen to others. You do not know it all. You do not like housework, but are very fond of embroidery. The former occupation, however, may make for a more contented feeling in those about you than the prettiest of fine handiwork in the latter line. Do not pay too much attention to showy people. They are not always of the best type. You were born on Monday. The day you ask about, a Friday, is one for real personal freedom and should be an excellent one for undertaking a journey. Your colors are opals and tans.

SURGEON FAVORS PLAN.

Proposal By Bishop To Sterilize Degenerates Finds Support.

LONDON, England, February 18. —Canadian Press. — Sir Arduthnot Lane, the noted surgeon, commenting on the address of Dr. Barnes, the Bishop of Birmingham, last night, in where he advocated sterilization of mental defectives, said to-day: "I am strongly in favor of sterilization of the unfit. I think most medical men favor that course, and I imagine most educated people do. This reform will gradually be brought about by public opinion," Dr. Barnes said last night: "The humane man desires good environment for all born into the world, and he is learning that he cannot get this desire unless his social organization is such that degenerates leave no offspring."

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 15—ON CHERRY BOUNCE HILL

Jupe and the Twins followed the Truffle Hunter out of the back door, while Waldo, the pig, remained behind to do up the dishes.

There, right before their eyes was a high hill with an orchard of cherry trees on top.

"We shall have to climb this hill," said the Truffle Hunter, "and I warn you that it is very wobbly. I don't know whether you can stick on or not."

"Sure we can," declared Nick. "We have magic shoes that the Fairy Queen gave us, and they will take us anywhere."

"Except," said Jupe, "where the magic is stronger than the Fairy Queen's magic. You know how hard it was to get into Blue Whiskers' castle and out again."

"All you can do is to try," advised the Truffle Hunter, throwing his long nose over his shoulder and starting up the path. "Follow me."

So Jupe and the Twins started after.

It was like trying to stand up on a rocking chair — climbing Cherry Bounce Hill! At every step the hill shook like a mould of gelatine turned out on a plate.

The higher they got the worse it shook, and by and by they had to hold on to the trees to keep from falling off altogether.

"It's time to begin," said the Truffle Hunter, sniffing here and there along the ground with his ever-so-long nose.

He kept humming a little song as he searched:

"Here a truffle—there a truffle,
Everywhere a truffle, truffle!"

"Say," said Jupe suddenly. "Are we searching for truffles or cherries. It seems to me that it would be better if you'd drop your nose up in the air for a spell, sir, instead of down on the ground."

"My mistake, sir!" said the Truffle Hunter humbly. "But truffles are so delicious served with minced chicken or on—"

"I thought you never ate chicken any more," said Nick quickly. "Not since you lost Ambrose."

But what the Truffle Hunter was going to say to that will never be known, for right then things began to happen.

Without anyone noticing, Paddyfoot, the mouse, had jumped out of Jupe's pocket and run up one of the cherry trees. He had been racing busily from one bough to another, looking at every cherry closely, when suddenly he spied a large round blue cherry just above his head.

He tried to reach it, but lost his balance and dropped head over heels right down on the Truffle Hunter's long nose.

"Oh! Ouch! Murder!" shouted that gentleman with all his might, giving his nose a shake that landed poor Paddyfoot down at the foot of the hill again.

The little mouse tried his best to squeal out that the blue cherry was right over their heads and for them to climb up and get it. But his voice was so little and the hill was so high, and the birds were chattering loudly, so it was useless to try to make them hear.

A flock of birds had settled in the cherry trees and were gobbling up the cherries as fast as they could. Robins and blackbirds and one great big bluejay.

The big bluejay had come alone from the north very swiftly and very quietly. He sat on a branch of the Blue Cherry Tree and watched Jupe and the Twins climb up.

He had seen Paddyfoot, the mouse, climb out of Jupe's pocket and scramble up toward the blue cherry. And he it was who gave the branch a shake and caused Paddyfoot to fall down on poor Truffle's nose.

He was a very queer bird, this big bluejay.

Suddenly he grabbed the blue cherry in his bill and flew away.

At that minute Paddyfoot came hurrying up the hill again. "You're too late!" he squealed. "That was old Blue Whiskers, the wizard, himself. He has stolen the blue cherry right from under your very noses!"

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DORIS MEETS DADDY AND MAMA WHIPPOORWILL.

"Quote-kerr-kee! Quote-kerr-k e e!" came the plaintive sound from the bushes near the side of the road.

Doris heard it and crept over toward the bushes.

Silently as a butterfly, a bird raised from the grass and soared away into the setting sun.

"Oh, dear! I wish Squeedee——" began Doris when a tiny hand caught hers and whisked her into the air.

"Just in time," laughed the merry elfin. "Come on! We'll see where the Whippoorwill family have moved."

"Gracious! Squeedee, I was just going to wish for you," Doris laughed. "Was that Mr. Whippoorwill?"

"Sure it was," replied Squeedee. "There he sits now on that log under us."

Mr. Whippoorwill, a brownish-mottled bird, looked up as Squeedee and Doris lighted on the log.

"Well, Squeedee, if I had known that little girl was a friend of yours, I wouldn't have hurried away," he chirped. "Glad to meet you, Doris."

"Aren't you out rather late, Mr. Whippoorwill?" Doris asked, pointing to the setting sun. "Most birds are in bed by now."

"Not Mr. Whippoorwill," laughed Squeedee. "He's a regular night-prowler. I guess you folks do your sleeping in the daytime, don't you?"

"I didn't know that," said Doris. "Has your wife a nest in one of these trees?"

"No, indeed, Doris," chirped Mr. Whippoorwill. "Mrs. Whippoorwill

"Glad to Meet You, Doris."

don't like her nest very high from the ground. Right now she's in the log here." He hopped down to the ground, Doris and Squeedee following him.

There in the hollow of the log on a nest of dead leaves and grass sat Mama Whippoorwill.

"We just moved over here," explained Mr. Whippoorwill. "We had a nest over under those bushes where you first saw me, but the nest was right down on the ground and the field mice began to bother us, so we moved over in this log. Mama Whippoorwill carried the babies over in her bill. Just like a cat carries her kittens."

"But why don't you like a tree nest?" Doris asked Mama Whippoorwill. "I should think you'd feel safer."

"No, I don't," replied Mrs. Whippoorwill. "Yuo see I dress in this reddish mottled dress and it seems to just melt in with the leaves and dead grasses. I don't even wear white feathers in my tail like Daddy Whippoorwill does, for fear folks will spot them. Mine, as you see, are buff colored. Daddy, you just have to excuse yourself and get the children some food."

"Sure enough," laughed Doris. "It's time I was home for supper, too," and bidding the happy family good-bye, Doris and Squeedee went back home just in time to see Doris' Daddy drive into the yard.

SPRING.

They tell me each person who's dealing in verse will soon write of spring. Well, they might do much worse. Consider the thrill that its coming will bring and you'll have to admit spring's a wonderful thing.

The stage is not set for that sort of a rhyme. It's winter outside, so it isn't quite time. But, now that I'm at it, 'twould be kinda fun, to write my spring poem, an' get the thing done.

Oh, list to the rustle of leaves that are green. (Of course that's the bunk—but you know what I mean.) And hark to the twitter of birdies by scores. (They tell me it's dern close to zero outdoors.)

Oh, lookit the lettuce an' onions an' chard. (In green houses, maybe—but not in your yard.) And, might I suggest that we pick a bouquet of blossoms we all wish were blooming today.

Ah, maybe this poem is springy, and yet, I ask you, what sort of a hunch can I get when frost seems to spread as I blow out a breath, an' frankly, I'm doggone near frozen ta death?

MANITOBA TO HAVE FIVE MORE SEATS

Increased to Forty-five Before Next Election.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 18. — (Canadian Press.)— Redistribution of the provincial constituencies in Manitoba, will be undertaken by the Bracken government before the next election, it was learned in cabinet circles yesterday. There is talk of reducing the present number of seats, 5, to 40 or 45.

It has also been disclosed that as a result of several caucus meetings of the Progresive members, that the elimination of party affiliation, where such savored of Federal political ties, was favored. The claim has been made that the play of party feeling in the House is inimical to the best of the province.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

WILLIAM M. WOOD—THE TEXTILE KING.

The New Bedford cotton goods are the finest made in the United States and the American Woolen Company operates the biggest textile mills in the world. The head and founder is William M. Wood, whose first job was as a cash-boy at $1 a week.

Wood was born June 18, 1859, on the Island of Martha's Vineyard, Mass. His parents moved to Bedford on the mainland, where he could attend school. But his father died when he was twelve years old, and the handsome, dark-eyed boy became head of the family. His industrious habits and pleasing personality attracted the interest of the leading business men, who did all they could to facilitate his advancement and education.

Finishing the public school, he studied at night for years and managed to get an excellent education. He was employed first in the counting room of the Wamsutta Mills, then promoted to its manufacturing department. Alert to the opportunity, the youth mastered every detail of the industry.

Then he spent six months in a broker's office in Philadelphia and returned to a banking house in New Bedford. These varied experiences gave him a broad vision and a firm grasp of business methods. He was still in his early twenties when he became assistant manager of the Washington Mills, where he climbed rapidly from a salary of $2,000 to $10,000.

A commission house made him an offer of $25,000 a year, which he declined. His keen business sense told him that he had found his great opportunity and he was not to be lured away.

He Went to Public School.

In 1899 he showed his constructive ability, when, by reason of his position with the powerful Washington Mills, he secured control of a number of tottering woolen mills, and, uniting them with others, formed the American Woolen Company, of which he later became president. It was incorporated in 1916 with a capitalization of $100,000,000. It owns in fee and operates 53 New England woolen mills and the plants cover 700 acres of land.

MISSION WORKERS ARE SHORT OF FOOD

Supplies Cut Off By Fighting Around Mission at Sin Yang.

PEKING, Feb. 18. — (Canadian Press). — American missionaries were to-day reported to be under fire at Sin Yang, and one of their number was reported kidnapped.

Their supplies have been cut off for three weeks, and real distress is resulting. In consequence of the firing and the shortage of food, the American Vice-Consul at Hinkow is proceeding to Sin Yang with the hope of devising relief measures. This word reached here to-day, following yetserday's advices that the veteran American United Lutherian missionary, Nils D. Nilson, had been killed. Supplementary advices said that a stray bullet had killed him, this being apparently the aftermath of General Wu Pei Fu's capture of the region.

Sin Yang lies in Honan Province, about six hundred miles south of here.

which comes to the Grand Theatre for two days commencing Friday, February 19, with a matinee on Saturday.

His verdict is one of many. Multiply the number of cities where "Three Little Maids" has played by the number of critics in each city and you have the total number of enthusiastic reviews which the production has already received.

There hasn't been one dissenting voice.

G. P. Huntley, the noted English star of this success, comes in for a large measure of the praise.

"The same G. P. Huntley that we all know," reads one review. "Nothing more need be said.

"Mr. Huntley is his superb self."

"Those who don't see G. P. Huntley are missing the treat of the season."

His past career is too well known to require any elaborate catalogue of his past successes but when one checks up his career for even the past few years, the list begins to assume mammoth proportions.

During the latter part of the war, he starred at the Gaiety, London, in a string of hits, including among others "The Marriage Market." He co-starred in America with Raymond Hitchcock and Julia Sanderson in "Hitchy-Koo." He put in a few months as one of vaudeville's most outstanding headliners. He took Cyril Maude's place in the leading role of Cyril Londsale, "Aren't We All", starred in the musical comedy "Be Yourself" and last season appeared with Ethel Barrymore in a revival of "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" playing Sir George Orreyed, a part he created with the Kendalls years ago.

In musical comedy, he is at his best. In "Three Little Maids", he plays one of the finest parts he has ever played in musical comedy.

The total result is superb. It is a production no one can afford to

AT THE REGENT

CHAMPIONSHIP AUTO RACE IN "THE SPEED SPOOK."

Intensely Interesting Picture Featuring Johnny Hines.

When "The Speed Spook," featuring Johnny Hines, now playing at the Regent Theatre, patrons will be treated to one of the most unusual automobile races ever filmed on the screen. The entire racing sequence was filmed at the famous 250-mile international auto classic at the Altoona Speedway last June, which was the cynosure of all racing enthusiasts. Pictured in these scenes the racing fan will view these speed spooks going at the phenomenal rate of 114½ miles per hour, a new world's speed record. Every bit of the race was filmed so that when "The Speed Spook" is thrown on the screen of the Regent its patrons will be able to view one of the greatest automobile races in the history of the sport.

The Altoona Speedway, which was the scene of the big race, is shown gayly bedecked with its crowd of seventy thousand racing enthusiasts cheering their favorites on. With five cameras grinding away at pivotal centres of the track, not a scene of interest or importance was missed. All told, the big race was photographed with its thrills and throngs, so that when "The Speed Spook" makes its initial showing to-day it will probably draw one of the largest crowds the Regent has had in many a year.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Lots of medical terms or phrases have come down to us through the ages. Some of them were so well chosen in the first place that they accurately describe conditions, which, in most respects, are far better understood in these more advanced days.

One such term is "softening of the brain." This is used to describe a combination of symptoms which may be the result of a number of different causes.

Something interferes with the normal nourishment of the brain substance. Perhaps there has been just enough bleeding to produce pressure on the delicate tissues, causing them to die.

In another case there has been a stoppage of one of the larger, blood vessels. This cuts off the nourishment of that part of the brain. In consequence the brains cells die.

You can see that death of the brain tissue must be followed by softening and disintegration. No better term can be used to describe the effects than the one which was given, long years ago—softening of the brain.

Just how serious the trouble will be depends on the extent of the bleeding, or the size of the blood vessel which is plugged. The symptoms correspond to the nature of the producing cause.

Headache, loss of sleep and cloudiness of the mind are among the common symptoms. Restlessness and petulance are apt to be present. The patient wants to change rooms, or to have the bed remade. He is distressed and unhappy.

When the brain is disturbed there is likely to be more or less disturbance in sensation and in muscular movement. This is true in softening.

Loss of speech is quite the usual thing. The power to talk may be restored very soon, but for a time it may be lost entirely.

When the trouble is due to hemorrhage, the first consideration in treatment is to stop the bleeding and to hasten absorption of the blood clot which has formed.

In general, the welfare of the patient should be promoted by doing those common sense things which make for improved health. Rest quiet, a dark, cool and well ventilated room, and simple food—these are indicated. Proper bathing and electricity may help.

The chance of complete recovery depends on the extent of the exciting cause. The family doctor will follow the case and do whatever is necessary to restore health.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 19.

Conflicting sidereal operations may bring contradictory fortunes into demonstration on this day. Although there is a figure read as promoting an advantageous change or travel, yet the evil aspects of other planets hold a menace of trouble, anxiety and loss, especially of employment or the favor of those in helpful and authoritative positions. Contracts and agreements as well as all writing are under an afflicted place of Mercury and may cause trouble; and a baneful sway from Saturn will not mend matters nor further affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of complications and difficult situations to overcome. Some change is presaged, and the employment or good will of superiors is in jeopardy. Great care in making agreements and in signing all kinds of writings is enjoined. Attend to the health also. A child born on this day may require early training, by precept and example, to keep in subjection certain tendencies toward misrepresentations and carelessness, as well as to safeguard against being a dupe for sinister influences.

An exhaust fan and bag to catch dust are included with a new portable motor driven saw for cutting wood and other materials that can be operated by connecting it to a light socket.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 15—ON CHERRY BOUNCE HILL

Jupe and the Twins followed the Truffle Hunter out of the back door, while Waldo, the pig, remained behind to do up the dishes.

There, right before their eyes was a high hill with an orchard of cherry trees on top.

"We shall have to climb this hill," said the Truffle Hunter, "and I warn you that it is very wobbly. I don't know whether you can stick on or not."

"Sure we can," declared Nick. "We have magic shoes that the Fairy Queen gave us, and they will take us anywhere."

"Except," said Jupe, "where the magic is stronger than the Fairy Queen's magic. You know how hard it was to get into Blue Whiskers' castle and out again."

"All you can do is to try," advised the Truffle Hunter, throwing his long nose over his shoulder and starting up the path. "Follow me."

So Jupe and the Twins started after.

It was like trying to stand up on a rocking chair — climbing Cherry Bounce Hill! At every step the hill shook like a mould of gelatine turned out on a plate.

The higher they got the worse it shook, and by and by they had to hold on to the trees to keep from falling off altogether.

"It's time to begin," said the Truffle Hunter, sniffing here and there along the ground with his ever-so-long nose.

He kept humming a little song as he searched:

"Here a truffle—there a truffle,
Everywhere a truffle, truffle!"

"Say," said Jupe suddenly. "Are we searching for truffles or cherries. It seems to me that it would be better if you'd drop your nose up in the air for a spell, sir, instead of down on the ground."

"My mistake, sir!" said the Truffle Hunter humbly. "But truffles are so delicious served with minced chicken or on—"

"I thought you never ate chicken any more," said Nick quickly. "Not since you lost Ambrose."

But what the Truffle Hunter was going to say to that will never be known, for right then things began to happen.

Without anyone noticing, Paddyfoot, the mouse, had jumped out of Jupe's pocket and run up one of the cherry trees. He had been racing busily from one bough to another, looking at every cherry closely, when suddenly he spied a large round blue cherry just above his head.

He tried to reach it, but lost his balance and dropped head over heels right down on the Truffle Hunter's long nose.

"Oh! Ouch! Murder!" shouted that gentleman with all his might, giving his nose a shake that landed poor Paddyfoot down at the foot of the hill again.

The little mouse tried his best to squeal out that the blue cherry was right over their heads and for them to climb up and get it. But his voice was so little and the hill was so high, and the birds were chattering loudly, so it was useless to try to make them hear.

A flock of birds had settled in the cherry trees and were gobbling up the cherries as fast as they could. Robins and blackbirds and one great big bluejay.

The big bluejay had come alone from the north very swiftly and very quietly. He sat on a branch of the Blue Cherry Tree and watched Jupe and the Twins climb up.

He had seen Paddyfoot, the mouse, climb out of Jupe's pocket and scramble up toward the blue cherry. And he it was who gave the branch a shake and caused Paddyfoot to fall down on poor Truffle's nose.

He was a very queer bird, this big bluejay.

Suddenly he grabbed the blue cherry in his bill and flew away.

At that minute Paddyfoot came hurrying up the hill again. "You're too late!" he squealed. "That was old Blue Whiskers, the wizard, himself. He has stolen the blue cherry right from under your very noses!"

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DORIS MEETS DADDY AND MAMA WHIPPOORWILL.

"Quote-kerr-kee! Quote-kerr-k e e!" came the plaintive sound from the bushes near the side of the road.

Doris heard it and crept over toward the bushes.

Silently as a butterfly, a bird raised from the grass and soared away into the setting sun.

"Oh, dear! I wish Squeedee——" began Doris when a tiny hand caught hers and whisked her into the air.

"Just in time," laughed the merry elfin. "Come on! We'll see where the Whippoorwill family have moved."

"Gracious! Squeedee, I was just going to wish for you," Doris laughed. "Was that Mr. Whippoorwill?"

"Sure it was," replied Squeedee. "There he sits now on that log under us."

Mr. Whippoorwill, a brownish-mottled bird, looked up as Squeedee and Doris lighted on the log.

"Well, Squeedee, if I had known that little girl was a friend of yours, I wouldn't have hurried away," he chirped. "Glad to meet you, Doris."

"Aren't you out rather late, Mr. Whippoorwill?" Doris asked, pointing to the setting sun. "Most birds are in bed by now."

"Not Mr. Whippoorwill," laughed Squeedee. "He's a regular night-prowler. I guess you folks do your sleeping in the daytime, don't you?"

"I didn't know that," said Doris. "Has your wife a nest in one of these trees?"

"No, indeed, Doris," chirped Mr. Whippoorwill. "Mrs. Whippoorwill

"Glad to Meet You, Doris."

don't like her nest very high from the ground. Right now she's in the log here." He hopped down to the ground, Doris and Squeedee following him.

There in the hollow of the log on a nest of dead leaves and grass sat Mama Whippoorwill.

"We just moved over here," explained Mr. Whippoorwill. "We had a nest over under those bushes where you first saw me, but the nest was right down on the ground and the field mice began to bother us, so we moved over in this log. Mama Whippoorwill carried the babies over in her bill. Just like a cat carries her kittens."

"But why don't you like a tree nest?" Doris asked Mama Whippoorwill. "I should think you'd feel safer."

"No, I don't," replied Mrs. Whippoorwill. "Yuo see I dress in this reddish mottled dress and it seems to just melt in with the leaves and dead grasses. I don't even wear white feathers in my tail like Daddy Whippoorwill does, for fear folks will spot them. Mine, as you see, are buff colored. Daddy, you just have to excuse yourself and get the children some food."

"Sure enough," laughed Doris. "It's time I was home for supper, too," and bidding the happy family good-bye, Doris and Squeedee went back home just in time to see Doris' Daddy drive into the yard.

SPRING.

They tell me each person who's dealing in verse will soon write of spring. Well, they might do much worse. Consider the tnrill that its coming will bring and you'll have to admit spring's a wonderful thing.

The stage is not set for that sort of a rhyme. It's winter outside, so it isn't quite time. But, now that I'm at it, 'twould be kinda fun, to write my spring poem, an' get the thing done.

Oh, list to the rustle of leaves that are green. (Of course that's the bunk—but you know what I mean.) And hark to the twitter of birdies by scores. (They tell me it's dern close to zero outdoors.)

Oh, lookit the lettuce an' onions an' chard. (In green houses, maybe—but not in your yard.) And, might I suggest that we pick a bouquet of blossoms we all wish were blooming today.

Ah, maybe this poem is springy, and yet, I ask you, what sort of a hunch can I get when frost seems to spread as I blow out a breath, an' frankly, I'm doggone near frozen ta death?

MANITOBA TO HAVE FIVE MORE SEATS

Increased to Forty-five Before Next Election.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 18. — (Canadian Press.)— Redistribution of the provincial constituencies in Manitoba, will be undertaken by the Bracken government before the next election, it was learned in cabinet circles yesterday. There is talk of reducing the present number of seats, 5, to 40 or 45.

It has also been disclosed that as a result of several caucus meetings of the Progresive members, that the elimination of party affiliation, where such savored of Federal, political ties, was favored. The claim has been made that the play of party feeling in the House is inimical to the best of the province.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

WILLIAM M. WOOD—THE TEXTILE KING.

The New Bedford cotton goods are the finest made in the United States and the American Woolen Company operates the biggest textile mills in the world. The head and founder is William M. Wood, whose first job was as a cash-boy at $1 a week.

Wood was born June 18, 1859, on the Island of Martha's Vineyard, Mass. His parents moved to Bedford on the mainland, where he could attend school. But his father died when he was twelve years old, and the handsome, dark-eyed boy became head of the family. His industrious habits and pleasing personality attracted the interest of the leading business men, who did all they could to facilitate his advancement and education.

Finishing the public school, he studied at night for years and managed to get an excellent education. He was employed first in the counting room of the Wamsutta Mills, then promoted to its manufacturing department. Alert to the opportunity, the youth mastered every detail of the industry.

Then he spent six months in a broker's office in Philadelphia and returned to a banking house in New Bedford. These varied experiences gave him a broad vision and a firm grasp of business methods. He was still in his early twenties when he became assistant manager of the Washington Mills, where he climbed rapidly from a salary of $2,000 to $10,000.

A commission house made him an offer of $25,000 a year, which he declined. His keen business sense told him that he had found his great opportunity and he was not to be lured away.

He Went to Public School.

In 1899 he showed his constructive ability, when, by reason of his position with the powerful Washington Mills, he secured control of a number of tottering woolen mills, and, uniting them with others, formed the American Woolen Company, of which he later became president. It was incorporated in 1916 with a capitalization of $100,000,000. It owns in fee and operates 53 New England woolen mills and the plants cover 700 acres of land.

MISSION WORKERS ARE SHORT OF FOOD

Supplies Cut Off By Fighting Around Mission at Sin Yang.

PEKING, Feb. 18. — (Canadian Press). — American missionaries were to-day reported to be under fire at Sin Yang, and one of their number was reported kidnapped.

Their supplies have been cut off for three weeks, and real distress is resulting. In consequence of the firing and the shortage of food, the American Vice-Consul at Hinkow is proceeding to Sin Yang with the hope of devising relief measures. This word reached here to-day, following yetserday's advices that the veteran American United Lutherian missionary, Nils D. Nilson, had been killed. Supplementary advices said that a stray bullet had killed him, this being apparently the aftermath of General Wu Pei Fu's capture of the region.

Sin Yang lies in Honan Province, about six hundred miles south of here.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Lots of medical terms or phrases have come down to us through the ages. Some of them were so well chosen in the first place that they accurately describe conditions, which, in most respects, are far better understood in these more advanced days.

One such term is "softening of the brain." This is used to describe a combination of symptoms which may be the result of a number of different causes.

Something interferes with the normal nourishment of the brain substance. Perhaps there has been just enough bleeding to produce pressure on the delicate tissues, causing them to die.

In another case there has been a stoppage of one of the larger blood vessels. This cuts off the nourishment of that part of the brain. In consequence the brains cells die.

You can see that death of the brain tissue must be followed by softening and disintegration. No better term can be used to describe the effects than the one which was given, long years ago—softening of the brain.

Just how serious the trouble will be depends on the extent of the bleeding, or the size of the blood vessel which is plugged. The symptoms correspond to the nature of the producing cause.

Headache, loss of sleep and cloudiness of the mind are among the common symptoms. Restlessness and petulance are apt to be present. The patient wants to change rooms, or to have the bed remade. He is distressed and unhappy.

When the brain is disturbed there is likely to be more or less disturbance in sensation and in muscular movement. This is true in softening.

Loss of speech is quite the usual thing. The power to talk may be restored very soon, but for a time it may be lost entirely.

When the trouble is due to hemorrhage, the first consideration in treatment is to stop the bleeding and to hasten absorption of the blood clot which has formed.

In general, the welfare of the patient should be promoted by doing those common sense things which make for improved health. Rest quiet, a dark, cool and well ventilated room, and simple food—these are indicated. Proper bathing and electricity may help.

The chance of complete recovery depends on the extent of the exciting cause. The family doctor will follow the case and do whatever is necessary to restore health.

which comes to the Grand Theatre or two days commencing Friday, February 19, with a matinee on Saturday.

His verdict is one of many. Multiply the number of cities where "Three Little Maids" has played by the number of critics in each city and you have the total number of enthusiastic reviews which the production has already received.

There hasn't been one dissenting voice.

G. P. Huntley, the noted English star of this success, comes in for a large measure of the praise.

"The same G. P. Huntley that we all know," reads one review. "Nothing more need be said."

"Mr. Huntley is his superb self."

Those who don't see G. P. Huntley are missing the treat of the season."

His past career is too well known to require any elaborate catalogue of his past successes but when one looks up his career for even the last few years, the list begins to assume mammoth proportions.

During the latter part of the war, he starred at the Gaiety, London, in a string of hits, including among others "The Marriage Market." He co-starred in America with Raymond Hitchcock and Julia Sanderson in "Hitchy-Koo." He put in a few months as one of vaudeville's most outstanding headliners. He took Cyril Maude's place in the leading role of Cyril Londsale, "Aren't We All", starred in the musical comedy "Be Yourself" and last season appeared with Ethel Barrymore in a revival of "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" playing Sir George Orreyed, a part he created with the Kendalls years ago.

In musical comedy, he is at his best. In "Three Little Maids", he says one of the finest parts he has ever played in musical comedy.

The total result is superb. It is a production no one can afford to will be able to view one of the greatest automobile races in the history of the sport.

The Altoona Speedway, which was the scene of the big race, is shown gayly bedecked with its crowd of seventy thousand racing enthusiasts cheering their favorites on. With five cameras grinding away at pivotal centres of the track, not a scene of interest or importance was missed. All told, the big race was photographed with its thrills and throngs, so that when "The Speed Spook" makes its initial showing to-day it will probably draw one of the largest crowds the Regent has had in many a year.

DELANEY SIGNED TO MEET M'TIGUE

Winner on March 12 Gets Chance With Berlenbach.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 (Canadian Press).—Jack Delaney and Mike McTigue, rival contenders for Paul Berlenbach's light heavyweight title both signed yesterday for a 12-round match at Madison Square Garden on March 12, with the understanding that the winner will meet the champion.

The match was made by Garden promotetrs after a ruling favorable to the elimination test made by the State Athletic Commission. Previously the Commission had ruled that McTigue should have the next opportunity to win Berlenbach's title without any preliminaries.

Delaney immediately was installed a favorite over McTigue by experts because of the Bridgeport battler's more impressive record against Berlenbach. Delaney knocked out the present light heavyweight king two years ago and lost a close decision to him last December. Berlenbach won his title from McTigue las May in a 15-round decision.

SOME GOOD GAMES IN MAJOR LEAGUES

Pennock s 15 Innings Shutout Stands Out in 1925.

Perhaps the best individual pitching performance of last year from all angles was by Herb Pennock, who worked a 15-inning game on July 4, not giving a base on balls. He didn't give much of anything else, either, for it was a shutout game for him, with but four hits. He beat the Athletics, 1 to 0.

Stanley Baumgartner, Oscar Fuhr and Ted Lyons were pitchers who had fine control. Fuhr didn't rank very far up in percentage of earned runs allowed, but his opponents didn't earn what they achieved by walking on him.

Among pitchers who ranked high for control were veterans like Jack Quinn and Sherry Smith, and also Hub Leonard. And it's noteworthy that a pair of southpaws should thus come to mind.

Quinn, on April 25, pitched 11 innings with but one base on balls. On May 28 and on August 12 he did not allow a pass in nine innings. Hub Leonard pitched two full nin-inning games without giving a pass.

Ted Blankenship stood out in this matter of no passes in full games by pitching three full contests of nine innings each without a man being walked on him. These games were on August 11, September 16 and October 1, and in the last one, his wind-up for the season, he didn't allow a run, either, and but four hits.

BIG AID TO WHITE SOX

"The two Teds made our ball club last season," says Eddie Collins, manager of the Chicago White Sox.

"When two pitchers, regarded as uncertainties, win 38 ball games for you, they have contributed more than their share of victories.

"I always knew Blankenship was a great pitcher. Fame came his way the moment he began to mix thought with his pitching. A good slow ball and a fine change of pace made him.

"Lyonus arrived over night. He the best young pitcher developed in the majors last season and I am not excepting Kent Greenfield of the Giants."

Lyons joined the White Sox in June, 1923, coming direct from Baylor University.

Thus with little less than three years' experience, he won 21 games for Chicago last season and scored five shut outs, more than any other pitcher in the majors.

BILLY EVANS Says:

SPORT BALLYHOO—CONCRETE EXAMPLES—IMPORTANT ASSET.

In the "ballyhoo" that is a part of every sport event, in order to make the public enthuse one aptly coined expression often proves the greatest feature of the "come-on" stuff.

When Babe Ruth started on his home-run rampage the baseball writers greatly assisted in creating interest in the super-batter by digging up new and unusual titles for the Babe.

First some one shifted from Babe to Bambino. According to my expert foreign interpreter Bambino means Babe in Italian. But certainly there is more color and an air of mystery to Bambino than mere Babe.

"King of Swat," while not entirely new, surely fits the Bambino. Then along came some one with a little more of the highbrow stuff by calling him the "Colossus of Swat." I am sure that one was coined in Boston.

Scores of other freak titles were handed the Babe by writers and all of them did their bit in making Ruth the most advertised ball player in the history of the game.

* * *

When Tex Rickard signed Dempsey and Carpentier, he realized that a lot of fancy English would have to be spilled in order to make the public fall strong.

There was never a greater "ballyhoo" than the Carpentier-Dempsey affair. The Frenchman, with his fine war record, was, of course, the colorful athlete of the two and most of the descriptive adjectives were handed him.

"Gorgeous Georges," the "Orchid Man" and many other flowery titles were applied to the French fighter in building up interest in the event. It succeeded beyond Rickard's wildest expectations.

No one thing helped make Angel Firpo more than the expression the "Wild Bull of the Pampas." There was plenty of color back of that one.

When Battling Siki came to this country and put on several of his wild escapades, one of which finally resulted in his death, a Gotham scribe, in describing Siki and his eccentricities, referred to him always as the "Singular Sengalese."

The "Singular Sengalese" in two words told the whole story of Battling Siki.

The Four Horsemen of Notre Dame was another oft-used phrase. It referred to the backfield of the Notre Dame team of 1924. It made both players and team famous. It was one of the best ever coined.

* * *

Unquestionably the old "ballyhoo" has made a big success of many a sporting event that would have otherwise been a flop.

* * *

Just about the time that Christy Mathewson was at the top of his career in baseball the six-cylinder automobile came to the front. Some one called Matty "Big Six" in describing one of his fine pitching exhibitions, remarking that he was hitting on every cylinder throughout the game.

The term "Big Six" stuck to Mathewson throughout his entire career. It is invariably used now when some one is referring to the late "Matty."

Walter Johnson, because of his great speed, is known as the "Big Swift." Nick Altrock gave him that one.

The "Georgia Peach," while not exactly original, has been a favorite phrase of the writers in speaking of Cobb.

It is the same in every sport. The scribes coin terms that aptly fit the stars and these names have great drawing power.

* * *

One must have great ability to become a champion in any sport but a good "ballyhoo" is perhaps the next greatest asset to get them at the gate.

BONSPIEL ENDS WITH TWO CUPS LEAVING HOME

Victoria Cup Won By Cobourg Rink—Campbellford Cup to Hastings.

RIENDEAU HELD.

Two Campbellford Rinks Win Semi-Finals—To Play To-night.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 18—The Campbellford bonspiel for 1926 was finished at 1.30 o'clock this morning when A. J. Meyers presented the trophies and prizes to the winners and all joined in singing the National Anthem with P. J. Kelly, who has distinguished himself on the ice since the beginning of play, acting as leader. The Victoria cup, that was held by R. Dunk's rink of Campbellford last year, goes to Cobourg, J. J. Titford of that town beating out J. J. Moore of Keene in the final.

The Campbellford cup, the trophy held by D. W. Douglas since the bonspiel a year ago will be displayed in some store window in Hastings until the time comes to play for it again, that veteran of the ice, George Stevenson winning the final, the closing game of the bonspiel from Moore of Keene.

The Riendeau cup, defaulted by J. Bacon of Peterborough, remains in Campbellford, the winners of the semi-finals being P. J. Kelly and Ed. Tait, both of the local club. These two rinks will play the final for this cup at 7.30 this evening.

The Campbellford Cup

Seven of the visiting rinks played seven of the locals for the Campbellford clup, the first draw being as follows:

Home Rinks		Outsiders
A. L. Riendeau	19	Stevenson .. .. 8 Hastings
S. J. Moore..	10	Coyle .. .. .. 9 Colborne
P. J. Kelly	14	Galloway .. .. 12 Belleville
J. Gay	7	Moore .. .. .. 17 Keene
Ed. Tait	4	Fletcher .. .. 13 Keene

R. H. Cole was drawn to play Bottom of Belleville and D. W. Douglas had for his opponent Dr. Gibson of Lakefield. These games were to be played in the Covert rink but the ice was not in good condi- and it was decided to call a draw in each case. The result of the preliminary gave the outside rinks first call on the cup by a socre of 59 shots to 54. The first round resulted as follows:

J. Galloway....10 Dr. Gibson ...6
I. Fletcher.....8 J. Coyle 5

Titford of Cobourg defaulted to Moore of Keene.

Second Round

Fletcher.....5 Stevenson . ..11

In the semi-finals Galloway defaulted to Moore of Keene and in the final Stevenson defeated the latter by a score of 9 shots to 4.

Play for the Riendeau trophy was continued from Tuesday and resulted as follows:

Third Round

Galloway.....12 Cole.. 11
Riendeau.....11 Bottom 4
F. J. Smith....10 P. J. Kelly....11

Semi-final

Galloway.....9 Kelly 19
Riendeau.....12 Tait .. .. .. .14

A. L. Rienedau, the skip whose rink went to the semi-finals in this event, was the donor of the trophy he came so close to winning.

Notes of the Bonspiel

Ed. Tait who has to play P. J. Kelly tonight for the Riendeau cup, is president of the club. His rink, the members of which are R. A. Connor, George O' Sullivan and J. P. Archer played steadily all the way through the bonspiel and made a good showing in every event. Pat Kelly's rink (C. Maguire, lead; Joe Poulton, second, and Glen Thompson, vice skip) made some spectacular finishes and played their best game in the semi-final for the Riendeau cup against Galloway of Belleville, deefating that quartette of star players by a score of 19 to 9.

The members of the Hastings rink that won the Campbellford cup are Keith Kennedy, Arthur Cassidy, W. Wellman and George Stevenson (skip). Hastings now has two trophies to show in proof of its prominence in sport, the other being the champinship cu pof the Northumberland Baseball League.

The two rinks from Keene did credit to the reputation of the village which has the distinction of organizing the first curling club in Eastern Ontario.

TREMAINE'S STOCK UP.

Carl Tremaine, ex-Canuck scrapper, who boosted his stock materially by his recent easy defeat of Johnny Brown of England.

PETERBORO FALLS TO OMEMEE SIX

Kingan Hardware Boys Unable to Stave Off Speedy Rushes.

OMEMEE, Feb. 18.—The Omemee six again clashed with a Peterborough team on Monday night. This time it was the Kingan Hardware Company. During the first period no excitiment was caused by any fast hockey and no goals were scored. In the second period Omemee cut loose and scored two brilliant, Roy Faulkner and George Morton each bagging one. This period ended in a score of 2-0 in favor of the locals.

The third and last period showed more speed but again the locals won out, C. Mackey and N. Clemett each managing to carry the rubber to the Peterboro nets. The visitors tried in vain to score in this period, time after time they made rushes but could not get past the Omemee defence line as they only had four shots on the Omemee goal during the whole evening. Much credit is due to the Peterborough goal-keeper, who was the star player, as he was bombarded from all corners during the three periods. Both teams weer somewhat careless in their checking and a few penalties by the capable referee, Dr. McPhee of Omemee, were imposed. The game ended with the score 4-0 in favor of the locals.

which comes to the Grand Theatre for two days commencing Friday, February 19, with a matinee on Saturday.

His verdict is one of many. Multiply the number of cities where "Three Little Maids" has played by the number of critics in each city and you have the total number of enthusiastic reviews which the production has already received.

There hasn't been one dissenting voice.

G. P. Huntley, the noted English star of this success, comes in for a large measure of the praise.

"The same G. P. Huntley that we all know," reads one review. "Nothing more need be said.

"Mr. Huntley is his superb self."

"Those who don't see G. P. Huntley are missing the treat of the season."

His past career is too well known to require any elaborate catalogue of his past successes but when one checks up his career for even the past few years, the list begins to assume mammoth proportions.

During the latter part of the war, he starred at the Gaiety, London, in a string of hits, including among others "The Marriage Market." He co-starred in America with Raymond Hitchcock and Julia Sanderson in "Hitchy-Koo." He put in a few months as one of vaudeville's most outstanding headliners. He took Cyril Maude's place in the leading role of Cyril Londsale, "Aren't We All", starred in the musical comedy "Be Yourself" and last season appeared with Ethel Barrymore in a revival of "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" playing Sir George Orreyed, a part he created with the Kendalls years ago.

In musical comedy, he is at his best. In "Three Little Maids", he plays one of the finest parts he has ever played in musical comedy.

The total result is superb. It is a production no one can afford to

AT THE REGENT

CHAMPIONSHIP AUTO RACE IN "THE SPEED SPOOK."

Intensely Interesting Picture Featuring Johnny Hines.

When "The Speed Spook," featuring Johnny Hines, now playing at the Regent Theatre, patrons will be treated to one of the most unusual automobile races ever filmed on the screen. The entire racing sequence was filmed at the famous 250-mile international auto classic at the Altoona Speedway last June, which was the cynosure of all racing enthusiasts. Pictured in these scenes the racing fan will view these speed spooks going at the phenomenal rate of 114½ miles per hour, a new world's speed record. Every bit of the race was filmed so that when "The Speed Spook" is thrown on the screen of the Regent its patrons will be able to view one of the greatest automobile races in the history of the sport.

The Altoona Speedway, which was the scene of the big race, is shown gayly bedecked with its crowd of seventy thousand racing enthusiasts cheering their favorites on. With five cameras grinding away at pivotal centres of the track, not a scene of interest or importance was missed. All told, the big race was photographed with its thrills and throngs, so that when "The Speed Spook" makes its initial showing to-day it will probably draw one of the largest crowds the Regent has had in many a year.

RINK RATS WIN MIDGET LEAGUE

Capture Trophies For City Championship in Two Straight Games.

PLAY LAKEFIELD.

The Rink Rats continued their winning streak last night by defeating the Sons of Ireland in the second semi-final game by the score of 4 to 1, giving the Rats the city championship and the cups donated by Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., also putting them in the district finals, which will be played off between Lakefield and the Rink Rats in home and-home games, goals to count. There was no picking for favorites last night on either team, as every lad played the game for all he was worth, although Playford and Mulligan scored two each for the winners, and Fred Meagher scored for the losing team. One remark which must be made is that Willie Calladine, a boy of only eleven years, and standing about 3 feet high, who plays goals for the Rink Rats, was unbeatable. Thirty-two shots were put up for him to stop, and only one went by. A lad like him should be greatly encouraged, for these youngsters will be playing senior for Peterboro some day. The teams were as follows:

Rink Rats—Goal, W. Calladine; defence, J. Playford and G. Mulligan; centre, J. Ellis; wings, G. Merritt and T. McMahon; subs., W. Stair and R. Leonard.

Sons of Ireland—Goal, T. Foley; defence, E. McGrath and D. Wood; centre, R. Creighton; wings, F. Meagher and L. Burke; subs., H. Grady and H. Jones.

Harold Rose, the referee, handled the game satisfactorily.

After the game the Sons of Ireland's manager, on behalf of his team, congratulated the Rink Rats for their victory and also the sportsmanship they showed all winter.

MALINGERING BY WORKMEN TO GET COMPENSATION IS DENIED

Col. J. A. Currie Suggests Workmen Should Contribute To the Fund.

IN LEGISLATURE

TORONTO, Feb. 18 (Canadian Press). — The Ontario Legislature yesterday took a recess from the debate on the reply to the speech from the throne and got ahead with several government bills which were non-contentious. An amendment to the Workmen's Compensation Act gave members of the House an opportunity to discuss that law at some length. Several members charged that there was considerable malingering by workmen under its provisions which brought a sharp denial from K. K. Homuth Labor member for South Waterloo.

Col. J. A. Currie (Conservative Toronto) thought that the workmen themselves should contribute a nominal sum per month or about 50 cents to the compensation fund. "That would give them an interest and they would see that none were taking unfair advantage of the Act," said Col Currie.

Z. Mageau (Liberal, Sturgeon Falls) contended that many workmen were getting compensation for minor accidents to which they were not entitled. W. Weichel (Conservative, North Waterloo) stated that there were many cases of hardship because the Workmen's Compensation Board would not compensate for industrial hernia. He suggested that the board consider such cases.

Passed Amendment.

The amendment to the act which passed, is to give the board power to judge how much accidents in premises covered by the Act accelerated sickness which follows and to award compensation accordingly. Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney-General, who introduced the bill expressed a desire to meet the Labor members of the House and have a conference concerning the entire Act, with a view to improvement.

The bill making it compulsory for "circulating libraries" to take out a permit drew some discussion. The bill provides for a fine for those who fail to take out permits. Premier Ferguson said the object of the bill was to prevent the circulating of "salacious literature." Officers in the Department of Education will be the judges of such literature. A. Belanger (Liberal, Russel) thought it would be better to leave the judgmen with the local authorities. Sunday School libraries and libraries of religious institutions do not have to take out the permit.

Ottawa Power Rights.

A Bill to pay the University of Toronto $13,480.75 yearly for university building purposes also passed without objection. The House also got into a discussion of hydro development on the Ottawa River following a question by Mr. Belanger, who asked if the sale of water power rights by the Quebec Government at Chats Falls, on the Ottawa River, would in any way affect Ontario development.

"The disposal by Quebec of the water rights at Chats Falls does not affect us," said the Premier in reply. "We have had conferences with Quebec on Ottawa River power and we are arranging a plan that will be satisfactory to both provinces. The Ontario Hydro Commission expropriated the water rights on the Ontario side at Chats Falls. We are ready to go on with development there although we may find that it will be more economical to develop power elsewhere on the Ottawa."

Harold Fisher (Liberal West Ottawa) said that Ottawa people were much concerned with the Ottawa River development. He thought joint development would be best, but now that Quebec province had sold the rights at Chats Falls it had lost control.

The Premier did not think there was anything to be alarmed about and said that matter was now receiving the personal attention of the chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

Canteen Fund.

Mr. Homuth asked the Premier what the Government proposed to do regarding the administration of Ontario's share of the canteen funds of the army. The Premier replied that it had been suggested that the Soldiers' Aid Commission of which Hon. W. H. Price provincial treasurer, is chairman, should take over the administration. However, he had recently received a deputation from returned men's organizations, who had acted very unselfishly in the matter and discussed the question. He was giving these bodies an opportunity to nominate men for the new board. He said he was surprised to find that only 15 per cent. of the returned soldiers belonged to

HOLLYWOOD.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 18.—The lure of motion pictures is not money.

It is that gift for which Bobbie Burns implored—to see ourselves as others see us. It is the story of Narcissus; the courting and flirtation with one's own image. That explains the millionaire "extras" and the nobility playing in mob scenes.

James Cruze not long ago discovered just the type to play a careworn, fatigued and hungry-looking scrubwoman. She sat around the "set" during the day smoking cigarettes and swapping jokes with the electricians. In the evening she went down to her yacht in the bay.

Later that same director discovered just the type to play a queen in his production. She was a clerk in a department store.

Hollywood is the land of topsy-turvey.

Hollywood is full of European nobility.

They come to visit and stay to act. All have been lamentable failures—as actors, though some very charming visitors.

Pickfair, the home of Doug and Mary, is seldom without a title beneath its hospitable roof. And Elinor Glyn conducts studio touring parties of nothing but lords and ladies . . . . Which recalls Alice Terry's remark anent a luncheon she attended in London with the Prince of Wales present and every other guest a titled personage.

"I felt so embarrassed," said Alice. "I was the only woman present who wasn't a Lady."

Several Spanish noblemen visited Ramon Novarro at the studio recently.

"It must be hard to act," observed one of the grandees.

"On the contrary," replied Senor Novarro. "The hard thing for us actors is not to act."

* * *

Wally Beery and his wife narrowly escaped drowning not long ago at Big Bear Lake when their canoe overturned. Wally yelled for help, and Mrs. Beery chimed in simultaneously, until finally in exasperation Wally shouted, "Who the devil is doing this yelling, you or I?"

"You don't love me, do you?" cried Mrs. Beery from her drowning position.

"It's a fine time to discuss that!" floundered Wally.

The marital dispute was only ended by the timely arrival of a rescuing party.

Not content with real estate operations with which to earn a little spending money on the side, the Hollywood stars are now going into business.

The latest enterprise is a string of barber shops, inaugurated and backed by Lew Cody, George K. Arthur, Jackie Coogan and Reee Adoree.

Business ought to be good if Miss Adoree looks after the manicuring.

While most stars are busily rushing into new homes, Gloria Swanson has placed her house on the market at $175,000, having settled herself in a $250,000 apartment in New York.

* * *

Just as we decided that there was no mortal who could withstand the lure of pictures, we heard of a handsome young electrician whom a director spotted on the set.

"How would you like to be an actor?" asked the director with a touch of condescension.

The electrician looked at him scornfully and moved away.

"And how'd you like to be an electrician—if you could?" he tossed over his shoulder.

Consistently Good Players Defeated By Others Away Above Form.

The preliminary round of the vice-skips' bonspiel, described by one curler as the real event of the season, was played last night at Charlotte street rink. The games were well-contested and many reversals occurred where consistently good players were defeated by some vice-skips who last night played much above their usual form, the added responsibility of skipping the rink spurring them on to great feats. DEPARTMENT OF LABOR EXCLUDES COUNTESS VERA Official Order Signed by U. S. Secretary Davis Upholds Port Officers.

NEW LEGAL EFFORT

Titled Divorcee's Counsel May Apply to District Court.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (Canadian Press)—The Countess of Cathcart was yesterday ordered excluded from the United States by the Department of Labor. She is now held at Ellis Island as a result of admissions made to immigration authorities in connection with her elopement to South Africa with the Earl of Craven.

Her counsel are expected to apply to the district court in New York for a writ of habeas corpus under which the case would come up for judicial review.

Secretary Davis personally signed the deportation order after he had studied recommendations from a board of review which Monday heard arguments in the case. At these hearings the charge was made that the Government was attempting to apply a double moral standard, those favoring admission of the countess, including delegates from the National Women's Party asserting that she was being discriminated against, while the earl was permitted to land recently.

A warrant, however, is now awaiting in New York which would subject the Earl to deportation proceedings should he return there from Canada.

Department's Ruling

The announcement of the department's ruling said that the exclusion of the countess was mandatory under the immigration law.

The statement announcing the action said:

"The department of labor has affirmed, on appeal, the excluding decision of the Ellis Island board of special inquiry in the case of Vera E. Cathcart.

"This action is based on that part of section three of the immigration act of February 20, 1917, known as the general immigration law, which provides in part as follows:

"That the following classes of aliens shall be excluded from admission into the United: . . persons who have been convicted of or admit felony or other crime or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude.'

"The alien admitted the commission of such an offence and that being the case, her exclusion is mandatory under the practice of this department, which has prevailed since 1907, when the above provision was added to the general immigration law.

Many Excluded

"During the past 19 years, considerable numbers of aliens have been excluded under this provision for the admission of the same offense as in the instant case. Prior to the enactment of the immigration law of 1924, the Government was obliged to sustain the burden of proof in cases of this nature, but since the act referred to became effective, the burden of proof has been placed on the alien applicant for admission, and in this respect, the alien did not produce any evidence to sustain her right to enter.

"It should be explained in considering immigration causes on appeal from boards of special inquiry at ports of arrival that the secretary of labor is bound to consider the question involved solely on the evidence submitted before such board and cannot exercise discretion. He can, and in this case has, considered legal arguments based on the law and the record, but he could not consider the extraneous influences from many sources urged for or against the admission of the alien.".

Craven at Ottawa

OTTAWA, Feb. 18 (Canadian Press)—After only a few hours in the city as guest of former brother officers in the great war, the Earl of Craven left Ottawa last evening at 6:45 for Montreal. Lady Craven who left New York last night rejoined her husband at Montreal today. They will both come to Ottawa Thursday evening and remain here over the week end.

The Earl appeared greatly pleased at meeting his old friends of the 38th, and told the reporters so.

The Earl declined to be drawn into any conversation regarding the Countess of Cathcart at present at Ellis Island, New York, fighting to be allowed to enter the United States, further than to intimate that he would not reply to any allegations made by her against him.

Standardization of Operation and Exchange of Information Planned.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 18 (Canadian Press).—A plan of co-operative marketing leading to a world-wide organization of wheat pool units designed to market the bulk of the world's wheat became a reality here Tuesday at the international conference of wheat pools. The unification and standardization of pooling operations and the establishment of an effective clearing house for the exchange of accurate information as to crops and supplies of grain was decided upon.

The conference was organized on a permanent basis, scheduled for regular meetings, either annual or semi-annual, by the unanimous vote of 75 spokesmen for the co-operative grain pools of Canada, United States and Australia.

WHOLESALE ARRESTS.

Former Premier of Greece and Eleven Others in Custody.

ATHENS, Feb. 18 (Canadian Press)—Former Premier Papanastasion, former Minister of the Interior; General Kondilis, and ten other officers were arrested last night. Several days ago the newspaper Democratia, organ of Papanastasion, who is the Opposition leader, was suspended for having published an attack on the Pangalos Government.

Premier Pangalos is the virtual dictator of Greece, he having announced some weeks ago that he had assumed all responsibility of executive power.

Theatre

AT THE GRAND

"An exquisite cameo of musical comedy", said the dramatic critic of the Winnipeg Free Press, summing up his impressions of the musical comedy hit "Three Little Maids" which comes to the Grand Theatre for two days commencing Friday, February 19, with a matinee on Saturday.

His verdict is one of many. Multiply the number of cities where "Three Little Maids" has played by the number of critics in each city and you have the total number of enthusiastic reviews which the production has already received.

There hasn't been one dissenting voice.

G. P. Huntley, the noted English star of this success, comes in for a large measure of the praise.

"The same G. P. Huntley that we all know," reads one review. "Nothing more need be said.

"Mr. Huntley is his superb self."

"Those who don't see G. P. Huntley are missing the treat of the season."

His past career is too well known to require any elaborate catalogue of his past successes but when one checks up his career for even the past few years, the list begins to assume mammoth proportions.

During the latter part of the war, he starred at the Gaiety, London, in a string of hits, including among others "The Marriage Market." He co-starred in America with Raymond Hitchcock and Julia Sanderson in "Hitchy-Koo." He put in a few months as one of vaudeville's most outstanding headliners. He took Cyril Maude's place in the leading role of Cyril Londsale, "Aren't We All", starred in the musical comedy "Be Yourself" and last season appeared with Ethel Barrymore in a revival of "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" playing Sir George Orreyed, a part he created with the Kendalls years ago.

In musical comedy, he is at his best. In "Three Little Maids", he plays one of the finest parts he has ever played in musical comedy.

The total result is superb. It is a production no one can afford to will be able to view one of the greatest automobile races in the history of the sport.

The Altoona Speedway, which was the scene of the big race, is shown gayly bedecked with its crowd of seventy thousand racing enthusiasts cheering their favorites on. With five cameras grinding away at pivotal centres of the track, not a scene of interest or importance was missed. All told, the big race was photographed with its thrills and throngs, so that when "The Speed Spook" makes its initial showing to-day it will probably draw one of the largest crowds the Regent has had in many a year.

CHAMPIONSHIP AUTO RACE IN "THE SPEED SPOOK."

Intensely Interesting Picture Featuring Johnny Hines.

When "The Speed Spook," featuring Johnny Hines, now playing at the Regent Theatre, patrons will be treated to one of the most unusual automobile races ever filmed on the screen. The entire racing sequence was filmed at the famous 250-mile international auto classic at the Altoona Speedway last June, which was the cynosure of all racing enthusiasts. Pictured in these scenes the racing fan will view these speed spooks going at the phenomenal rate of 114½ miles per hour, a new world's speed record. Every bit of the race was filmed so that when "The Speed Spook" is thrown on the screen of the Regent its patrons

ITALY AND FRANCE SHOULD BE ALLIES

War Is Inevitable Says Fascist Newspaper, Replying To French.

ROME, Feb. 18.— (Canadian Press).—Italy and France have every reason to be allies rather than enemies in "the inevitable war which everyone deprecates but which is already predictable by so many signs," declares L'Impero, extreme Fascist paper, to-day, in denying charges by Senator De Kerguezeo that Italy is embarking upon the largest of all naval construction programmes.

Messaggero also denies the French Senator's charges and says: "M. Kerguezeo's alarmism will only serve to provoke between Italy and France naval armament competition which it would be preferable to avoid in the reciprocal interests of the two countries.

PREMIER FERGUSON SAYS DESIGN OF ONTARIO PROHIBITIONISTS IS DEFEAT OF CONSERVATIVE PARTY

Temperance Question Was Dragged Into Politics by Prohibition Union.

EXTENSIVE SPEECH

Rev. Ben. Spence, Hon. W. E. Raney and Other 'Drys' Denounced by Premier.

TORONTO, Feb. 19 (Canadian Press).—The Ontario Government yesterday challenged the Progressive amendment to the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne and Premier Ferguson moved an amendment to the amendment. The new amendment wipes out the Progressive amendment entirely, and is simply an expression of opinion that the principle of responsible government should be maintained and that legislation should have the support of the people as expressed through their representatives in the House.

The Premier spoke for two and a half hours, covering all ranges of Governmental activity. Towards six o'clock he went into the temperance question with an attack of the "leading lights" in the prohibition union of Ontario and upon W. E. Raney, Progressive leader in the House. He accused them all of dragging the temperance issue into politics in an endeavor to annihilate Conservatism in the province. He declared that none of them had ever in the last five years spoke a word of constructive criticism but simply spread propaganda "to kill Ferguson and the Tories."

"I want to say that this Government takes no second place to any organization, whether religious, prohibition or moral, in its desire and efforts to improve the conditions of living in Ontario," he declared. He was directly challenged by Mr. Raney to state positively what action the Government proposed to take on temperance legislation. The Premier, however, refused to be drawn out about any future legislation on the question.

Travelling Schools.

The Premier spoke at some length on advances made in the educational department over which he presides. He also defended his position being Minister of Education while also Premier, reminding the House that Hon. George W. Ross had taken both departments when in politics. The Premier extended the previous announcements about education by correspondence schools for people in the hinterlands. He said that there would also be travelling schools. Arrangements had been made with the two great railways to provide a car each fitted up with teacher's living quarters and a school-room. These would be taken from place to place and classes conducted especially for European settlers and their children.

Dealing with the development carried out in the Department of Lands and Forests, the Premier, amid the applause of the House, pointed out that regulations now passed made it necessary for all wood and pulp products to be completely finished in Ontario. He pointed out that there were 200,000,000 cords of pulp in the province, and held that it was sufficient answer to those who stated that the resources of the province were being depleted. While this was not all spruce pulp it was only a matter of a few years before jack pine would be used in the manufacture of paper. The Premier pointed out that the paper industries in Ontario had a turnover of about $100,000,000 a year and an output of 2,600 tons of finished newsprint per day. Contracts recently let by the Government would call for the expenditure of an additional $80,000,000 by the paper companies. Increased revenue was being obtained through the increase of Crown dues on each cord of spruce from 80 cents to $1.40. This would, in the near future, mean a revenue of $2,000,000 per year to the province as compared to the $600,000 now obtained under that schedule.

$146,000,000 in Hydro.

The Premier paid a tribute to C. A. Magrath as a capable man to be chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission. He pointed out that the province had $146,000,000 directly invested in Hydro; had guaranteed another $50,000,000, and that the municipalities had $70,000,000 invested. "All of these combined make one great heart from which our industry is driven and from which our homes are made comfort-

Surgeons To Save Time By a Major Operation

Then the watch ran down.

The watch is to be retrieved through an operation.

MARKET BYLAW TO BE REDRAWN

Amendments of Past Years to be Embodied—Tolls Unchanged.

WANT TANK OUT

Revision of the market by-law was considered by the Property Committee of the City Council last night, but it was found that, although the by-law is so old that it speaks of the "Town" of Peterborough, the point in question, the amunt to be charged as tolls, cannot be changed as the municipal act has not been changed on the matter. The question of stalls in the entrance hallway was brought up and it was decided that the clause forbidding stands there should be enforced. A new by-law, consolidating the amendments made in past years, will be prepared. Tolls for the sale of automobiles will be included.

The question of the clerk's right to collect a toll on vehicles parked on the streets adjoining the market was debated with some heat. Market Clerk Stocker claimed that he had a right to collect from a man who left his car standing for hours on the east side of Water street but the Aldermen thought that only when goods were offered for sale should these vehicles be taxed.

Alderman Greene and Denne pressed for a recommendation to the Council that the gasoline tank at the Market Clerk's office be ordered removed and after a lengthy discussion of different phases of the situation their motion was carried on Chairman Hancock's deciding vote. Mayor Holloway and Ald. Phelan opposed the order.

LIQUOR SHIPPED TO MAN IN FORD WAS DISCUSSED

Customs Committee Sought Information About "G. Scheror."

CAN'T BE FOUND.

Liquor Shipped To Him Was For Reshipment To "Mexico."

OTTAWA, Feb. 19. — Canadian Press. — The shipment of a carload of liquor every few days to Ford, Ont., for re-shipment to Mexico by a man described as "G. Schero.," was the chief topic of discussion at the Customs probe to-day.

The post office authoritics have been unable to locate Scheror in Ford and the manager of the Dominion Distillers, Limited, Montreal, who have been shipping the liquor to Scheror, could not tell the committee to-day who Scheror was or what he looked like, except that he believed he lived in Detroit, "and in the most exclusive portion of it?" inquired committeeman C. W. Bell.

R. L. Calder, K.C., of Montreal, was appointed counsel for the probe committee.

Young Houghton Takes His Own Life After Wounding Uncle.

HALIFAX, Feb. 19 (Canadian Press).—One man is dead and another badly wounded as the result of a family quarrel at Huntington Point. The tragedy took place in the home of James Houghton. An argument between Houghton and his wife became heated. William, aged 21, their son, poined in, taking his father's side, while James O'Hara, aged 27, Mrs. Houghton's brother, shielded her. Uncle and nephew came to blows, and the latter seized a rifle. O'Hara was shot twice, one bullet piercing his left wrist and the other his right forearm. Thinking him dead, the young man placed the muzzle of the rifle to his own forehead, and by discharging the weapon with his toe, shot himself between the eyes, dying instantly.

Former Ku Klux Klan Organizer Faces Three Blackmail Charges Involving Millbrook Residents

Harold Gilbert Released on Suspended Sentence on Pleading Guilty To Assault On His Wife—Re-arrested on Serious Counts—May Be Others To Come.

SAID TO HAVE USED K. K. K. AS MEANS OF EXTORTING HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS

Harold Gilbert, former organizer in Peterborough for the Ku Klux Klan of the British Empire, was released today on suspended sentence following a charge of beating his wife, and was immediately re-arrested on three charges of blackmail.

Gilbert pleaded guilty to the assault charge, and on representations made by his lawyer that Mrs. Mary Gilbert, his wife, was willing to give him one more chance, he was released under his own $500 bond and bound over to keep the peace.

On hearing counsel's plea that Mrs. Gilbert desired her husband's release, His Worship remarked: "Wives always want to give their husbands another chance."

The blackmail charges pending against Gilbert are said to involve three prominent Millbrook men. These men, it is said, are entirely innocent of the things alleged, but paid the blackmail to protect the names of others associated with them. Another case of the same kind in Peterborough is rumored, but there is no charge laid as yet.

Not Kanada K.K.K.

The Ku Klux Klan of Kanada indignantly denies any connection with Gilbert. In an interview with The Examiner today the organizer said: "Gilbert was refused admission to the original Klan, as all men of his calibre have been and will be refused admission. This man was organizer for the Ku Klux Klan of the British Empire, whose leader was banished from the original Klan, and Gilbert is the type of man that such a one would naturally gather around him."

The aims of the original Klan are in no way to be compared with the workings of the off-shoot represented by Gilbert. The Examiner's informant declared, adding that the work of the original Klan has been somewhat hampered by actions of the newer organization. The "British Empire" Klan, which was formed in Peterborough at a meeting in Central Park last summer, will soon fade away, the representative of the Kanada Klan avers. His organization refuses to enter into any controversy on the matter, he said, but contents itself with disowning Gilbert.

DEATH PENALTY EXACTED TODAY FOR MURDER CONFESSED BY MAN WHO BELIEVED HIMSELF DYING

Confession Four Years After Crime and When All Traces Obliterated.

CASE WAS DROPPED

John Kooting Hanged at Portage La Prairie for Murder in 1921.

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man., Feb. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Justice exacted its full penalty when John Kooting, middle-aged farmer of Shoal Lake, Man., paid with his life here this morning for the murder of Dymerto Shaczyko, whose battered body was recovered from a pig pen on the Kooting farm last year. The convicted man was married and the father of one child. The crime for which he was hanged was committed in November 1921.

The murder of Shaczyko proved one of the most baffling mysteries in Manitoba's criminal history. The disappearance of the man was not brought to the attention of the authorities until some of his friends became suspicious of foul play. The police immediately started a thorough investigation. Every member of the Kooting household was subjected to a rigorous cross examination, but without result. The case was dropped as one which defied solution.

Confessed When Ill.

Four years passed. Stricken with serious illness a year ago, and believing he was about to die, Kooting called for his spiritual adviser. To him he made a full confession of having killed Shaczyko.

He told of having beaten the man to death and after robbing him of a sum of money and said he had buried the corpse in a pig pen on his farm. Later Kooting confessed, he had burned his blood spattered clothing and covered up every trace of the crime.

Kooting hovered between life and death for several days but survived the crises and following his complete recovery was brought to trial.

Repudiated Statement.

At the hearing he steadfastly denied that the confession was true, declaring that, he had merely acknowledged the murder to save another. His story, however, was repudiated by Kooting's son, who testified that he had overheard a conversation between his father and mother in which the elder Kooting told of having killed Shaczyko and the reasons for the deed. The youth also told of having found his father's bloodstained overalls and shirt which he later witnessed him burn.

DAMAGE TO CARS IN COLLISION ONLY $4; JUDGE AWARDS $1,800 FOR INJURIES TO PASSENGER

Mrs. Blakely's Claim Upheld at Assizes—Rear of Car Bumped.

SESSION ADJOURNS

Thomas Dabson Given $600 in Claim Against Albert Duncan.

Though the damage to the two cars was approximately only four dollars, damages to the extent of $1800 were awarded to the plaintiff by the Honourable Mr. Justice Mowat in the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon in an action arising from a collision which took place on a detour on the road between Trenton and Belleville in July last year. The plaintiff, Mrs. Blakely, was in a Ford coupe driven by her son and had pulled in behind a number of cars in order that an approaching car could pass. It was alleged that the defendant, Drummond, crashed into the rear of this car while it was parked, causing the injuries that resulted in the action.

G. N. Gordon, K.C. appeared for the plaintiff and A. G. McHugh of Ottawa appeared for the defendant.

Mrs. Blakely, examined by Mr. Gordon, stated that she owned a Ford coupe. On the day of the accident her son was driving the car. They were going west at the time and as they approached the scene of the accident they saw several cars lined up waiting for an approaching car. They pulled in behind the cars and stopped. Defendant's car crashed into their rear. Defendant then got out of his car and she heard him say that his brakes were not working and that he had to go to Hamilton.

Arthur Blakely examined by Mr. Gordon, stated that he was the driver of the car when the accident occurred. He noticed the cars ahead and came to a stop slowly. Defendant's car bumped into his rear pushing his car into the car ahead. He stated that he got out of the car and asked the defendant "why in thunder he did not stop" and defendant told him his brakes were not working.

J. E. Drummond the defendant said that he was a Civil servant and was employed in Ottawa. He stated that he was driving along at a moderate rate of speed when he saw the Ford coupe in front of him. He was on a slight incline at the time and applied his brakes immediately. He said that if he had had another foot to go he would not have touched the other car. As it was, he said, "My car merely pushed the other car ahead I asked Blakely if anyone was hurt and he said that his mother was badly frightened." He said that his brakes had been fixed about three weeks previous to the accident.

His Lordship said that Counsel for the defendant put his defence on the basis of a slight impact and gave judgment in favor of the plaintiff for $1800 and costs for the injury

WEALTHY MAN OF 70 PASSED HIGH IN RADIO EXAMS

Thomas Ahearn, President of Ottawa Traction Company, an Operator.

92 1-2 PER CENT. MARK

Was Telegrapher in Youth —Retains Interest and Intellect.

OTTAWA, Feb. 19 (Canadian Press).—Thomas Ahearn, president of the Ottawa Traction Company and one of the foremost financiers of Canada at the age of 70 years has just passed the examination he took at the radia branch of the Marine Department and is now a full-fledged radio telegraph and wireless operator entitled to take a radio operator's position on any ship flying the British flag.

When a young man of 18, Mr. Ahearn was a telegraph operator and through his wonderfully successful career from the time when he left the key and was one of the leading men in organizing the Ottawa Street Railway Company, he has never forgotten telegraphy. He was urged by his friends to try the examinations set for wireless operators. He not only passed, but secured 92 1-2 per cent., which is 10 per cent above the average.

"Mr. Ahearn has performed something really unique," said Commander C. P. Edwards, "and which will go down in the history of the department and in the history of radio as a record.

"That a man of his age wealth and standing should have undertaken such an examination demonstrates conclusively two things: First, that despite his material success in life he has still a keen love for his early calling—telegraph; second, that despite his year, he has, putting it in plain English, both the brains and the energy of a young man.

"A point I would like to emphasize is that Mr. Ahearn passed our examination with 92 1-2 per cent. average. The general average of applicants is about 83 per cent. It can thus be seen that his accomplishment is out of the ordinary.

"The examination is a stiff one. It must necessarily be so, as many valuable lives depend on the skill of the wireless operator."

The test included both the American and Continental Morse codes.

FINAL CARD PARTIES HELD AT LAKEFIELD

EUCHRE AND DANCE ARE HELD AT MADOC

Sacred Heart Congregation in Charge of Pleasant Social.

MADOC, Feb. 19.—On Friday evening a very successful euchre and dance was held in the Haslip Hotel, under the auspices of the Sacred Heart church. Thirteen tables of progressive euchre were played, the ladies' prize being won by Miss M. Forestell and the gentlemen's by Mr. L. Reeve. After refreshments had been served the tables were removed from the spacious dining-room and the young people enjoyed a dance. Music was supplied by Miss Bessie Cox, Clement Cox and M. Irwin, Miss Cox being relieved at the piano by Mrs. Stokloser, Mrs. Lenahan and Mrs. Barrie.

A vote of thanks was moved by Mr. D. Barrie, seconded by Mrs. E. McIlroy, to Mr. and Mrs. Haslip for their kindness in opening their home for the evening, and assisting in every way to make the party such a pleasant one for all.

The financial returns amounted to thirty-six dollars.

On Saturday afternoon and evening a sale of home cooking and hot supper was held by the members of the Women's Institute in the vacant store in the Shaw block. The proceeds amounted to $51.

Woman in Runaway.

A runaway occurred when Mrs. Curtis was driving from her farm home to Madoc. Part of the harness broke, and the drive could not control the horse. Mrs. Curtis was thrown out of the cutter and sustained painful injuries in a broken collar bone and two broken ribs. The horse dashed into Mr. E. Bristol's yard where he was captured. Mrs. Curtis was sought and brought to the house, where a doctor attended her, after which she was removed to her own home.

The many friends of Mrs. A. Strother will be sorry to hear that she was taken to Kingston Hospital on Friday, where she underwent an operation on Saturday. Word was received on Sunday night that she had come through the operation and was doing nicely.

There were no services in St. John's church on Sunday owing to the absence of Rev. M. Strother in Kingston with Mrs. Strother.

BERLIN CANCER CLAIM DOUBTED

Disease Not Caused by Specific Organism, Say New York Doctor.

PROBABLE ERROR

NEW YORK Feb. 19 (Canadian Press).—Dr. George A. Soper, managing director of the American Association for the control of cancer, said yesterday that "to qualified students of cancer the announcement from Berlin that the cause of cancer has been found to be a large bacillus shaped like the letter S, has the word incredible written across the face of it." The discovery was accredited to Dr. Josef Schumacher, a German physician.

"For many years after bacteriology became a science," said Dr. Soper, "attempts were made to ascribe cancer to a bacillus, but without success. It is hardly possible that with all this research a large bacillus could have been overlooked.

"The consensus of opinion among students of cancer today is that the disease is not caused by a specific organism. Cancer often becomes infected with bacteria just as a wound may become infected ,and this fact has led many investigators to make the mastage of supposing the infecting agent was the cause, when it was merely the consequence. This may be the case in Berlin.

"My recent tour of investigation of the great research laboratories of Europe indicated that we are a long way from knowing how cancer is produced or finding a medicinal cure for it. The best reliance which the public has against cancer lies in the accumulated knowledge whih every competent physician and surgeon possesses with reference to the disease."

BETHEL VISITED OMEMEE Y.P.L.

Guests Provided Entertainment Which Was Greatly Appreciated.

ORATORY AND SONG

OMEMEE, Feb. 19.—The Young People's League enjoyed a real treat on Monday evening, when the young people of Bethel, the sister appointment, journeyed to Omemee, and provided the evening's programme.

By way of introduction, the pastor, Rev. E. W. Rowland, on behalf of the president Miss L. Parsons and Mr. F. G. Sandy, extended a hearty welcome to the visitors, who then took charge. In the absence of the Bethel president, Mr. Harry Jackson, presided. After singing the opening hymn with Mrs. William Howden, at the piano, he called on Mr. Eugene Switzer, who conducted a short prayer service in which a Scripture lesson was read and prayer offered by Messrs. Moses, Ruth and Ira Switzer.

Miss Reid and Mr. Elwood Harrison then favored the gathering with a duet, the former playing on a Hawaiian guitar, while the latter used the auto-harp.

The first topic was ably taken by Miss Reid, who in a free and easy fashion, gave a splendid talk on "The Sabbath Day." This was followed by a very pleasing vocal solo by Miss Eleanor Sherin.

The life of Martin Luther was then briefly related in good style by Mr. Harry Jackson, after which he contributed a clarinet solo with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Rowland. This was the concluding number on the evening's programme, which was thoroughly enjoyed and thanks voiced by the pastor.

The Omemee organization then took charge, and by way of entertainment introduced a contest which was answered by modern articles the grandmothers of 50 years ago, missed. The prize-winners were Misses Helen Rutherford and Evelyn Bland.

Community singing was then enjoyed for a short time, after which refreshments were served and the pleasant evening brought to a close.

"BRINGING UP FATHER" — Geo. McManus

The YELLOW STUB by Ernest Lynn

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HENRY RAND, 55 a business man is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the yellow stub of a theater ticket.

JIMMY RAND, his son, goes to Chicago, where the theater is. The stub is traced to THOMAS FOGARTY, who says he gave it to OLGA MAYNARD, a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. Later he encounters Olga. She faints when she learns police want her for murder. Mary, out with SAMUEL CHURCH, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the stub and handkerchief might have come into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder.

Jimmy receives mysterious warnings to leave Chicago. Later he is followed and attacked by two men, from one of whom he wrests a black jack and escapes.

With Jimmy and Mary estranged Church presses his courtship for Mary through her mother.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XX.

Jimmy Rand awoke the next morning with a violent headache, the after effects of the previous night's encounter with his two mysterious shadowers. His ear was swollen; he ached in every muscle.

He lay in bed longer than usual, turning over in his mind the jumble of events that had crowded in on him during the last few days, trying to put some semblance of order to his chaotic thoughts.

The landlady knocked on his door and, when he opened it, handed him a letter.

"It just came, Mr. Rand." It was a special delivery. She hesitated a moment and then she said, "I—I sort of thought you might not be feeling well this morning, Mr. Rand, after last night, and I fixed some breakfast for you. I'll bring it right up."

"That's mighty kind of you, Mrs. King, I'm sure. You shouldn't have gone to all that trouble for me." He was a little uncomfortable in the face of this unexpected kindness.

He sat on the bed to open his letter. It was postmarked Grafton and was from Detective Mooney. Mrs. King found him with a puzzled frown on his face when she returned with the breakfast tray.

"I hope it's not bad news, Mr. Rand." She could not keep the curiosity out of her voice. This new roomer of hers, with his mysterious phone calls and strange encounters, was a puzzling proposition.

He smiled. "No, Mrs. King. It's from an old friend in Grafton. He's just telling me the news."

"Oh!" She thrust her hands in her apron pocket and left the room.

Between bits of buttered toast, Jimmy read the letter again:

"Dear Rand: I'm writing to tell you a new angle on this case of yours. It's the doggon-dest case I was ever on and it's got me nearly batty. You remember that the day clerk in the Canfield Hotel said the man who registered for the room your father was found murdered in gave the name of H. A. Jones of New York. Well, the clerk shows up yesterday with word that he had seen this man Jones on the street the day before.

"He tried to follow him, but he lost him and came in to tell us about it. We've been looking for him ever since. Now I think you're on a wild goose chase, sticking around in Chicago. This fellow probably has a pretty good reason for hanging around Grafton, and that's where we'll find him if we do.

"You're letting this Maynard woman kid you. She's in on this somehow, and that story of being picked up by somebody who got her ticket stub and handkerchief sounds pretty thin. I'll bet she knows who this Jones guy is and she's covering up for him. She never thought the thing would be traced to her and she had time to think up a yarn when the police got her. My own private idea of this thing is that this guy Jones is operating some sort of blackmail gag and he uses a woman now and then to help him out. He answers the description of a man who's been doing that sort of thing in cities around this neck of the woods for some time.

"In the case of your father he ran up against the wrong man and he got scared and killed him. You see if I'm not right. You might think this is some kind of wild dream I've got, but I think I know what I'm talking about. At any rate, Mr. H. A. Jones isn't in Chicago and I think you're wasting your time. Why don't you let them bring the Maynard woman back here and come back yourself?

"Best regards,

"MOONEY."

"Mooney, you're dead wrong," Jimmy said softly as he folded the letter. "If the man I'm looking for is in Grafton, how do you explain these warnings I'm getting to leave town? And how do you explain that affair last night? No, Mooney, if H. A. Jones, or whatever his name is, is in Grafton, then H. A. Jones isn't the man we want. He's right here in Chicago, and I need Olga Maynard to help me find him."

He finished his breakfast hurriedly and then sat down and wrote Mooney an answer, telling of the warnings and the attack of the night before.

"Of course," he wrote, "you mustn't think I'm ignoring the possibility that H. A. Jones may be in Grafton. Keep on looking for him. But there's a lot going on here that I want to find the reason for."

* * *

The days that followed were uneventful. To Jimmy they were wholly unsatisfactory. Despite the efforts of Lieutenant Day and the best detectives at his command, the solution to the identity of Jimmy's assailants on that eventful night was still as far away, apparently, as ever.

And as for the man whom Olga Maynard mentioned as having got hold of the ticket stub and the handkerchief, if he did actually exist, and was not a creation of Olga's imagination, he seemingly had succeeded in dropping completely out of sight.

With Olga, Jimmy frequented the cabarets and roamed at night the brightly lighted downtown streets of Chicago, hoping to catch a glimpse of him.

"I don't know if that's the way to look for him or not," Olga told him. "But I saw him downtown once and he seemed to know a lot about the restaurants and theaters and other night life. I don't know how else to go about it."

"It's the only way," Jimmy agreed, "unless I run into those men who followed me home that night." He had told her of the episode and she had been greatly alarmed to learn that he was in danger.

"You should go back to Grafton," she told him. "You'll be hurt—maybe killed—if you stay here."

"How do you know?" he followed up quickly. "You talk as if you knew something about it."

She appeared hurt at the suspicion in his voice.

"I don't know why you ask me that—in that way," she answered. "What do the police think of it—don't they think you're in danger? Why shouldn't I think the same thing without being accused of knowing something about it?"

"I beg your pardon," he said contritely. "I shouldn't have spoken that way. The fact is, though, I'm getting to be suspicious of everything and everybody." He didn't tell her that Mooney had written, telling him that the man known as H. A. Jones had been seen in Grafton.

"I—I don't blame you for being suspicious of me." She turned her eyes away from him as she spoke. "But I thought somehow that you believed me. No one else does, apparently. Whether you do or you don't, you should go back to Grafton. I don't want to see you hurt."

He studied her a long time. "Don't you realize," he asked her finally, "that if I go back to Grafton you'll have to go there, too? The district attorney consented to letting you go free temporarily so you could help me find this man you told about. They'll be wanting to make an arrest soon. They think they have to to save their faces. Someone will have to stand trial pretty soon for this murder. If I go back now, it will be you."

Olga appeared to be thinking this over. She bit her lip nervously, and tears came to her eyes.

"I don't care," she said softly, turning to face him. "I don't care what they do to me. You go back. You've been kind to me—the only one who has, the only one who helped me. I don't want anything to happen to you."

He flushed uncomfortably, not so much at what she had said as at the way she had said it. It suddenly occurred to him that a remarkable change had come over this girl. That hardness of manner which had characterized her on the occasion of their first few meetings had gone. The old air of defiance—it had amounted at times almost to brazenness—also was missing.

"You've changed a lot since I first met you," he said hesitantly, and her eyes dropped before his inquiring look.

"Are you surprised?" she asked. "Hasn't—hasn't what has happened been enough to change me?"

"Troubles do sober us," he agreed. "I'm a different sort of person myself to what I was before this happened. But with you—I don't know—it's hard to understand." He was about to tell her that her very appearance had changed—that she was dressed differently—more quietly—and was using less rouge. But he thought better of it.

"The old life doesn't interest me any more," she said. "I don't know. Something inside of me has snapped since—" She stopped.

"Since when, Olga?" It was the first time he had called her that.

"Oh, since this happened," she answered evasively.

They parted then, and he went home, vaguely troubled.

The sun was shining brightly when he left his room the next morning, and the air was cold and bracing. He had taken stock of his finances the night before and it hadn't been encouraging.

"Less than $200 between me and starvation," he said ruefully. "If I don't get a job soon I'll be on my uppers." There was clothing to buy, and his evenings with Olga, although not expensive individually, were making serious inroads. He was still firmly determined not to ask his mother or Janet for help.

The cheerful aspect of the morning he regarded as a good omen, and he went quite hopefully about the task of job hunting. But it was just another morning of discouragement, and noon time found him weary and depressed.

He told himself, "If I don't find something to keep me busy in the day time—something to get my mind off myself—I'll go crazy."

He turned into Grant and wandered absent-mindedly along the walks. The sun had taken the chill off the air. Office workers, out on their lunch hour, were sitting on the benches, gossiping and laughing.

"That's what I need," he muttered almost savagely, "something to make me laugh."

He plodded on, his hands thrust in his overcoat pockets, his head down. A squirrel jumped across his path and he idly followed the frisky little creature with his eyes. Then he saw something ahead of him that made his heart leap.

On a park bench just ahead of him was a girl. She was sitting alone, resting her weight on her arm and looking down at the ground. There was something disconsolate looking about her, but that was not why he had started so eagerly at sight of her. She was Mary Lowell.

PREMIER FERGUSON

able," he continued. He spoke of further developments in the Nipigon and then briefly referred to the situation on the St. Lawrence. He was surprised at the continual harping by some people of the St. Lawrence district, demanding that the Government take immediate action. He pointed out that first the Federal Government must be consulted with and their part fulfilled, and the United States must also give it assistance before there could be development. The province could not go ahead at once, but ultimately he declared the St. Lawrence would be the source of a great deal of the electricity used in Ontario, but it was absurd in the meantime to be continually harping on immediate action.

Must Be Tolerance.

At 5 o'clock the Premier started on the Ontario Temperance Act part of his speech. He said that all people did not agree on the same method of getting to heaven or the same ideas in religion. "But we must respect those who differ from us, especially when they honestly differ. No section of the people should condemn another section who differ with it on any public question.

"The man who says that 'I am right' and another is wrong is either a hypocrite or a liar," said the Premier with some warmth, amid applause of the Conservative members. "I have no patience with that sort of man; there is no progress in recriminations and carping criticism. I have not the patience to discuss such a matter with people who set themselves up as a model for all men. There must be a tolerance of spirit if we are to reach a sound conclusion, for, after all, the people of this province are conservative in their views. Everyone can promote a campaign of hate, but the problem is, what is best to be done for the future generations of this province. I said last year, and I say it again, that vehemence adds nothing to reason, and abuse and vilification is not argument. Unfortunately on this subject, too much of that spirit is displayed sometimes from sources and organizations that would surprise you. When it does occur there must be some reason."

Temperance and Politics.

"The other day I was charged with having dragged the temperance question into politics," continued the Premier. "That is the furthest from the facts that any statement can be. I did my utmost to keep it out of politics. Who put it in politics? I need go no further back than last year when the Prohibition Union met in Toronto. May I say that I have the highest respect for many of the members of that organization, but, unfortunately, the active spirits who direct the policy of that organization have allowed party and other motives to sway and influence them in carrying out their work. They howled down a clergyman who dared to say that the Government should be credited for honesty of purpose. The motive was made more apparent at the convention this year, and it was made apparent on every platform upon which Mr. Raney could get a hearing. He never attacked one action of this Government nor did he ever claim an impropriety on the part of this Government, but he did tell the electors that they must vote against Ferguson because he was linked with the whisky ring. Is that the way to put it to get a fair discussion? Is that the sort of thing the honest people of this province want to hear? And in the last Federal election the honorable member's (Mr. Raney) chore boy, Ben Spence, goes from house to house, and from platform to platform, and from pulpit to pulpit, when he could get in, campaigning against Earl Rowe, a former supporter of mine here, telling the people to vote against him because he was a follower of Mr. Ferguson and the whisky ring and ought to be beaten.

Premier Ferguson pointed out that Premier Drury had even gone so far to introduce the O.T.A. into the last Federal election campaign when he had tried to make it an issue against Mr. Boys, one of the strongest prohibitionists in Canada. It was, the Premier stated, an effort to beat the Conservative at any cost. He drew attention to Mr. Raney's statement that he had nothing whatever to do with the prohibition organization's meetings, while at the same time the newspapers were holding him out as the man who had fired the first gun in the prohibition battle.

Member: "His was merly a gas attack."

Liberals on the Fence.

Quoting from the Toronto press, Premier Ferguson stated that the activity of Ben Spence and Mr. Raney was nothing more or less than a gigantic scheme to beat the Conservative Government at any cost. He quoted Mr. Spence's comment that it was no use trying to put over a straight political dry party, but that it would be better to find Liberals and Progressives who would be willing to sign the prohibition pledge for the sake of defeating the Conservatives. "I can only say," stated the Premier, "that I can see my hon. friends from Russell, Ottawa and Prescott (the French members) rushing to take advantage of this kind offer." (Laughter). Again quoting from Mr. Spence, the Premier pointed out that he had stated that he knew the Progressives were prohibitionists, but that the Liberals were still on the fence. "Mr. Raney saw this and got down where the corn was."

Premier Ferguson also quoted Mr. Spence's statement suggesting that it might be a good thing to ask the Liberal party to get down off the fence. He also quoted Mr. Spence's comment that the Conservative party stood for "beer and then some," while the Progressives were dry. "Well, look them over," stated the Premier, amid laughter, "although I am not going to be personal and mention any names."

"Mr. Spence also said that he would not take the word of a single Conservative that sat through the 44 debate, in the House last session," stated the Premier. "I ask you is that tolerance?"

Mr. Sinclair: "The Premier seems to be well acquainted with the Liberal and Progressive policy. How about your own?"

Premier Ferguson: "You seem to be standing more straight on your legs now that you are sure you stand for something."

The Premier pointed out that R. W. E. Burnaby, one of the leaders of the $1,000,000 incorporation of the U.F.O. "who had $12.50 invested in it," was one of the leaders in the move to get the U.F.O. behind the Liberal party for political purposes. He read a quotation from Mr. Burnaby, in which the latter was reported to have said, "Support the Liberals and Progressives and spilt up the Conservatives and we will defeat them."

Political Affiliations.

The Premier outlined the "political activity and political affiliations of the "leading lights" of the prohibition union. He quoted Rev. Basil R. Thompson as saying that although a life-long Conservative, he had never voted for them in Ontario. "Mr. Thompson admits, therefore," continued the Premier, "that he voted against the party which gave the most advanced temperance reform to this province, and the only party which ever carried out its pledges and the party which laid the foundation for temperance reform. Then there is John Bailey, who is a hard-boiled Presbyterian Grit, and he has a right to his opinions." He also mentioned E. C. Drury, whose main object, he contended, was to smash the Conservative party instead of a sincere promotion of temperance. Mr. Drury, he said, had declined to investigate one of the greatest scandals that ever took place in the Parliament buildings. He also mentioned Dr. Coyne of the Prohibition Union, and said he had been a Liberal candidate several times.

The Premier also attacked Mr. Raney on his attitude on temperance, stating that all his criticism in the last five years had been destructive. "Every speech he has made has been inspired by political venom and personal villification of myself, which has been excellent advertising for me," he declared.

Mr. Raney: "Is pointing out the Premier's record villification? Have I said a word that has been untrue?"

The Premier said that he would produce the words at the right time. He then proceeded to challenge the statement by Mr. Raney that he had supported Whitney and Hearst, former Premiers. "In 1914 Mr. Raney was a candidate against the Whitney Government, and in 1919 he spoke at Guelph in favor of the Liberal candidate," said the Prime Minister.

Supported Conservative.

Mr. Raney rose to state that he had supported Sam. Carter, an Independent Liberal in Guelph, but that he had spoken in Toronto in favor of W. D. McPherson, a member of the Hearst Government.

The Premier said that in speaking in Guelph, Mr. Raney had spoken against a clergyman, a man who had been overseas and had two sons overseas. (Cries of "Shame" from Conservative benches).

Premier Ferguson asked who had put the temperance issue into politics? No one but the hon. gentleman opposite. "When the day comes for the people to pronounce on him he will find out what a following he has," stated the Premier.

"All I ask, in fairness and decency, can the origin of the new prohibition organization be for any other purpose but to defeat this Government? This Government is prepared to accept the challenge—(applause)—and has made up its mind to submit its views to the people when the time comes. I am sure that the people are prepared to accept the honest endeavor of a government that is trying to improve moral conditions, rather than the narrow, bitter partisan movement that seeks its destruction."

Mr. Sinclair: "What is your policy? I told you mine."

Mr. Ferguson: "I will tell you when the time comes. The Government feels that the people should be consulted, and we will announce such a policy that will appeal to the thinking people of the Province."

Mr. Raney: "Do you really know what your policy is?"

Premier Ferguson: "I think my hon. friend is joking. I'll say this. This Government will not be stampeded, coerced or driven."

"I want to say that this Government takes no second place to any organization, whether religious, prohibition or moral in its desire and effort to improve the condition of living in Ontario and in doing what is right with that end in view."

The Premier then moved his amendment.

The amendment, as moved by Premier Ferguson, wipes out the Raney amendment and substitutes the following: "This House desires furthermore to assure His Honor that it is of opinion that in the enactment of important public legislation, the principle of responsible Parliamentary government on which our British democratic institutions rest, should be observed in order that such legislation should have the undoubted support of the people as expressed through their representatives in the Legislature to the end that all such legislation should possess the authority and support necessary to command due respect and observance by the community."

OBITUARY.

PATRICK SULLIVAN.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 19.—The death occurred in Young's Point on Tuesday of a former resident of the village, Patrick Sullivan, at the age of 80 years. About two years ago Mr. Sullivan moved to Young's Point where he resided with Mr. and Mrs. James Carroll.

Mr. Sullivan made many friends in Lakefield during his residence in the village and his death will be deeply regretted.

He was for years a devout member of St. Paul's church and three years ago he gave the altar and tabernacle which are in the church as an offering of love and devotion.

EMMA KRIEGER.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 19.—The late Emma Krieger, whose death, following a lingering illness, occurred on Sunday, Feb. 14, was one of a family of nine children, six sons and three daughters, all of whom were born in Hope Township.

Her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Krieger, were early settlers in the community, coming here over fifty years ago from Hope, and making their home on Centre street, in the house now occupied by Mr. John Abbott.

After her parents' death, which occurred several years ago, deceased made her home with her sister, Mrs. W. Pendrie, first on the farm east of the village and later moving to Millbrook, where they have since resided.

Three brothers, Roger, George and Charlie, and one sister, Mrs. John Adams of Campbellford, predeceased their sister, the immediate surviving relatives being Jacob of Chatham, Spencer of New Ontario, John and Mrs. Will. Pendrie of Millbrook.

Retiring in disposition, Miss Krieger, by her quiet cheerfulness and genuine Christian character, won for herself a warm place in the esteem and affection of a large circle of relatives and friends. A life-long member of the former Methodist Church, going with her friends into the Union last June, deceased was interested in its various activities and organizations as far as health would permit, and was a life member of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary.

Never very robust in health, Miss Krieger suffered a stroke of paralysis about three months ago, from which some slight recovery was being made when a second attack, just one week previous to her death, brought the realization that no ultimate improvement might be hoped for.

The funeral took place from the residence of her brother-in-law, Mr. W. Pendrie, King street east, on Tuesday at 2.30 p.m., her pastor, Rev. F. H. Howard, having charge of the services at the house and graveside. During the service Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston sang, "Only in Jesus," the sentiment being most appropriate to the unobtrusive Christianity which characterized the life of the deceased.

The pallbearers were Messrs. A. Payne, J. McKnight, W. Mullen, T. McCullough, C. C. Garside and W. G. Hetherington.

A number of beautiful floral tributes were laid in loving memory upon the casket.

Among those from outside points who attended the funeral were: Her brother, Mr. Jacob Krieger of Chatham; a nephew, Mr. George Krieger of Chatham; a neice, Mrs. I. Pitman, and her daughter, Miss Jean Pitman, of Belleville: Mr. and Mrs. C. Lane of Port Hope; Mr. and Mrs. Copeland of Chatham; Mr. John Slivens of Port Hope, and Miss C. Trembeth of Port Britain.

Interment was in the family burial plot at Gardiner's Cemetery.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1926.

THE MOTOR LEAGUE.

Every motorist in Peterboro has been invited to attend the annual meeting of the Peterboro branch of the Ontario Motor League, which is being held tonight in the Chamber of Commerce.

There are two reasons why they should eagerly accept that invitation.

In the first place, the Motor League is their own organization, formed to fight their battles and deal with their problems.

Membership in such an organization should be regarded by all automobile owners as essential as taking out a license.

It is the duty of motorists generally to take their share of the work in looking after the interests of car owners.

And secondly, the invitation should be acted upon because an opportunity is being given tonight of hearing a speaker whose name should be known to every motorist, Dr. P. E. Doolittle, President of the Canadian Automobile Association, whose efforts on behalf of better roads and of the automobile fraternity have made him famous from one end of the country to the other.

Tonight's meeting should be marked by a very large and enthusiastic audience.

KEEP BOYS AWAY.

The general manager of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, Mr. R. B. Morley, in his monthly memorandum to employers, calls attention to two cases that have happened recently, involving the death of boys who were trespassing about industrial plants.

"For the sake of the boys themselves, keep them out of the plants," warns Mr. Morley, and his advice should be heeded.

There is a fascination for many boys in sawmills and other mills, and employees of such plants should consider it their duty to prevent the youngsters from coming into too close proximity.

Often workmen encourage boys to visit industrial plants, but this is mistaken kindness, inasmuch as there are usually elements of danger which threaten the safety of young visitors unless they are specifically warned of the risk they are taking.

The two cases referred to by Mr. Morley are, unfortunately, not isolated examples.

There have been many others of the same kind arising out of young boys coming into contact with exposed belts or getting into some other dangerous position because of their ignorance of the perils they were running.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF.

A deputation from various Ontario cities, on which Mayor Holloway represented Peterboro, waited upon Premier Ferguson the other day and received an announcement that the Ontario Government will furnish unemployment relief on the same scale as last year, which means that the Province will assume a portion of the expense of work undertaken during the winter months for the purpose of providing unemployment.

In other words, the municipalities and the Province carry the whole burden.

It does seem that a portion of the money spent in unemployment relief might be assumed by the Federal Government, which, by reason of an immigration policy bringing new citizens here, undoubtedly helps to create the conditions that bring about unemployment.

The Dominion authorities, however, refuse to admit the validity of this claim, and the buck is passed to the Provincial Government and to the municipalities.

It would be a heavy responsibility for the latter to carry on alone, and for this reason the assurance of Premier Ferguson that his Government will supply the same assistance as last year will be welcome to municipal councils.

The Government's assistance will cover the period between Jan. 1st and April 15th.

THE BASIS OF REAL GREATNESS.

Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, the noted Canadian banker, and general manager of the Bank of Montreal, when asked to give some rules for the guidance of young men submitted a list which shows, in a striking manner, his appreciation of the worth of moral integrity in all the affairs of life. They are as follows:

Intemperance—is the greatest handicap with which any young man can burden himself. There is not one who will not be tempted. Let me pass on my worthy father's words to me on leaving home, "If you touch stimulants before you are 25, mark my words, you are a fool."

Concentration—is invaluable in any career. "Genius is but prolonged attention."

Occasional Introspection—We all have faults. Many of them can be overcome, but we must find them out first.

The Care of the Body—Automatically improves the mind. As a rule, Canadians take exercise until 30 and then cease. His body, diet and exercise are always essential. In games there is the valuable mental relaxation.

Money-making—is a natural tendency today, but never forget that men who make it their sole aim are poor creatures at best. They find honesty a difficulty and rarely enjoy the genuine affection of their fellow-men.

Punctuality—is an easy but a rare virtue. It is called the "courtesy of kings."

Work—will open all the doors of life.

The observance of the Ten Commandments—forms the best basis on which any nation or any individual can rise to real greatness.

These rules, coming from a man of such wide experience, are convincing testimony that integrity of character is an indispensable factor of success in the every-day world of affairs. Society is founded on respect for the eternal, changeless moral laws, without which there would be no safeguard for the ordinary transactions of business life. Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor has been in the service of the Bank of Montreal since 1878, almost half a century, and his advice is worth pondering by young men on the threshold of a business or professional career.

LARGER JURIES.

(From the Hamilton Spectator.)

Hamilton last year had a number of exasperating experiences with the trial-by-jury system, one case in particular, which will be recalled without an identifying tag, provoking a storm of public criticism. Hamilton's experience has not been unique to this city, and it has been a matter of conjecture how much longer trial by "twelve good men and true" would be permitted to defeat the ends of justice. The judges, better than the public, were in a position to recognize the weakness of the system, but so long as they raised no dissenting voice it was not to be expected that the Government would effect a change. Now, from London, where Hon. Justice Haughton Lennox is presiding over an assize court, comes the first ball. Fourteen years' experience on the supreme court bench have convinced Justice Lennox, it is reported, that "a changed attitude toward the administration of justice has crept in almost unnoticed, with the passing of the early settlers and most of their descendants and that there is need for an amendment to the law governing trial by jury." Justice Lennox suggests, as a means of eradicating the palpable weakness of the present system—the fact that a minority of one can upset a majority of eleven—that the personnel of juries be increased to fifteen or sixteen and a verdict accepted on a concurrence of twelve. It is a thoroughly practicable suggestion, which, if adopted, will make it more difficult for juries to be tampered with by the unscrupulous and be no less fair to the prisoner at the bar than the present system. A stated number of challenges are now permitted by crown and counsel for the defense, but it is impossible to guard against untruthfulness or to gauge a man's fitness for jury service by a few cursory questions regarding his past life. A member of the jury may form an opinion during the trial on something entirely irrelevant to the case, and if he is obstinate he can—and very often does — cause a disagreement that nullifies days or weeks of probing, the expenses of which are met by the public. A concurrence of twelve in a jury of fifteen or sixteen could be accepted as representative of public opinion, which, in the last analysis, is what the trial-by-jury system is expected to be. It would be a distinct improvement in any event, overt he present unsatisfactory system.

THE OLD STYLE AND THE NEW.

It has recently been claimed by a writer of repute that the quarrels of authors, usually regarded by scholarly critics as beneath consideration, have exercised upon literature an influence not to be discounted. It may, at all events, be conceded that if they have not added to the dignity of the profession of letters, they have lent a spice to literature without which its history would have made infinitely duller reading. To read the diatribes that marked the literary combats in the old days is to be thrilled with a sense of the vigor of the English language and a new appreciation of the art of invective and vituperation.

What the poets and playwrights of the Elizabethan age thought and said of one another was expressed in terms more picturesque than polite. They certainly left no doubt as to their meaning. When Ben Jonson felt a little peeved by what a rival had written, he described him as "a scurrilous and profane jester, a foul railer and an immeasurable liar," to which the dramatist attacked retorted that Ben had "a face like a rotten russet apple when 'tis bruised," that he could "swill off more sack at a sitting than would make the guard a posset," and that "the oaths which he vomits at one supper would [illegible] a garrison town in good swearing a twelve month." Dekker called Marston "a thorny toothed rascal," and even the gentle Shakespeare was a target for abuse at the hands of jealous playwrights, one of whom dubbed him "an upstart crow, beautified with our feathers."

Not less virulent were the literary controversies of the Restoration period and the verbal duels of the eighteenth century. The fierce exchanges between Dryden and Settle, the satirical feuds between Pope and the heroes of the "Dunciad;" and the furious encounters of Smollett, Churchill and Wilkes were characterized by a pungency of expression and violence of invective that left the adversaries with scarcely a shred of character. They struck at each other with all the force that satire could suggest or that venom could command, using a vocabulary which embraced every epithet in the language.

It is different nowadays. Whether from fear of the law or libel, or from a higher sense of the dignity of the profession of letters, our modern authors are a peaceable and mealy-mouthed body, who live on terms of amity and write pretty things about each other. Even the critics have learned the art of saying severe things in a pleasant way so as not to hurt the tender feelings of the literary elect. Occasionally, however, the old spirit flares up, only to reveal the vast change that has taken place in amenities of authorship since the days of Jonson, Dryden and Smollett.

Lately, Poultney Bigelow, the American writer, published a book of recollections in which he surveyed the 70 years of his active life with a somewhat critical eye, and expressed his views of men and things with a freedom that is rather rare in these days. Recalling a tea-party at the home of the Countess Russell in London at which H. G. Wells was present, Mr. Bigelow said that popular author looked like "a lucky stockbroker or travelling salesman;" whereupon the indignant Wells writes to a London newspaper to say what he thinks of his American critic.

But, alas! how the mighty knights of the pen have fallen. What in the old days would have been a combat of wits, revelling in invective and vituperation replete with epithets and personalities of every description, is a tame affair of drawing-room bad manners. Compared with the slashing satarical contests of the seventeenth and eighteenth century scribes, the quarrel of Wells and Bigelow is a kindergarten wrist-slapping competition, in which the one complains of "impertinences" and "tentatives to vulgarity," while the other threatens a libel suit on the ground that he had been called "a bore."

In the records of authors' quarrels that enliven the history of English literature it is hardly likely that the latest example will find a prominent place. When, in sporting parlance, our modern literary scrappers enter the ring they lack the punch of their predecessors.—Ottawa Journal.

LOWER CHOIR LOFT

Port Hope Firm Expects to be Engaged One Month in Undertaking.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 18. — The work of lowering the choir loft and organ in the United Church began on Monday morning, Garnett & Son, of Port Hope, having the contract.

A number of men belonging to the church are giving a day or two each of voluntary labor, which will lessen to some extent the total cost of an expensive undertaking, and it is hoped the work may be completed within one month. Already a platform has been built and the pipe organ will be lowered on Wednesday.

A minister's vestry and a choir room will take the place of the two rooms formerly underneath the choir gallery, and in time it is hoped to add other improvements. There will be special services the Sunday the church is formally opened when the improvements are completed. The Ladies' Aid Society has assumed the financial responsibility of the undertaking, but as the entire congregation was in favor of the change, it is expected that every organization and practically everyone connected with the church will give assistance in meeting the payments.

Mr. George Garnett and his two assistants from Port Hope are with Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Garside during their stay here.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

IF I KNEW YOU AND YOU KNEW ME.

If I knew you and you knew me,
'Tis seldom we would disagree;
But never having yet clasped hands,
Both often fail to understand
That each intends to do what's right,
And treat each other "honour bright",
How little to complain there'd be
If I knew you and you knew me.

Whene'er we ship you by mistake,
Or in your bill some error make,
From irritation you'd be free
If I knew you and you knew me
Or when the checks done come on time,
And customers send us never a line,
We'd wait without anxiety,
If I knew you and you knew me.

Or when some shipment is not right
And you "kick" with all your might,
We'd take it in good part, you see,
If I knew you and you knew me.
With customers, two thousand strong,
Occasionally things go wrong;
Sometimes our fault, sometimes theirs—
Forbearance would decrease all cares;
Kind friends, how pleasant things would be
If I knew you and you knew me.

Then let no doubting thoughts abide
Of firm good faith on either side;
Confidence to each other give,
Living ourselves let others live;
But any time you come this way,
That you will call we hope and pray;
Then face to face each shall see,
Then I'll know you and you'll know me.

Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Bible reading and meditation prepared for Commission on Evangelism of Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

FRIDAY

The Incarnate "Word."

Read Jn. 1:11-18. Text: 1:14. And the Word became flesh, and dwelt among us.

Meditation—The Creative Spirit of God was embodied in the flesh, he dwelt in Jesus. When men have been good and great enough it has been said that the divine spirit was in them. In Jesus Christ we have for the first time in history a complete human personality, one in whom God lives consciously. At last the dream of the prophets has been realized; in him God dwelt so manifestly that plain men recognized him as Immanuel, "God with us." Not only so, contact with him brought the life of God into ordinary men. "To as many as received him to them gave he the power to become the children of God."

Prayer—Soul of the universe, Light of the mind of man, Spirit of Jesus Christ, who dwellest in all things, from whom and in whom and unto whom we are; we thank Thee. Thou has so formed the world and so made the heart of man that we cannot escape Thee, and would not if we could. . . . Shine through our blindness, break through all our delusions, strive with our rebellion, plead with our pride. Thou art our All, leave us not. Amen.

MOROSCO'S MILLIONS MELTED IN DREAM VILLAGE HE PLANNED NEAR LOS ANGELES

Theatrical and Motion Picture Producer Lost $5,000,000 Fortune—Defrauded by Associates in Scheme.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19. Canadian Press. — Oliver Morosco, theatrical and motion picture producer, filed an involuntary petition in bankruptcy in the federal court on Wednesday. He listed his liabilities at $1,033,000 and assets at $200.

Mr. Morosco, whose fortune at one time was estimated at about $5,000,000, lost his wealth in the failure of the Morosco Holding Company in 1923.

The federal receiver exonerated him of any responsibility for the failure of the company, asying Mr. Morosco had been the victim of the fraudulent activities of men promoting "Morosco Town," his dream village near Los Angeles, California.

The producer's wife and Pegg Hopkins Joyce are listed as ...o of his chief creditors, each being credited with claims of $15,000.

GOLDEN WEDDING

Friends and Neighbors Gather at Home of Lakefield People.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 19.—On Friday evening a number of neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Andrew Larush on Concession street to celebrate her golden wedding. The evening was spent in a social manner and was much enjoyed by all present.

Mrs. Larush spoke of the many changes in the past fifty years. The work of the housewife is lightened today by many conveniences unknown when she was a bride. Among these conveniences are sewing machines, washers and wringers, electric light and in many ways work has been made easier. The farmer's wife worked harder then than now as machinery has made work easier for women in the country as in the town. After a bountiful supper the guests dispersed wishing Mrs. Larush many more years of happy life.

LINDSAY TO RECEIVE REPORT ON PURCHASE OF GENERATING PLANT AT FENELON FALLS FROM HYDRO

Also Promised Share of Million Dollar Renewal Fund If Lines Bought.

POWER AT COST

First Step Toward Purchase of Transmission System.

LINDSAY, Feb. 19.—As a result of the visit of the deputation to Toronto on Wednesday relative to the proposed purchase by the municipality of the local Hydro distributing plant, Engineer Gaby, of the Hydro Commission has been instructed to bring in a report on the project. This report, which will be submitted to the Commission in a month's time, will fix a purchase price, and will also report on the general condition of the plant. It will also report on the second proposition—the purchase by the municipality not only of the local distributing plant, but also the generating plant at Fenelon Falls.

Chief Engineer Gaby did not favor the purchase of the Fenelon Falls power by the municipality, because of the extra buruden which would be entailed in increasing its horsepower supply. If the municipality purchased the distributing plant, The Hydro-Electric Commission would agree to sell power at cost.

Lindsay is at present using about 1500 horsepower, 952 horsepower being generated at Fenelon Falls. The balance is transmitted from the Trent river.

The renewal fund established from profits derived in the Central Ontario area amounts to about one and a half million dollars. Engineer Gaby will recommend in his report that a portion of this fund, based on the earnings of the local plant, be handed over to the municipality in the case the distributing plant becomes a municipal utility.

ONTARIO ORDERED 75,000 TONS OF COAL

Premier Ferguson Tells of Purchases.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 19.—(Canadian Press.)—Upon question by A. Belanger (Russell), in the legislature Thursday Premier Ferguson gave a review of what had been accomplished in bringing Canadian coal from Alberta to Canada. He spoke of 25,000 tons brought down some time ag... and the removal of the agreement with the National railways to bring down 50,000 tons more. Of the last 25,000 tons 10,000 were now in the province and were being alloted to 253 centres.

He said that the Ontario government with the Alberta government had engaged experts to ascertain the cost of delivery of the coal and a case would be submitted to the Dominion Railway Board. He said that he believed an order in council had already been passed at Ottawa for a hearing by the board on the question of rates on Alberta coal to Ontario. The provinces concerned would endeavor to prove that $7 a ton or approximately that sum was feasible for the transport to Ontario.

38 BODIES FROM MOUND OF SNOW

BINGHAM, Utah, Feb. 19.—(Canadian Press.) —The total known dead as a result of the snow slide here yesterday was increased to thirty-eight, with two bodies, one that of an 8-year-old boy, were removed from the debris late Thursday.

Hope was abandoned yesterday of taking anyone else out alive from Sap Gulch, near here, filled with debris by an avalanche of snow Wednesday. Rescue workmen said the entombed would have frozen to death, as thirty-six hours had elapsed since the slide.

Eight bodies have been recovered and it was believed the last would not be found until the warmth of spring had melted the mass of snow.

CRUISER SEIZED OFF ROCHESTER A RUM SUSPECT

Toronto Craft Eluded Capture by Coast Guards for Many Months.

DISABLED IN STORM

Believed to Have Recently Landed 400 Cases of Ale.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Feb. 19. — (Canadian Press). — Coastguardsmen yesterday were releasing from the ice off Wautoma Beach a 45-foot power cruiser seized Wednesday by Federal Customs agents in the belief the craft was carrying liquor.

Meanwhile William Sheldon, of Toronto, owner of the boat, was being held in $3,500 bail on two charges of smuggling, and Ulrich Meade, a negro, was held in $3,000 bail also on a smuggling charge, pending arraignment before U. S. Commissioner Phillips. Customs officers said they had been trying for months to capture the cruiser, known as the "Dancer," and that they believe Sheldon recently landed 400 cases of Canadian ale near Grand View Beach. Sheldon, when arrested, said he was taking the boat from Toronto to Kingston for repairs, and had drifted disabled in a storm until the craft became locked in the ice.

The authorities believe there was a third man in the crew and that he and Meade had gone ashore to obtain repair parts for the motor. They declared sled tracks from the craft to the shore indicated that a cargo had been landed, and believed that the accident to 'The Dancer' would end its two-year career as a rum-carrying vessel.

TWO TRAIN MEN DEAD AT POSTS

Were Instantly Killed in Collision at Castorland, N. Y.

CRUSHED TO DEATH

CASTORLAND, N.Y., Feb. 19.—Collision of a New York and Watertown passenger train on the New York Central, and a Utica-bound freight train here Thursday morning resulted in the death of two persons and the injury of several others.

The collision occurred a few feet from the station in this village.

The dead—William Bell, Utica, engineer, and Richard Quinn, Ogdensburg, fireman of the passenger train.

They were instantly killed.

The passenger locomotive was demolished.

The wreck occurred as the freight approached a siding near here. New York Central officials from the St. Lawrence division offices at Watertown arrived on the scene before 8 a.m. and started an investigation.

Several passengers were thrown from their berths and suffered minor injuries. Three mail clerks, working in one of the mail cars that was derailed, were slightly injured.

Leaped From Cab.

The freight was made up of empty flat cars and was pulled by two engines. The head engine was in charge of R. H. Chapin, engineer, and Fireman Batlin, both of Watertown. They were uninjured in a leap from the cab just before the collision. Engineer Robert McFarland and Fireman Murdock, in the second engine, also jumped. McFarland suffered a sprained ankle.

Bell and Quinn were trapped in the cab of the passenger engine. The engineer was crushed in his seat and the fireman was pierced by a poker with which he was stoking the boiler.

Dr. Grand Madill of Ogdensburg, New York Central surgeon, was on the passenger train and administered first aid to the injured. Bell and Quinn were dead when taken from the cab of the engine.

Passengers were cared for in Castorland homes, until the arrival of a relief train from Watertown, which took all to their destinations. None was injured seriously enough to require hospital treatment.

The two engines and three flat cars of the freight were derailed, while two mail cars and an express car on the passenger left the rails.

CUSTOMS PROBE COMMITTEE MAY ENGAGE COUNSEL

Will Represent Interests of Public, Hon. Mr. Meighen Urged.

BRING OUT FACTS

Montreal Lawyer Already Appointed for the Department of Customs.

OTTAWA, Feb. 19 (Canadian Press).—A motion by Paul Mercier (Liberal, St. Henri) to the effect that the special committee conducting the customs' administration enquiry be empowered to employ counsel, brought forth considerable discussion in the House Thursday After an hour's debat the motion was adopted.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, declared that he understood that it was the intention to employ one counsel for the committee in general. A much better suggestion had been made by the Conservative members on the committee, and in his opinion the employment of one counsel for the whole committee would not work satisfactorily. He could not see where success could be obtained in this manner. In all enquiries of this nature proceedings were inevitably divided into two sections. There was the side seeking to prove guilt, and the other side endeavoring to remove any inferences of wrong doing. In addition there was considerable work in the perusing of documents and exhibits.

The Petersen Enquiry.

The experi... last session in the Petersen committee showed the inadvisability of employing one counsel only for such a committee, and the regular course was the selection of counsel for each side. While the committee itself was not entitled to counsel, the public was interested in bringing out all the facts. "It is the public that is entitled to counsel," commented Mr. Meighen. He apprehended that the recommendation of the majority of the committee to employ one counsel only,

HUDSON'S BAY COST IN THE ESTIMATES

"Wait and See" Reply of Mr. Lapointe.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 19.—(Canadian Press.)—A rumor that the Government had promised the Progressives that it would not bring down a bill for the completion of Hudson's Bay Railway, lest such a bill be killed in the Senate, but would put into the estimates a sum intended for that purpose, was aired in the House of Commons Thursday.

Fred Davis, (Conservative, East Calgary) asked the Government if such a promise had been made.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe: "Wait and see. In the speech from the Throne the Government had promised that the Hudson's Bay Railway would be completed."

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen: "The honorable member asked what other promises had been made."

Mr. Lapointe: "Nothing, except what is in the speech from the Throne."

Canadian Press. — Destitute and afflicted persons the world over benefit by the will of the late Mary Street, who died in London, August 16, 1912, leaving an estate valued at $76,600 mainly in charity. The will is one of the most peculiar ever filed for probate here and though it was probated soon after the maker's death, the terms have just been disclosed.

In the will the testator directs that a life interest be given her son, Stanley Street, and her two brothers. The residue is to be made a fund to be known as the Stanley Street Fund for the benefit of destitute and afflicted persons. MURDERER PAYS FOR HIS CRIME ON THE GALLOWS

Joseph Mauro, Convicted of Slaying Last July, Dies This Morning.

CALM THROUGHOUT.

Spends Night in Prayer With His Spiritual Adviser.

MONTREAL, Feb. 19. Canadian Press. — Joseph Munro died on the gallows at Bordeaux jail th' ·rn-ing for the murder of Donald Garragher during a hold up o: the Dreamland Club in the east end of the city on the morning of July 22, 1925.

Following a night spent in prayer with his spiritual advisor, the condemned man heard mass in his cell, shortly before the time set for his execution. He was cool throughout the whole proceedings and his voice could be heard throughout the death house as he answered the prayers of the priest. After receiving holy communion, Mauro divested himself of his coat, vest, collar and tie.

With the tolling of the prison bell the death march to the scaffold was started. Executioner Ellis and his assistant awaited at the gallows and following the adjustment of the black cap and noose, the former sprung the trap at 7.58. The prisoner was pronounced dead six minutes later.

PRINCE OF WALES VISITS MARKETS

Arrives at Early Hour of 7.30 and is Greeted By Lusty Cheers.

LONDON, Feb. 19 (United Press) —In line with his preparing himself for his later Throne duties by getting close to the masses and becoming acquainted with the conditions in the Empire, the Prince of Wales to-day paid a surprise visit to the famous Smithfield Market. It was 7.30 a.m. when the Prince, attired in a brown lounge suit, soft collar and "bowler," walked in on the busy wholesale and retail mart, finding his way through aisles of meats and vegetables, and now and again pausing about prices and conditions.

He gaily shook hands with a number of the workers, while a crowd of porters in blue and white overalls cheered.

BRITAIN RETAINS MANDATE POWER

Commons Approves League of Nations Award of Irak Territory.

MUST JOIN LEAGUE.

LONDON, Feb. 19 (United Press) —Britain undertakes to exercise for 25 years more her mandate over the Iraq. The treaty, providing for such an extension, in keeping with the recent League of Nations Council award of the district with its rich Mosul oil region to Great Britain, was approved late last night by the House of Commons by a vote of 260 to 116.

Previous to the vote the House had killed a Labor amendment which proposed a declination of extension, but urged the Government to hasten Iraq's entrance into the League of Nations.

Under the League award it is proposed that Iraq shall join the League though in no specified time.

MEIGHEN DENIES OBSTRUCTION OF HOUSE BUSINESS

Government Trying To Hide Feebleness By This Suggestion, He Says.

NO LEGISLATION.

Only Question is Whether House Will Take Holiday at Country's Expense.

OTTAWA, Feb. 19. Canadian Press. — Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, last night issued the following statement:

There is evidence of an organized effort on the part of the Liberal party in the House to divert public attention from the feebleness of the government by spreading suggestions that the Conservatives are obstructing the public business. Every one knows there is no business to obstruct. The government has presented no legislation to parliament, either in the Commons or the Senate, and it has no legislation ready to present. The only question is whether we continue here or whether we go home on holiday at the country's expense till the 15th of March. One course will cost the country just as much as the other.

TAX INCREASE TO BE

and W. L. Ferguson, the guest of Charles D. Cook.

Chairman Doug. Paterson, of the Programme Committee, announced a series of excellent addresses for the next five weeks, marking an intensive attendance campaign.

Taxpayers Count.

Mayor Holloway remarked on the benefit of such organizations as Kiwanis club, and suggested that an advisory body formed of men from these organizations would be of inestimable value.

"The people," to His Worship's mind, means the 38 per cent. of the population who are property owners, and whose money is spent. The argument that the tenant should have a say in expenditures does not hold, because the tenant can get out on a day's notice, whereas the property owner has a stake in the community.

Peterborough is faced with a very serious transportation problem. It was said that a city of 50,000 inhabitants and a 5 cent fare are necessary to make a transportation system pay. "What, then," asked His Worship, "is Peterborough to do with its 22,000 population?"

There is not a man here who cannot walk from the outskirts of the city to the centre in ten to fifteen minutes, and he will not pay ten cents fare for that transportation as Mr. Magrath suggested is necessary.

We are not satisfied with any system of transportation yet worked out. I would prefer to see the Hydro settle the matter. When they throw up the sponge then we must do something.

Must Increase Taxes.

So far as Peterborough taxes are concerned, we are in a rather pleasant situation. Other municipalities have spent a great deal of money in practically useless work to give unemployment relief. Peterborough is in a very happy condition as far as unemployment is concerned. There are cases of distress, but they are few.

Regarding an Old Home Week, His Worship said Kiwanis will be called upon to help. It will probably be held next year, and may cost $12,000 to $18,000. The way to finance the plan is to have citizens guarantee the money against loss, in amounts from $1 upward. This is one of the first things to be done. It is possible to make the Old Home Week a financial success, Mayor Holloway said.

In conclusion, the Mayor again commented upon the "comfortable" condition of Peterborough in regard to finances, if expenditures are carefully scrutinized.

"We are going to make the increase in taxes as light as possible," he said. "It will be necessary to increase the tax rate some. The Education Board has increased its demand about $1,000 a month. The sewage disposal plant committments and other obligations preclude the possibility of a reduction."

Dr. G. Ray Scott moved the vote of thanks, seconded by John Dewart. Both invited His Worship to become a Kiwanian.

SPECULATION ON LIQUOR QUESTION

Rumored That Wets Will Not Introduce Their Bill.

TORONTO, Feb. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Nothing further than mere speculation by members has developed to-day as to the ultimate intentions of the Ontario Government regarding the liquor question.

There is a rumor this morning that Col. J. A. Currie and Russell Nesbitt, the Toronto members, will not now introduce their bill for the Government control of liquor. Conservative caucuses have discussed at some length the whole question, and the out-and-out drys have been as steadfast in holding out for no change as the wets have been for a change, according to corridor gossip.

AT LEGISLATURE OPENING

Lieutenant-Governor Cockshutt of Ontario is shown inspecting the guard of honor from the Royal Canadian Regiment at the opening of the Provincial Legislature.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

C. G. GRAHAM.

C. G. Graham has been a director of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition for several years, and is naturally a booster in the matter of a larger and better Fair. He asserted to-day that the Exhibition was one of the greatest assets of the city, as it provided an opportunity for arousing mutual interest between the city and the surrounding district. In his opinion, better stock has been developed within recent years because of the impetus given by the Fair for healthy growth in that respect. On the other hand, the manufacturers have had an opportunity of observing the needs peculiar to the farmer, and as a consequence have perfected facilities for catering to them on a more efficient basis.

Mr. Graham is certain of the future of the Exhibition, and believes that if the interest created last year is sustained there will be no doubt as to the position which the Peterborough show will take in the field of fall fairs.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Italian Aviators Forced To Land on Roof in City.

TRIESTE, Feb. 19 (United Press)—The aviator Mario Senatori was forced today to land on a roof when his airplane developed motor trouble. While many people watched aghast, Senatori swooped down scraping along seevral roofs and finally coming t rest with his machine hooked firmly to a chimney. It was close to the edge of the roof however and would undoubtedly toppled over had it swerved a few inches further.

CLOSURE COMING?

Steps To End Address Debate Discussed in Corridors.

OTTAWA, Feb. 19 (Canadian Press)—Will further debate on the address be ended by the closure?

The pros and cons of such a move by the government have been much discussed in Parliamentary corridors within the last few days. The Liberal members are meeting in caucus over the situation.

WORK FOR TURKS.

Foreign Taxi Drivers and Waiters To Be Replaced.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 19.—(United Press.) —In their process of "turkefying" Turkey, the authorities here have decreed that foreign taxicab drivers, waiters and waitresses must be replaced by Turks.

Now there threatens to be a shortage of taxi-cabs and of service in hotels, for most of the chauffeurs are Russian and there are scarcely any Turks to replace them. As for the waiters and waitresses, many of them are exiled Russion nobility and there are few skilled Turkish servants to take their tasks.

A school for waiters is being opened.

General List Is Weak After Firm Opening To-day

TORONTO, Feb. 19 (Canadian Press)—While a few isolated gains were shown, the market was easier on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, after a firm opening. British Columbia fishing was developed into the market leader and in a turnover of more than two thousand shares advanced 3 1 2 points at 64 1-4. Steel of Canada was the other strong spot, climbing 3 3-4 at 104 3-4. Brazilian eased half a point at 96 and F. N. Burt a half at 62, Industrial Alcohol a half at 18 and Smelters one at 239. Twin City and Brompton were also slightly lower. Mines were strong led by Dome which advanced 40 at 19.55, and McIntyre, advancing 50 at 28.00.

Price Movements Mixed On New York Market

NEW YORK, N.Y., Feb. 19 (Canadian Press). — Price movements were again so mixed in to-day's Stock Market that no definite trend was discernible. Selling converged largely on the issues of companies which are known to have shown relatively poor earnings last year, such as American Woollen, International Mercantile Marine, Union Bag and Paper, and Fox Film. The special strength of tobacco stocks was attributed to the activity of George Whelan, one of the leaders in the industry. United Cigar Stores soared six points. Speculators for an advance attempted to offset the selling of industrials by bidding up a selected list of railroad shares in the early afternoon, and were partially successful.

Trend In Mines Mixed With Trade Volume Lighter

TORONTO, Feb. 19. — Canadian Press. — Again the trend was mixed on Standard mining exchange this morning with the volume of trading still slightly decreasing Kirkland losing 3 at 127, and Columbus, Kirkland, down 2½ at 5, were the weak gold issues, together with Lake Shore down 5 at 11.90, and Baldwin down 3-8 at 3 1-8. Dome eased 25c at 19.25; Teck Hughes was strong, gaining 6 at 368, and Tough Oakes gained 1¼ at 55. Beaver was strong, Silver Leader advancing 2 3-4 at 87 1-2, and Capitol was slightly firmer Mining Corporation eased 2 at 417 and Keeley four at 171.

Break At Liverpool Cause Of Easier Chicago Prices

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—(Canadian Press.) — Influenced by a fresh break in Liverpool quotations and in the Argentine as well, the wheat market here gave way early to-day under the renewal of selling pressure. Besides, many traders apparently leaned to the view that the beneficial snow and rain over the domestic winter wheat area had for at least the time being eliminated any tendencies toward crop damage scares.

Chicago opening prices, 3-4 to 1 3-4 cents lower, May 1.66 to 1.66 1-2 and July 1.48 to 1.48 1-4, were followed by material upturns.

TORONTO, February 19. — Canadian Press. — W. E. Raney, leader of the Progressives in the Legisature, and former attorney general of Ontario, in following up his numerous questions concerning the government temperance policy, to-day gave notice of a resolution which sets forth that "the most effective legislative remedy for smuggling and other evils of the liquor traffic, is prohibition of the manufacture for sale of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes."

The motion asks the House to prohibit the manufacture of liquor.

BANQUET ENDS CLOSE CONTEST

Ladies Lose Out and Have to Provide Supper for Entire Club.

DANCE FOLLOWS

BAILIEBORO, Feb. 19.—The South Monaghan Young Peoples' Club held a very successful banquet and dance on Monday evening.

The membership campaign conducted by the paid up members proved to be a real success, and when it finally drew to a close during the first week of February it was found that over eighty new names had been added to the roll.

The girls were working against the boys to secure members, but when the campaign had closed, both sides came out almost evenly with the boys just one members in the majority. The losers had to provide the banquet, so that lot fell to the ladies. The boys, however, did not fall down when it came to providing the entertainment after the banquet, but put on a dance to which everyone did full justice until 2.00 a.m. Stewart's orchestra furnished the music.

The banquet was served in the basement of the U.F.O. hall. Nine-ty of the members were present, and partook of the magnificent supper so abundantly provided by the ladies.

It was thought best by the committees in charge to dispense with toasts at the banquet, and as it was St. Valentine's season, each guest was provided with a heart. Upon each heart was a number and two numbers were divided between the boys and girls, when the supper was prepared the ladies had to go upstairs where the boys were seated in the dance hall and locate the man with a number to match her own. At the conclusion of the supper, each guest had to write a Valentine verse upon the heart and address it to some one in the audience. These verses were then collected and read by Miss Emma Tate, Messrs. Roy Rutherford and Harry Campbell, causing much merriment by the humorous verses.

During the evening a lucky dance was held and Miss Greer and Mr. Huggins were successful in obtaining the lucky number, and receiving a box of chocolates.

The Young Peoples' Club of South Monaghan has been holding very interesting and instructive meetings during the winter, and now that the membership roll has increased to about one hundred and twenty members the club has an abundance of members to put in a most enjoyable season.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 19.—A successful euchre party was held on Monday evening, February 15, under the auspices of the Golgotha Preceptory No. 381, in the rooms in the Ferris block. There were twenty tables of progressive euchre. Ladies first prize was drawn by Mrs. Claude Duncalfe, and gentlemen's prize by Mr. Peter Stephens. Lone hands—Ladies, Mrs. Runions, and gentlemen, Mr. Mason. Consolation prizes were given to Mrs. Jas. Moir and Mr. Thos. Hall. After the game, lunch was served.

Epworth League.

The Young People of St. John's United Church held their Epworth League meeting on Monday evening. There was a good attendance and an excellent programme. The president, S. A. Maguire, was chairman. Jack Boyd gave a violin solo, Messrs. Lucy, Bell, Bygott and Henson sang a quartette, and Ronald Richardson gave a violin solo; Mrs. Geo. Kingston gave a very interesting talk on Canadian poets, and Mesdames Bell and Scotland. Mr. Maguire gave poems by some of these poets. Next Monday evening the League will hold a social evening.

Sunday School Choir.

The Sunday School choir of St. John's Church, with the leader, G. W. Lucy, spent a pleasant social time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sloggett of Seymour on Tuesday evening, Feb. 16. Mr. Sloggett took the young folks out to his home in a sleigh, and the evening was spent in games and singing. Mrs. Sloggett served a dainty lunch and all voted a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Sloggett for their hospitality.

Valentine Tea.

An enjoyable afternoon was spent at St. John's Church on Tuesday afternoon, when the W.M.S. of the church gave a Valentine tea. The chairman, Mrs. George Hammond, opened the programme with a few well-chosen remarks. Dr. L. G. Young and Mrs. H. O. Richardson sang a duet; Mrs. W. H. Ashton gave a reading; Mrs. Robert Scott sang a solo; Miss Emma Meiklejohn, a solo; Miss Kathleen Connor and Miss Meiklejohn, a duet; Mrs. Robert Scott recited a poem written by the late Mrs. T. E. Moffat of Campbellford; Misses Irene Stephens and Cherrie Turner played a duet; Miss Stephens gave a piano solo, and Mrs. D. A. Montgomery gave a reading. The tea booth was trimmed with streamers and hearts, and the tables had many hearts and candles for decorations. A large number of ladies were present to enjoy the lunch and social time.

PLAY AT APSLEY WAS SUCCESSFUL

Many Appreciative Comments Made on Presentation—Apsley News.

APSLEY, Feb. 18—St. George's Church held its annual Valentine party on Friday evening, when a large audience thoroughly enjoyed the production of the three act play "Brown Eyed Betty," performed by local talent. The flattering comments afterwards made by the audience were well deserved as each character acted his or her part with great credit. The play was pronounced the best yet produced in the parish room, and deserves to be repeated. The cast was as follows: Jonas Hutchins, Roy Brown; Hiram Whitcombe, Herb. Lean; Harry Leon, George Carr; Jim Blinn, Gordon Earnshaw; Sam Mason, Herb Earnshaw; Rev. Cyrus Hardy, C. Spence; Miranda Hutchins, Miss Ella Brown; Letitia Starbird, Mrs. G. Kelborn; Violet Hutchins, Miss Cicely Spence; Lucinda Mason, Miss Phyllis Spence; Hudah Griffin, Mrs. C. Smith; Brown Eyed Betty, Miss A. Howlett.

There was an auction after the play of valentines made by some of the ladies, a prize being offered for the prettiest. This was awarded to Miss Phyllis Spence, the judges being Mrs. Ogden and Mrs. Hawkes. Another prize was given for the valentine fetching the highest price which was won by Amy Lean. The total proceeds amounted to $28.70. After deducting expenses the sum of $23 was left towards paying off the insurance premium on the parsonage and hall.

The Rev. C. Spence is making an appeal for clothing and bedding for Mrs. Matt Woodbeck who lost everything she possessed when her home was burned last Monday, reported in Thursday's Examiner. The hired man, it is learned, sustained severe burns on the face and hands in a vain attempt to save some of the effects.

Mr. M. Duffus last week with his snowmobile came from Peterborough to Apsley in less than three hours and went on to a lumber camp about seven miles north of Coe Hill, returning on Friday. He reported having made the trip with little difficulty, a quite noteworthy feat considering the snow drifts he had to encounter.

A quilt top was donated by one of the members which will be quilted on Wednesday afternoon and donated, along with a pair of blankets to a family in town.

A card from Miss L. Parson for flowers received and kindnesses shown during her recent sad bereavement was read by the secretary.

Mrs. J. Widdis read a splendid paper on Institute work, which received rapt attention.

Refreshments were served at the close and a social half hour enjoyed.

Presbyterian W.M.S.

On Wednesday afternoon last about twenty ladies of the Continuing Presbyterian church gathered at the home of Mrs. E. H. Mitchell for the monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society.

After the devotional exercises had been conducted by the President, several items of business were transacted. It was unanimously decided to send a letter of sympathy to Mrs. Armstrong Windrim, who was unable to be present owing to illness both of herself and her husband.

Miss Lillian Blaylock read a chapter from the old study book, "The Island Beautiful," and Mrs. S. J. Mackey read a chapter from the new book, "Prayer and Missions."

The roll call was responded to by a verse of Scripture containing the world "holiness."

The collection amounted to $6.10.

The moral meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. O. G. Williamson, the day having been changed from the first Wednesday to the second Wednesday of each month.

TUXIS BOYS HAVE MINSTREL SHOW

Baskets of Edibles Were Sold to a Profit—All Satisfied.

CAVAN, Feb. 19.—The seventh annual basket social under the auspices of the "Hearts of Oat" Tuxis Square of Cavan United Church was held in the Community Hall on Friday evening.

The programme was in the form of a minstrel show. Fifteen boys took part including the leader, R. Sutton and the pastor, Rev. J. O. Totten. Many comical stories and jokes were told. The choruses given by the negroes were much enjoyed by all. They included "Way Down South in Dixie," "My Old Kentucky Home," and other coon songs. Mr. Totten sang two solos which were greatly applauded. One of the boys gave a couple of excellent selections on the mouth organ and bones.

After the interesting programme was concluded, Mr. R. S. Staples auctioned the baskets. The highest bid for a basket was $3.60. The boys sold lunches to those who did not take baskets and hot coffee was served to all. The entire proceeds of the evening was about $50. The appreciation of the audience and the financial results of the concert greatly pleased the boys who had worked so hard to prepare the entertainment.

CHURCH DOCTRINES SERMON SUBJECT

Pastor of Seymour Circuit Will Explain Stand of the United Church.

BURNBRAE, Feb. 19. — On Sunday, Feb. 14, Rev. C. Daniel, pastor of the Seymour Circuit commenced a series of sermons dealing with the "Doctrines of the United Church of Canada." In his opening remarks Mr Daniel stated that some opponents of the United Church have claimed that this church had no doctrines. To disprove this claim and at the same time give members of the church a clearer conception of its doctrines and teachings this series of sermons had been arranged. The subject of Sunday's address was "The doctrine concerning God and Revelation." The text was John 4:24: "God is a spirit, and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth." The great theologians of different ages had various ideas concerning God and the speaker quoted several of these as they had been put into language by their originators. The doctrine that had been accepted by the United Church as laid down in the basis of union, he said, contained all that was finest and best in all these various definitions.

The subject of next Sunday's sermon will be "The Doctrine of the United Church concerning Sin."

The topic for Mr. Daniel's talk to the boys and girls was "Where do we find God." By various illustrations he showed that man comes closer to God when in sympathetic touch with his fellow men.

VALENTINE TEAS

MILLBROOK, Feb. 19.—A very pleasant and successful Saint Valentine social evening was held in the basement of the United Church on Monday evening, under the auspices of the Missionary Department of the Young People's League.

Red hearts, large and small, many of them pierced with white darts; red shades on the lights, and red bunting draped back of the platform created the right atmosphere for the occasion. Misses Margaret Howard and Etta Peel were cashiers for the entrance fee, and Mrs. G. W. Sayles, convener of the Missionary Department, welcomed all comers, presenting each with a slip of paper by means of which partners were found later in the evening.

The pastor, Rev. F. H. Howard, was chairman, the items on the programme including:

Opening chorus—"What a Friend We Have in Jesus."

Invocation by the pastor.

Chairman's remarks.

Reading, "The Maid of Long Ago," by Jack Stinson.

Character song—"Widow Simpkins and Mr. Bodkin," by Jean Stinson and Lawrence Rowland.

Recitation—"If the Corners of Your Mouth Turn Down," by Bernice Smith.

Reading—"Miss Perkins Comes to Call," by Hazel McMahon.

Partners for the contests which followed were found by matching the slips of paper, each of which contained one line of a nursery rhyme, the leaders coming to the front and calling out his or her verse until the group of four was complete. Any formality existing in the audience, which was a fairly large one, rapidly disappeared under this system of making everybody a "good mixer."

The "art gallery" tested everyone's knowledge of familiar paintings, the objects arranged on tables or fastened on the walls typifying, sometimes in a far-fetched manner, the titles of various pictures. The winners in this contest were Councillor G. W. Sayles' group, first, and Mrs. F. W. Smith's group, second.

A musical contest followed, Miss Ella Elson presiding at the piano and playing the first line of a number of songs, Mrs. Sayles reading the questions, and the groups guessing the selection played. Miss Jean Burnham's group won in this, Elsie Spence's and R. Larmer's tied for the consolation. Home-made candy was the prize in each case.

A large heart pinned on the blackboard tempted most of the younger folk to try throwing the dart, the ring which was pierced having a fortune attached. The colors were green, black, yellow, blue, red, and the fortune rhymed with the shade where the dart stuck fast.

There was a generous treat of candy for everyone present, little taffy hearts being particularly popular.

The receipts totalled $15.00.

WHISTLER STUDIED BY ART ASSOCIATION

Art Study Club Heard of Work of American Artist.

The meeting of the Art Study Club of the Women's Art Association held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Meredith, Water Street, was featured by a fine paper on "Whistler," read by Mrs. W. Sangster. The response to the roll call was a quotation from the works of John Ruskin.

James McNeil Whistler was born at Lowell, Massachusetts, in 1834. His father, George Washington Whistler, was an artillery officer and a civil engineer, and his mother was Anna McNeil Whistler, of Scotch descent. Both were of aristocratic lineage and were well educated. When Whistler was nine years of age, his parents went to St. Petersburg, in Russia, where his father was in charge of the construction of a railroad from Moscow to St. Petersburg. Later, his father died in Russia, and the mother and child came back to Connecticut. Whistler was entered at the Military Academy at West Point but was later dismissed as he refused to bow to the discipline of the school.

He went to Washington, where he took a position in the Coast Survey Department, and began to take an interest in etching. Then he decided to take up the study of art, and went first to England to study, then to Paris. When one of his pictures was rejected by the Paris Salon some years later, disappointment drove him to London, where he finally made a name for himself as a painted and etcher, being considered in the latter art as second only to Rembrandt. His first success came with his etchings known as "The Thames Series," despicting the river life of the barges, the wharves and the warehouses, among the best known examples of this set being The Pool, The Thames Police and The Black Lion Wharf. Then came the "Leyland Period" of etchings, done under the patronage of Mr. Frederick R. Leyland of Princess Street, whose home was decorated by Whistler, the work included the famous Peacock Room.

Among the most noted of his paintings is the one depicting his mother, a portrait of Carlyle and one of Miss Alexander.

While in London, the famous controversy arose between Whistler and Ruskin. The former painted a picture entitled "Falling Rocket Stars," which was severely criticized and ridiculted by Ruskin, who dubbed it "A pot of paint thrown in the face of the public." Whislter brought suit against Ruskin and after several years' litigation, was awarded damages of one farthing.

At the age of 54, Whistler married the widow of his friend, Goodwin, and continued to live in London until the time of his death, in 1903. When he died, he was acclaimed as one of the greatest painters of the age, his fame waxing greatest over the success of the picture of his mother bought for only $800 dollars in 1891 by the French Government and placed in the Luxembourg, where it is now esteemed as one of the most prized possessions of the nation.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, March 2, at the home of Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, when a paper on "Westminster Abbey" will be given by Mrs. N. H. Sutton. The response to the roll call will be a reference to one of the great cathedrals of the world.

LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN MET

Routine Business and Discussion Took Place Yesterday.

SPLENDID ADDRESS.

The Local Council of Women held its regular monthly meeting yesterday afternoon in the green room of the Young Women's Christian Association; the president, Mrs. Arthur Stevenson, in the chair. Routine business was transacted, and the minutes of the last meeting read by Mrs. J. Wearing.

Discussion on several subjects took place. The Council approved of the suggestion made by the Board of Health, recommending that licenses be issued to all who supply milk to the local vendors, such licenses to be issued by the Sanitary Inspector. Several of the members thought this a most necessary precaution, and recounted experiences with places where conditions were not desirable as sources of milk supply.

The matter of the new Parole Board which is under consideration by the Government was also brought up, and a letter on the subject read from Dr. Margaret Patterson, Judge of the Women's Court in Toronto. Dr. Patterson advanced several reasons in support of the resolution recently advanced by the Toronto Local Council, advocating a Parole Board of women for women offenders, and also spoke of the duties of police women.

A feature of the meeting was the extremely fine address given by Mrs. Charles McKinnon, on "The Attitude of the United States to the League of Nations."

Mrs. McKinnon, who has a very pleasant manner of speaking, and who address was given with the aid of only a few notes, gave a remarkably clear review of the subject, which proved intensely interesting to her audience.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

VINCENT EASTWOOD.

Vincent Eastwood, when questioned regarding his opinion of the Peterborough Exhibition, said:

"I am heart and soul for it. Any organization which has for its aim, in part, the development of the live stock industry is on a very solid foundation, and is entitled to the support of every man, woman and child in this district.

"If they give the cow a chance," he continued, "she will pay off the national debt within a reasonable time. There is no machine as capable as the cow, and that applies in a general way to other live stock.

"I think the County Council should more enthusiastically support the Executive with a more liberal grant.

"The present leading Executive officers have done a very valuable work for the district and should receive the support which is gradually being accorded them."

Palestine For The Jew. Why?

The eyes of the world are upon Palestine and the efforts of the returning Jews to make it again a land "flowing with milk and honey."

Since Britain was given a mandate over the land she has encouraged the return of the Jew and the setting up of a Jewish State.

Already, since the World War, millions of money, and the efforts of thousands of earnest workers have been concentrated on the re-establishment of a national home-land for the Jew in Palestine. What is significant about this great activity?

Are the old Bible prophecies in actual course of fulfillment before our eyes?

C. H. Cahan and Hon. Lucien Cannon in Another Clash.

OTTAWA, Feb. 19 (Canadian Press) — Another clash between Hon. Lucien Cannon, Solicitor-General and C. H. Cahan (Conservative, St. Lawrence-St. George) marked resumption of the debate on the address in the House of Commons Thursday afternoon. Mr. Cahan referred to Mr. Cannon's criticism of his lengthy speech and used the word "obstruction."

The Solicitor-General rose to a point of privilege and quoted Hansard at length to prove that Mr. Cahan had himself said that he would himself "obstruct."

Speaker Lemieux intervened. He had already ruled, he said, that no member was entitled to accuse another of obstructing, nor to say that he was "wasting public money." Any member had a right to speak as long as he chose on any question before the House under the normal rules.

Mr. Cahan said that he did not think that the government had one single public measure which it was prepared to place before the House. If it had such a measure, and was willing to proceed with it, he was prepared to ask his leader to rescind any resolutions passed at the instance of the government, which stood in the way of dealing with such public business.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, acting government leader, interjected to point out that the motion which had been moved by the government to give precedence to the consideration of the address was the usual one. This motion had had the unanimous vote of the house.

Unaware of Adjournment

Mr. Cahan enquired if Mr. Lapointe was willing to agree to the rescinding of this motion of precedence. The "real dart" of this motion was a subsequent one calling for an adjournment on March 15th. This motion of preceednce had been endorsed when Opposition had no knowledge of the motion for adjurnment.

"Does the Hon. gentleman ever read the newspapers?" interjected Hon. Chas. Stewart, Minister of Interior.

Mr. Cahan replied that he had read news to the effect that the government's press was endeavoring to create the impression that the opposition was obstructing the business of the house. The statements which were also expressed in the "short, sharp interruption of the Hon. Solicitor General" shortly before adjournment last night, were not in accordance with the facts. "The verities should be known," he said.

Mr. Cannon arose to speak but his voice could not be heard above the thumping of desks on the part of a number of members on the opposition side.

Mr. Cahan again arose to continue his remarks while Mr. Cannon remained standing.

Members on both sides of the chamber joined in the disorder.

Speaker Lemieux appealed for order.

"I am sorry," Mr. Cahan was heard to say, "That my very pleasant remarks act as a pin prick upon the conscience of the Hon. gentlemen."

Mr. Cannon aagin rose to interrupt, amid cries of "sit down, sit down," from the Conservative benches.

"The position in which we find ourselves today," Mr. Cahan continued, but his further remarks were drowned by interruptions from Liberal members.

"If the Hon. Opposition have any sense of fairness," began Mr. Cannon.

"I have no objection to being interrupted in the ordinary course of events," stated Mr. Cahan, "but when the Hon. gentleman propounds questions for the mere purpose of creating a turmoil and disorder almost unprecedent in this assembly, I must refuse to take notice of them."

Resuming his remarks, Mr. Cahan stated that the government was absolutely incapable of functioning. The remedy from present conditions lay in an appeal to the people. The situation from the Atlantic to the Pacific was one of dissatisfaction.

In closing, Mr. Cahan said that the present government had shown beyond all doubt that it was utterly in capable of dealing with conditions in the country. Defeat of the Government in the House of Commons and in the country would again give confidence to Canadian employer and employee. It would encourage investment of foreign capital in the industries of Canada. It would inaugurate an era of general prosperity in this country, the like of which had not been seen for many years. It was the duty of the house to declare that the government does not function, cannot function, and that the prosperity of the country is in the balance while it remained in power.

Hon. Lucien Cannon

Hon. Lucien Cannon, Solicitor General, remarked in opening that Mr. Cahan had commenced his speech by saying that he was gagged. Then he had spoken for approximately 5 1-2 hours.

"I wonder how long he would have spoken if he had not been gagged" Mr. Cannon said. The gag was an invention of the Tory party and it had for its father the leader of the Opposition. The government had no intention of imposing the gag so long as the House of Commons conducted itself with dignity. "We have no intention of imposing the gag so long as the Opposition recognizes that we are the Government while we command a majority in this house," Mr. Cannon declared.

If the Opposition had been really anxious to make an issue of the matter, any member on that side could have moved that the floor he given to Mr. Cahan rather than Mr. Bird last Tuesday, Mr. Cannon said Why had no member done this? The reason was that the Opposition had just been defeated on a division and they knew they would be defeated again on such a motion. Mr. Cannon declared that the question now before the house was very simple. "It is," he said "whether a majority in this house is to be obstructed by a mere majority." He asked every open-minded member, whether Conservative or Liberal, whether or not the dignity of the House had been upheld by the previous speaker.

Took Two Sessions

"What has been his performance?" he asked. "I thas been to hold up business for nearly two sittings while he read articles which have already been read by thousands in the Montreal Star." He had observed that Mr. Meighen had been zealous in coming to the support of Mr. Cahan on points of order. Why had he been thus zealous? "Because one of his rivals for leadership was committing before the people of Canada the best act of hari-kari ever committed."

"If he wants to transfer the House of Commons into a clearing house for Lord Atholstan and his electoral debts, he can't do it," said Mr. Cannon, referring to Mr. Cahan's speech. The House of Commons should let Lord Atholstan know that he might rule in the offices of the Montreal Star, but he couldn't in Parliament. He asked how Mr. Cahan could reconcile his talk of depression in the country with the millions which had been spent on the Conservative campaign in Quebec.

This money had come from the Atholstans and the McConnels, and other selfish interests in Montreal.

"Let these capitalistic friends know that they can't fool all the people all the time," declared Mr. Cannon. The House of Commons should vote the address and then discuss legislation which the government would bring down and on which it proposed to stand.

The Solicitor General asserted that the will of the people was that the government should go ahead. When the leader of the opposition had gone down to Bagot "as the apostle of anti-Imperialism," when he had abandoned the attitude which he had assumed for 20 years, what was the reply of the people of that constituency? "The reply was that in the Irish where the hon. gentleman made his longest speech the Liberal majority was increased by 200," Mr. Cannon added.

"What was the result in Prince Albert?" he asked amid Liberal cheers. In Prince Albert, "following the meanest, smallest campaign ever waged against a public leader," the Prime Minister had been elected with a huge majority.

"Western Canada rose and said that it was most insistent that the Opposition leader should sit where he is sitting now," Mr. Cahan said. Notwithstanding the zeal shown by Opposition members the government could and would carry on the business of Parliament.

Sir Henry Drayton.

Sir Henry Drayton (Conservative, West York,) complimented Mr. Cannon on having made a good appeal with little material to work with. "It was an appeal to passion," said Sir Henry, "in which no reason can find a place." That was the only kind of appeal which would ever prevail for the Liberal party, he said.

Abandon Adjournment.

Sir Henry thought that the motion for an adjournment, which carried the House, should be discharged, and the government should abandon its intention of suspending public business. No money for staff, etc., would be saved by closing the House during this period, and members of Parliament would be getting their indemnities just as much as if they were in their places. "Members of Parliament are supposed to earn their indemnities," added Sir Henry.

Premier King's success in Prince Albert was a poor triumph, said Sir Henry. He had no Progressive or Conservative opponent.

There was derisive laughter at this point from the Liberal benches.

Sir Henry repeated his assertion, and then remarked that the "Hudson's Bay Railway had delivered its greatest and most important load of freight it will ever carry under the present government," Sir Henry asserted.

Sir Henry then turned his attention to the Rouyn Railway. He had no desire whatever to attack the building of a railway which would open up the vast mineral wealth in this part of the country. He did attack however the "method under which this government deceives and flouts parliament and the people of this country, and did so in this particular question."

A company had been formed, in respect to the building of this line, which Sir Henry termed as a "dummy company." As far as he was able to ascertain the directors mentioned in the charter were "employees of the Canadian National Railway — stenographers in the office. "This dummy company" had entered into a lease of the railway, with the Canadian National for 30 years.

The road, Sir Henry said, was to be built out of $5,000,000 worth of bonds. The government had put up a screen in the shape of this dummy company, but the country was liable for every cent of money under these bonds.

Government Responsible.

Sir Henry reviewed the account of the bond issue, declaring that "in this sorry venture the liability of the country was absolute," the government was responsible for everything, and the dummy company for nothing. Every possible provision had been made to make the guarantee of the bonds absolute. The whole idea of the agreement was to get around the law.

The government, said Sir Henry, had been "in such indecent haste to shove the precious line of railway through, for reasons best known to themselves, but strongly suspected to be for purposes not unconnected with the last election." The government had passed the order in council authorizing the construction of the road by a "phantom company." Sir Henry read the order in council and claimed that it left not the slightest doubt that it was the government in the name of a phantom company which was building the road. The Province of Quebec was named as partly responsible for the expenditure but the Federal government was so anxious to start the road that it had apparently passed its order in council preparatory to floating its bond issue, before any confirming legislation could be passed through the Legislature of Quebec.

The order in council made His Majesty say—"And, Oh, Mr. Speaker, what crimes are done in the name of the King! It is a pity that His Majestys name should be affixed to such a doctument as this," commented Sir Henry, the King had been made to say that the road should be completed with all reasonable expedition and leased to a company. There could be no doubt, said Sir Henry, that the work was the work of this government carried on under a subterfuge.

The credit for the financing of this railway was being furnished by the Canadian National. The House had however received assurances a few sessions ago that this sort of financing would stop with the Scribe Hotel deal.

"Why was it we were told in the last session of this House that this was to be built by capitalists?' asked Sir Henry. Was it to indicate that the country ought to have no confidence in the government. In passing the order in council in question in September last the government was "running true to form."

PROPOSALS FOR CUSTOMS WALL WERE ADOPTED

Statement of R. P. Sparks Before Parliamentary Committee Yesterday.

SEVERAL CLASHES.

Warrant For Arrest of Witness Who Failed to Appear.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 19.—(Canadian Press.)—Efforts of the Commercial Protective Association to secure the pasasge of drastic laws dealing with commercial smuggling in Canada, were reviewed at Thursday's sitting of the customs probe. R. P. Sparks, the association's president, was again on the stand. His correspondence with Premier King and other members of the cabinet was reviewed by J. C. Elliott, a Liberal member of the committee. Mr. Elliott suggested that Mr. Sparks had secured the co-operation of the government in the association's campaign against smuggling, that its suggestions for changes in the customs act had been to a large extent adopted, and that the law had been as strong as possible. Mr. Sparks admitted this in a general way.

Little or no new matter was brought out yesterday. There were several wordy battles between Hon. R. B. Bennett and Dugald Donaghy at the committee table. At one stage Mr. Bennett characterized some remarks of Mr. Donagh's as "the cheapest kind of political nonsense that any reputable man ever used." When Mr. Donaghy thanked him for a compliment paid "in the heat of debate," Mr. Bennett blandly replied that the remark was "made with great deliberation." Mr. Donaghy told Mr. Bennett that he was "making a farce out of the committee." Now and again other members of the committee took brief debate in these clashes and feeling at times ran high.

Mr. Sparks was the only witness yesterday. One witness, G. Sherer, of Ford, Ont., failed to appear and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

BLASPHEMY TRIAL INVOKES OLD STATUTE OF NEW ENGLAND DAYS

Denial of God by Lithuanian in Brockton, Mass.—Urged Revolution.

ADVOCATED SOVIET

BROCKTON, Mass. Feb. 19.—Canadian Press. — Particulars of the words attributed to Anthony Bimba of Brooklyn, N.Y., a Lithuanian lecturer, on a charge of blasphemy, has been lodged against Bimba under a 300-year-old Massachusetts statute were filed in court here yesterday by J. Manuel Ruben, the city prosecutor, on motion of defense counsel.

An English translation of the statement said to have been made by Bimba at a meeting in Lithuanian Hall here, was given as follows:

"People have built churches for the last 2000 years and we have sweated under Christian rule for 2000 years. And what have we got? The government is in the control of the priests and bishops, clerics and capitalists. They tell us there is a God. Where is He?

"There is no such thing. Who can prove it? There are still fools enough who believe in God. The priests tell us there is a soul. Why, I have a sole, but that sole is in my shoe. Referring to Christ, the priests also tell us He is a God. Why He is no more a God than you or I. He was just a plain man."

Particulars were filed also of a second charge against Bimba, that of seditious utterances. He is alleged to have advocated the overthrow of the "capitalistic government by revolution in the same way that they did in Russia," and the establishment of the Soviet form of government in Washington.

BASKET SOCIAL

Members of Sunday School Class Held Fine Entertainment.

BAILIEBORO, Feb. 19.—On Friday evening the members of the Mission Band of the United Church held a very successful basket social in Mr. Bateson's hall.

There was a splendid crowd present and a thoroughly good time was enjoyed.

The chief feature of the program was a debate, "Resolved that cars do more good than harm." The subject was keenly contested by both sides who were determined to win their decision, and the affirmative was ably taken by Geddes Harper and Miss Kathleen Barnard, while the negative was argued by Karl Lang and Miss Kathleen Bateman.

The judges who were Miss Mary Earle for the affirmative, Mr. McClain for the negative, and Harry Campbell as independent judge, after a lengthy discussion, finally decided that the debate was a tie, and that both sides were so evenly matched that a decsion to give either side the victory was impossible.

Messrs. Tom McCamus and Clair Winslow of Ida were present, and with their numerous comic duets and enchores, as usual delighted the large audience.

Hector Jewison made a capable auctioneer, causing many hearty laughs by his humorous speeches, and about seventy beautifully decorated baskets found ready purchasers. The basket bringing the highest price was in the neighborhood of two dollars, and quite a neat sum was realized from the receipts of the evening, which will go into the treasury of the "Willing Workers" Mission Band, to be used for missionary purposes.

Motor cars were humming through the village streets on Sunday, and were almost as plentiful as they would be in summer time. One motorist, however, blockaded the road in the deep snow north of the village on Sunday afternoon, when his tire came off the rim, destroying the tube entirely. It took him some time to get his tire fixed up, and during this time almost a dozen cars were stopped, both ahead and behind him, waiting for the crippled car to move out of the snow cut so that they might journey upon their respective ways.

FRONTIER DISPUTE.

Austria Cannot Accept St. Germaine Treaty Boundary, Says Chancellor.

PARIS, Feb. 19 (Canadian Press)—Austria cannot regard as just the frontier fixed by the St. Germaine Treaty, General Ramek, Chancellor is quoted by the Havas correspondent at Vienna, as having informed the general commission of the National Council, in discussing Mussolini's recent speeches on the Italianization of Upper Adige and the problem of the Brenner Pass.

The Chancellor explained that Austria recognized these frontiers because she signed and ratified the treaty. He insisted that Austria wished to live on terms of amity with Italy, but pointed out that the measure the Italian authorities were using against Italian minorities in the South Tyrol were in contradiction to the Italian governmen's promise of liberal treatment.

The Austrian minister at Quirinal, the correspondent adds, has been requested to demand explanations of certain references in Mussolini's recent speech to the Brenner frontir.

PLANS FOR 1926 FAIR DISCUSSED BY SEYMOUR DIRECTORS BOARD

Advisability of Holding a Two-day Fair Was Considered.

CHANGES SUGGESTED.

Moving Judges Stand and Cutting Down Race Track Proposed.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 19.—Deputy Reeve Palliser, representing the Town Council, at a special meeting of the directors of the Seymour Agricultural Society Thursday night asked that the society grant the town the free use of the Fair Grounds as a location for a camp for visiting auto tourists, the town to assume all expenses connected with the enterprise. The directors present agreed with the Deputy Reeve that a camp would be an excellent advertisement for the town, and the unanimous consent of the board was given to the request on motion of Directors Horkins and Hume, the only reservation being that the society is to have the grounds whenever they are required for agricultural purposes.

The society went the Council one better when it was decided to give the latter permission to store their road machinery in the buildings on the grounds during the month when this machinery is not in use. At present the Council is paying rent for a shelter for the road roller and stone crusher. The directors felt that the Council was entitled to this consideration as a return for the annual grant made to the society.

Victoria Day Celebration.

It was decided to hold the usual celebration on Victoria Day, and the following committees were appointed to make the necessary arrangements:

Sports—T. J. Horkins, Henry Watters, Garnet Kerr, Dr. S. L. O'Hara and Secretary J. Nelson Stone.

Printing—G. A. Kingston, Alex. Hume and E. A. McCook.

Finance — W. H. Locke, W. M. Stephens, R. Innis, W. J. Abernethy and George Hendy.

President Wynn is a member of all committees.

The Annual Grants.

President Wynn, Directors Hume and Horkins were appointed a committee to wait on the Town Council at the next regular meeting to ask for the annual grant. President Wynn, Secretary Stone and Directors Hume, Horkins and John Locke will approach the Seymour Council on the same mission.

Reports of Delegates.

W. M. Stephens, who was a delegate to the annual meeting of the Central Fairs' Association at Belleville, gave a report of what was done at that gathering. The date for the Campbellford Fair conflicts with that of Tweed, and it had been found impossible to make any other arrangement.

President Wynn and Secretary Stone gave reports of the recent meeting of the Ontario Fairs' Association at Toronto. One of the matters discussed was the advisability of holding the school fairs in conjunction with the exhibition of the Agricultural Society, and the directors were in favor of this idea. Such an arrangement would call for the holding of a two days' fair here, the first day to be given over to the school children.

"Campbellford is no longer a village," said Director Horkins, "and in my opinion it is big enough to support a Fair held for two days."

To Increase the Membership.

Director Horkins said that something should be done to increase the membership of the society, and suggested as a means to this end that every officer make it his aim to get 20, and every director strive to secure 10 new names. Director John Locke thought that the logical course was to get the exhibits first and then the members would come in as a matter of course.

Secretary Stone was instructed to have a sufficient number of membership cards printed.

Changes Suggested.

A question that was referred to at the annual meeting came up for discussion. Director Horkins is not satisfied with the returns from the grand stand, and thinks that the trouble is due to the arrangement of the grounds. The judges' stand on the race track, he says, obstructs the view of those in the grand stand, and that from their seats they cannot see what is going on in the small show ring. He is in favor of having the judges' stand moved out of the way, either north or south of its present location, and would also move the small ring close to the race track, directly in front of the grand stand. If this were done those sitting in the latter building would be able to see what was going on in any part of the grounds.

Race Track Problem.

The race track is the regulation mile circuit, and this, Director Horkins says that this fact makes it unpopular with the owners of racing stock who do not wish to get a low mark for their horses, and who hold them back when they race here. Warkworth has a three-quarter mile track, and that village always has good horses, but they are driven to win. Mr. Horkins would have the track made shorter, and in this he was backed up by Dr. O'Hara, who is the recognized horse expert on the board.

No action was taken on this question, other than appointing Directors Hume and Kingston a committee to look over the grand stand situation.

The members of the board present were: President Wynn, Secretary Stone, and Directors Hume, Stephens, John Locke, W. Locke, Kingston, Innis, Horkins and O'Hara.

The date for the Campbellford Fair this year is September 30 and October 1.

Strenghten up for Winter!

A RUN DOWN body is an easy prey to colds, influenza, pneumonia and other winter ills. If you let yourself get run down, you will find that the slightest exposure to a draught or dampness will often bring on a severe cold or even dreaded pneumonia.

Medical research has definitely proved that one of the causes of a run down condition of the body is a shortage of certain mineral elements, including iron, potassium, calcium, sodium and phosphorus, and until a sufficient supply of these minerals is restored to the body, good health is impossible. Wincarnis contains every one of these elements in addition to other health giving ingredients, and in a form in which they are most rapidly absorbed into the blood and carried to every part of the body to be converted into vital force.

Wincarnis has been recommended by over ten thousand physicians in cases of nervousness, anaemia, sleeplessness, and the general debility that accompanies a run down body. For fifty years this strength giver and nerve restorative has brought new life and happiness to weakened men and women.

From one end of Canada to the other children come trudging home from school each day. Some come across wind-swept prairies—some through damp and blustery streets.

It is then they need real food.

Mothers—buy a bottle of Bovril to-day. When the children come home dissolve a spoonful in a cup of boiling water. See how they relish it. See how it helps their growth and adds to their strength. Bovril is a splendid drink for children—and puts beef into them.

CAPES COME BACK.

Capes, the costume accessory which has been out of favor for some time, are creeping back again, and they are appearing on many of the advance spring models. On cape coat or frock they are about waist length, but are longer when worn separately. Georgette capes are included in many of the ensembles of summer frocks.

Suits are good in hip-length coats cut on straight lines and sometimes using belts. Other style indications are the reigning popularity of two-piece frocks, of which some very smart examples are in the shops, the skirt fulness achieved by pleats at the front and sides, and the bouffant effect in evening gowns.

For daytime wear, skirts are short and sleeves are long, and the V-shaped neckline is much in favor. Green is the color for the springtime costume, with soft greys, blues, lavenders and black and white as good colors for summer.

In the fabrics, black and white checks will be much in evidence, with plaid taffetas as the last word in smartness. Georgettes, chiffons, crepe romaines, flat crepe, Kasha and Shantung silk are all on the spring fashion programme.

Smart sports costumes include a white flannel skirt, spun silk sweater and short navy, double-breasted, brass-buttoned coat.

Larger hats will be worn with afternoon frocks, but the favorite in spring models will probably be the Reboux "Gigolo," a small shape with a rather high draped crown.

CANADA'S POLITICS VIEWED BY TIMES

With Meighen Unable To Command Majority, King Will Remain.

LONDON, Feb. 18 (Canadian Press)—The Times in a leading editorial on the recent election of Premier Mackenzie King in Prince Albert, Sask., and the political situation at Ottawa, says that for the time being at least it is impossible for the present situation in the Canadian Parliament to come to an end.

Observing that the Conservatives are the largest party in the House of Commons at Ottawa the Times say, "the plain fact remains that Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen admittedly is unable to command a majority in the house and until he can do so there is little use for his followers to expect Premier King to resign. The really significant and outstanding fact as a result of the last Dominion general election," the Times proceeds, is the growing tendency for the remnant of the Progressive party to submit to the Liberals' discipline."

Menus for the Family

Breakfast—Stewed figs, cereal, thin cream, waffles, syrup, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Vegetable chowder, toasted crackers, open egg sandwiches, tapioca grape juice, milk, tea.

Dinner—Lamb stew, steamed rice, scalloped tomatoes, cauliflower, salad, apple pie, graham bread, milk, coffee.

A well-baked pie can be served to grown-ups without misgivings. The filling can be served to small persons but a better plan is to have some plain apple sauce and a small cookie for their desserts.

Crisp toast should be added to the breakfast menu for children under school age who do not eat waffles.

Tapioca Grape Juice Pudding.

One and one-half cups grape juice, 1 1-2 cups water, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup sugar, 1-2 cup minute tapioca, 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Combine grape juice, water and sugar in a smooth sauce pan. Put over the fire and bring to the boiling point. When boiling stir in tapioca and salt. Cook, stirring to prevent sticking until transparent. Remove from fire and add lemon juice. Turn into a mold and chill. Serve with or without whipped cream.

Any fruit juice can be used in this way but grape juice is particularly good. A combination of juices left from canned fruits can be used.

WISE WORDS.

One-half the world never knows how the other half lives until some woman starts talking.

HER OWN WAY

A GIRL of TODAY

WINNING.

"I cannot understand, Julia," said my father, "why you always want to compare yourself with a boy—why you are always telling me that you would like to do some kind of work beside that which God ordained you to do. To be a wife and mother is the most beautiful thing on earth, and I should think you would much rather be a girl, because then you'd know that if you behaved yourself, there would always be some man—your father or your husband—to take care of you."

"Don't be silly. I said that to you because I could not understand your crazy intention of going to work. Certainly I have never wanted any of my women to work. I am giving you this money as an experiment, to show you that you do not know the value of money. I have not been able to make your understand it when I told you that you did not.

"I'm afraid I'm doing wrong to let you go, for you are much too young to take upon yourself the responsibilities which you are shouldering with such jaunty assurance."

I trembled inside of me. [illegible] Father would take back his [illegible] If he did, I knew I was afraid [illegible] out into the world with only ten [illegible] in my pocket.

So I hastened to tell him:

"It's just because I am young, Dad, that I can shoulder responsibility. Nothing looks so terrible to me as it does to you," I proclaimed exultantly, as I thought of the possibilities of youth and what it would mean to me to realize some of them.

"Dad, you seem to have forgotten that many women bereft of fathers or husbands are forced to face the world without the strength or courage of youth and after all the enthusiasm has been crushed out of them. I want to be able to know from experience what I would have to do if you left me without anything. I want to know this before I may come back to you if I wish."

Dad looked at me rather sorrowfully. In his own mind, he was sure that I would soon be coming back to him with illusions lost. For a moment his face softened as I had never seen it do before and then he spoke decidedly.

"Remember, Julia, your father's house is always open to you, but if you return to it, you must have no more thoughts of independence and liberty. You must settle down to quiet and modesty until you marry and go to a home of your own."

With this he went out the door, not giving me a chance to answer him.

SILK BATHING SUITS RETURN TO FAVOR

Taffeta in Gay Colors and Printed Crepes Are Beach Favorites.

By Annette Bradshaw.

Bathing suits are usually abbreviated enough garments at the best, but their brevity does not bar their fashion interest.

In fact, it is amazing, the amount of smartness the clever designers are able to introduce into one small bathing suit. Two excellent examples are shown here.

On the standing figure, we have a simple taffeta suit, featuring bright blue, yellow and red, all three colors which lose none of their beauty through being wet. The same bright blue makes the front panel, at the lower front are introduced almost imperceptible flares. The trunks repeat the same tone of red to be found in the plaid design.

The other suit combines a short dress of printed crepe with diminutive trunks of purple satin. The crepe scatters gay colored flowers against a deep orange background.

Tight fitting heavy rubber caps are worn to protect the hair of the bathers, and over these are tied gay handkerchiefs to match the suits, or of a solid color to accent the tone of the bathing trunks.

WELL THAT'S NEWS.

Aha, the pie-faced girls will have their inning! The whole sisterhood must wear big hats if it doesn't want to ruin its looks and its eyes by squinting.

So says a medical savant, speaking before a ladies' hat association. So, it's a case of "us girls" wearing big hats to save our faces, for the savant explains that squinting hardens face muscles and ruins the prettiest physiognomy.

A woman store detective, who has worked at the business for nearly 25 years, says she never yet has found the woman who stole because of necessity.

"It's vanity cases and pearl beads and fans and bead bags that we watch," she says, "not woolen underwear and warm stockings for the children."

Women can endure the lack of necessities for both themselves and theirs, but they can't endure the lack of style.

IT'S BEING DONE THIS YEAR.

When a man is introduced to a woman he never offers to shake hands. This is the woman's move. If she is a hostess, or if the introduction is not made only in passing, she does so. Otherwise, a bow and smile are enough.

* * *

Those four little initials in the lower corner of an invitation, "R.S.V.P." are from the French sentence of "respondez s'il vous plait," meaning "answer if you please." It means that one's regrets or acceptance of the invitation should be sent at once.

DRESSING WELL.

The main color in your costume should never overshadow your own coloring. Your auburn hair and brown eyes should be brought out by your costume not killed. Dressing to match or contrast with the eyes is a good rule, say authorities.

Bright colors emphasize size, age, and skin blemishes. Light colors suggest gaiety and youth. Browns and tans are bad for sallow complexions and dull eyes. Bright shades, especially red, should be shunned by florid people.

A TASTY RECIPE.

Bake a whole ham, and have on hand for suppers and sandwiches and the unexpected guest. Wash ham and steam or parboil until done. Allow to cool, and skin. Make a paste from flour and the sirupy juice from sweet pickled peaches. Season with a tablespoonful of prepared mustard, tablespoon of brown sugar and paprika. Smear over entire surface of ham. Stick ham thickly with cloves and place uncovered in a moderate oven to bake. Baste with the pickle syrup.

A PASSING THOUGHT!

PERFECT WOMAN.

The physically perfect woman should weigh 128 pounds and be 5 ft. 5 in. in height; arms, 5 ft, 5 in. extended and measured from tip to tip; hand, one-tenth of her height; foot, one-seventh; chest diameter, one-fifth. She should measure from her thighs to the ground just what she measures from thighs to top of her head; knee exactly midway between thigh and heel; 24-inch waist; 34-inch bust, measured under the arms and 43-inch bust, measured over the arms; upper arm, 13 inches; wrist, 6 inches; calf of leg, 14 1-2 inches, thigh, 25 inches; ankle, 8 inches.

The Secrets Of Charm

By Lucrezia Bori

What a great pleasure we can derive from slim hips!

On the other hand, what a drawback it is to be conscious of the fact that we are gaining flesh about this region. In fact, such knowledge as this is such a decided drawback that the only thing for us to do so to set to work to lose that annoying flesh.

The consciousness of unbecoming fat accumulating is enough to depress any one's spirits. And it should depress them, for then the owner sets to work to improve matters.

If you find yourself in this condition, my advice to you is to set to work immediately to change matters. You can change them, you know, and you will feel, and appear, so much the better for the change that any effort involved will be well worth your while.

There are any number of exercises for the express purpose of reducing the hips. Practically any exercise that you do will benefit you, because your blood circulates more rapidly, you breathe more deeply and your whole system responds to the stimulus. But if it is the hips you want to reduce, I advise the following exercises as especially beneficial:

You need a kitchen chair to aid you.

Lie across the chair, on your stomach. You can rest your hands on the legs of the chair, to give you balance.

Now bend your feet upward and your body backward, bringing your head and your toes as close together as possible.

Repeat this movement ten times and increase the number of times as the exercise becomes easier for you to do.

This movement is directed especially at the muscles of your hips and abdomen. It helps to keep you slender about the waist, and it will incidentally exercise most of the other muscles of your body and give you added vitality and energy.

Your reward comes in the feeling of slenderness and grace you experience when you find that waistbands which were beginning to be too tight suddenly begin to show the reverse effect. Just the knowledge of this will tend to make you feel more free and agile in your movements.

Then, when the time comes that your waistbands really need taking in, you will feel that any small inconvenience you have suffered has been more than worth while.

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion or Stomach Trouble CUT THIS OUT

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic acid stomach,' says a well know authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis accompanied by dangerous stomach ulcers. Don't dose an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestants that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little hot water and Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bisurated Magnesia, to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. It soaks up the harmful excess acid much as a sponge or blotting paper might and your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist in either powder or tablet form. It is safe, reliable, easy and pleasant to use, is not a laxative and is not at all expensive.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin. —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

M. E. H.—As you are still very young, it is well that you realize your own nature. You were born to achieve a certain measure of success in science or in business, but circumstances of your present life indicate a marring element of change and uncertainty which must be conquered to insure real happiness in the future. You are of the type that possesses a double nature, and the highest aim should be your desire. Strive to overcome a tendency to unrest and dissatisfaction with what you are doing and do not wish always to be somewhere else or doing something else. You would make a good nurse and may be a real power for good in every way if your faults do not rule your life, rather than your good qualities. You are a born whiner and scolder. Cut it out. Nobody likes it. You are easily offended and suspicious and inclined to be extreme in everything you do. Be careful in your choice of friends, cultivate cheerfulness and steadfastness, and study the right that others have to their own opinions. Learn patience and silence and never indulge in personalities in conversation. Keep your hands and feet still. Seek for responsibility—it is good for you. Learn to value time and money. Marry a man born in February or November, and be agreeable at all times. You were born on Thursday. Your colors are tan and buff. The day you ask about, a Thursday, is one on which to avoid [illegible] guments and undertake nothing new. ar

I. S. M.—You are well equipped intellectually for the battle of life and should achieve somewhat either in science or in business matters. You should excel at anything that demands keen mental attention, but the path you must follow to achieve any measure of success is that of hard and constant work. You must keep everlastingly plugging away at anything you undertake. Do not fear poverty or burglars and do not stay alone at night. You are very sensitive to slights, often imagined, and should try to conquer this tendency while you are young, or it may cause you much misery in later years. Others are not trying to hurt your feelings as often as you imagine. You must guard against a miserly habit of hoarding money. Take care of your throat, lungs and kidneys, and don't allow any disease to gain a hold on you, as medicine is slow to act in your case. You will like to see your name in print as you grow older. Seek companions of good cheer and try to counteract a changeable faculty in your character. Marry a man born in November, March or January. When trials come to you later in life, remember that these things make the strong characters. Be like the oak which grows under pressure of the storm. You were born on Monday. Your colors are tans and buffs, also opal shades.

E. L. T.—Well, you were born with a strong character, but I wonder if you have always exerted your influence for good? You are apt to disregard the rights of others and you like to domineer. With this, are combined also qualities of change and uncertainty which do not make for real happiness or success. Travel appeals to you and you have had many trials in your life, some of them of your own making. It is not too late even yet to change. Remember that flattery is not always sincere, stop making excuses for yourself and lay the blame for certain things where it belongs. Be a little more careful of the feelings of others and a trifle less considerate of your own. Scolding and nagging will not help you very much, either, and—there is one true law of life—love comes to those who give out love, not criticism. You have great will power and possess skill with your hands. You have a witty manner of conversation at times and have one excellent habit—you do not interfere with the affairs of others, being too much concerned with your own. You are one of those who may become the salt of the earth—if you control a quick temper, a habit of scolding and a tendency to sarcasm.

You were born on Sunday. Your colors range from flame and yellow to soft, misty blue.

L. G. T.—Yours is a strong, active personality, but inclined to be self-centred and of limited vision. Although quite young, you have decided traits of character formed already. Some of them are not so good—such as the tendency to criticize. You may not realize this yourself, but it is a habit which wil, grow on you as you increase in years—the tendency to unconsciously pick out the weak spot in the ways of those about you and to emphasize it in speech with your companions. Look instead for the good in your fellows—it is always there. You will have to watch this habit, which will alienate many friendships from you if allowed to grow unchecked. You will have a fine life if you correct your faults in time, a life probably not of the successful sort materially, but one of unusual understanding of those about you. You are possessed of noble ideals and have strong intuitions, which should be a guide to you at the times when you are not influenced by your hot temper. You take dislikes to people without cause and do not wish to change. Do not marry young, as you may make a blunder. A man born in September, October or December would make your best mate—after you have learned unselfishness, patience and controlled your critical tendency. You were born on Thursday. Your color is flame, in all its variations.

Nellie.—You have a strong personality, dominant and active, inclined at times to disregard the rights of others. Your best success in life will come only through a subordination of this dominant temperament, and a use at all times of the velvet glove and the diplomatic treatment of your fellows. You are usually full of hope and enthusiasm, and defeat does not discourage you. You are careless in money matters and slow in paying your bills. You are neat and tidy and dislike hard and dirty work. You are careless also of your belongings and forget to return borrowed articles. You are fond of praise and are easily wounded by trifles. A quick temper and a tendency to worry are also characteristics of yours, and when these are conquered, success will never be far away from you, in anything you undertake. But they are big obstacles. However, success comes to your type often late in life, if you strive for habits of order, and a real valuation of your own good opinion. Strive for poise in all things and for patience. Friday is your lucky day, August and December your good months. You were born on Wednesday. The day you ask about is past. Your color is flame.

C. E. W.—You are naturally of a joyful disposition, fond of pleasure and good cheer, and of music, dancing and painting. Circumstances of your present life show that success will come to you only through hard work—through keeping always at whatever you undertake and working away at it—plugging along. When you marry, this condition will be changed, but you must not marry while very young, as your emotional tendencies will cause you to choose the wrong type of man, and your life will be hard and difficult. You have high ideals and are generous-hearted and magnetic. Strive to overcome a tendency to criticize and control a temper which may cause you some trouble. You will make an ideal home maker and should marry a man born in September, October or December, after you have learned to exercise your own good judgment and to control your temper and critical habits. Do not avoid responsibility—it will broaden your nature. And strive for truthfulness in all things.

You were born on Friday. The day you ask about is past. Your color is black.

Kitty (W. K. S.).—Outside of a warm temper and a tendency to criticize unduly, you have a splendid character, strong and noble. You will find your greatest happiness in life in service to others—the service inspired by love. You should develop your musical ability. You are emotional, generous-hearted and magnetic, with high ideals, and capable of inspiring others to good. You will take a dislike to a person without a real cause and find it hard to overcome this trait. You like rich, highly seasoned food, which is not always good for you, as it is necessary for your health that you keep your stomach in prime condition. You like home and its comforts and will make an ideal wife and mother. You would do best in a city. Remember that your temper is a hazard to your happiness, also that you should not criticize the faults in others that you probably possess yourself. Before you speak—think. Strive to attain unselfishness and patience. You are apt to blunder in marriage, so think carefully before you select a mate—preferably a man born in September, October or December.

Your colors are red and brown. You were born on Sunday. The day you ask about, a Friday, is one on which to assume any responsibility offered you and to play no games of chance.

Bubbles.—Well, you are very young and have plenty of time to combat the difficulties which your temperament will bring to you sooner or later. You are capable of much good in life, if you make a firm decision in the morning of life to be good, in all things. If you temporize with your own conscience, and allow yourself to fall into certain grooves of conduct, you will regret it later in life, when the mistakes you have made will rise up and smite you hard. Naturally, you have a joyous temperament and like pleasure and good cheer. However, although strong both mentally and physically, your present life is dominated by an element of change and uncertainty which will not help you to success or happiness. You are easily annoyed and have a quick temper and have your own individual way of doing things. You are the type which does not learn easily from life, preferring to knock your head repeatedly against the same stone wall and then blame the wall for not giving way. Learn from little things about you—the small omens and signs of everyday life—remember that friends are easily alienated by cruel, fickle conduct, even though you do possess an attraction for them at first. Do not mar your life by worry and excessive haste in all things. Learn self-control and patience and—pray a good deal. You were born on Friday. Your color is black.

Mrs. Robert Vyse

Hamilton, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest help to women of any medicine there is. It is especially beneficial to the expectant mother, as it keeps her physically fit at all times. My mother was a great believer in this medicine, and during my first expectant period she had me take it and I got along splendidly—kept well and strong and was able to do my work right up to the last. I had practically no suffering and had a very healthy baby. I took a few bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' afterwards, which helped to bring back my strength."—Mrs. Robert Vyse, 139 West Ave. North.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 16—BACK TO HICKYDOO'S.

"I see it all now," squeaked the little mouse called Paddyfoot.

"What?" cried the Twins.

"The bluejay that flew away with the Blue Cherry was Blue Whiskers himself. He knew who I was when he saw me climbing the tree. Who better? For it was he who changed me from a nice big bear into a miserable little mouse. Boo, hoo, hoo, hoo, hoo!" And Paddyfoot began to cry big round tears.

"It's too late to cry now," said Jupe kindly. "It was stupid of us to let such a thing happen, but it did happen, so what are we to do?"

"Hunt truffles," suggested the Truffle Hunter quickly.

"Oh, you don't understand," said Nancy. "We have to get the Blue Cherry because it is the only thing that will cure poor Twinkle Pen. The doctor prescribed it."

"I know!" cried Nick. "We'll hunt up Hickydoo again."

"That's a very good idea indeed," agreed Jupe, the kangaroo. "But I don't know where to find him now."

"I do," squeaked Paddyfoot quickly. "I haven't been prime minister and chief cook and bottle-washer of the Land of the Blue Cherry for a hundred years all for nothing. We'll hunt up Hickydoo again and ask him what to do. But first of all let's get off Cherry Bounce Hill. I've shivered and shaken until I am getting seasick."

"So am I," said Nancy.

"So am I," said Nick.

"So am I," said Jupe.

"So am I," said the Truffle Hunter.

"Then get on my tail and I'll jump you down," said Jupe.

So they all got on the kangaroo's tail and he gave one big jump and landed safely on the Truffle Hunter's back porch where Waldo was waiting with a tea-towel over his arm.

"Do come in and have tea," begged the Truffle Hunter. "I know Waldo has it all ready. What have we, Waldo?"

"Truffles cooked with minced chicken," began the pig, when Nick said suddenly, "Why, Mister Truffles, I thought you said you didn't like chicken, not since you—"

"Oh, dear!" wailed the Truffle Hunter. "Do forget all that. I don't like chicken when you can taste it, but when you can't taste it, it's delicious, and cooked with truffles it—"

But he never got a chance to finish, for Jupe, the kangaroo, gave another jump, and as the Twins and Paddyfoot were still standing on his long tail, they went too, although it nearly jerked their heads off.

"I can't stand all day listening to that old goose talk when we have work to do," said Jupe. "Talking about his old chicken when all the time your poor fairy friend is suffering! Besides, we're just as far as ever from getting the blue cherry. Now that old Blue Whiskers has it, he has probably eaten it, and is having the court jeweler set the blue stone in the handle of his shaving brush this very minute."

All this time he kept bounding along in long jumps, and suddenly Paddyfoot said, "That's where Hickydoo lives, in that house right there."

So Jupe stopped, and the others stepped off his tail, and they all went toward a large wooden house the little mouse had pointed out.

Hickydoo, the square wooden man who lived there, was working in his garden.

"Hello, here!" he said in a wooden voice. "So you're back. Didn't you get the cherry?"

"No," explained Jupe. "A large bluejay stole it."

"Did someone steal your automobile, too?" asked Hickydoo.

Jupe and the Twins and Paddyfoot all looked at each other in disgust.

"Aren't we dumb!" said Nick. "It's sitting out in front of the Truffle Hunter's house."

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

TEENY AND WEENY FIELD MICE GET INTO TROUBLE.

Mama Field Mousie put on her little bonnet and after bidding the five little babies not to leave the house, she trotted off to town.

Three of the Mousie family were quite content, but Teeny and Weeny, the lazy twins, were rather cross and decided they'd take a trip out into the meadows.

"Better stay right where Mama Field Mousie told you too," called their eldest brother. "Something is sure to happen to you if you disobey."

Teeny and Weeny paid no attention. They slipped around the hill and started off towards the meadow.

Pussy Gray, Farmer Brown's cat, was dozing in the bushes, and spying the two naughty mice, she ran after them. If it hadn't been for Towser chasing Pussy Gray, that would have been the end of Teeny and Weeny Field Mousie. But Towser ran after Pussy Gray, and Pussy Gray had to climb a tree. Teeny and Weeny Field Mousie ran on as fast as they could across the meadows.

Teeny wasn't looking where he was running, his foot hit a raised place in the ground, down he went and his brother tumbled right on top of him.

"Now what can this place be?" questioned Teeny Mousie, getting up and brushing off his suit. "Let's see where this ridge goes to."

Weeny Mousie got up, brushed off his suit and followed his brother along the raised place in the ground until they came to a hole.

"You better knock before you go in,", suggested Weeny Field Mousie.

Teeny and Weeny Took a Trip.

"Why knock?" laughed Teeny. "Let's go in and see for ourselves," and into the wee doorway he ran, Weeny Field Mousie at his heels.

They ran down a long dark tunnel until they came to a comfy little room.

"Better knock before you go in," again suggested Weeny, but Teeny Field Mousie only shook his head. He got one foot across the entrance when something dark rose from the other side of the room and a gruff voice demanded:

"Who's there and what do you want?"

Teeny and Weeny Field Mouse never stopped to tell their names. They both took to their heels and ran as fast as they could scamper out into the sunshine.

They stumbled and fell. Teeny Field Mouse caught his tail in the brambles and tore his pretty, little brown suit.

They reached home just as Mama Field Mouse returned.

She didn't whip them as many mothers would have done for disobeying. She made them tumble into bed without their dinner and they cried themselves to sleep—two tired little Field Mice.

That was the last time they ever disobeyed their Mama, and from that day to this Teeny and Weeny Field Mousie wouldn't think of going into any one's house without first knocking at the door.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 20.

Benefic configurations are found reigning in the heavens on this day, shedding promise of happy and prosperous conditions on mundane affairs generally. The two "Greater Fortunes" of astrology are in trine aspect with Luna—a sidereal combination which heralds flourishing as well as pleasant culminations in all human affairs. It is a time for pushing toward the highest goals and ambitions with a certainty of gratified desires and aspirations. But there is a note of warning against indiscretions.

Those whose birthday it is may look to a year of fulfillment of the highest hopes and wishes in business, finances, friendship and more intimate personal affiliations. It is a period for pushing toward the goal with all the available resources, but with the usual commonsense amount of discretion. A child born on this day may be magnificently endowed with all the cultural and social qualities. It should be popular and may reach high estate but should not be permitted to let its pride and importance run away with it.

BROTHERHOOD.

I've found it pays a fellow if he's of the friendly type, and spreads a bit of happiness around. To mingle with your fellow man and keep good feeling ripe, is bound to make your own foundation sound.

We often overlook the fact—how small we really are. Yet, give it proper thought and you will own, that friendliness and brother-love is best of all, by far. From that the world, since time began, has grown.

The road you take—your path through life—of course, is up to you, but after all, your happiness depends on spirit and on feeling that is only coming through when you are sharing happiness with friends.

God meant that you should make the best of things upon this land, and reap what hearty benefit you can, but measure full can only come when you can understand the meaning of the brotherhood of man.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

PETER GOELET— "THE IRONMONGER."

Chief among the families who are typical products of America's immense resources, is the Goelet family.

Peter Goelet was another founder of a multi-millionaire dynasty. His early history is somewhat obscure, though he is known to have been an iron monger during the Revolutionary period.

Like Astor, Rhinelander and one or two others, he, too, seized the opportunity to secure tracts of land, the value of which, with every decade has increased tremendously. And too, like the Astor family, once a Goelet got his hands on a piece of land he held on.

The vast fortune of the Goelet family is derived from ownership of land, banking and commerce, which received its greatest impetus during the period from 1850 to 1870. Peter Goelet had obtained possession of a "farm" on the outskirts of New York and held it while the town became a city, built up to his farm and beyond it.

That section is now Union Square to Forty-seventh street and Fifth Avenue, embracing a long strip of Broadway; the whole "farm" is now covered with business blocks, hotels, theatres, and farther up town, a long sweep of the ostentatious mansions of the rich.

The Goelets were constantly adding to their real estate holdings. For instance, they acquired a block of eighty lots, from Fifth to Sixth Avenue, Forty-second to Forty-third streets for the trifling sum of $600 a lot.

"His wealth is vast," wrote Barret in 1862 of Peter, the founder, "not less than five or six millions."

His two sons, Peter P. and Robert R., by their marriage, added more wealth to the Goelet fortune. The brothers were among the founders of the Chemical Bank of New York, in 1832, the outgrowth of the Chemical Manufacturing Company, besides being directors in some of New York's richest and most powerful banking institutions, and heavy shareholders in railroad stocks and bonds, especially the Illinois Central Railroad.

He Obtained Possession of a "Farm" and Held It.

Robert R. Goelet had two sons, Robert and Ogden, who inherited the fortune of both brothers, amounting to about $150,000,000. Two children survived each of these brothers, Robert and Ogden. May, the daughter of Ogden Goelet, in 1903 married the Duke of Roxborough.

The value of the Goelet holdings have enormously increased in the last decade, the bulk of which has been invested in railroads, banks, factories and utility plants.

One conservative estimate of the collective fortune of the Goelet family places it at $320,000,000.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

OUR FIGHT TO AVOID BUBONIC PLAGUE.

Do you realize how much we owe to the public health officials? No so long ago I had occasion to spend a night and a day at the Quarantine Station in New York Harbor. This visit renewed my respect for the watchful care the government gives to the health of its citizens.

Deadly infectious and contagious disease is being nursed in various parts of the world. It is being fostered and fed in preparation for attack upon the vitals of men everywhere.

Except for the unflagging watchfulness of officials at the ports of our country, there might be raging in our country epidemic disease of the most deadly nature. But because these officials are on duty we are protected and kept safe in our homes.

There are many things to admire in the men who choose to do work of this sort as a career. They put aside the hope of gain, even the financial gainr which comes to the most modest of the medical profession. In spite of the meager stipend, they throw themselves into their duties. With enthusiasm and tireless effort they carry on, year after year.

One of the diseases against which the ports of North America must be guarded for years is bubonic plague. This is one of the most deadly diseases known to man. Were it to get a real foothold in America, thousands upon thousands of our citizens would be destroyed before we could control it.

The plague is carried by a certain type of flea. Of course a flea couldn't travel far without help. It can travel fast—that must be admitted—but it must be given aid in order to span the earth.

When you want to travel a long distance what do you do? You simply employ a vehicle of some sort, of course. That is exactly what the bubonic plague flea does. It does not depend on a flivver, or other mechanical device. Neither does it hitch its wagon to a star. To carry it on its way, the flea makes use of the rat.

In the fur and on the skin of the rat the flea is nourished and waxes fat. Unfortunately, however, the bite of the infected flea infects the rat and after a while the animal dies of the plague. Just as soon as the rat's body is cold in death, the flea jumps off to seek another comfortable place.

If another rat is found, everything is all right. But if the first warm-blooded animal the flea meets is a man, there is trouble. The infected insect bites the man and in due course the human being comes down with the plague.

You see now why health officials hate rats. They view them with suspicion. On this account the distruction of rats and other rodents is strongly urged. Your safety and mine depend on the watchfulness of the health officials.

Women Find

Great comfort in this new hygienic pad that discards easily as tissue—no laundry

ON many important counts, women are deserting the old-time "sanitary pad."

There is a new way. A way that multiplies protection. A way, too, that solves the old problem and embarrassment of disposal.

It is called "KOTEX." Ends the insecurity of the old-time sanitary pad. Five times as absorbent! And deodorizes—ends ALL fear of offending.

✓ As easily disposed of as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You get it at any drug or department store simply by saying "KOTEX." You ask for it without hesitancy.

Costs only a few cents. Eight in 10 better-class women employ it. Proves old ways an unnecessary risk.

No laundry—discard like tissue

RUSSIAN EXPORT OF GRAIN NORMAL 1928

Organization of International Pool Under Way.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 19.—(Canadian Press.)—Russian grain export is expected to regain its pre-war level of a half billion bushels annually in 1928, the international wheat pool conference here was told yesterday.

D. P. Davis, trade delegate of the Soviet Union, made this statement in an address outlining the grain export history of Russia. He placed 1925 grain exports of Russia at 200,000,000 bushels.

Russian co-operative organizations, he said, maintain a dominating position in comparison to the government and private exporters of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Final details of the plan for international co-ordin tion of wheat pools were scheduled for discussion late Thursday, when delegates expect to complete the work of the conference.

THINK AT THEATRE

No Reason to Check Brains Outside, Kiwanians Told.

PASADENA, Calif., Feb. 19.—"There is no reason why we should go to the theatre and not think; no reason why we should check our brains outside," says Gilmore Brown, national community playhouse director. "The theatre is made possible by the patronage of many and therefore plays should be of a kind to make Americans think," he told Kiwanians here.

THE LOVE OF GOD SERMON SUBJECT

Theme of Address in Marmora Church on Sunday.

RECTOR PREACHED

MARMORA, Feb. 19. — "The Love of God" was the theme of the rector's address at St. Paul's at the morning service of Quinguagesima Sunday. The text, "God commendeth His love toward us," was handled so as to show the shortness and uncertainty of human love in contrast to the steadfastness and sureness of divine love.

The preacher urged the necessity of fashioning love after the divine. "What is that which makes for the success of anything if it is not love?" he declared. "If we want to make our lives better from the corporate point of view, we shall succeed only by getting into our lives more love of God as mirrored forth in His Son. In the Garden of Eden we find one of the signs of the passion of Almighty love. Though man was cast out of the favour of God, he was not cast out of the love of God, for God at that moment made provision. There and then God gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believed in Him should not perish but have everlasting life.

"In Egypt the Israelites lost God's favour, but not His love. Out of Egypt, through His love, they were led to Canaan. Afterwards He allowed them to be led captive into Babylon. They were lost for the while to His favor, but His love was not turned away.

"In time He caused them to return to their own land. A further revelation of God's love is seen in the sending of His Son in order that by our being found in Him we might find eternal life. In spite of all, God continues to love. It has been so with the experiences of the church from the great Day of Pentecost down to the present day. God persists in loving. We are really and truly thereby called to repentance."

Ash Wednesday was observed at St. Paul's Church, with Holy Communion at 10 a.m., and commination and sermon at 7.30 p.m. The rector officiated at each service. For subsequent Wednesdays in Lent the Rev. P. Craiger-Watson is endeavoring to get special preachers from a distance.

PLAY HAVELOCK

Motor Town Team Appreciate Hospitality of Cornwall.

OSHAWA, Feb. 19.—With Manager Walter Lett of Oshawa intermediates receiving a wire in Cornwall Wednesday that the winner of the Oshawa-Cornwall fixture which would declare the championship of A. B. and C. sections of O.H.A. Group No. 1 were drawn to meet Havelock in Peterboro on Friday evening, he gave his team a turkey talk in keeping in condition after the victory in the Eastern city and ordered a half hour's workout for last night when the only absentee was Tommy Johnston, the right defence player, who accidentally received a cut in the right foot in the game at Cornwall. The local hockey magnate is not underestimating the Havelock railroaders and after persuasion, Walter Fair has decided to get into his hockey togs again to help work on the defence in the Liftlock City, and while Walt has not been in the line up of any game this season he has been out to practice keeping in shape for emergencies.

With hockey in Oshawa at fever heat, Manager Lett was asked to arrange for a hockey excursion down to Wise Cracker's town and as a result a hockey special will leave Oshawa at five thirty and return immediately after game, and five or six hundred enthusiasts will railroad down from the Motor City.

With the glowing accounts of the hospitality and sportsmanship received in Cornwall handed out by the local team on arriving home yesterday Mayor R. D. Preston wired the chief magistrate of Cornwall Oshawa's appreciation of the treatment accorded the local team which shows the traditions of the O.H.A. in regards to clean hockey is being sustained.

WHO IS RIGHT?

HARRIS SAYS PECK WILL PLAY —GRIFF SAYS NOT.

ROGER PECKINPAUGH.

There's mystery attached to the case of Roger Peckinpaugh, star shortstop of the Senators, and voted most valuable player in the American League last season. Here it is: President Griffith says Peck will start the 1926 chase on the bench; Stanley Harris, youthful manager, refutes his boss' statement, piping Roger, and none other, will be at short.

HELPFUL HINTS BY GOLFING STARS

By Special Arrangement With Colliers' Magazine.

ROGER WETHERED—OBJECT OF CHIP SHOT.

The object of the chip is to put the ball dead, or so near the pin that the putt would be holed three times out of four. Players will find that there are periods lasting as long as a month or more when they can do no wrong, that the ball sometimes all but lips the hole, and remains so near that it may be knocked in with the back of the putter.

So uplifted in spirit do they become under these happy circumstances that the idea of taking a putter for their long putts appears palpably absurd when a mashie would serve the purpose far more efficiently. It is needless to say that proper self-respect saves them from such an unconventional preceeding.

But the shot can be a fickle one, and there are weeks when the knack is lost and the chip may not be played aright.

This very short approach is mainly a wrist shot with a mashie. In playing it the body must be held as immovable as a rock.

The arms should barely move in the up swing, and the wrists should be the hinge which allows the club to move backwards, although the hands go forward after the ball is hit.

EXAMINER INTER-SHOP BURLESQUE

Weird Hockey Game Staged at the Brock Street Rink.

Last night at the Brock street arena two picked teams from the Examiner engaged in battle. The Would Bes, led by "Hefty" McCauley defeated the Has Beens, led by that has been, John Swanston. The score was 7-5 and the game was a mixture of everything No combination was attempted by either side, but there was plenty of tabasco, slashing, bodying, crosschecking and all the rough stuff known in hockey was indulged in.

Before the start of the battle great efforts were made to secure Mr. A. Wise Cracker to report the game. Mr. Cracker refused, on the grounds that he had friends on both sides. But he said he would take an official capacity and selected that of informing the participants friends and selecting the pall-bearers.

Here's a little dope on the players who participated. In the Has Beens' net was "Duke" Phillips of the Montreal Maroons, and in the Would Bes' net was "Speed" Scates of bicycle fame. Both goalies were in great form. Phillips had seven shots on his goal and Scates five on his. Well, just take a look at the score and judge for yourself how good they were.

On the Has Beens' defence was Swanston and Dugan, and both were terrible as far as playing hockey went. Swanston used his weight to good advantage and nearly crippled the Would Bes' forward line. Dugan was bad all around. He was of as much use to his team as a Palm Beach suit to an Eskimo. On the Has Beens' forward line Collins must have taken a paralytic stroke before he came on the ice. The other two men on the forward line, Killenbeck and Johnson were the stars, scoring the Has Beens' five goals between them. The two subs, Chouinard and Barringer were nothing to rave over. They seemed to be suffering from sleeping sickness.

The Would Bes' defence, McCauley and Duggan, were a little better than their opponents, but at that they were nothing to write home about. They spent too much time laying plans as to how to get the Has Beens' forwards, and by the time they had decided on a course the puck would be in the nets. The forward line of the Would Bes was a nightmare. Red Franks at centre, and the big butter and egg man from the Sound, Tedford, on right wing were flops. They spent most of their time talking to the official in the penalty box. The other forward, "Whozis" Dorrington was just as bad. Holyman, the sub for the Would Bes scored all seven goals for his team.

A feature of the play were the "petting parties" indulged in by Moon Scates and Henery Dugan, while the Owen Sound twins showed the effects of over-training.

"Chief" Glover was referee and was very lenient, issuing no penalties and only ringing the bell when a goal was scored. However, both teams were satisfied.

The teams lined up as follows:

Would Bes—Goal, Scates; defence, McCauley and Duggan; centre, Franks; right, wing, Tedford; left wing, Dorrington; subs, Holyman and Killenbeck.

Has Beens—Goal, Phillips; defence, Swanston and Dugan; centre, Collins; right wing, Johnson; left wing, Barringer; subs, Chouinard.

Referee—R. M. Glover.

A Y P A BANQUET MUCH ENJOYED

Rev. J. D. Paterson of All Saints', Peterboro, Responded to Association Toast.

YOUTH IN THE CHURCH

OMEMEE, Feb. 18.—At the annual A.Y.P.A. banquet on Monday evening, about seventy-five people sat down to the tastefully decorated and bountifully supplied tables in the basement of Christ church

When the more immediate needs of the inner man had been satisfactorily disposed of the toastmaster, Rev. A. T. Weir, proposed the toast to His Majesty the King. This was responded to by all present joining in the National Anthem.

The toast to the Association was proposed by the president, Mr. John A. Bent, in a well worded and thoughtful address and was responded to by Rev. J. D. Paterson of All Saints', Peterboro. Mr. Paterson emphasized very strongly the important place that should be allotted to the young people of the church. In his opinion the acceptance of responsibility by the rising generation is absolutely vital to the future welfare of the cause.

The toast to Canada was given by Arthur Stephenson and responded to by Allan Adams. Both speakers laid stress upon the value of Canada as an integral part of our own vast Empire, because of the vastness of her domain and because of her almost boundless and comparatively unexplored natural resources.

The toast to the church was proposed by Horace Hill, in his usual thoughtful and pleasing manner and was responded to by Rev. C. O. Gallagher of Lindsay, in an address that embodied the speaker's answer to the query "Has the church failed?" Mr. Gallagher called to mind the constantly changing conditions, under which the church must do her work and declared his assurance that though today she labors "through toil and tribulation and tumult of her war" she will carry on her divinely appointed task until finally "the kingdom's of this world shall become the kingdom's of our Lord and of His Christ."

Harry Burgess in proposing the toast to the ladies' excelled himself in his choice of graceful epigrams as he called attention to those who by their gracious presence alone prevented the world from sinking into a state of barbaric desolation Miss Marion Dickson on behalf of the ladies presen:, in a few words expressed her appreciation of the men's appreciation of those facts of which all with eyes to see must be already well aware.

Throughout the programme, at suitable intervals were vocal solos by Mr. Stephenson and Wilbert Clemett and instrumentals by Miss Emily Mitchell and Misses Lenore Jamieson and Helen Mackey and a violin and piano selection by the Stephenson trio.

Community singing and Auld Lang Syne brought to a conclusion a social function that was generally conceded to have been both profitable and enjoyable.

MILLBROOK WINTER HORSE SHOW WAS MARKED SUCCESS THIS YEAR

Fine Quality of Animals Exhibited in All Classes of Show.

ATTENDANCE GOOD.

About 500 People Were on Hand and Expenses Were Covered.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 19—The 14th annual Winter Horse Show, under the auspices of the Millbrook Agricultural Society, was held on King street, Millbrook, on Thursday beginning at 1 p.m., and was attended by about five hundred people.

The fine, mild weather, coupled with the good reputation which the winter fair has established for itself in former years, doubtless had much to do with its marked success this season.

While the number of entries in one or two classes was small, it is doubtful if there is any other section of the province where a higher standard in the quality of the horses exhibited would be reached. One exhibitor, C. F. Beatty, of Campbellcroft, had the misfortune to have his team run away while on the road here, cutting one horse badly, and leaving him but the one for show purposes. Mr. Beatty is a regular exhibitor both at the winter horse show and also at the annual fall fair each year.

William Doherty, of Toronto, was judge on Thursday, and also served in that capacity last year, his decisions meeting with general approval.

The prize winners were:

N. McGill before 12 a.m. on the day the fair is held; all horses are exhibited on King Street, Millbrook.

The local merchants give generous assistance to the fair each year, and the sale of tags netted the tidy sum of $58, thus enabling the society to meet all obligations, and come out of the event with no financial deficit.

H. A. Fallis is president of the Agricultural Society; J. M. McGill, secretary, and among the directors giving active assistance on Thursday were H. Tate, L. H. Winslow, N. Belch, J. A. Vance, A. J. Henderson, and others.

DAMAGE TO CARS

done the plaintiff and the loss of business capacity.

Dabson v Duncan.

The first case called yesterday was that of Thomas W. E. Dabson who claimed $5,000 damages for injuries to himself as a result of a collision on the corner of George and McDonnel streets on May 26 last year when Albert J. Duncan collided with him. G. N. Gordon, K.C., appeared for the plaintiff and R. R. Hall, K.C. for the defendant.

The first witness called was Dr. G. R. Scott who testified that he first saw the plaintiff while he was lying on the ground on the day of the accident. He was in a semi-conscious state and was bleeding about the mouth. He was unable to raise his right leg. He had him removed to the hospital where upon examination it was found that his right knee cap was fractured.

Dr. J. A. Morgan testified that he had examined the plaintiff and found that he was suffering from shock and from a fractured knee cap.

Thomas W. E. Dabson the plaintiff stated that at the time of the accident he was proceeding south on George street at a speed of from 15 to 20 miles an hour. He noticed Mr. Duncan approaching him from his left hand side. He sounded the siren which was attached to the exhaust He stated that he was keeping his eyes to the right in case there was any traffic coming east on McDonnel street. The next thing he knew his truck and the touring car driven by Mr. Duncan had come together. He said that his front wheels were past the south corner of McDonnel street when the crash occurred.

John Elliot was the next witness called by Mr. Gordon. He stated that on that day he was working at the Armories. He had just finished his lunch and was sitting outside the building. He heard the peculiar whistle and the next thing he saw the rear wheel of the truck go up in the air. He saw Dabson coming out of the truck, head first on to the street. He ran over to the scene of the accident and saw Dabson lying on the grass. He was talking like a man who did not know what he was saying.

R. J. Lynch called by Mr. Gordon, stated that he was walking east on McDonnel street. He stated that he heard the whistle on the car and right afterwards he saw the truck and the touring car come together.

Police Constable Puffer stated that he was on the scene of the accident shortly afterwards. He described the position of the two cars as he had seen them. In his opinion the car driven by Mr. Duncan had struck Dabson's truck right behind the left front fender.

The Defence.

W. G. Perks, assistant city engineer examined by Mr. Hall stated that he had made the map of the corner of George and McDonnel streets. He stated that it was drawn to scale from actual measurements taken on the street.

Albert J. Duncan the defendant, examined by Mr. Hall said that he was coming east on McDonnel street. He saw plaintiff's truck coming down George street and in his opinion it was travelling about 35 miles an hour. He stated that he at that time was going at a speed of from 15 to 17 miles an hour. From the speed which the plaintiff was travelling he figured he would pass the corner before he reached it. He stated that the plaintiff came straight down the centre of the street and made no attempt to avoid the accident which he could have done by turning his truck closer to the righ hand curb. Mr. Duncan: "If I had turned the other way I would have met him head on so I turned so as to proceed in the same direction as the plaintiff so that he could pass."

His Lordship at this point asked if there was a by-law in the city compelling cars to come to a complete stop before entering a main street.

He was informed that there was no by-law enforcing it.

His Lordship: "In my opinion such a by-law would prevent two thirds of the accidents which occur. I know this to be the case in Windsor where they have a by-law requiring this."

E. Outram examined by Mr. Hall stated that he was walking south when he noticed the truck and thought it was going above the average speed. He stated that he did not notice the whistle. He next saw Duncan's car coming west on McDonnel street. He saw the two cars come together and in his opinion Dabson's truck cannoned off Duncans' car and then struck the Hydro pole on the sidewalk.

His Lordship: "When a car is going over ten miles an hour in Peterborough does it cause people to look at it?"

Witness: "Not necessarily."

His Lordship is summing up the case said that he thought there was negligence on the part of both parties but more on the part of the defendant. Defendant, he stated, when he saw that he was likely to collide should have turned north instead he turned south. The blow which was given by defendant's car was brought about by the increased speed in an attempt to get in front of plaintiff's truck. Plaintiff, he said, should have slowed up but he did not do so. He apparently was thinking more of the traffic coming east. The two negligent acts, plaintiff coming down without stopping and defendant turning south instead of north, were the cause of the accident. His Lordship awarded damages to the plaintiff to the extent of $900, which owing to the contributory negligence would be reduced to $600 with the costs of the action.

The assizes were adjourned until next Thursday, His Lordship having other appointments.

DOURO COUNCIL

The members of the Municipal Council of the Township of Douro met at the Town Hall on Monday, Feb. 8th, pursuant to adjournment. Members present were: M. P. Coughlin, Reeve and Councillors T. J. Leahy, J. D. O'Shea and Arthur Carveth.

CUSTOMS PROBE

would prove extremely unsatisfactory.

Robert Forke, Progressive leader, said he understood that the committee was one of investigation. It should not be divided into prosecution and defence.

W. D. Euler (Liberal, North Waterloo) said that he had been impressed with Mr. Meighen's remark that it was the public that was entitled to counsel. But surely the committee was representing the public.

Mr. Meighen replied that certainly the committee represented the people. But every inquiry into facts was best conducted by one counsel taking prosecution and the other the defence. The whole history of jurisprudence showed this.

Why a Division?

J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg North Centre) asked if the position taken by Mr. Meighen did not assume that the committee was going to divide. If this committee was for the purpose of discovering the truth, why should it divide? At least one member of the committee would not be on either the prosecution or the defence. The trouble seemed to be that there was an attempt to turn the committee into a court room.

D. M. Kennedy (Progressive, Peace River) and the only member of the Progressive party on the customs' committee, said that his view had been that there should be counsel for the prosecution and defence, and one to represent him. However, his view had not been held by the other members of the committee.

R. B. Hanson (Conservative, York Sunbury) understood that the Government had appointed Aime Geoffrion, K.C., counsel for the department of Customs. Surely it was due to the public that counsel be appointed to bring out all the facts, if there was to be a counsel for the defence.

Hon. George Boivin, Minister of Customs, took the ground that there was no defence and no defendant. The Government had asked for the appointment of the committee in order to arrive at the truth. Mr. Geoffrion had merely been appointed to assist the committee.

Mr. Hanson then asked why the services of Mr. Geoffrion were being retained if a new counsel was to be appointed.

Mr Boivin replied that no other counsel had yet been retained. Until other counsel had been appointed and the Government was assured of the fact that the investigation cover not only one but five or ten years, Mr. Geoffrion would be retained.

Counsel Not Needed.

J. J. Denis (Liberal, Joliette) did not think counsel was needed at all. It was up to Mr. Stevens to make his charges good.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie said that if there was not so much work to be done he would agree with Mr. Denis, but it was well known that the investigation involved more detail work than the committee could attend to. If the committee required counsel, surely the man who brought the charges should have the say as to who he should be.

Mr. Boivin: "Is it not enough that Mr. Stevens should be the accuser and the judge, without giving him all the powers of the House of Commons?"

Mr. Guthrie said that the idea of the Liberal group on the committee, the Conservative group, and the one Progressive member, should each have counsel was absurd.

Has effective way to treat sore muscles.

HOW TO GET RID OF MUSCLE-LAMENESS

Beach Patrolman Advises this Treatment

After exposure to dampness and cold, and after hard exercise, muscles will stiffen up and get lame.

A beach patrolman at Atlantic City writes that he has found this treatment the quickest and most effective way to take out the stiffness and pain: "Just pat on a little of Sloan's Liniment. Don't rub. It's the liniment—not the rubbing—that helps. You'll get relief right away. I've tried all sorts of other things, but nothing gets results like Sloan's."

Hundreds of letters like this tell of the wonderful relief from muscular pain that Sloan's gives.

Sloan's gets results because it doesn't just deaden pain, it gets at the cause. Right to the place that hurts it brings a healing stream of fresh, new blood. Quickly and surely it carries off the "fatigue-poisons," takes out stiffness and drives away the aches and pains.

TANNERY DANCE WAS SUCCESSFUL

Held at Coronation Hall — Affair Made Attractive by Decorations.

OMEMEE, Feb. 19.—Coronation Hall, Omemee, was the rendezvous for a most successful dance on Friday evening, where about 200 guests thronged the large auditorium. The bright affair was under the auspices of the Tannery Club and was known as the E. and E. dance. The walls were decked with sides of patent leather, the product of the company and a note of color added by the large pennant across the stage, bearing the initials E. and E. in red, and from which many hearts were suspended by streamers of various colors. The lights were draped in soft shades and the many beautiful gowns worn by the ladies gave an added charm.

Fancy bands of patent leather, letters with "E" in gold were distributed to the guests and these were worn on the head or arm throughout the evening by the majority of dancers.

The music was provided by Brown's Orchestra of Lindsay, which excelled itself in the many well rendered selections.

To the many spectators present, the "moon dance" was particularly pretty, with the "confetti shower" which descended from the gallery and the multi-colored streamers which fell in a tangle from each dancer, was a sight long to be remembered. The balloon dance was also an attractive feature of the programme. A novelty number much appreciated by the guests of the evening was the Highland Scottische dance with much ease and gracefulness by Mrs. Elmer Hart and Mr. A. Leiper and Mrs. A. Leiper and Mr. Duguid.

During the evening the lucky number dance was put on. Each lady drew a ticket as she danced with her partner past a given place and when all had drawn a number, Mr. Edwards of Toronto, the president of the company, drew a ticket and the couple holding the corresponding number, namely Mr. and Mrs. A. Clemett, were presented with a safety razor and a handsome tortoise shell bedroom clock. A dainty luncheon was served by the ladies of the club, after which dancing was resumed and continued until the wee small hours, when the happy gathering returned to their homes, having enjoyed to the fullest a night of fun and frolic.

DESORONTO SCHOOL WIN FROM OSHAWA

Eastern Team Meet Bracebridge in Final Next.

OSHAWA, Feb. 19 — Deseronto High School hockey team defeated Oshawa High School students in the sudden death semi-final game of the Central Ontario Inter-scholastic hockey association here last evening by three goals to two and earned the right to meet Bracebridge in the final. Doc Rowden for Oshawa scored the only goal of the first period while in the second twenty minutes Black placed the rubber disc in the nets for Oshawa, while Dettler turned the trick for Deseronto's first. With the ice becoming soft during the second period, the heavier eastern team had the advantage, and soon after the third period opened Perry evened up the score. With only two minutes to go Cole, the big defence player, worked his way right through the Oshawa team for the winning goal and the game ended with the score Deseronto 3, Oshawa 2.

The teams were:

Deseronto—Goal, McVicker; defence, Perry and Cole; centre, Whitton; wings, Dettler and Brear; subs, McVicker and Bucker.

Oshawa — Goal, Macinally; defence, Hubbell and Carver; centre, Little; wings, Rowden and Black; subs, Morrison and Peterson; sub goalie, Hare.

Referee—D. Brant, Deseronto.

CITY LEAGUERS MONDAY NIGHT

Teams To Battle For Place in Play-offs, Starting on Wednesday.

MANY IN RUNNING.

The final schedule games of the City Hockey League will be played at Brock Street Arena next Monday night, when all eight teams will be seen in action. On the following Wednesday night, the opening games in the championship play-off for the Hobberlin and Brown Cups will be played.

Monday night's games promise to be full of interest. First place position is conceded to St. Andrew's in the Junior series, but the Saints must defeat Raybestos. Either Brintons or De Laval will top the Senior division. The big battle in the Hobberlin Cup series is the St. Peter's-St. James' contest, the winner of which will enter the championship finals.

Crescents have a chance of getting a second place position by beating Raybestos, provided Brintons win over De Laval. Interest is added to this feature of the race by reason of Raybestos and Crescents being scheduled to play in front of the Britons-De Laval fixture. The schedule for the night is as follows:

Junior Series.

6 p.m.—Raybestos vs. St. Andrew's
7 p.m.—St. Peter's vs. St. James'.

Senior Series.

8 p.m.—Raybestos vs. Crescents.
9 p.m.—Brintons vs. De Laval.

Theatre

AT THE GRAND

"THREE LITTLE MAIDS."

When "Three Little Maids", Capt. M. W. Plunkett's new musical comedy hit with the famous G. P. Huntley in the leading role, opened its Canadian tour a rare thing happened.

The audience decided that one feature of the production, in particular, was destined to be set up as a model for other attractions to try and reach.

The chorus of 'Three Little Maids' became famous overnight as the most beautiful in many, long years.

Not only that, but in addition, the ensemble numbers, the Charleston numbers and the solo specialities were spectacular, beautifully staged and costumed and 100 per cent out of the ordinary.

On top of all this, every member of the chorus could pass a conservatry voice test.

Even the critics seemed somewhat astounded.

Peterborough theatre-goers will have an opportunity of seeing for themselves the reason theatre-goers in cities where the play has already been, now refer to the "famous Three Little Maids chorus." Capt. Plunkett is sending the famous hit here to the Grand Theatre for two days, beginning to-night, with a matinee to-morrow.

Add to the chorus and scenic backgrounds, one of the most distinguished casts ever brought to this country with G. P. Huntley, whose name alone is a guarantee of something unusual, in the lead, not to mention a musical play that is world-famous in its own right with music that is even more famous than the play if that is possible—total it up and the result is a sketchy outline of "Three Little Maids."

It is not only one of the finest, but also one of the biggest productions in years.

CALL AGAIN

Unusual as such a course may be, we cannot forbear editorial reference to that splendid attraction which had its premiere in this country at a local theatre during the week-end, the first venture of Captain Plunkett, of "Dumbells" fame, in the field of musical comedy. Free from all taint of the suggestiveness and tawdriness which are too often associated with productions placed in the same class, "Three Little Maids" was undoubtedly the English musical comedy at its best and delightfully refreshing was the change, one for which those who were in attendance did not fail to display their preference. As Brockville is notorious for the coldness of its audiences, unhappily in the case of many really meritorious attractions, it augurs well for the remainder of Mr. Huntley's tour of Canada that his appearance here should have been attended by such a favorable reception. For theatrical productions set upon the same high plane in respect to dialogue, music, dancing, and, last but no means least, youth, vivacity and pulchritude of cast, a warm welcome is in waiting in Brockville. So call again, Mr. Huntley— Brockville Recorder and Times.

The above company are at the Grand tonight and tomorrow matinee and night.

AT THE REGENT

Direct wire for Peterboro-Kitchener game.

Johnny Hines says:

Ever follow a speedy story as if you were actually living part of the drama.....so much so that you are as tired at the end as if you were travelling alongside of the main characters. That's us! "The Speed Spook" will make you concentrate! Your spirit will walk right out of your seat and join in action on the screen!

Talk about sensation.....ever swallow a lot of tobasco sauce.....or think you're falling in your sleep..... or suddenly wake up and see a lion in your bedroom? Then you've got a faint idea of my new picture.

Maybe you've seen real action at some time or other? Ever try to wave a red flag in front of a bull? .....show an Irishman an Orange flag?.....or talk French in a German beer garden?.....These things are as peaceful as a convent compared to "The Speed Spook." As Al Jolson says, "You ain't seen nothing" till you've feasted your eyes on this spectacle.

AT THE CAPITOL

REGINALD DENNY IN "WHERE WAS I?"

The likeable Reginald Denny, who usually stars in racing features is at the Capitol Theatre for this week-end in "Where was I?" The producer, Carl Laemmle, evidently believes in keeping up the tension in a story and does it in "Where Was I" to the last possible moment. One wonders just a little how the hero is ever going to extricate himself from the conglomeration of mishaps that pile up on his luckless head, but the whole thing flattens out presently, and the puzzled young man gets his girl, which is the main idea from the beginning.

As Tom Berford, a prominent young business man, Reginal Denny, falls in love with Alicia Storm, the daughter of George Storm, his greatest business rival, and daring her father's displeasure, resolves to elope with her the next day. A young lady arives on the scene however and declares that she is Tom's wife and that he married her on January 9, 1923. She succeeds by clever acting in persuading Tom's business associates that she is telling the truth and almost succeeds in making the flabbergasted young man believe in her too. He starts out to find the secretary who was with him at that period, becoming involved with a speeding taxicab and a bewildered chauffeur at the same time and running off with a brief case containing $12,000 in bills, believing it to be his own property. On his return home the next morning, with his fagged out assistant, he finds that the girl has installed herself in his house and still persists in keeping up the fiction that she is his wife. Tom succumbs to nervous prostration and is nursed in successive scenes by the pseudo wife and his own sweetheart, who comes to call on him. The distracted secretary does his best to keep the two women from meeting, but complications ensue when the taxicab chauffeur, who, by the way, is an excellent actor and adds much to the enjoyment of the picture, appears and threatens to tell the police what he knows about the $12,000 of stolen money. When officers arrive and arrest Tom for the theft, when his girl sees the other lady's arms about him, and the chauffeur accuses him of trying to get him out of the way. Tom faces a battery of unkind circumstances. He extricates himself, or rather is extricated, in the nick of time.

It is an interesting picture, full of comedy and fun, and the tall young man who stars in it is just as good in this role, or almost as good, as in previous productions.

The short reels accompanying the features are interesting, opening with some beautiful colored pictures, and including a series of very entertaining animal slides, showing the denizens of the wild and also domesticated pets, in their hours of play and exercise. A funny animated cartoon and a comedy round out the programme.—Jeanette.

TRAIN DERAILED NEAR DAMASCUS

Brigands Had Torn Up Railway—Three Syrians Killed.

REBELS SHELLED.

BEIRUT, Syria, Feb. 19. (Canadian Press). — Brigands having torn up the track of the Hebjaz Railroad, five miles from Damascus, the passenger train from Palestine was derailed yesterday. Several coaches caught fire and three Syrians were killed and several injured.

None of the Europeans on board the train, including the British Vice-Consul and his wife, was injured, and all reached Damascus safely. The Damascus-Rayak road also was torn up, but no accidents followed. The action of the French troops in cleaning up the rebels in the city of Damascus is appreciated by the population. The troops continue to operate and are giving the rebels no rest. Yesterday they were shelling a gathering of insurgents east of Damascus.

STEAMER FOUND BADLY DISABLED

Thirteen Sailors Aboard Japanese Vessel Were Starving.

ADRIFT FOR MONTH.

TOKYO, Feb. 19. — (Canadian Press).—The steamer Java Arrow, bound from Yokohama to San Francisco, reported by wireless to-day that it had encountered, 850 miles north-east of Yokohama, the Japanese steamer Taishin Maru, which had been floating helpless for a month, following a storm which disabled it. The Java Arrow rescued thirteen sailors, who were found starving on the Taishin Maru, and who reported that nineteen members of the crew took to the lifeboats on February 8 and 9, and are believed to have perished.

LOSES SAVINGS OF FORTY YEARS

Pathetic Stories Told at the Hearst Trial in Winnipeg.

MUSIC CO. FAILED.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 19.—How life savings were invested in the $1,000,000 bubble of Joseph X. Hearst, president and organizer of the Hearst Music Publishing Company, the collapse of which brought great loss to shareholders in the United States and Canada, and lost, featured the evidence in the preliminary hearing of the "jazz wizard" here Wednesday. Hearst is charged with theft and fraud.

Saved 38 Years.

After a struggle of years, having started work when 12 years old, Miss Eliza J. Young, 50, of Routhwait, Man., had accumulated $2,310. Promises of annual interest of 30 per cent. on her money resulted in the woman investing her life savings in Hearst stock. She bought 14 shares for the $2,310, and had received back in dividends $649.20, which left her out of pocket $1,660.80.

John Vandhusen, Hartney, Man., farmer, who, along with his family, lost more than $25,000 in the bubble, was on the stand again Wednesday, giving details of his stock purchased from Hearst.

WEDDING BELLS

CAVANAGH—HERLIHEY.

St. Luke's church, Downeyville, was the scene of a pretty wedding Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock when Pearl, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Herlihey, was united in marriage to Mr. Francis Cavanagh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Cavanagh of Ennismore. The bride wore a pretty frock of cut velvet with cocoa brown coat, with hat, shoes and stockings to match and carried a bouquet of bridal roses and carnations. She entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of "Lohengrin," played by Mrs. Patrick Perdue, sister of the bride, who also sang several solos during the mass, and at the signing of the register sang Rosewig's "Ave Maria."

The bride's only attendant was her cousin, Miss Venie Murtha, of the Separate school teaching staff, Lindsay, who wore a beautiful gown of satin faced canton and carried a bouquet of roses and carnations. The groom was supported by his brother John. Rev. Father Galvin performed the ceremony and also said the nuptial mass.

After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous dinner was served to twenty-five guests, the immediate friends of the family. The toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. Father Galvin, who paid her a graceful tribute and regretted losing her from the parish. The groom responded and speeches were also made by Mr. Edmund Herlihey, John Cavanagh, Thos. Cavanagh and Patrick Herlihey. The groom's gifts were, to the bride a rope of pearls, to the bridesmaid a pearl choker and the groomsman a pair of cuff links. The bridal party left for Lindsay and took the 3.40 train for Toronto and other points on a short trip and on their return will reside in Ennismore.

NO INCREASE IN CITY TAX RATE

Unexpected Gift From Utilities Enables City Council to Strike Rate of 36 Mills on the Dollar

Increase Foretold By Mayor at Noon Yesterday is Averted Without Serious Cut in Any Department—Only One Special Grant Is Trimmed.

JACKSON PARK TOBOGGAN SLIDE IS ABANDONED FOR THIS YEAR

Fuel Bill of $1,450 For Queen Mary Hospital With $150 Due on This Winter's Coal Causes Warm Discussion —Monument To Late Mrs. Nicholls.

Peterborough's tax rate for 1926 remains unchanged at 36 mills on the dollar, according to the figuring of the Finance Committee last night, despite the dour prognostications of Mayor Holloway at Kiwanis Club yesterday that an increase was inevitable.

And the happy circumstance was as great a surprise to the city fathers as it will be to the citizens.

After the chairmen of committees, who form the Finance Committee, had slashed their way through half the estimates, clipping a few dollars here and there and making a grand haul from the Fire, Water and Light Department of $800, a belated Valentine arrived from the Utilities Commission. The message read: "Pay to the Order of Peterborough City Council,..... $9,080.37."

When the jubilation had subsided Alderman Turner launched a campaign to restore his committee's appropriation to the original figure and other Aldermen immediately thought of divers ways in which the unexpected wealth could be expended to good purpose. But the desire to keep the tax rate down triumphed, and Peterborough taxpayers will be enriched by at least half a mill on the dollar of their assessment.

Here is how the Utilities Commission explains the windfall: "The special acts of the Legislature referring to the Peterborough Waterworks provide that when the contingent fund of the water department amounts to $50,000 and remains at that amount, the surplus annual revenue of the department shall form part of the general funds of and be paid over to the corporation of the City of Peterborough.

Up to the end of last year this fund did not amount to $50,000, but the financial statement for the year ending December 31, 1925, shows a surplus which brings the contingent fund up to over that amount, and we have pleasure in enclosing you a cheque for $9,080.37, being the sum by which the surplus exceeds the amount to be retained by the Commission as a contingent fund."

Maylor Holloway led the cheering.

Needed $10,000

When the Finance Committee met it was faced with the necessity of cutting $10,000 from the already carefully scrutinized estimates of the various committees, in order to keep the tax rate down to last year's figures. The Fire Department estimates suffered most heavily in the preliminary skirmishes, losing $811.44. Then $500 was trimmed from the Parks Committee; Queen Mary Hospital lost $190, and the Police Department must get along with $77.50 less than estimated. A few adjustments of salaries added to the total, and the net reduction amounted to about $1,631. This, with the $9,080 from the Utilities Commission made up the $10,000 necessary to retain the 36 mill rate. There will be a small surplus, which will be apportioned by a committee consisting of Mayor Holloway and Alderman Phelan, assisted by City Treasurer Frank Adams.

Fuel Bill Questioned

An estimate of $1,400 for fuel for Queen Mary Hospital raised a storm of protest, several Aldermen declaring such an expenditure exorbitant. Alderman Green declared that the much larger Queen Mary School is heated for less, and that the city buildings, about the same size as the hospital, cost only $500 a year for heating. He moved that $260 be cut off the fuel allowance, leaving it at $1,140—still $200 too high, he thought.

Alderman Hancock pointed out that there is still required $150 for this winter's fuel.

Alderman Greene: We've spent $1,450 already and that $150 makes a total for the year of $1,600.

After discussion, in which it was said an investigation of the heating plant should be made by the Council before action is taken, the estimate for fuel was allowed to pass, but $100 was cut off the allowance for repairs, and $90 for water deducted on advice from the Utilities Commission.

No Toboggan Slide.

The $1000 included in the Parks Committee estimates for the construction of a large toboggan slide at Jackson Park was thrown out after a long and warm discussion, with Alderman Green, chairman of the Parks Committee, and Mayor Holloway opposing the expenditure. Both claimed that the city is now well supplied with recreational facilities, having four municipal skating rinks and a toboggan slide.

Alderman Greene pointed out that the total proposed expenditure for the year for recreation is $2150, excluding the new slide.

Alderman MacDonald: "That's not one-half what other cities our own size are spending."

Alderman Green contended that the city is progressing, and declared that too much should not be attempted. When Aldermen Turner and MacDonald moved that the $1000 be left in the estimates, he moved an amendment that in view of the fact that the city now has four rinks and a toboggan slide the plan to build a new slide at Jackson Park be abandoned for this year.

NOW, HONESTLY—

"Wait a minute."

Stop and add up all the time you have lost through that expression—through waiting a minute before you did something.

It's more or less of a habit with most people—and a poor one.

If you're going to do something that you ought to do—do it now. You irritate other people by repeatedly saying, "wait a minute."

And besides, remember that he who hesitates is last in getting things done.

CANADIAN SHIP SHELLED BY U. S. REVENUE CUTTER

Schooner With Cargo Of Liquor Bombarded Off Jersey Coast.

70 ROUNDS FIRED.

Many of the Shells Hit Vessel Flying British Flag.

LUNENBURG, N.S., Feb. 20.—With her decks, spars and sides bearing evidence of shellfire, the schooner Eastwood, Captain John Spindler, arrived here Friday morning reporting having undergone a bombardment off the Jersey coast a few days ago. According to the captain, a United States revenue cutter fired seventy rounds at the ship, many of the shells taking effect, as the damage to the vessel indicated. One shell passed through the after cabin where members of the crew were sitting, but there were no casualties reported. Only meagre details were obtainable, but it was understood that the attack occurred during thick weather. The schooner flew a British flag. Members of the crew said that the Eastwood had been off the coast some time with a cargo of liquor and that for several days the revenue cutter Seneca had been in the offing.

A few days ago, they said, the cutter set down a sea target and anchored it some seventy yards from the schooner, which was also at anchor, and steaming away some distance, opened fire.

It was thought by those on board that the Seneca was indulging in target practice. Then shells began to land on the Eastwood, and Captain Spindler, according to his report, hoisted the British flag. Out of two hundred rounds it was estimated the Seneca fired, the Eastwood suffered sixty-nine direct hits. The gasoline tank was carried away, a boom shattered, rail splintered, the after skylight carried away and two shells passed through the engine room and after-cabin. Captain Spindler got under way as soon as possible, but said the appearance of a tank steamer marked the cessation of the bombardment. He made for Lunenburg with his cargo still below decks and the vessel leaking.

Captain Spindler said the incident occurred about twenty miles off shore.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—Officials of coastguard headquarters here said yesterday that no report had been received of any bombardment of the schooner Eastwood off the New Jersey coast, as reported by the captain of the schooner Eastwood, at Lunenburg, N.S.

The statement of the captain of the schooner that seventy shells had been fired at his ship, was described as "hardly plausible."

A Yarmouth Boat.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 20 (Canadian Press).—The schooner W. H. Eastwood is registered at the port of La Have, N.S., according to records of the Department of Marine and Fisheries. This is presumed by the Department to be the schooner in question. The registered name of the owner appears as B. B. Cann, Yarmouth, N.S.

Neither the Department of Marine and Fisheries nor the Department of External Affairs have so far received any communication in this matter.

UTILITIES COMMISSION PLANS TO REDUCE CITY WATER RATES BY ABOUT FIVE PER CENT. NET

Instructions For Drafting of New Shcedule Issued at Meeting.

ANNUAL REPORTS.

Excellent Financial Condition Told—Unique Payment Made To Council.

A reduction of about five per cent. in the city water rate was promised at a meeting of the Utilities Commission yesterday evening, following the presentation of reports showing the public utilities in excellent condition financially. The Utilities accountant, George Henderson, was instructed to prepare a revised tariff on a new schedule.

At the same meeting it was decided to pass on to the City Council for use in the general funds of the city $9,080.37, the surplus remaining after the $50,000 contingent fund demanded by law had been provided in the water department. In 1903 a payment of $5,051.27 was made to the municipal council, but that was before the time when legislation fixing a reserve of $50,000 was put into effect. No other payment has been made in the intervening 23 years.

On the theory that every little bit helps in paring estimates, the Commission also cancelled a charge of $90 made to the city for a hydrant at Queen Mary Hospital.

It was decided that Mr. Henderson and W. Hunt, chief engineer of the pump house and filtration plant, together with the members of the Commission who could possibly attend, be present at the annual meeting of the American Waterworks Association, to be held in St. Catharines on March 3.

ISSUE WARRANT FOR CANADIAN AS RUM RUNNER

U. S. Officials in Michigan Seeks Arrest of James Cooper.

IS MILLIONAIRE.

Cooper Complies With Canadian Laws and Has Never Been Caught in U. S.

DETROIT, Feb. 20 (Canadian Press).—A warrant charging James Cooper, millionaire liquor merchant, Walkerville, Ont, with conspiracy to violate the United States prohibition laws, has been issued by the Federal court of eastern district of Michifan, it became known last night. Cooper was indicted in November.

Behind the indictment lies the story of a man who coined millions by capitalizing the thirst of dry Americans officials say. Efforts to trap Cooper this side of the border have been unavailing, but a number of his assistants have been captured and fined or sentenced. Cooper has complied with the Canadian laws in shipping liquor into the United States, it is said, and has never been arrested in connection with his alleged smuggling operations.

Sympathy, Money, Marriage. All Offered Lady Cathcart

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (Canadian Press) — Offers of sympathy, financial support — and even marriage, poured over Vera, Countess of Cathcart, today, as she remained upon Ellis Island while the Cunard liner Acquitania upon which she was to have been deported, sailed for England.

The Countess, who will stay at the immigration station at least until Tuesday, when a writ of habeas corpus is returnable, said she had reason to hope that Federal Judge Goddard would grant her release on bond, thus giving her an opportunity to conclude the business which drew her to this country before she was detained because of an admitted "moral turiptude."

Part of that business has already been consummated, according to Earl Carroll, theatrical producer, who said he had a verbal contract with the Countess to produce her play.

CLEMENCY PLEA WILL BE HEARD

Minister of Justice Informs Counsel For Barnardo Boy.

SENTENCE 3 YEARS.

COBOURG, Feb. 20 (Canadian Press).—F. M. Field, K.C., counsel for Frederick James Townsend, Barnardo boy, who is now serving a three-year term in Kingston Penitentiary, having been sentenced at Oshawa a few months ago, has received the assurance of the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, that the remission branch of the Department of Justice will deal with the plea for clemency at an early date.

Townsend was convicted at Oshawa and sentenced by Magistrate Hind to four years in prison for the forgery of a cheque for a trifling sum. The sentence was reduced to three years on appeal to the Appelate Court at Osgoode Hall.

THIRTEEN SPIES ARE CONDEMNED

Esthonians To Die For Work in Russia—Others Jailed.

48 MEN TRIED.

LENINGRAD, Feb. 20 (Canadian Press).—Thirteen of the Esthonian spies, whose trial has been in progress here for three weeks, were condemned to death yesterday. Two of the band were sentenced to ten years' imprisonment, and the remainder of the forty-eight, with the exception of one, who was acquitted, were sentenced to prison terms ranging from one to five years. M. T. Arr, former Esthonian Consul at Hamburg, was given a three years' sentence. The condemned men were convicted of plotting against the Soviet State and working in combination with the British Intelligence Service.

Day By Day In Every Way Peterboro' Grows Drier: Fewer Baths or More Imported Drinks Indicated

Authorities differ in their interpretation of the statistics presented yesterday by Ross L. Dobbin, Waterworks Superintendent, to the Utilities Commission.

Whether Peterborough people are drinking less water, or more imported brew, or whether they are more sparing of bath water or are finding some other amusement than watering their lawns, is not indicated.

But the per capita consumption of water has decreased 32 gallons a day since 1920—and the decrease has been steady, year by year. Here are the figures:

1920—gallons per capita per day—	152
1921	149
1922	137
1923	131
1924	123
1925	120

Of course, the report shows that 'way back in the dark ages before the war—in 1911 to be exact, the per capita consumption of water in a day was only 107 gallons.

ACTIVITIES OF KLAN ORGANIZERS IN MILLBROOK WERE NOT KNOWN TO MAJORITY OF LOCAL CITIZENS

Victims of Alleged Blackmail Operations Were Asked By Police to Tell Nobody.

MEN OF STANDING.

Attempts To Organize a Branch of Klan in Village Were Unsuccessful.

(By a Staff Reporter).

MILLBROOK, Feb. 20. — Harold Gilbert, formerly organizer for the Ku Klux Klan, and the lady who figured as his fellow laborer, worked in this village for some time, but, it appears, with indifferent success. The lady devoted her time and energies chiefly to trying to induce the merchants of the town to become members, pointing out that the constitution of the order required that all who belonged should patronize those dealers who were also members when household supplies of any kind were required.

The lady worker was a young woman of considerable personal charm, which she employed to the utmost in her work, and during her stay here she became very popular with some of the men whom she interviewed. This was especially true in the case of the older members of her victims.

The Klan, however, made slow growth as its aims did not appear to appeal to the residents of the village. No property owner seemed to care to have the Klan for a tenant, and the committee that was charged with the duty of securing a home for the organization was turned down by more than one owner who had a suitable hall for rent.

Next the Detectives.

Gilbert and his personable partner came and went, and next the detectives appeared in the picture. It seems that it did not occur to many of the residents to connect the two visits as the call of a Provincial police officer now in the most peaceful community is usually accounted for as an attempt to locate some violator of the Ontario Temperance Act.

The detectives located three alleged victims of Gilbert's attempts to levy blackmail. In the most important of these cases a father and son were interested, both being prominent persons in the community. One of them was accused of undue familiarity with Gilbert's deputy worker and was threatened with exposure unless he came across

Salt Junk Banished Canned Foods For Navy

LONDON, Feb. 20.—(Canadian Press.) — "Salt junk," otherwise salt pork, which has been an important part of the British navy's rations for centuries, has been banished by an order of the Admiralty. It is announced that no salt pork henceforth will be served on British war ships. Canned meats and canned vegetables are to take their place as reserve food when fresh articles are not available.

BERNSTORFF HEADS GERMAN DELEGATES

Former Ambassador Marked For Higher League Honors.

BERLIN, Feb. 20 (Canadian Press). — Count Johann Heinrich von Bernstorff, former Ambassador to the United States, who has been named head of the German delegation to the preparatory commission for the League of Nations disarmament conference, is marked for higher honors in connection with Germany's membership in the League, it was learned in Foreign Office circles yesterday. It is expected that the Count will profit by his present appointment to become acquainted with the workings of the League and its personalities so that he may represent Germany efficiently at League gatherings whenever the Foreign Minister is unable to be present.

MOTORISTS REQUEST THAT PORT HOPE-PETERBORO' HIGHWAY BE KEPT OPEN DURING THE WINTER

MOTOR LEAGUE SPEAKER.

DR. P. E. DOOLITTLE
Who delivered a very interesting address at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Ontario Motor League last night.

Arthur Blade Elected President of Peterboro Branch of Ontario Motor League.

ANNUAL MEETING.

Dr. P. E. Doolittle Describes Scenic Beauties of the Maritimes.

At the annual meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Ontario Motor League held last night, in the Board Room of the Chamber of Commerce, Arthur Blade was elected president and Harold A. Perry was chosen as vice-president. Following the submission of the report prepared by the nominating committee and their preliminary business, Dr. P. E. Doolittle, president of the Tourists' Association of Ontario, delivered an exceptionally interesting address on the scenic attractions of the Maritimes. The lecture was completely illustrated with a number of beautiful slides, and tended to create a linking bond of interest with that section of the Dominion, not often visited by Ontario people.

In his introductory remarks, Dr. Doolittle referred in a humorous vein to the Florida real estate boom and visioned therein a reason for an amplified trek to Canadian pleasure grounds. "The rich Americans sell out," he said, "and move down to Florida in the winter months. It's God's own country then but they have not reckoned with the summer conditions. In the summer only a 'nigger' can live there, and it is natural that those able to do so would seek a cooler clime. We are telling them to come to Peterboro and North Bay—in fact any place in Canada, where they can see some real scenery—for goodness knows, there is none to see in Florida."

Following the hearing of the minutes, communications were disposed of, the first being from the Tourist Association of Ontario, enclosing a bill for membership. It was decided that the membership be continued and the fee paid. The only other letter was one from the Motor League solicitors, Phelan and Richardson of Toronto, bearing the information that certain Peterboro citizens who had been victimized because of freak traffic regulations prevailing at on time in the village of Brighton, would be reimbursed for the amount of the fine which had been collected from them. This was made possible by the quashing of the bylaws which were the source of this trouble.

The treasurer's report, as presented by F. G. Stinson, was adopted; A. W. Blade and A. Brown were appointed to audit the statement.

Keep Highway Open.

Under the head of new business, two resolutions were considered.

The first dealt with the maintenance of highways during winter months, and read as follows:

Whereas: In consideration of the cost of highway construction, it should be desirable, for the benefit of the public, to keep those completed open the full year;

And whereas: There is and will be a greater local and inter-provincial traffic;

Therefore, resolved: That the Ontario Motor League, Peterboro Branch, earnestly recommend that the Department of Public Highways take the necessary steps to keep Highway 12A (Peterboro to Port Hope) open at the various points where it is usually blocked; and a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Hon. G. S. Henry, Minister of Public Highways, the press, the Ontario Motor League, Toronto, and the Peterboro Chamber of Commerce.

Thomas Dutton suggested that, before a resolution to that effect be

ADDRESS DEBATE IS CONTINUED BY MEN FROM WEST

Kennedy and Ladner, Conservatives, and Darke, Liberal, Speak on Problems.

RAILWAY PROBLEMS.

Stewart McClenaghan, of Ottawa, Only Eastern Member To Address House.

OTTAWA, Feb. 20 (Canadian Press).—The debate on the address continued in the House throughout the day and was still under way when the House adjourned. Rumors of a coming closure persist, but so far no formal move in this direction has been made. At the outset W. M. Kennedy, Conservative of Winnipeg South Centre, continued the speech he began on Thursday. He was followed by L. J. Ladner, Conservative of Vancouver South, who spoke of the Government as weak, inactive and incapable. Mr. Ladner urged the taking over by the Canadian National of the Pacific Great Eastern in British Columbia and of the Edmonton-Dunvegan. In return the Canadian National should get sixteen million acre of land given to the P.G.E. by act of the provincial legislature. Mr. Ladner also favored an outlet to the Peace River district.

Mr. Ladner said there was business to be done, but the Government was too weak to do it. He added:

"In order to prove to the country that I was not weak I would bring in a closure and do business.

F. N. Darke, Liberal, of Regina, observed that the lamentations of Jeremiah had nothin on the wailing of a Tory out of office. The West, Mr. Darke said, was sympathetic towards the grievances in the Maritimes.

Stewart McClenaghan, Conservative of Ottawa, who was the last speaker of the day held that the country wanted the Conservatives as the Government.

STATISTICS ARE MISUNDERSTOOD

Families Not Accepted For Canada Are Not Necessarily Rejected.

FEW TURNED DOWN.

LONDON, Feb. 20 (Canadian Press)—J. Bruce Walker, Canadian Director of European emigration, says the statistics on migration to Canada recently quoted by Lt. Col. L. C. Amery, secretary of state for Dominion affairs, have been misunderstood in some Canadian quarters.

Col. Amery said that 1,003 families had applied for emigration to the Dominion, 730 of these having been accepted. Bruce Walker told the Canadian Press today that it was a mistake to assume that the unaccepted applications were necessarily rejected. These applications are still under consideration, he said.

"Probably not more than 10 per cent of all applicatioins will be rejected finally," Mr. Walker added.

THE WEATHER.

There was a sudden drop in temperature last night, the thermometer getting down to 10 degrees below zero during the night. This morning at daybreak it had risen somewhat, but was still 2 below zero. Just here is a good place to say, as I have done before, that the lowest point reached during the night is registered automatically, and it is not necessary for me to pay periodical visits during the darkness of a winter night, to ascertain how cold it gets. Considerable well meant but undeserved sympathy is extended to me along this line.—W. P.

HORTICULTURE GETS GOOD START OFF

New Directors Plan Large Increase in Membership—Big Gladiolus Show Coming.

Great things are being planned for the Peterboro' Horticultural Society this year. The newly-elected board of directors have taken things seriously and are getting down to work in a systematic way that has the promise of a genuine revival of interest in this important phase of the lives of our citizens. At last night's meeting of the board, strong committees were formed to handle the several activities of the society and immediate action may be looked for, as the time is short and it is already late in the season for preparation. Every committee chairman is a real "peptomist," and he has selected like infected assistants to help out with the work of his department.

The Premium committee will prepare a list of bulbs, plants, shrubs, and small fruits, which will constitute the options open to every member of the society. The membership fee is $1.00, and for that amount the member gets the biggest dollar's worth ever seen at any bargain sale. There will be a splendid list of options to choose from, each of which would cost the member in the regular way, a large part of their dollar. At the annual flower show of the society the membership ticket admits free at any time, and every member is a real member with a voice in the affairs of the society. Prizes offered for gardens and lawns, are put up by the society out of the dollars paid in membership fees, so that every member is helping by becoming one. Mr. C. Lacheur, our popular postmaster, is chairman of the Membership committee, and a live campaign may be looked for almost immediately.

The great reason for optimism is that Peterborough Horticultural Society has invited and secured the annual show of the Canadian Gladiolus Society, the greatest specialty show ever held anywhere in Canada. This is only second to the mammoth Gladiolus exhibition held by the stronger, older American Gladiolus Society in the United States, last year at Rochester. This truly grand show is open to all members of the Canadian Gladiolus Society and there will be immense exhibits brought here from all parts of the country. But the point of interest to Peterborough lovers of the gladiolus is that a quite extensive section of the prize list is for members of the Peterborough Horticultural Society only. That lets everybody in on the big show without fear of the connetition of professional or more experienced growers from outside.

Doesn't it look attractive to be a member of Peterborough Horticultural Society this year? So much and so many privileges for $1.00 were never before offered, and the greatest honor is that we are individually and collectively, the hosts to Canada's greatest specialty flower shows.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Christ and Lazarus.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for February 21: Christ the Resurrection and the Life.—John 11: 32-44.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of The Congregationalist.

What has been said concerning the miracle of the feeding of the five thousand applies equally to the raising of Lazarus from the dead. If a miracle could be explained it would cease to be a miracle. It is difficult to believe that Jesus performed the comparatively few miracles of which there is record in the New Testament without performing a great many others of which we have no record, so that the miraculous things that have been recorded would seem to be there because they symbolize and illustrate the spiritual reality and power of Christ. The miracles are miracles of feeding, healing, giving sight and giving life. They typify the performance of the body of all that Jesus is powerful and willing to do for the souls of men.

The story of the raising of Lazarus emphasizes alike the loving sympathy and the wonder working power of Christ. His real humanity is expressed in what in our English version is the shortest verse in the Bible, "Jesus wept." What Jesus meant to this home at Bethany he should mean to every home. He had been in this home sharing its hospitality. He wants to come into every home sharing its hospitality, partaking of its joys and of all of its pleasant relations, but he would come to our homes also when the cloud of sorrow hangs heavily over us. If there is any power in the world that can work miracles, it is this power of unfailing love.

Not long ago there was occasion to recall an incident, related years ago in The Congregationalist, concerning a well-known Congregational minister who some 40 years ago, apparently died and was laid out for burial. His friends were mournfully awaiting the funeral when a nurse, who had nursed him through an illness some time previously, and who had been at a distance, without knowing of his apparent death received a strange inner prompting to go and see him. She found the friends and neighbors gathered in the house of death, but for some reason she felt a strange impulse to chaff the hands and feet of the apparently lifeless body, with the result that before long the man, apparently dead, revived and sat up. He recovered fully and the circumstances fully evidenced were related in The Congregationalist at the time of his actual death some years later. A remarkable feature of this case was that the minister, apparently dead, had been throughout conscious of all that was happening around him, though he could give no sign of life. At first he was seized with terror of being buried alive, but ultimately, as he lay in that state, he had what seemed to be a revelation of the presence of Christ, and he declared that a great peace had filled his soul, taking away all fear.

Before one is too skeptical concerning the miraculous he might well bear in mind such well-attested incidents. However, we come to the larger aspects of our lesson in the concrete statement of the Golden text, "I am the resurrection and the life." Jesus declares that in him he that believeth, though he die, yet shall live. The gift of God, we are told, is eternal life.

How do we know that this is true? We have the witness of it in the power of Jesus to bring new life to men. That power has been exemplified since the days when he walked in Galilee and Judea. Men whose souls were dead revived at his coming and presence. This is our faith. This is the ground of our hope. It is the power of Jesus to give life that leads us to believe that the life that he gives is eternal.

Text: John 11: 32-44.

Then when Mary was come where Jesus was, and saw him, she fell down at his feet, saying unto him, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.
